"THE BRAND OF CAIN,"
by Violet Sims. An Entirely Original, Thrilling, Sensational Melodrama, Powerfully Written and Staged.
Produced at the Theatre Royal, Windsor July 4 to 9.
The popular verdict on Monday night was that the play commands intense and absorbing interest, which throughout the four acts is never allowed to flag, delineating a forcible human story. Miss Violet Sims' portrayal of the character of Nellie Black exhibits a freshness, vigour, and power of representation so characteristic of this clever and rising young actress, and the scene between her and Ada L'Estrange in Barker's Lodging House when she discovers her secret is known is rendered with intense natural emotional power.
The Resident Management says:—It is the best drama seen in Windsor for some time. A genuine money maker for Drama Dates. Could Tour with Eleven—Two Gentlemen (Double), Two Ladies (one Double, one Triple Rôle). For Rights, apply to VIOLET SIMS, 41, Linden-gardens, Bayswater.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the 'useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.

"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?"

"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."

"Do you know him?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."

"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"

"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."

Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.

"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—The play this week is The Derby Winner, which is presented by the Arthurian company. The piece is well staged, and the spectacular effects are of a striking character. Miss Laura Hansen plays powerfully as the Countess of Desborough; Miss Cecil Cromwell makes an admirable Verren Darville; and other parts ably represented are those of the Earl of Desborough by Mr Arthur Poole and Major Geoffrey Mostyn by Mr Arthur Royston.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—The Still Alarm is being presented here this week by Messrs Matthew H. Grenville and Fred Osmond's company. Several well-rendered songs are also introduced, which tend to brighten the piece. Mr Matthew Grenville give a fine embodiment of Jack Manley, and in Miss Ruth King he has a clever partner in the important rôle of Elinore. Mr Chas. Lester, in the part of Bird, is excellent; Mr Tom Beasley is amusing and clever as Willie Manley; and an admirable interpretation of Doc Wilbert is given by Mr Fred Osmond. A winsome Carry comes from Miss Hettie Zillwood, whilst Miss Mabel Veriton is one of the best Mrs Manleys we have yet seen. Mr Lewis Gordon (Franklyn) and Robert Lord (Joe Jones) are two well-played rôles, whilst Mr A. Downes as Jenkins is a typical servant. The scenery is effective and well arranged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—A Beautiful Fiend is the piece being presented here this week by Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company. The principal figure in the story is an adventuress, Wanda Lubinoff, the mistress of a Russian Count, and Miss Miriam Lewis must be congratulated on the emphasis she gives to the worst traits of a she-devil. Admirable exposition of character is also given to Nadine by Miss Irene Munroe, and to Patty, her maid, by Miss Annie Clunn. Mr Montague Beaudyn sustains with a rare vigour and show of courage the manly part of Ivan, of the Russian police, and the villain, Count Fedor, is made sufficiently callous and hateful by Mr A. G. Polson Turner. Mr Harold B. Lewis sustains the part of a Russian gentleman with a force and fervour which command applause, and the minor parts are satisfactorily interpreted by Messrs C. Kean, Robertson Foulis, F. H. Stanley, and others.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmott.—This week's programme is full of novelty. The great Shawline, the world-famous and original tramp, mimic, and siffleur, is the big draw, with the Two Eltons, on the triple horizontal bars, who also figure in an amusing knockabout act. The other artists, whose "turns" furnish some rare exhibitions of skill, and food for laughter, are the Alaskaino Trio of acrobats, tumblers, and Risley performers; Fred Curran, the peculiar fellow, very funny; and the Marblesque Trio, who pose in classical statuary, and give some fine tableaux; Sandy and Carl worthily uphold their reputation as acrobatic knockabouts; and the Solari Duo give a charming vocal and instrumental actr The Hippo Bioscope introduces a series of cinematograph pictures well worth viewing.

BARNSLEY.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr G. E. Hoey.—Mrs Jasper Redfern is paying a welcome return visit here. In addition to the fine show of animated photography there is a good variety entertainment. Sardou is clever in a mystic and illusion performance; Houpla and Hecla, the pyramid artistes, come in for a share of applause; as do also the Itrams, in their original perch act. The Sisters Brenton are smart in their dancing, and Albert Ventnor is an excellent character comedian. Charlton Howarth is also entertaining with illustrated songs.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Miss Emma Litchfield's No. 1 company in A London Actress is paying a return visit here. There have been some changes in the cast, but Mr Stuart Cleveland as Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford, and Miss Emma Litchfield as Hilda Mannering retain their old rôles, and are again well received. Mr R. Vane is good as Lieut Kingstone, R.N., as is also Mr John Worth as Captain Mannering, R.N. Mr Sam Wilford as Pat Moloney is amusing; Mr Fred Tenaur shows some good comedy as Moses Mendoza; and Miss Elsie Roberts acts very nicely as Phyllis Crawford.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—The Brothers Attila are here with an excellent show; Frobel and Ruge are clever trapezists; Captain Deveraux introduces as a canine drama The Streets of London; Allan and Hart are expert dancers; Barrett and Knowles are funny in their patter; Lily Flexmore is a clever legmania artist and comedienne; and Carlotta Mason is an attractive ballad singer.

BELFAST.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Harte.—The chief attraction here is provided by Messrs Radford and Valentine, most amusing American jugglers, whose remarkably clever entertainment has been accorded a capital reception. Messrs Barton and Franklin appear in their successful Scotch musical act, and the Lulaine Darrell Trio, including the Choir Girl Gymnast, have afforded much satisfaction with their startling ring performance. The sweet tenor vocalism of Mr Alfred Hurley delights many admirers, and the Brontes create much amusement with their exhilarating comedy duologue, entitled Saucy Maud. An extraordinary wire act by the Meers is quite a feature, and Happy Attwood, a very funny comedian, has been successful. Miss Chris Florence's Highland dances are unquestionably excellent, and also on the programme are Miss Lily Seville, vocalist; the Palace pictures; and Jimmy Gill, the Newry singing steeplejack.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The bill here is headed by Miss Nellie Wallace, a clever low comedy artiste, whose character songs have been hugely enjoyed. Arthur Lloyd and company (Lil, Arthur, and Dulcie) appear to decided advantage in their drawing-room sketch entitled Little Charlie; or, the Twin Sisters. The New York Nippers return with their quaint act entitled Bedtime, which has been very successful, and a big hit has been made by the Howards, who play a number of musical instruments very cleverly. Major Newell is aptly described as the "skatorial phenomenon," and others appearing are W. H. Liddy, Irish comedian and dancer; Will Mitcham, musical comedian; and Maud Ross, comedienne, whose dancing has been voted first-class.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—The bill here is headed by the Cullane Trio, including Miss Florrie Conroy, the clever lady boxer, who have been very successful with their attractive entertainment entitled The Dude's Dilemma. Goliath creates quite a sensation with his marvellous feats of strength, and a hit has been made by that droll comedian Mr Oliver Conroy. Stanley and Vandyke please all by their funny comedy act, and Miss Annie Cohen, a bright and talented comedienne, renews her former successes at this hall. A character comedian of much excellense appears in Mr W. P. Dempsey, his style being most amusing; and Bonetti, assisted by Miss May Corrie, is a first-class juggler and cartoonist. Miss Amy Bellwood is a delightful comedienne and dancer, and Little Le Breton, the graceful aerial lady gymnast, executes a marvellous performance wtih consummate ease. Also appearing are Cyclo, comedy cyclist, and the Weisker Brothers' Bioscope.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr Sydney Spenser's company in the naval drama, The Hero of the Flag, is attractive. Mr Sydney Turner is a good representative of the arch scoundrel, Paul Mansfield; Miss Lizzie Hall is an engaging Mabel Forrester; and a competent company of artists succeed admirably in the portrayal of a very interesting play.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—After a somewhat lengthy absence, Miss Julie Mackay, the clever comedienne, is renewing previous successes. Virto is again scoring heavily with his versatile musical act, and Roma and her piccanninies are a favourite turn. Other artists figuring prominently include Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their comedy athletic entertainment; the Remingtons, expert gymnasts; the Jetneys, coloured comedians; Doody and Wright, Australian comedians; Miss Molly Seymour, vocalist and instrumentalist; and Miss Amy Donna, vocalist and dancer. The Bioscope display of animated pictures adds to the variety of the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Those loyal patrons of the drama who make it their rule and pleasure to assemble under Mr Lester Collingwood's banner never, even in the "dog days," fall away to any appreciable extent; thus Her One Great Sin, which is richly staged and well acted by Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company, enlists liberal patronage and enthusiasm. Miss Blanche St. Albans, as the erring, stricken, and remorseful wife, wins praise and even sympathy. Mr Sam Arthur as the husband proves by his fine acting that a common carpenter may possess all the fine instincts of a gentleman. Mr J. Leicester Jackson in the character of the reckless ne'er-do-well squire, incurs great antipathy through his realistic acting. Miss Louie Walton lacks nothing as Bet, the hag, and Miss Maudie Lambert in the child's part is perfection. Other parts are well sustained by Messrs Fred Hodson, C. E. Lambert, F. Morton-Wright, H. B. Ford, and Miss Nelly Lambert.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Colleen Bawn marks the seventh and last week of Mr Matt Wilkinson's stock season, and Mr Wilkinson signalises the occasion by appearing as Myles, in which part he scores a big hit. This combination includes Messrs Keir and Kooney, Mr Tom Johnstone, Mr Syd Kerry, and Miss Nelly Mascotte, and their performance is really original and artistic. In the name rôle Miss Marjorie Cecil has a part that fits her excellently, while as Ruth Montrose Miss Mildred Clay gives ample evidence of much artistic ability. The Judith of Miss Nellie Harcourt is likewise commendable. The comedy part is capitally sustained by Mr Arthur Verne. The animated pictures are as good as ever.

On Monday evening the little Jap had a splendid reception, and in addition to trying conclusions with several local wrestlers had a "go" with Lawrie, of Bolton, a very much bigger man, who was defeated in 8min. 25sec. Herbert Shelley, actor-vocalist, gives a turn that wins for him a good reception, his songs being rendered in excellent style. Cordite (from Buffalo Bill's) is a remarkably clever rope-spinner and lasso manipulator. Rita and Roma are very entertaining in their high-class vaudeville entertainment. SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr J. Gaffney.—The visits to Liverpool of Madame Sarah Bernhardt, though few and far between, always arouse considerable interest, and, notwithstanding the enhanced prices necessarily charged, the auditorium of the theatre wherein the famous French actress appears is crowded. On Monday evening a "flying visit" was paid to the Shakespeare Theatre, the management of which, by inviting such a renowned artiste, together with her company of French players, again demonstrated the spirit of enterprise which is characteristic of them. A packed and fashionable audience was present, and gave The Sorceress a patient hearing and a cordial greeting.

MANCHESTER.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—The event of the week for Manchester playgoers was the visit to this theatre on Tuesday of Madame Sarah Bernhardt and her company in two performances of La Sorcière, the latest successful drama of Victorien Sardou. Evidence is not lacking that the play has been written chiefly to afford Madame Bernhardt the fullest opportunities for her genius as an emotional actress to assert itself; and in one scene at least—that of the Tribunal, which is the most poignant and effective in the play—it is probable that she is on the highest level of her many unequalled achievements. Though somewhat stagily devised, the play has a cumulative interest which might have ended more admirably with the fourth act than with the fifth, which is somewhat of an anti-climax without being quite a spectacular success. But it has throughout an atmospheric value which contributes appreciably to the total effect, and which, in conjunction with the superb acting of Madame Bernhardt, may be allowed to cover all structural shortcomings. A big house witnessed the play, and gave the great actress the best of its applause on each occasion, being quick also to recognise the quality of the work of others in the cast. M. Decoeur gave a sympathetic and virile delineation of Don Enrique. An outstanding performance, full of character and energy, was that of M. Gerval as the Grand Inquisitor. Two witnesses in the Trial scene were impersonated with extraordinary force and feeling by Mdlle. Patry and a lady whose part is unfortunately not quite traceable in the programme. A hidden orchestra played at intervals the incidental music of M. Xavier Leroux. This may be accounted one of Madame Bernhardt's most successful visits to Manchester.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs Beaudyn's and Livesey's company have been playing here this week in A Traitor Prince, a drama new to Manchester audiences. The story is full of interest and excitement, the scenes being laid in India—some of them exceedingly well put on. Mr F. G. Vane and Miss Lilian Rosebery are capital in the heroic parts, the evil element being well in evidence by the capable acting of Mr Lewin Fitzhamon and Miss Beatrice Western. Humour is prominent throughout, Mr E. Carter Livesey, Mr G. Montanini, Miss Maudie Grayson, and Mrs E. C. Mathews all doing well in comedy parts. Mr Tom Roydan gives a clever delineation of a half-caste. Some excellent dancing also is contributed by Miss Maudie Grayson and the Misses Annie and Florence Byrne.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr Wm. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A good programme is provided here this week, headed by Shicklay's comedy bears, who show wonderful training in their original comedy act. A capital turn also is that of Madame Collard's troupe of trained dogs in a burlesque act. Beside these we have Adams and Ward, smart comedy acrobats; Ford and Hanson, well received as the American musical millionaires; Amstel and Louie, in a diverting sketch; the Andreassens, accomplished acrobats; Frank Zara, a clever American comedian; Lily Jackson, a pleasing male impersonator; Dot Stanley, a vocalist and dancer of merit; Bob Selvidge, character comedian; and Mark Lane, comedian—both good turns.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A powerful play, Bigamy, is presented here this week by a company under the direction of Mr Morton Powell. The interest of the story is well brought out by a well-chosen cast, and some very pretty scenery is shown in the first act, which takes place in Naples. Prominent parts are in the hands of Miss Lena Brophy (the bigamist), Miss Elsie Capel, Mr Chas. Burdon, Mr E. S. Earle, Mr Wilfred H. Benson, Mr Fred Moule, Mr Colin Hazlewood, and Miss B. Brookland, subsidiary comedy parts being satisfactorily rendered by Mr Francis Searle, Miss Lydia Mannington, and Miss Edith Fleetwood.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Trooper Hunt's Widow made her first bow to a small but appreciative audience on Monday last. It is a capital farcical comedy, and in the hands of Mr Frank Nelson's company cannot fail to please. As the widow of Trooper Hunt Mr Wilfred E. Shine, creates much amusement, and is well supported by Miss Zoe Gilfillan as Jane Watson and Mr Cecil Fowler as Nathaniel Sapp. Miss Amy Edmonds makes a pleasing Frances Gresham, and Mr Howard Cridland is satisfactory as Harry Fraser. Others who take prominent parts are Miss Susie Oak, Mr Alec Flood, and Mr Joseph Hudson. An amusing dialogue, He and She, precedes.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr W. E. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Lockhart's Elephants are proving a big attraction here this week. Under the direction of Captain Taylor they go through a truly wonderful performance, showing to what perfection animal training can be brought. The Balsamos are both clever and amusing on the triple bar, and the Gladenbecks in a speciality act are particularly good. The Olmars are smart acrobats and tumblers; Herbert Betts is a capital comedian; Bell, Pearl, and company present a pleasing musical sketch, entitled A Bit of String; and Fred Rose, comedian, scores with his song, "Oh, Mabel." Other enjoyable items are Satsuma, the Japanese wonder worker; Walter Wallis, comedian; Marie Pownall, comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Fred Karno's comedians in His Majesty's Guests, including Harry Roxbury as Sergeant Lightning, are the main feature of this week's programme, and laughter reigns supreme. A exceedingly clever exhibition of kerchief juggling is given by Cameron, and the lightning change character dancing of Kitty Gower meets with favour. G. W. Hastings, comedian, contributes a song; and the animated pictures are pleasing and interesting.

Paul Vandy, the well-known juggler and trickster, gives an excellent performance, and Tom Lloyd, a comedian of the eccentric order, sings a couple of songs in capital style and is loudly applauded. Francois Rothig is a smart manipulator and conjuror; Miss Frederica's performing terriers and pony are highly trained; the Two Romas, duettists, are well received; and Speakman and Hammond are first-rate dancers. Other good turns are Clarke's Nippers, Little Freddie and Willie's boxing act being extremely funny; Mr and Mrs Edward H. Lucas, in scenes from Dickens; Tray and Rich, comedians, with good patter; and Lily Carrie, vocalist. The animated pictures include the recent wrestling between Hackenschmidt and Jenkins; and a cake-walking competition is proving very popular.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Secretary, Mr J. H. Stringer.—The big attraction here this week is Carl Hertz, whose conjuring and illusion act includes some wonderful and apparently inexplicable feats, such as the box trick, in which himself and Mdlle. D'Alton take part, and the marvellous indications of the glass clock. A capital turn also is Harry Pleon, who does well in his songs, stories, and imitations; while Florrie Forde, the popular burlesque actress, is seen to advantage in all her latest successes. Madge Gray, comedienne, gives some pleasing "dialect" songs; Fanny and Harry Dent are very amusing in their burlesque sketch, Mary and the Squire; Ara, Zebra, and Vora, the Esquimaux, in "Lapland's Miracles," are a novel and entertaining turn; Billy Hobbs shows himself a smart coon comedian and dancers; the New Macs are capital dancers and patter comedians; the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancer, are well received; Jack Charman justifies his claim to be called "the sweet-voiced youth;" and Jessie Albini is an amusing comedienne. The orchestral selection and the Palace pictures are good, as usual.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The New Century Pictures continue to attract large audiences. The latest additions include a new picture of the Russo-Japanese war and an interesting series on bee life.

MARGATE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr F. Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—Mrs Lewis Waller's company opened here on Monday with Zaza. In the title-rôle Miss Violet Fulton has done remarkably well. The part is one that requires careful handling, and Miss Fulton is particularly good in the pathetic scene with little Toto. Mr Eric Mayne is natural and manly as Bernard Dufresne, and fully shares the honours with Miss Fulton in the scene in Zaza's house, which brings the fourth act to a close. Miss Kate Kearney creates roars of laughter by her clever impersonation of Rosa Bonne. Miss Alice Langley makes a charming Alice Morel, and Miss Minnie Rayner plays conspicuously as Nathalie, Zaza's unsophisticated and large-hearted maid. Miss Pauline Hague sustains the rôle of Madame Dufresne with quiet dignity, and the part of Toto is well played by Miss Nina Heathe. Mr J. Spurling does excellently as the Duc De Brisac, and Mr Edmund Waller as Jacques Rigault is satisfactory.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee. Mr E. Macknight; Business Manager, Mr Chas. E. Hardy.—Shadows of a Great City has been played here this week by Mr Harry Foxwell and company. Mr Howell Travis enacts the part of Tom Cooper effectively, and Mr John J. Hooker makes a typical man-about-town in the character of George Benson. Mr Harry Foxwell gives a telling impersonation of the rascally pawnbroker, Abe Nathan; Mr Arthur E. Tomlin is much in evidence as the detective, Arkwright; Mr Newton Pearce plays Jim Farren, a sneak thief, well; and Mr J. Roberts as Simon Ables and other male members of the company are effective in their respective rôles. Miss Sheila Walsh plays with success the dual-rôle of Annie Standish, a poor woman, in the first two acts, and Nellie Standish, her daughter, in the subsequent part of the play. Miss Mollie Monaghan makes an ideal and warm-hearted Irish girl of Biddy Roonan, and Miss Nellie Gray does well as Mrs Higgins. The mounting of the play is capital.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Charles Evans.—This week's programme includes some capital turns. Tambo and Tambo, described as the original and only tambourine experts, manipulate, balance, and spin an enormous number of tambourines in a masterly manner. The Jackley Wonders go through a smart acrobatic show, concluding with a backward somersault from a pyramid of tables 30ft. high. Edmunds, as mimic and singing ventriloquist, is distinctly amusing, and Charles J. Johnson, champion cake-walker, has some pretensions to the title. Miss Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist, sings tunefully, and Miss Helen O'Brien appears as a comedienne. The excellent playing of the orchestra (under Mr Joseph Beckwith) conduces greatly to the enjoyment of the concert and the dancing.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

Mr Robert Ayrton throws much realism into the part of Gilbert D'Armand; Mr Chas. Preece as Tatters contributes materially to the enjoyment of the audience; Sir James Featherstone is in the capable hands of Mr Frederick Harker; and Mr W. Brooke as Charles Mordaunt is worthy of mention. Miss Nellie Birchenough in the rôle of Biddy Flanaghan is a success; whilst Lillian Mordaunt is well embodied by Miss Evelyn Clark.

OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Mr Hill-Mitchelson's celebrated drama, Rogues and Vagabonds, is here, and is meeting with success. Mr S. Renaud Lockwood as Fernand Delair in the title-rôle does well. Mr J. C. Carlyle impersonates a wealthy young artist very creditably, and Miss Marjorie Armstrong gives a sympathetic rendering of Ben, a street waif. Miss Lizzie Webb appears in the part of Hilda Jeffries, an escaped convict, with a great success. Mr Frank Denis as Police-constable Clegg keeps the house in continuous laughter.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—Miss Fanny Wentworth heads the bill, and her entertainment is as much enjoyed as on former visits. The Bros. Egbert, in their comedy act The Happy Dustmen, are very amusing; the Wengorra Brothers' feats of strength are well received; Dan Conroy makes a good impression; Larry Lewis meets with an excellent reception for his amusing songs; Charles Ulrick accomplishes some smart feats; Read and Wright give a creditable exhibition of top-boot dancing, and some good songs are sung by Miss Grace Morton. Wordley Hulse as General Stanhope, Miss Ada Mansfield as Mrs Winter, and Miss Nina Adams as Daisy Armitage; while the triumvirate has been entrusted to Messrs Phil Harper, Ivan Gore, and Guy P. Ellis. The show is a capital one all round, and is preceded by a dramatic episode, A Terrible Revenge.

WINTER GARDENS. — Manager, Mr William Holland.—Mendel, the blind pianist and composer, has topped the bill here, and his extraordinary musical genius has quite enthralled his audiences. During the week he has had one or two pretty severe memory tests submitted by local composers, but he has been equal to the occasion each time. The Zannettos conclude a most popular fortnight's engagement to-night, and they have made a host of friends. The bill has also included Kloof and Ramsay, musical artistes; Andy Fagan, comedian; Albini, the wonder worker; the Vocal Chameleon; Clyo and Rochelle, comedian and soubrette; Fanny Robina, burlesque actress; Leonson, equilibrist, assisted by Mdlle. Louise; and Florrie Cooper.

The business done has been a fair indication that the experiment contains the elements of success. The following artists have helped to contribute to the week's programmes:—Ginnett's Rejected Remounts; Tom Holland, tenor; Cyrus and Maude and their donkey, Bess; the Lyric Comedy Singers; Mdlle. Florence, globe roller, assisted by Mdlle. Queenie; Agnese and Arthur Lynch, song illustrators; Nelson and Thomas, sketch artists; Gus Hindell, comedian, in scena, Boys Will Be Boys; Barney Stuart, in "Impersonalia;" and the Albyn comic opera company.

NEW BRIGHTON.

TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—Captain Alfonso Gerard's lions and tiger-dogs head the bill here this week, their performance demonstrating marvellous patience and skill in animal training. The remainder of the company consists of G. W. Foster, the popular eccentric personage; Maddison Sisters, comediennes and specialty dancers; Royal Korries, in their novel and original pot-pourri act; Stylo, wonderful hoop manipulator; Alma Curzon, burlesque actress; and the Skandia Troupe of Norwegian aerial gymnasts.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Here we have a visit from Miss Marie Menzies's company, who opened on Monday in A Rogue's Daughter. Miss Menzies herself appears as the wronged Letty Grey, and imparts strong feeling to her representation. Miss Madge Devereux as Lady Mynard, the title-part, gives a really excellent embodiment. The villainy of Colonel Foster is of the most uncompromising description, and in this character Mr Richard Ferris is seen to the best advantage, while Mr Frank V. Venn as Sir George Mynard and Mr Wilfred Blair as Frank Tyler are also prominent. In comedy parts Mr Harry H. Rignold, Mr W. Wilson, and Miss Mona Hall comport themselves to the gratification of the audience.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Leading position in the bill is this week allotted to the M'Naughtons, whose eccentric comedy business and amusing cross-talk excites an almost constant ripple of laughter in the audience. Much favour is enjoyed by the Kaufmann Troupe of lady cyclists, who go through evolutions and perform their tricks with neatness and skill. The possessor of a wonderfully high top note is Mdlle. Lagreze, and this gift is pleasurably made apparent in her vocal selections. The Miles-Stavordale Quartet of banjoists delight the audience by their artistic rendering of familiar airs. A very popular lady is Alice Lloyd, who is singing two capital ditties, and her pleased listeners would fain have more. A series of laughable misunderstandings is the basis of the sketch A Tooth for a Tooth, which is merrily rattled throughby Wm. Lee, Helen Bentley and company. Bert Brantford scores as a comedian and dancer, and J. W. Rickaby in his soldier song is also successful. An exhibition of club manipulating is given by Geraldo. Frank Sylvo as a comedy juggler is well received, and suitable acknowledgment rewards the efforts of Vi Holmes, comedienne and dancer; and Mabel La Blanche, descriptive vocalist.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—Poseurs of the first water are the Three Seldoms, and in a series of statuary groups they appear with fine artistic effect. A successful engagement is being fulfilled by Simms and Simms, who give a musical comedy act in such a manner as to win the entire approval of the audience. The Celtic Comedy Quartet display comedy powers and vocal excellence which entitle them to warm praise. Great Scott, while balancing himself on the top of a ladder, juggles and performs tricks which, appropriately enough, cause the audience in their astonishment to ejaculate the words which make up his name. What are described as comedy trampolin acrobats in Max Trevally-Harley Troupe give a clever performance. Diversion is created by a trio of comedians in Morny Cash, Little Barney, and Walter King, while Gwen Howard, comedienne, and Brothers Landolf, "the Eton boys at play," also contribute to the programme.

Prelle provides a novelty in the shape of using dressed dogs with masks for his figures in his ventriloquial turn; Allis and Cassati give an excellent turn in which quaint dancing and acrobatics are combined with funny patter; and Earle and Earle, American banjoists, show considerable skill. Mr Fred L. Connynghame as Matt Ruddock is very funny, and makes quite a hit; and Mr Fred Haming is seen to advantage as Joe Jackson. As Ellaline Mervin Miss Madge Willis is worthy of the highest praise. Miss Violet Macaree gives a capital rendering of Winnie Wingate, Miss Bertha Hanbury is a capable Marjorie Wingate, and the other parts are well sustained.

Yvette's miniature circus furnishes an ample fund of amusement. The Mannings supply a laughable sketch entitled A Hotel Boots, and the Glenroy Troupe of dancers deserve a word of appreciation. In the chief rôle in Lady Audley's Secret Miss Edna Hana shows considerable histrionic ability, while Phœbe and Alice are well represented by Miss E. Lorraine and Miss E. Victor respectively. Edwin and the Hon. Bevis—are satisfactorily played by Mr Charles Chambers and Mr H. Carter Bligh respectively. The Lady Pinkney of Miss Kate Bishop is a very good impersonation.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—At this house we have the social drama, Her Fatal Past, produced by Mr Edward Ward's company. It is capitally staged. Miss Ward as Honor Symes acts with much ability; Miss Chrissie Dunbar, in the dual rôle of Ruth Fernside and Bella de Lara, is deserving of all praise; Mark Desmond is played by Mr Jackson Hayes in creditable fashion; Mr T. Gilbert (Captain Meshla), and Mr H. Halliday (Jack Donovan) capably fill their parts. As Cora Muldoon Little May is praiseworthy, Miss Florrie Mandeville makes the most of the part of Ada M'Loughlin, and Kitty Muldoon is successfully portrayed by Miss Madge Cassidy.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—Mr Fred Storey, the well-known clever comedian, and his talented company have been staging the ever-welcome legendary play, Rip Van Winkle, to appreciative audiences this week. Of Mr Storey in the title-rôle it is scarcely necessary to say much, for he is so well known. His power to amuse and hold the sympathy of those who witness his performances shows no signs of waning; he is distinctly successful. Miss Lilian Holmes enacts Gretchen with unaffected charm, and little Hendrick Veddar and Meenie are personified in admirable fashion respectively by Master Reggie Thompson and Miss Dora Frazer. Miss Nita Owen does exceedingly well as Katchen, and the remaining characters are in thoroughly capable hands.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION AND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. A. Hornby.—Captain Swift, played in good style, has formed the attraction here this week. Messrs J. H. Jay and Frank Fenton's company are appearing, the latter being loudly applauded at each performance for his fine impersonation of the ex-bushranger. Mr J. D. Saunders is capital as the squatter, Mr Gardiner; and Miss Vansittar contributes much to the admirable character of the production as Mrs Seabrook. Stella Darbisher is a part handled with skill and gracefully played by Miss May Cull; and the Mabel Seabrook of Miss Eva Sinclair is worthy of hearty commendation. The other artistes taking part all perform their allotted duties in first-rate fashion. At the afternoon entertainments attractive programmes have been carried out.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning. — Messrs Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is paying a return visit with The Two Hussars, a military drama. Mr James Stuart gives a fine rendition of Colonel Manners, and Mr F. J. Webb is received with marked disapproval as Captain Paul Villiers. Mr G. Paradise as Sergeant M'Finnie is a droll martinet, and Trooper Robert Runn by Mr Louis Nanton is very humorous. Mr Wilson Benge is a manly Harry Alford, and Mr S. James scores as Lewis Montague. Miss Lallah Price is a sprightly Molly Cutts, and Miss Sadie Smith is very vivacious. Miss M. Danvers-Smith in the dual-rôle of Ellen Maythorne and Will Gunstock gives a pleasing and attractive rendition of difficult parts.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield Assistant-Manager, Mr E. W. Parry.—One of the most artistic turns seen at the Palace is Mdlle. Kloët, who is appearing in a series of classical poses. Les Valdos, acrobatic Continental eccentrics, prove successful. Will Hebden, comedian, has a couple of good songs; and Lily Turner, descriptive vocalist, and the Sisters Brookland, dainty dancers and comediennes, are also in the bill. The orchestra gives a selection from Florodora, under the bâton of Mons. Edmund Bosanquet, who throughout does excellent work.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company is here on a return visit with The Silver Cross. Mr E. Marston is again to the front with his unapproachable representation of Old Ben; Mr Harry Glenny is still most successful as Philip Frewin; Mr Leslie Baker is well suited as Arthur Merton; Mr W. A. Buckstone maintains a high standard of excellence as the Rev. Nicholas Frewin; and Mr Syd Bazley as Tomkyns Quinton and Miss Marion Armitage as Sally Beedles are responsible for the comedy. Miss Maud Western is a charming Little Sunshine; and the Laura Beechcroft of Miss Cissy Glenny is a bright feature of the play.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh, Mr J. Edward Whitty, and company are presenting here the melodrama entitled The World's Desire. Mr Hartwell T. Kirby depicts the cowardly scoundrel, the Hon. Ellis Tridley, with rare ability; full scope for displaying her powers is afforded Miss Ethel Van Praagh as Dora Mutley, a part she vividly treats, her nonchalant style being undoubtedly to the popular taste. The twin brothers, Robert and Henry Selkirk, are bracketed by Mr J. Edward Whitty, who proves a capital exponent. Mr Harry Belford is amusing and versatile as old Nathaniel Mutley; Mr Herbert Light speaks earnestly as Godstone Blair; and loud laughter is evoked by Miss Ethel Tinsley's Justerina Hook. The heroine, Helen Berkshaw, of Miss Connie Meadows is a decidedly pleasing and attractive delineation. Little Ella commendably sustains Ragged Jack. Smaller parts are praiseworthily handled, and the scenery is effective.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Marie Kendall, the charming comedienne, is once more delighting audiences here, her excellent rendering of "Just like the ivy" being enthusiastically applauded. The eccentric comedian Edwin Boyde elicits roars of laughter. The Hartley Wonders appear in a wonderful jumping act, and loud applause is gained by Maggie Walsh, the singing Lancashire mill lass. Stewart and Morgan's well-rendered numbers are appreciated. J. H. Hurst is vastly amusing. The American Bioscope (always a popular item), Jessie Burnett, comedienne, and Steve M'Carthy complete an excellent bill.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Miss Kate Clinton's company, in Jeanie Deans, is appearing here. Mr Edmund Grogan's Duke of Argyle is an effective effort; Mr H. W. Monte as David Deans makes the character strong and pathetic; as James Ratcliffe Mr Earnest Lodge does well; and Mr W. J. Miller's Geordie Robertson is capital. Mr Neal Fitzwilliam's Counsel for the Defence and Mr Andrew Weir's Counsel for the Crown are eloquently enacted; the Dumbledykes of Mr T. W. Benson is a very clever study; Miss Marion Esher's Madge Wildfire and Miss Mary Campbell's Effie Deans are praiseworthy efforts; and Miss Kate Clinton's Jeanie Deans is powerful. Ingomar was staged on Friday with Mr Edmund Tearle in the title-rôle.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—The Motramos, in their comedy musical act; Olga and Ivan, clever dancers; Sheila Deans, Scotch serio; Fred Bronte, in sensible songs; Beatty and Blanche, top-boot dancers; Harry Nelson, a favourite Tyneside comic; the Josberthos Trio, in graceful feats of strength; and the latest films by Payne's Bioscope are the attractions here.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, by Dion Boucicault, entitled "THE SHAUGHRAUN."

Mr George Davey, encouraged by the great success that attended his recent productions of The Colleen Bawn and Arrah-na-Pogue, has revived for the ensuing week the above drama. Mr Oswald Brand has again produced the play, and his zealous supervision of every detail in the performance secured an interpretation of signal merit. There is little that can be said now in further praise of this play, which, together with Boucicault's other works, continues to hold a prominent place in the affectionate regard of playgoers of all classes. The stock company at this theatre was again responsible for the performance, and that same loyal working together for the general success, which has characterised their previous efforts, was again equally in evidence on Monday. Mr Hal Collier, who is now installed as a prime favourite with the patrons of the Grand, was entrusted with the title-rôle, and in the hands of so clever a comedian it is needless to say that the evening partook somewhat of the nature of a personal triumph, applause loud and sustained following Mr Collier from his initial entry to the conclusion of the play. Mr Leonard Yorke as Captain Molineux had a rôle which suited him excellently, and the vein of comedy which pervades the part found in him a capital exponent. Mr Cecil Klein as Robert Ffolliott made much of the part, his acting gaining again very favourable comment and applause. Mr C. A. Clarke as Father Dolan played the part with a nice appreciation of its dignity, and is entitled to very cordial congratulations. Mr Arthur Estcourt as Corry Kinchela brought his robust methods to bear on the part with excellent results, the "gods" soon expressing their feelings with unqualified fervour. Mr Ivan Berlin as Harvey Duff presented one more of his eccentric character studies, the intensity of his interpretation making a great impression on the audience. The remaining smaller rôles were safe in the hands of Messrs Terry, Billington, Elliston, Emerle, and Fergus. As for the ladies, Miss Kate Brand as Moya added one more to her already long list of successes at this theatre, her performance being very bright and attractive, particularly so in her scenes with Mr Collier, while the fidelity of her brogue deserves particular commendation. Miss Helen Bancroft as Claire Ffolliott plays with a pleasant discrimination, her acting gaining much applause. As Arte O'Neale Miss Winifred Leeson looked and acted well, her attractive style being in admirable keeping with the character. Miss Nellie Gilmore as the irrepressible Mrs O'Kelly brought her skill to bear on her reading, her portrayal being splendid in all respects; and in two smaller parts Miss Hardacre and Miss Wood were acceptable. The mounting of the play is, as usual, on a very complete scale, Mr Chapman, the scenic artist, meriting a special word of praise for some very effective scenery, and the incidental music, together with a special programme of Irish selections, being capitally performed by Mr Gliddon's orchestra. Mr Davey's early-door attractions for this week include Cazman, an entertainer of great skill and versatility, his impersonation of great pianists and conductors being very clever, and his shadowgraph exhibition proving very neat and smart, and gaining much applause. In the drama, too, Mr Pat Doherty appears in two songs and a dance, his reception being one of unusual cordiality, the audience being loth to part with him.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, July 11th, the Drama, in Four Acts, by F. A. Scudamore, entitled "THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

Messrs F. A. Scudamore and Arthur Richmond's company is doing every justice to the production of The Beautiful Avenger at the Standard this week. This drama, from the prolific brain of Mr F. A. Scudamore, may be looked upon as another of his many successes, for not only is it up-to-date in every detail but it is original, its theme is intelligent, and the cleverly constructed plot is interesting to a high degree. The artists responsible for the interpretation work well together, and the scenery employed is elaborate and effective, making the whole production a conspicuous success. A most creditable performance is given by Miss Daisy Scudamore as Vashti Volta and the supposed Victor Stanhope. Her acting is natural and convincing and is deserving of warm praise. Miss Mabel Scudamore as Edna Volta supplies an excellent reading of the rôle, playing with all the pathos due to the part. As Arabella Binks Miss Nannie Mead is exceptionally well placed. In the lighter portions of the drama her contribution is of considerable assistance, and she receives substantial help from Mr William Ames, who plays with decided humour as Peregrine Patch. Cyrus Telford is portrayed by Mr James Gelderd in an able and distinguished manner, and Baldie Mansfield receives a fitting and capable embodiment at the hands of Miss Cissie Podmore. As the sneaking and scheming Zadok Foxbane Mr Frank Harding is excellent, whilst Mr Algernon Syms, the late hero of the dramas produced at the Britannia Theatre, receives a warm welcome and contributes a convincing performance of great merit. The part of Jim Jhams is safely entrusted to Mr Fred Withers, and the minor characters are adequately filled by other members of the company.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, in Four Acts, by John Douglass, entitled "NO MAN'S LAND."

Among the dramatic magnets of recent years the attractive power of what has been termed the tank drama must be reckoned with. In this connection, too, the name of Mr John Douglass rises naturally to the lips. To his pieces has been accorded the rare honour of translation into various European languages, and their running power seems to be inexhaustible. Much water has flowed under the bridges since No Man's Land first saw the footlights, and yet its hold on public sympathy, interest, and admiration continues as firm as ever. This fact has been strikingly exemplified by the enthusiastic reception accorded to the piece at the West London Theatre, where it has been performed by a company under the direction of Mr Henry Herne. The homely eloquence of the dialogue is well calculated to stir the emotions of the provincial and suburban playgoer. The simple yet interesting plot at once arrests his attention, and retains on it a hold that never relaxes till all the tribulations of virtue are at an end, till villainy has met its richly deserved chastisement, and till the curtain has descended on a highly gratifying picture of poetic justice. But there are more striking qualities than even these in No Man's Land, for are not the pulses of every playgoer stirred by the desolation of the island of the title, the wonderfully realistic storm in the tropics, and the real rain. Further excitement comes, too, of the final water sensation by the old weir in the last act, where the heroine is rescued from real water by the soubrette, who takes a header into the pool of running water. The company representing the drama in headed by Miss Ida Millais, who plays the part of Mary Bathurst with an intensity of style that enables her to sound the depths of the strongest dramatic situations, the less exigent episodes being marked by simplicity of treatment. Mr Henry Herne's ripe experience enables him to present an attractive and breezy portrait of the hero Harry Oaklands. Mr Fred Conyers embodies Silas Moore, the crafty solicitor, with graphic vigour, and in a style that leaves the audience in no doubt as to the unmitigated rascality of the personage. The more uncouth and less subtle scoundrel Mat Marsden is presented by Mr William Matthews with a rugged brutality that well befits the character. The kind-hearted and easily persuaded Doctor Buxton finds a capable impersonator in Mr Claude Haviland, the continual objections of the doctor to unlooked for increases in his family circle rousing hearty laughter. Mr Sydney A. Morton makes a droll character of Solomon Jacobs, a young broker, and to his credit, be it said, he does not overdo the Hebraic peculiarities that are traditional with the stage Jew. The auction scene where Solomon so cleverly "chouses" the villain goes to an accompaniment of laughter and applause; and the association with Mr Morton of Miss Sybil Hammersley as Bessie Pottle is of considerable advantage in the comic scenes, which are occasionally strengthened by a well-rendered comic song. Mr Alfred Burrows makes a popular figure of the precocious youth Thompson Pootle; Mr William Byron is a pathetic Captain Norman Bathurst, a part which he doubles with that of Gilbert Bathurst; Miss Kate Maynard plays Mrs Pootle in a frankly coquettish way; and other parts are effectively handled by Mr Charles Hanbury as Ikey Moss, Mr Vaughan Rowe as Captain Spencer, Mr Arthur Marchant as Long Tom, and Mr George North as Owen Rushton. The sensational effects have caused immense excitement, and they have been admirably stage-managed.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, July 11, the Original Version of "EAST LYNNE."

Mrs John Wood's famous play East Lynne is presented here this week. Miss Eily Malyon in the rôle of Lady Isabel Carlyle played with extreme tenderness the part of the erring but repentant heroine of the story, and the pathos of her scene with her dying child drew tears from very many of the audience. Miss Emily Dowton as Miss Cornelia Carlyle was extremely amusing, and Miss Rose Ralph as Barbara Hare played with much charm. The parts of Wilson, Joyce, and Susanne, the three waiting-maids, were very capably filled by Miss Millie Murray, Miss Mabel Anderson, and Miss Noel Neville respectively, and Miss Marjorie Lawrence was truly excellent in the child part, Willie Carlyle. Her acting in the death scene was very touching, convincing, and natural. Mr Willie Scott was comic as Bullock, the policeman, and Mr Harry Crane as Justice Hare and Mr George Silver as his wrongly suspected son, Richard Hare, both did well, as also did Mr Frank Harrison as Lawyer Gill and Mr Geo. Taverner as Lord Mountsevern. The character of the hero, Archibald Carlyle, was played by that capable actor Mr Wilfred E. Payne, and the part could scarcely have had a better exponent. Mr Oscar Adye played the part of Captain Francis Levison, the villain of the piece, very cleverly. The play was produced by Mr John M. East.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, July 11, the Irish Drama, entitled "THE SHAUGHRAUN."

Despite the hot weather, a well filled house was present on Monday to witness The Shaughraun. This is the first time it has been played at this theatre, and the production is again under the experienced direction of Mr John M. East. Mr Henry Wright is capital as Conn, and he handles the part well, winning high favour. Captain Molyneux is played by Mr W. S. Hartford in an earnest manner which suits the character admirably. Robert Ffolliott is carefully portrayed by Mr Arthur Bearne. Mr Charles Langley supplies a dignified portrait of Father Dolan, the excellent make-up of the actor calling for special notice. Mr J. J. Bartlett appears as Corry Kinchela, and plays the part in the necessary oily manner, scoring accordingly. Kinchela's accomplice, Harvey Duff, is cleverly depicted by Mr J. P. Dryden, his acting in the final scene being notably effective. Mrs Stanislaus Calhaem gives a clever embodiment of Mrs O'Kelly, while Miss L. Arthur in the minor character of Nancy Malone calls for notice. Miss Kitty Grattan is an acceptable Arte O'Neale, and Miss Fielding is a charming Claire Ffolliott. Moya is brightly played by Miss Marie Wright. The play is well mounted, and Mr Tom Taylor is responsible for the stage management.

THE SURREY.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, in Five Acts, by St. Aubyn Miller, entitled "THE GOLDEN CHANCE."

Mr James Hare's company is occupying the boards here this week in the sensational comedy-drama—or melo-farce—The Golden Chance, and has the honour of being the last of the touring companies that will be seen at this noted Surreyside house under the Conquest régime, for next week, being the closing week, will be devoted to Mr George Conquest's benefit and farewell celebrations. The Golden Chance has much in it to commend it to lovers of strong melodrama and farcical comedy, and the sympathies of the audience are all the time with the artist, Hubert Zac, and his charming wife, Lydia. As the former Mr Herbert M. King plays the part with earnestness and feeling, while Miss Agatha Halford as the persecuted wife gives a portrait marked by plaintive grace and charm, and in the scene with her wrongly accused husband in the penal stone quarries her penetrating pathos gets a firm hold of the audience. In the first act Miss Irene Clifford as the heartless variety theatre artist, Viva Zac, makes her mark by cleverly depicting the callousness of a woman that would sacrifice her honour for wealth and position. Mr James Hare as the villain, Stephen Clinton, has such an open manner and persuasive style that one is inclined to overlook the man's persistent villainy. Miss Ethel Carlisle depicts the drunken hag, Mother Hawk, with artistic realism, and in her D.T. scene her forcible and intense acting makes a strong impression. Mr Hill Cremer as Edward St. Clair has little to do, but does that little thoroughly well. As the ill-used signalman Dick Newman Mr Albert H. Clarke acts with feeling and discretion. Mr Arthur Swain as the kind-hearted Colonel Saunderson is natural, and has an intelligent grasp of the character. As the brutal Warder Jenkins Mr Edwin Maydew easily earns the execrations of the pit and gallery. The comedy parts are handled on broadly comic lines by Mr John A. Stimson as Sam Brown, a good-tempered cabman; Miss Jenny Hallworth as his vivacious wife Susan, and Mr Tom Arkinstall as the humorous Jew Isaac Shelberg. This merry trio make fun and merriment permeate each scene, while warm applause and repeated encores reward Miss Jenny Hallworth for her admirably rendered song, "Gallery and Boxes," the topical ditty "In the good old summer time," and her lively duet with Mr John A. Stimson, "Enquire Within," which creates roars of genuine merriment. Mr Arthur Conroy makes a typical country station-master, Mr Tom Shaw an excellent railway porter, and Mr Ronald Thayne fills the rôle of a police inspector efficiently. All the scenery and effects are good, and the Railway Sensation scene is cleverly conceived and worked.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

On Monday, July 11. "THE STREETS OF LONDON."

Prior to a fortnight's closure of the pretty Fulham Theatre for cleaning and repairs Mr Charles A. East and company, under the direction of Mr John M. East, have this week revived Dion Boucicault's The Streets of London, which, we believe, was the first drama to introduce the fire brigade and real fire-engine and horses, &c. It has plenty of excitement, and a full complement of harrowing scenes and situations among the poor of London and the story is told with Boucicault's usual fervour and ebullient humour. Mr Charles A. East enacts the part of the good-hearted but somewhat unfortunate scoundrel Badger, a sort of Sam Weller of the criminal classes, and enters thoroughly into the part. He is best in the earlier scenes, when he confronts the miserly banker with the evidences of his guilt. Mr J. C. Aubrey presents a most forbidding portraiture of the stoney-hearted, relentless financier, Gideon Hardman, whose sole redeeming feature is his love for his only child, Alida. The rôle of the cold-hearted, calculating, and ambitious Alida is capitally represented by Miss East Robertson, who graphically depicts the scheming woman, whose aim is to unlock the portals of good society with the golden key of affluence, and gratify her own caprices at one and the same time. Mr Rawson Buckley acts with feeling and discretion as Mark Livingstone, Miss Ida Phillips makes a charming heroine in distress, and as the lovelorn Lucy invites "a tear for pity," and Mr Maurice Hoffman struggles manfully through three acts of intense anguish and suffering as Paul Fairweather. Mr Joe Rowland as Puffy provides a welcome humorous turn, and is ably assisted by Miss Julia Summers as Mrs Puffy and Miss Marie Jones as Dan, a trio who, in their natural humour and kindness of heart, must be related to the Jarvis family, "of the legitimate," in The Lights of London. Mr Edward Boddy causes much merriment as the pompous menial, Edwards; and other small parts are efficiently rendered.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, July 11, "OUR BOYS."

Our Boys is being presented here this week for the first time by a capable company under the direction of Mr Chas. Otley. The celebrated comedy is well mounted and stage-managed. There is unflagging vitality in the delineation of the retired butterman, Perkyn Middlewick, by Mr Chas. Otley. He seems to revel in the part, and on the occasion of our visit was in his happiest vein of humour and buoyancy, never losing an opportunity for eliciting the merriment of the audience. The Sir Geoffrey Champneys of Mr Arthur Rodney is a fine and finished study of the high-minded, aristocratic old father, meriting great commendation. The Talbot Champneys of Mr Arthur Eldred is scarcely less effective in its way, whilst Mr George C. Doughty is entitled to high praise for his energetic efforts as Charles Middlewick. Miss Phyllis Atherleigh is natural and amusing in the rôle of Mary Melrose, and Miss Queenie Nigel essays the part of Violet Melrose with a degree of success. Miss Keith Lytton gives a stirling performance as Clarissa Champneys, and Miss Marie Jonquil gives some of the best characterisation of the evening in her delineation of the lodging-house slavey Belinda. Mr Theyre Smith's comedietta, A Case for Eviction, as a curtain-raiser is capitally played by Miss Phyllis Atherleigh, Miss Marie Jonquil, and Mr George C. Doughty. Valuable aid in the musical portion of an agreeable evening's entertainment is afforded by the Marlborough orchestra, under the skilful direction of Mr J. G. Hahn, and Mr Purcell's acting-manager, Mr F. R. Yeulett, is courteous and obliging in his attentions to those in front of the house.

Sergeant Angus M'Nab	Mr MILROY COOPER
Mark N. Slatem	Mr STEPHEN ADESON
Stephens	Mr FRED DORNAN

Dorothy Slatem	Miss MINNIE HUNT

Where's Uncle? which was originally produced at the Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, on May 16, was accorded a decidedly favourable reception on its first London performance at the handsome Borough Theatre, Stratford, on Monday last, the large audience being hugely amused at the many farcical incidents it contains, the numerous and tuneful musical numbers, for some of which Messrs Dudley Smith, E. Field-Fisher, and Harold Vicars were responsible, also affording much delight. "Uncle" is Professor Robert Stone-Hunter, a geologist, who has suddenly lost his memory and strayed from the domestic hearth. His relatives offer a reward of £500 for information as to his whereabouts, and Mark N. Slatem, head of a firm of private inquiry agents, determines to find him. So also does Slatem's confidential clerk, Gibson Gallivant, an impecunious young spark, who has an eye on his governor's daughter, dainty Dorothy, and also a partnership in the business. Gallivant appears also to be on pretty familiar terms with the numerous fascinating lady typists who are employed by Slatem, but if he can manage to accumulate £500 the inquiry agent promises him a share in the business and his daughter's hand. In their quest for the missing Stone-Hunter master and servant adopt various disguises, and Dorothy also joins in the search, posing as a nurse. Gallivant, who bears a resemblance to the missing geologist, makes up exactly like him, and is, of course, mistaken for "Uncle," and the many complications that occur ere the real one is discovered, and Gallivant is on the high-road to gaining the £500 and the fair Dorothy, are of the most farcical description. The central character in the piece is Gibson Gallivant, and that experienced and resourceful comedian, Mr Frank Danby, who heads his own company, revelled in the many opportunities afforded him for comic acting, his disguises as "Uncle," a grotesque looking servant girl, and a highlander being all clever and humorous impersonations. In "Punctuation" and "Spoiled" he had a couple of comic numbers which were loudly applauded; and his exertions were largely responsible for the success of the production. Another effective and well-studied performance was the Mark N. Slatem of Mr Stephen Adeson, who also contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the audience by his amusing portrayal of the sorely-tried detective, the disguises he assumes all being excellent character studies. The rôle of Captain Archie Graham, a dude with an idiotic laugh that particularly appealed to Monday night's audience, was enacted in a finished manner by Mr Charles Adeson, his rendering of a dialect song being a clever and much appreciated contribution. Lieut. Roy Neilson was carefully and capably undertaken by Mr Rhys Thomas, his rendering of "Soldiers of the King" being decidedly praiseworthy; and Mr Milroy Cooper was responsible for a really clever and humorous portrait of Sergeant Angus M'Nab; Mr Gus Danby extracting all possible mirth from the character of Professor Stone-Hunter, and joining Mr Frank Danby in an amusing and smart song and dance. Miss Minnie Hunt played Dorothy in a refined and effective style, and sang a couple of love ballads with much expression and charm; Madge Barlow was admirably enacted by Miss Rose Brady; a vivacious and "knowing" presentment of Winnie Graham was given by Miss Carruthers, who also distinguished herself in an attractive dance; and the severe Mrs Stone-Hunter of Miss Elsie Carew was a finished, easy, and artistic study. The other characters were satisfactorily played; and the cultured vocalism of the Rouge et Noir Quartet added considerably to the enjoyment of the audience. The chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of the composer, are entitled to commendation for careful and efficient work; and the scenery and costumes were praiseworthy.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama in Four Acts, by Lewis Gilbert and F. W. Hawson, entitled "A FAITHFUL FRIEND."

Messrs Leonard Pagden and Lewis Gilbert's company, in A Faithful Friend, are meeting with every success at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week. John Tollerton, in the safe hands of Mr J. W. Henson, is a highly popular character, the blunt, open-hearted Yorkshire millionaire being portrayed in easy style and with fluent dialect. The skilful handling of the rôle of the despicable Harold Sefton by Mr Wm. D. Fazan makes the character particularly obnoxious to the audience, who are ever ready to rejoice at the miscreant's discomfiture. Mr Roy Byford employs broad comedy methods with eminent success as the parvenu, Sir Thomas Jones, and his simulation of mortal fear of his conventional spouse, Lady Thomas Jones, a part realistically played by Mrs Edgar Colona, is highly mirth-provoking. Augustus Silvester is portrayed with all the necessary precocity by Mr F. Pennington-Gush: Mr Alexander Wills contributes a manly and earnest embodiment of Harry Somerton; and Mr Hilton Francis is excellent as Antonio Orsini. Miss Trissie Humphrys charmingly impersonates Mildred Marsden; Miss Ethel Cryer makes a sympathetic Ruth Mayfield; and Miss Josephine Colona looks very handsome as the artist's model, Cynthia. Minor parts are in capable hands, and the scenery and mounting most appropriate.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, July 11, for the First Time in the Suburban District, the Drama, by M'Leod Loader, entitled "THE KING OF THIEVES."

James Galston	Mr JACK HADDON
Harry Travers	Mr ALBERT SEFTON
Sir Gilbert Redville	Mr NORMAN OVERTON
Arthur Redville	Mr WALTER DOMONEY
Joe Ricketts	Mr HARRY FIDDLE
Luke Kanby	Mr FREDERICK VAUGHAN
Silas Jowle	Mr GEORGE HERBERT
Dick Perry	Mr FRANK DOUETTE
Jean Vittelli	Mr R. WILTON BEDFORD
Inspector Round	Mr WALTER PRINGLE
Bill Rigger	Mr WILL MYERS
P.C. Hasher	Mr N. GILPER
Mary Galston	Miss NELLIE T. HALLAM
Maud Desmond	Miss MARIE RAYNER
Polly Puff	Miss LOTTIE PEARCE
Mrs O'Brien	Miss MARGUERITE THORNE

Mr Loader, of the Opera House, St. Helens, has presented to a London audience a really interesting and powerful melodrama, and a capable company from the northern shires to play it. James Galston's early life has been wrecked and a fond wife stolen from him by a heartless libertine, Sir Gilbert Redville. Maddened by his unmerited shame and the cruel fate and death of his misled wife, he swears vengeance upon Redville in particular and society in general, forming for this purpose a society of thieves with himself as their king, and having for object the plundering of the wealthy, but a bye-law forbidding the shedding of blood. One Luke Kanby transgresses this law, and in punishment is deprived of his sight by the king. The proceeds of the robberies are divided into tenths, of which Galston takes nine for distribution among the hospitals. Galston adopts many aliases and disguises in his perilous career, and for awhile lives with his daughter Mary at a florist's shop, coming home in the early morn to Mary's ill-concealed perplexity. To this shop come Redville and his thorough-paced blackguard of a son to offer an apology and a ten-pound note in satisfaction for dastardly behaviour to Mary by the younger man. Having previously plundered the baronet's house, Galston now plays his second card of vengeance, demanding and getting ten thousand pounds from the pair under a threat of arrest for assault. The gang has by this time been split upon by blind Luke Kanby; their den is raided by the police and Redville, and Galston is tracked to the scene of the wedding-feast of Mary and Harry Travers. From these he again escapes, to turn up anon in the guise of a card-playing Italian, Count Ranvolla, and in this rôle he practically cleans out his enemy at écarté. Distracted by the flight of his vicious son with all available property, and goaded to desperation by the taunts of a victim accomplice, Maud Desmond, the ruined scoundrel strikes the woman down and fires the house. In a final picnic scene of general happiness, Maud, happily rescued from the death-trap, resolves to start life afresh, James Ralston receives a free pardon for his munificence to London hospitals, and Sir Gilbert gets his deserts at the hands of Luke Kanby, restored to sight. A very pretty scene is Mary's Flower Shop, liberally supplied with blooms by the Cripple Girls' Mission. Lovers of realism are well catered for in the thrilling representation of the burning room, with the frantic splitting of wood and glass in the efforts of the firemen to reach its inmate. Mr Jack Haddon throws much power into his delineation of James Galston, showing good character study in the many phases of life appertaining to his several disguises. Mr Albert Sefton is good as Harry Travers. Mr Norman Overton plays the part of the unscrupulous Sir Gilbert Redville for all it is worth, his callous comment on his son's escapade quite tickling the susceptibilies of the house. The lighter side of the play is repeatedly brought into pleasing prominence by the concerted efforts of Mr Harry Liddle and Miss Lottie Pearce, and their amusing work as Joe Ricketts, an eccentric lawyer's clerk, and Polly Puff, a pert housemaid, afterwards Mrs Ricketts, affords much fun. The Luke Kanby of Mr Frederick Vaughan shows much thoughtful study. Mr George Herbert is a picturesque Silas Jowle. Mr Frank Douette plays smartly as Dick Perry. The antics of Jean Vittelli, an Anglo-Italian cook, by Mr R. Wilton Bedford, cause considerable merriment. Mr Walter Pringle makes a capital Inspector Round; Mr Will Myers, a capable Bill Rigger; and Mr N. Gilper is successful as P.C. Hasher. Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam has a pleasing manner, and easily wins sympathy for her Mary Galston; Miss Marie Rayner plays Maud Desmond in a sarcastic vein and with good effect; Miss Marguerite Thorne's embodiment of the large-hearted Mrs O'Brien meets with general approbation. Some elaborate scenery has been painted for the production by Mr George Harris, while specially-written incidental music is contributed by P. J. M'Dermott, of the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, July 11, the Play, in Five Acts, entitled "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

This old yet always popular play has been the attraction here this week with Mr Charles Harrington's excellent company. Mr J. Carr acts the part of Uncle Tom with considerable power, vividly portraying the old Negro slave; Mr Charles Harrington is decidedly effective as Phineas Fletcher, proving a friend in need to Eliza and her infant boy; and the villainous Legree as played by Mr John Rogers is in capable hands. Mr J. H. Benney ably depicts Dan Haley; Mr Alfred Majilton provides considerable humour in the character of the unprincipled lawyer, Marks; and Mr Hy. Hargraves as George Harris plays with effect. Miss Ida Fane as the prudish aunt receives many shocks caused by the impish tricks of Topsy (Miss Sylvia Stella), who thoroughly revels in her heathen wickedness, and who is greeted with hearty applause for her stirring and characteristic dancing. Little Minnie as Eva plays her trying part with childlike simplicity, evoking the tender sympathies of all. Mrs Harrington as Cassey also does well. The remaining artistes capably undertake their respective rôles. The Grand Plantation Festival is prettily and effectively carried out.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, July 11, the Melodrama, in Four Acts, by William P. Sheen and Fred S. Jennings, entitled "WHY WOMAN SINS."

Melodrama is always popular with audiences at Clapham, and especially is this the case with such a stirring piece as the above. It has a strong naval interest, which naturally appeals to the English public. The scenery is elaborate and the company well chosen. Mr Roy Fortescue as Lieut. Harry Maxwell achieves success in his rendition of the part; Mr Fred Terriss is remarkably good as the villain, Captain Herbert Carlton; Miss Mildred Cottell, an actress of fine commanding presence and of considerable ability, gives an excellent interpretation of the part of the villainess, Ida Valette; Miss Winifred Preece as Lily De Vere, a music hall star, is a capable singer and dancer, receiving encores in plenty; and Miss Hilda Merrilees wins sympathy as Nell Desmond. Comic relief is offered in plenty by Mr George Harris as Cecil Spencer, Mr Austin Lenton as Sam Spavins, Mr F. Mewburn as Bobby Beans, and Mr Forbes Harrison as Orlando Whiffles. Mr Lionel Ellis deserves special praise for a strong rendering of the part of Jim Rainbird. Miss Georgina Thomas is all that can be desired as Jack Smith, a waif. Miss Marie West as Nancy Nibble, Miss Amy Pierson as Mrs Benbow, and Miss Susanne Kippaire as Nanette deserve commendation; and good support is rendered by Messrs Charles Herberte, Tom Grisdale, Edward Beace, Cecil Churton, and D. Montgomerie.

TERRISS THEATRE, ROTHERHITHE.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "THE HEART OF A HERO."

Melodrama is still the staple product at this theatre, and a further success is added to the already long list by Messrs Carson and Granville's excellent company, which is producing the above-mentioned play with fine effect during the present week. Miss Cissy St. Elmo is responsible for the necessarily difficult representation of the heroine, Nell Resdale, and proves herself an actress of first-rate ability. Mr Fred W. Goddard acts with verve and conviction, and strikes the right note as Jem Resdale. Mr C. E. Johnson puts all the requisite callousness into his rendition of the villain, Wilfred Marl. The inevitable comedy couple find efficient representatives in Miss Ida Mackay and Mr Allen Carruthers, who, as Susie Slack and Timothy Heighno respectively, leave nothing to be desired. Mr Thompson Carruthers gives a realistic sketch of the miser, George Winston, and the rest of a long cast is in suitable hands.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, in Four Acts, by William P. Sheen, entitled "THE TEMPTRESS."

Those who like their dramatic fare hot and strong will enjoy The Temptress. It was enthusiastically received on Monday. Mr F. D. Daviss did excellently as the arch villain; Miss Grace Leslie was duly intense as Stella, Lady Fordyce; and Mr H. W. Hatchman made the most of the part of Pedro. Mr George Daiper played the hero, Philip Welford, in manly style; and Mr Herbert Williams and Mr Will G. Gelling as Bob Tanner and Francis Fitz Fluke got many laughs. A special word of praise is due to Miss Ada Ryder, whose impersonation of the mad woman, Madge Denbeigh, was decidedly clever. Miss Vashti Wynne did well as Marion Fordyce, and Mr Johnny Chippendale as John Gregory and Miss Mattie Everett as Rhoda helped to keep the ball of fun rolling merrily. The minor parts were well sustained.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, entitled "A HIDDEN CRIME."

Mr Augustus George Lytton and company occupy the boards here this week with A Hidden Crime, by J. F. Lockney, and are doing good business considering the heat of the weather. The company is an excellent one, and the performance is most favourably received. Mr Alfred E. Calver makes a decided hit as Jack Harrington, a clever detective; Mr A. G. Lytton is an immense favourite as Henry Adair, a wealthy retired miner; and Cecil Newton is admirably impersonated by Mr Sydney Arnold. Mr Harry Ray cleverly represents the ambitious reporter, Tom Dacre; Mr Walter Dunlop is remarkably good as Curly Black; Mr H. Melrose is a popular Hop Wah; Mr C. Wenman gives an excellent representation of Bob; and Mr F. Smith is good as Joe. Miss Hilda Clyde is a charming and pathetic Rose Adair; Miss Marguerite Romney plays with power and effect as Maria Ferrara; Miss Bessie Frank is delightfully bright and cheery as Kitty Raynor; and Miss Amy Valerie is a clever and characteristic Mrs Brander. The piece is exceptionally well mounted.

MORE COINCIDENCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—About two years ago Mr John Donald, my agent then for the sale and disposal of my musical comedy The Pretty Milliners, submitted the book to Mr Tom B. Davis. It was after a time duly returned to Mr Donald. I visited the Adelphi Theatre on Tuesday last for the first time to see The Earl and the Girl, and, lo! the coincidences, incidentals, mise-en-scène, plot, and characters bore the strongest likeness to my Pretty Milliners. The resemblance is so manifest that the two books might be termed the "Musical Dromios."

First of all I will deal with act one of my play. The scene opens with a milliner's shop, with all the girls busy. They sing a rousing chorus anent the fashions and Society's ways. A titled personage is a patron of the establishment, and he tries to lure away a young lady apprentice, who, unknown to herself, is an heiress to a fortune and a countess in her own right. Tom Truelove is a friend of the lady who runs the milliner's show. He is going to a bal masque, when the vehicle carrying him breaks down just outside the depôt, and he enters attired in female garb as Lucretia Borgia. The lady of the establishment desiring to leave town for a few days, and seeing how cleverly he is made up to represent the opposite sex, requests him to take her place as deputy during her absence. He does so, and he deals with flash five-pound notes with the customers, and brings the establishment to grief. The lady returns, and is arrested for passing bad notes, but explanations ensue, and the scene winds up with a dramatic dénouement. In this act I introduce two notaries, one a Frenchman, the other a Dutchman. In The Earl and the Girl there are two solicitors. In my first act I send all the girls out shopping. In The Earl and the Girl they do the same thing. The establishment is guarded by a pugilistic Scotchman, ready to take on anybody. In The Earl and the Girl the host of the Fallowfield Arms is a stalwart, ready to do and die. I have a real heiress and an heir presumptive in my play. In The Earl and the Girl they have two male heirs, one real, one false. I have Burton, the Australian heroine's uncle. In The Earl and the Girl they have Bliss, uncle to Elphin Haye, an American heiress. I have a strong woman in my play; she is not engaged in a circus, or an Empire Music Hall, but her name is Bloggs and she is used as "chucker out" to the milliner's depôt, and she tackles objectionable personages who intrude upon the privacy of the establishment. The strong woman in The Earl and the Girl is there to wreak vengeance on the real earl or mincemeat anybody. My hero has four male friends who stand by him. Crewe Boodle, in The Earl and the Girl, has three friends. It is true the act opens at the Fallowfield Arms, but on the R.C. of the stage is built up a fashionable shop. My second act is laid at the Star and Garter Hotel. It will be noticed that the Fallowfield Arms scene opens the Earl and the Girl. Isn't it all wonderful?

Yours faithfully, A. C. SHELLEY.

NON-ADVERTISING ACTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—May I crave a small space in your paper to express my astonishment that actors and actresses do not take more care to make their names and addresses known. I was in a position to make good offers to five people this week; and although I have gone to some trouble to ascertain my friends' present whereabouts, I have up to now been unable to carry out my purely friendly, disinterested intentions.

Yours faithfully, HENRY TWEEDIE.

"A GUIDE TO THE STAGE."

Mr Austin Fryers, the author of this book, in order to inspire confidence in the reader, briefly states his qualifications for writing it. He is a dramatic author, and we remember the production of a very creditable effort of his entitled Gentle Ivy. He is a stage-manager, and has produced several plays; he has been a theatrical lessee, an actor, and has toured more than one piece in the provinces, undergoing all the ordinary rigours incidental to touring in the "smalls" and cities, both in opera and drama. Finally he has been associated with Mr Alexander, Mr Melville, and Mr Tree in educational endeavours in connection with the drama. His book gains considerably in value by the good word of Mr Tree, who has written an introduction. The popular actor-manager considers that Mr Fryers lays bare many facts which are new to him and somewhat startling. "Such information," Mr Tree asserts, "is of advantage to all of us who strive for the elimination from our calling of those conditions which make for the undoing of the unwary." In the theatrical profession, Mr Tree observes, there are, of course, many pitfalls, and knowledge of the cold and grim business aspect whose seams are invisible from the other side of the footlights must prove of service to those who think of going on the stage to earn a livelihood. Mr Fryers and Mr Tree are in cordial agreement as to the necessity of preliminary training for a theatrical career. Says Mr Fryers:—"To my mind the necessity for academic preparation for the stage is so obvious that I wonder it should ever have been a subject for discussion. True it is, we all know, that some persons are so naturally gifted that their merits and intuitive adaptability combined appear sufficient to equip them for a stage career, and we all know more than one who has attained the highest distinction in the profession by sheer force of natural talent. But, again, this proves nothing either for or against the necessity for academic preparation. If it could be proven that in such cases preliminary training would not have improved their ability and heightened the effect of their genius, then I should admit the value of the illustration; but no one can do this. Madame Jenny Lind and Madame Patti had the loveliest voices without any training, but would they have attained that excellence which secured them world-wide fame had it not been for their training? As a matter of fact, there is no walk in life in which a thorough, all-round education is more necessary than that of the actor."

In his advice how to get on the stage our author is intensely practical. He does not agree that the best opportunity for practice on the part of the aspirant is to obtain an engagement as a super at a principal London theatre, but advises the ambitious one to make terms with the manager of a provincial touring company, especially a company which has a répertoire bill and performs each week a number of pieces. The aspirant should arrange to be allowed to "understudy a number of minor parts, in which he should be rehearsed by the stage-manager, and his contract with the manager should include a proviso that on a certain specified number of occasions he should be allowed to perform these parts." It seems to us that this sort of experience, which can only be obtained by the rich amateur, opens the stage-door to a number of untutored mediocrities, and yet Mr Fryers asserts that he is too loyal to the interests of the public to consent to the exploitation of raw, untrained, and untried talent. But how would he prevent the endowed amateur, with neither the intellectual nor physical qualities essential to a successful career on the stage, entering the profession through the medium of a third-rate touring company, whose manager has no scruples about fitness as long as he can get the necessary cash

There is no open door for novices on to the variety stage, as Mr Ben Nathan points out in a well-written chapter towards the end of the book; and we have even known the practised comedian of the legitimate drama to be a complete failure when making his début on the lesser stage. We remember an instance of this at the Trocadero, long since defunct as a music hall. One of the cleverest comedians of the theatres was engaged one Monday to sing comic songs. His selections were certainly not furiously funny, but they were far better than the drivel delivered with strident voice by a red-nosed, loose-trousered comedian who came a little later; yet the man from the theatres scarcely got a hand, and the inartistic shouter brought the house down. The reason was not far to seek. The legitimate comedian was without the necessary knowledge of the best kind of work suited to his capabilities. There is no school where a novice can qualify for the variety stage, and this is the reason why the variety stage is not so over crowded as the theatrical. "The only road to success in the variety theatres is a road paved with the cobbles of hard work." No guide to the stage would be complete without some chapters on the art of making-up, and these are supplied by that most distinguished authority, Mr Willie Clarkson, who writes in most interesting fashion of the make-ups adopted by celebrated actors—both English and French—for celebrated characters. Miss Gertrude Kingston contributes a short chapter on the Paris Conservatoire.

DEATH OF MISS GIULIA WARWICK.

Miss Julia Ehrenberg, professionally known as Miss Giulia Warwick, the well-known operatic vocalist, died on Wednesday at the age of forty-seven. The deceased lady, who came of German parentage on her father's side, was originally intended for a pianist, and appeared at Hanover-square Rooms in 1869, when she was only twelve years of age. Possessing, however, an excellent soprano voice, she studied under Sainton Dolby and Manuel Garcia, and obtained an engagement in the touring company of the late Mr Carl Rosa, taking the parts of Zerlina, in Don Giovanni; Arline, in The Bohemian Girl; and the leading rôle in Fidelio. Her success was unquestionable, and she was engaged for the first of the Gilbert and Sullivan series of operas, The Sorcerer, produced in November, 1877, at the Opera Comique. Mr Richard Temple, Mr Rutland Barrington, Mr George Grossmith, Miss Alice May, Miss Everard, and the late Mrs Howard Paul were colleagues of Miss Warwick in the original cast of The Sorcerer, her own part being that of Constance, the daughter of Mrs Partlet, the pew-opener, though she was later on promoted to the actual lead. She afterwards returned to the Carl Rosa company, playing in Carmen and in other works. She also took part in Hérold's seldom-heard opera, Zampa, with Mr Snazelle, Mr Henry Nordblom, Mr Charles Lyall, and Miss Georgina Burns, the present Mrs Carl Rosa playing the Statue. Anne Chute, in The Lily of Killarney, was another of her parts, and she was in the cast of the English adaptation of Ponchielli's opera, I Promessi Sposi. She appeared as Jessamine, in the original cast of Nell Gwynne, produced at the Avenue on Feb. 7, 1884, her associates including, along with Mr Arthur Roberts, Mr Lionel Brough, Miss Florence St. John, and the late Mr Henry Walsham. Following upon that she undertook a long provincial tour, playing lead, in Falka. She was Fraisette, in The Old Guard, produced at the Avenue in 1888, and represented Etelka, in Nadgy, at the same house. When The Black Rover was produced at the Globe on Oct. 18, 1890, Miss Warwick played Isidora. She also appeared in other parts in musical plays, but some years ago she retired from the stage and became a professor of singing at the Guildhall School of Music, a position she resigned at Christmas, 1902, when she founded a vocal school of her own. The funeral took place on Thursday at Willesden Jewish Cemetery.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS DORA HUGGETT.

Miss Dora Huggett is the daughter of Mr Charles Huggett, one of the members of Mr C. P. Levilly's well-known opera company La Poupée, and has had during her brief career some varied experiences. Her first appearance was made at Ton-y-pandy, in November, 1899, when she went on in place of one of the young ladies who had been taken ill, as a Mousme, in The Geisha. During the spring of the following year she played with great success the part of Katie, in How London Lives, and then followed a tour of twenty weeks with Mr Henry Dundas's Human Nature, playing the boy Frank Temple. Next occurred a change, she essaying the flying ballet in Oberine at the Court, Liverpool, Christmas, 1901. Then followed a special three weeks' engagement with the drama On Active Service, and the last pantomime of the old Britannia, Hoxton, where she was one of the coon dancers with Miss Gipsy Woolf. Since then she has played in the following dramas:—A Fatal Wedding, Lost in London, Tempted to Sin, The World Against Her, and Partners in Crime.

MR. W. V. GARROD.

Previous to his first professional engagement Mr Garrod had considerable experience in Liverpool as an amateur, principally with the Liverpool Shakespeare Society, with whom he played important parts in all the more popular of Shakespeare's plays. His first professional engagement was with the Cowper-Calvert répertoire company, where he gained invaluable experience, playing upwards of fifty parts during the five engagements he has at different times had under that management. His most important parts were Polydor, in Ingomar; Jabez Sneed, A Wife's Secret; Richelieu, The Three Musketeers; Carlyle, East Lynne; Corat, Life and Honour; De Varville, Camille. After this he joined Mr Frank Lindo's répertoire company, playing small parts for a time, afterwards being promoted to the leading heavy part in The Sledge-Hammer. An attack of typhoid fever, caught on tour, terminated his second engagement with Mr Lindo. This, by the bye, is the only illness he ever had in his life. Then followed various engagements in dramas, such as Dangers of London, Hand of Iron, A Sister's Sacrifice (original production), The Great Globe, and two new plays by Mr Walter Reynolds, at Theatre Royal, Leeds, called Keep to the Right and Knaves and Fools. A stock season, in which the company played everything from Monte Christo to Turn Him Out, and returns to Mr Calvert's management relieved the monotony of melodrama. About this time Mr Garrod had a most enjoyable engagement under Mr Lancelot Lowder, playing Sir Peter Teazle, Joseph Surface, Damas, Beauseant, Pomander, in Masks and Faces, &c. Then he had a long engagement with Mr Norman V. Norman, playing seconds, Captain Hawksley, Beauseant, Alderman, Garrick; Bechelin, The Ironfounder; and heavy part in the production of Walter E. Grogan's Nell Gwyn, and Sir Simon Goodliffe, in Miss Flora Haytor's Nell Gwyn, one of the best parts he ever played. Then came a special engagement with Mr Jonathan Dewhurst as Gratiano, and a few weeks with Irish drama as O'Grady, in Arrah-na-Pogue, and the Priests, in The Shaughraun and The Colleen Bawn. After this he had a long engagement with Mr Henry C. Arnold as Maurice Deepwater, in the Drury-lane drama The Prodigal Daughter. An odd week he filled in by producing The Merchant of Venice in Liverpool, playing Shylock, and on a similar occasion he appeared as Cassio, in Othello. Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow then engaged him for the Black Hawk in their original production of Under Two Flags; and while under their management he also played Mr Dent, in The Adventure of Lady Ursula, and Jacques, in As You Like It. Stock seasons at Bradford and Leeds, under the management of Messrs Frank Lindo and Walter Reynolds, followed this, during which he appeared in The Lady of Lyons, with Mrs Lancaster Wallis as Pauline. Then he rejoined Mr Arnold for another long tour of The Prodigal Daughter. He played Deepwater in this piece 343 times, which up to now is his record. After this Mr Garrod went to Bradford to create the leading part in a drama called Two Hearts of Gold, and then Mr Martin Adeson engaged him for Prince Rudolph, the leading part in A Human Terror, a new version of The Mysteries of Paris. Later on he played the title-rôle. From this he went to On the Frontier for Col. Austin, and then came an engagement with Mr Charles Williams for Mr Herbert Waring's part on a summer tour of The Idler. This was followed by pastoral performances at the Botanic Gardens, Manchester, where he played the King, in King René's Daughter, and Mr Kendal's part in Twenty Minutes under an Umbrella. This was under Mr Harold V. Neilson's management. While playing in The Prodigal Daughter at Reading Mr Milton Bode engaged him for Emmanuel Reo, the principal heavy part in The Best of Friends, which he played right through the first provincial tour. Then he joined Mr Charles Hartley for Lord Darlington in Lady Windermere's Fan; Sir John Harding, in The Idler; and Mr Gardiner, in Captain Swift. Rejoining Mr Lindo, Mr Garrod played Lucas Lyle, in Home, Sweet Home, for nearly six months, followed by a short engagement with Miss Daisy Halling, with whom he played Gideon Bloodgood, in The Streets of London; Jacob M'Cloaky, The Octoroon, and Ebe, a Nubian imp, the star part, in the original production of Miss Halling's own play The Fire Witch. After concluding this engagement he created the Branded Man in the production of The Brand of Cain. Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford have engaged him to play the Spider, in The Silver King, in the autumn, and directly after the conclusion of that tour he intends embarking in management for the first time. In conjuction with Mr Alfred Northway he proposes touring Mr Wilson Barrett's drama The Sledge-Hammer, resuming the heavy part he played under Mr Lindo's management five years ago. Up to the present Mr Garrod has played about 140 parts, or, taking into account his experience as an amateur, a couple of hundred. With, practically, every management he has been associated Mr Garrod has had two engagements or offers to return, a fact he is rather proud of.

MR. HARRY BRAYNE.

Mr Harry Brayne was born in 1864 and educated at Dane-hill House, Margate. He joined the profession under Messrs Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett's management at the Theatre Royal, Croydon, at Christmas, 1888, playing small parts and pantaloon in pantomime there. He stayed with them four years, sustaining principal comedy parts in their tours and pantomimes, i.e., Peter Fly, Union Jack; Jean De Lussac, Hands Across the Sea; Old Macclesfield, The Guv'nor; Ned Booles, Current Cash; Jack Flynn, Black Diamond; and various characters in stock; Ibrahim, Bluebeard, pantomime, 1889-90; Fitzwarren, Whittington, 1890-1; during which pantomime the late George Conquest saw him and engaged him for dame at the Surrey, 1891-2. The Fair One with the Golden Locks. He returned to Theatre Royal, Croydon, for pantomime 1892-3, Aladdin, and played dame parts at the Parkhurst, 1893-4, and Theatre Royal, Glasgow (Messrs Howard and Wyndham), 1894-5. After this Mr Brayne had seven years with Milton Bode pantomimes, at the Grand, Hull; Comedy, Manchester; Rotunda, Liverpool; Newcastle, &c. He was burnt out in a fire at the Theatre Royal, Jersey, at Easter, 1899, whilst rehearsing pantomime (Easter production) there. At Christmas, 1901-2, he was engaged by Mr Robert Arthur as the dame at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham. The following Christmas, 1902-3, he was dame in the Eden Theatre pantomime at Brighton. He was re-engaged by Mr Arthur until 1905, and holds pantomime contracts until 1907. Apart from pantomime Mr Brayne has played the principal comedy parts in the following musical plays:—Cupid and Co. (John Jupiter Jones); Sport (Arthur Braithwaite); and One of the Family. (Bartlemy Crowe)—the latter he played over 300 nights. Then followed two tours in Mankind, playing Barnaby Bright; and in Odd Man Out, as Dauphin Dottyton. He was three years at the London music halls with his brother-in-law, Mr Fred Southern's combination, creating and enacting comedy parts in sketches. He played Sam Jacobs, in The Night Birds of London, in G. R. Sims and Milton Bode's company. Next came three tours with Mr F. A. Scudamore's Dangerous Women company, representing Elijah Smudge, the comedy part in Like Father Like Son, and also appearing in The Bank of England. In 1902 he played Private Jupp, in One of the Best. The following spring he was Dr. Denna, in Mr E. G. Saunders's revival of Chilperic, and was so successful that he was engaged to play the comedy parts in Mr Saunders's new theatre to be built in Aldwych, Strand. Last autumn he again depicted Private Jupp, in One of the Best, having been re-engaged by Mr Robert Arthur. At Christmas he was secured to appear in the Court Theatre pantomime at Liverpool. On the production of Mr Walter Melville's successful drama A Disgrace to Her Sex, at the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, on Whit Monday Mr Brayne created the part of Barnaby Mugg, a dog fancier, and has since played it on tour. Altogether Mr Brayne has had over sixteen years in the profession, and has appeared in twenty-two pantomimes, including Easter productions at Jersey and York. Mr Brayne was married in December, 1893, to Miss Hettie Cornwallis, who has accompanied and played in the same company with him ever since. His principal hobbies are fishing and country walks; and he delights to spend his vacation in the summer quietly and "rustically."

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR THE ERA.)

COLISEUM.

The theatres and music halls committee reported that they had considered a plan, submitted by Messrs F. Matcham and Co., showing the construction of a fire-resisting curtain proposed to be fitted to the proscenium opening at the Coliseum, St. Martin's-lane. They recommended "That Messrs F. Matcham and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, dated July 1, 1904, submitted by them with regard to the proposed fire-resisting curtain at the Coliseum, St, Martin's-lane, provided the following conditions be complied with—(1) That the joints at the head and sides of the curtain be made smoke proof; (2) That the curtain be covered on both sides with wire woven asbestos cloth to the satisfaction of the Council; (3) That duplicate sets of releasing gear be provided to the curtain and sprinkler; that the releasing gear of the sprinkler be placed in close proximity to but be independent of, that of the curtain; that both sets be suitably protected, and that indicating plates be provided; (4) That the sprinkler be furnished with stop and drain cocks, the former to be placed under seal; (5) That roller bearings be provided to the guides of the curtain; (6) That the words "safety curtain" be exhibited on the curtain in letters sufficiently large to be read from all parts of the auditorium." Agreed to.

INSPECTION.

The committee reported that the amount expended with regard to the inspection of the performances at places of public entertainment during the quarter ended June 30, 1904, was £9 8s. 7d.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

The committee had considered a plan submitted by Mr T. M'Row, licensee of the Royal Agricultural Hall, showing a proposed alteration to the stage of the Islington Empire. There did not appear to be any objection to the proposed alteration, but a detailed inspection of the Royal Agricultural Hall premises, including the Islington Empire, is now in progress, and will be completed shortly, as the result of which it may be necessary to make suggestions for the structural improvement of the premises. The committee thought, therefore, that should the Council consent to the alterations now proposed the licensee should be informed that such consent must be understood to be without prejudice to any suggestions which may be the outcome of the detailed inspection above referred to, and recommended—"That Mr T. M'Row be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, dated June 29, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the alteration to the stage at the Islington Empire, provided that the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the fireproof curtain be adjusted to the satisfaction of the Council to protect the enlarged proscenium opening. (2) That slopes be provided instead of the new steps shown upon the plan. (3) That the space for the grand piano be enclosed with brickwork 9in. thick. (4) That the wood linings be removed from the stage front. (5) That one of the openings from the orchestra to the rooms beneath the stage be bricked up, and that the other be fitted with a self-closing fire-resisting door."

SOUTH WESTERN POLYTECHNIC.

The committee had considered a plan submitted by Mr F. G. Knight, on behalf of the licensee of the South-Western Polytechnic, showing the proposed arrangement of the seats in the gallery of the entertainment hall at these premises. They recommended "That Mr F. G. Knight be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, dated June 21, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the seating in the gallery of the entertainment hall at the South-Western Polytechnic, provided the pump shown on the plan by the door to the north staircase be so placed as not to form an obstruction." Agreed to.

THE CRITERION THEATRE.

Sir Algernon West asked the chairman of the Theatres Committee whether his attention had been drawn to a statement by the chairman of Spiers and Pond, Limited, to the effect that his company were unable to pay a larger dividend in consequence of the requirements made upon them by the County Council.

Mr Yates, chairman of the committee, said it was true that in 1899 certain requirements were made on the managers of the Criterion Theatre, and these were carried out in 1903. They were made on the authority of the Lord Chamberlain, and were the minimum that could be asked for, in order to secure that this theatre should be rendered safe for the public. The whole of the negotiations in connection with this matter took place with Sir Charles Wyndham, and the committee had had nothing to do with Spiers and Pond, Limited.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES.

The Public Control Committee reported that it had been referred to them to consider and report as to the Council obtaining legislative powers to require that all persons who carry on within the County of London the business of keepers of domestic servants' registries, and also the premises in which such business is carried on, shall be licensed by the County Council, and to authorise the Council to make bye-laws for regulating the same. The committee pointed out that the evils connected with some employment agencies were well known. It was probable that the cases of fraud that arose were greater in number as regards women servants than any other class of persons, but, although less frequent, the evils in connection with the employment of governesses, and of girls in connection with theatres and music halls, may not be less serious in their nature. There appeared to the committee, therefore, to be no sufficient reason why, if the law was to afford protection as regards one class of employment, it should not do so as regards others. They believed that there would be no objection on the part of the respectable employment agencies to a reasonable but efficient supervision being exercised. The committee recommended that the necessary steps be taken for promoting legislation in the next session of Parliament to enable the Council to licence, to exercise supervision over, and to make bye-laws for the regulation of the conduct of the business of all employment agencies within the County of London, except labour bureaux established by and under the control of public authorities. Agreed to.

At the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, At War with the World is being well performed by Mr Geo. Lyttleton and a powerful company. The author is excellent as Tom Redfern, and his efforts are ably seconded by Mr Geo. Lyttleton, jun., as the Squire. Mr F. C. Roper is seen to advantage as Farmer Maddox. Mr Alex Mayhew is a capable representative of the adventurer, and valuable assistance is rendered by Mr F. J Lewis and Mr Frank Holyoake. The female parts are in good hands, Miss Lillian Beaumont, Miss Jane Massey, and Miss Theodora Henries being especially noticeable.

Mr Horace Lee (Mr Arthur Jefferson's popular general manager at the Borough Theatre, North Shields), after a pleasant holiday in Yorkshire, is back at work again.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MISS ELLEN TERRY is to tour in America under Mr Charles Frohman's management at the termination of the run, in London, of a new piece in four acts which is being written for her by Mr J. M. Barrie. Mr Frohman will superintend the production of Mr Barrie's play, which will take place at a West-end theatre at the conclusion of her next provincial tour. The leading characters in Mr Barrie's drama, which is in four acts, are a mother and a daughter; and the piece has nothing of the whimsical oddity of the playwright's recent works. Miss Ellen Terry, since her season at the Imperial Theatre in the spring of last year, has been too long absent from her many admirers in the West-end, who are certain to hail the return of the gifted and popular artist with delighted enthusiasm.

MR GILBERT'S "dramatic" contrast Sweethearts, which was played at a charity bazaar at Stanmore on Thursday, was produced at the old Prince of Wales's Theatre on Nov. 7, 1874, with Mr Coghlan and Mrs Bancroft in the leading parts. The piece was performed on Thursday in a small tent erected in the grounds of the Hill House, Stanmore, and seventy-two people paid to see it, the audience including Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein.

MR BEERBOHM TREE, as the result of a competition held last week, has awarded free tuition for the remainder of their course at his Academy of Dramatic Art to six students—Miss Muriel Alston, Miss Muriel Alexander, Miss Irene Clarke, Miss Viola Holland, Mr John R Owen, and Mr F. Yates-Southgate. The competition included two serious and two comic scenes for the ladies, and the like for the gentlemen; the ladies giving Lady Macbeth's sleep-walking, Esther Eccles's reading of her letter from Hawtree, from Caste, a scene between Rosalind and Celia, and Naomi Tighe's reading of her letter from Jack Poynts, from School; and the gentlemen taking the tent-scene between Brutus and Cassius, from Julius Cæsar, the scene between Hugh Murray and Wilfred Brudenell, from The Profligate, Dogberry's "Write me down an ass" speech from Much Ado About Nothing, and De Grignon's soliloquy from The Ladies' Battle.

MR CHARLES THURSBY met with a bad accident whilst searching for gull's eggs in the Isle of Sark a short time ago. He fell over the cliff, a distance of nearly 40ft., with his head downwards. His facial bones were badly bruised, and his whole body was terribly cut about. His injuries will not prevent him rejoining Miss Ellen Terry next month for the commencement of her autumn tour.

MR GEORGE ALEXANDER will produce at the St. James's Theatre, on Sept. 3, a play called The Garden of Lies, adapted by Sydney Grundy from the famous novel by Justus Miles Forman. Mr Alexander will appear as Denis Mallory, and Mr Charles J. Fulton, Mr Mark Kinghorne, Mr Leslie Faber, Mr Herbert Dansey, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Corisande Hamilton, and Miss Margaret Bussé have also been secured for parts in the new piece.

MR AND MRS PINERO have left town for Scotland until the autumn. We may expect some up-to-date and realistic details of life in the "land of cakes" in the talented dramatist's next piece.

MR CHARLES FROHMAN, who sailed for New York on Wednesday, will this year present in the United States a remarkably long list of plays by English dramatists, besides introducing to the American public a large number of English "stars." Mr Frohman hopes to be back in London again in six months, when we may rely on his vigorous energies being again applied to notable metropolitan productions and successful tours in the provinces. The great number of English actors and actresses whom he has engaged make him a valuable friend to the profession in this country.

CARPENTER'S THEATRES, Limited, was recently registered with a capital of £5,000 in £1 shares. The object of the company is to acquire as from Feb. 8, 1904, the business carried on by Mrs E. Carpenter, of Brighton, at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, in succession to the late F. Carpenter, to adopt an agreement between Mrs E. Carpenter of the first part, E. A. Carpenter of the second part, and F. W. Carpenter (for this company) of the third part, and to carry on the business of theatre and music hall proprietors and managers, producers of operas, stage plays, operettas, burlesques, vaudevilles, ballets, pantomimes, spectacular pieces, and promenade or other concerts, &c. The first directors are Mrs E. Carpenter, E. A. Carpenter (managing director), and F. W. Carpenter.

THE list of dramatic authors and authoresses who are to appear in Mr W. S. Gilbert's parody of Hamlet, at the matinée at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday, in aid of the Bushey Heath Cottage Hospital, has been augmented by Mrs Alicia Ramsey, Miss Margaret Young, Miss Gladys Unger, Mr Alfred Sutro, and Colonel Newnham-Davis. Most of those taking part in the performance will not make their first appearances on any stage. Sir Francis Burnand founded the celebrated A.D.C. at Cambridge, and was himself for many years the "star" of the company. Mr Leo Trevor, Mr Paul Rubens, and Captain Robert Marshall are practised amateurs. Programmes bearing the autographs of the Hamlet cast will be sold by popular actresses.

MR GEORGE CONQUEST'S farewell benefit celebration commences at the Surrey Theatre on Monday evening, and with a varied programme at each performance will be continued throughout the week, the final performance and "adieu" under the Conquest régime coming with the fall of the curtain on Saturday night next. Each evening will see a revival of one of the good old Surrey's successful dramas, in which Mr George Conquest will appear, and be supported by a galaxy of artists who have won distinction at this historic house. Among these will be Messrs Chas. Cruikshanks, Arthur Conquest, Fred Conquest, Frank Lester, Ernest E. Norris, Frank Litchfield, Chas. A. East, Ernest Ball, Clarence Hague, Harry M'Clelland, Phillip Cunningham, Gus Blake, Misses Joan Wellman, Kate O'ga Vernon, Sophy Shenton, Rona Merrick, Annie Conway, Lottie Hallett, and Mrs Bennett.

THE variety stage will be well represented by the appearances during the week of Miss Maud Nelson, the Three Sisters Graham, Maggie Carr, Sinclair and Grace Whiteford, Rice, Rose, Davis, and the Half, the American Quintet, Walter Jovce, Walter Munroe, Harry Vawn, Chas. Russell, Patty O'Brien, Geo. Leyton, Blake and Granby, Newham and Latimer, Wal Robins, Jessie Preston, W. P. Dempsey, Jennie Belmore, Harry Hyne, Michael Nolan, Daisy James, the Breton Troupe, Florence Dainton, Rich and Rich, Little Dando, Tots Davis, the Musical Palmers, Peggy Primrose, Clavering Craig, Walker and Lake, May Henderson, Gertrude Wright, Jack Serjeants, Dolly M'Calla, Gladys Wilton, Frank Alexander, Dora Lonsdale, Joe Monkhouse, Marion Monkhouse, May Taylor, Harry Parker, the Two Primroses, Bert Lea, Zaro and Arno, Tom Leamore, Chivi and Moti, Sisters Cora, Gwennie Hasto, and the Four Burnells. Mr Ernest Leicester will speak the opening address, written by Mr Malcolm Watson, at 8·10 p.m. on Monday, while on the excellent and elegantly compiled souvenir and programme Mr George Conquest is timed to make his farewell speech at 10 50 p.m. on Saturday night.

MR BEERBOHM TREE has granted the use of His Majesty's Theatre on Monday night to Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, for a lecture entitled, "Landless Man for the Manless Land."

THE Misses Marie and Emelie Polini, accompanied by their friend Miss Lucy Cato, whilst punting at Thames Ditton on Wednesday afternoon last, met with an accident. Miss Cato, in the action of punting, overbalanced herself and fell into the water, disappearing from view under the boat. There was a strong current running at the time, and had it not been for the presence of mind displayed by the other ladies, who by strenuous efforts dislodged her from her precarious position, and caught her just as she rose to the surface, she would undoubtedly have been drowned. It may be mentioned that there were three individuals in a boat within fifty yards of the accident, who made no effort to render assistance.

MRS PATRICK CAMPBELL will revive The Second Mrs Tanqueray at the Vaudeville Theatre to-night, herself appearing in the title-part. Mr C. Aubrey Smith will be the Aubrey Tanqueray, Miss Ada Webster the Ellean, Mr H. Granville Barker the Cayley Drummle, and Mr G. Bealby the Sir George Orreyd.

MESSRS OTHO STUART and OSCAR ASCHE will produce Mr Fagan's romantic play, The Prayer of the Sword, at the Adelphi about the middle of September, with a cast which will include Mr Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, Messrs Alfred Brydone, E. Lyall Swete, Charles Angelo, Charles Rock, H. R. Hignett, Lewis Casson, Roper Spyers, and Misses Dora De Winton, Pamela Gaythorne, and Hilda Wanton. Mr Stuart has taken great pains to secure the right man for the leading juvenile rôle, and, thanks to Mr F. R. Benson, has engaged Mr Walter Hampden, who has being doing important work in Mr F. R. Benson's company. The dresses are being specially designed by Mr Percy Anderson, and Messrs T. W. Hemsley and Joseph Harker are painting the scenery. Mr Franco Leoni has composed the music. Mr Carl F. Leijel is the business-manager, and Mr C. D. Yates the acting-manager of the company.

A MEETING was held at the Bishop's House, Southwark, on Tuesday, July 12, for the purpose of founding a Home of Rest, to be known as St. Martin's Resting Home for Members of the Literary and Dramatic Professions. Letters of approval and regret were read from the Dowager Duchess of Newcastle, Sir Charles Wyndham, Count Reginald Ward, Rev. A. G. A. Roberts, Vane Tempest, and others. Amongst those present were Mrs Vermulen M'Donnell, Messrs W. Y. Mathews, Adnam Sprange, E. Winter, W. Reed, H. Cundall; Miss James (secretary), and the Very Rev. Monsignor Poyer, to whom donations and subscriptions may be forwarded at the Archbishop's House, Westminster. Many important points were discussed, and the further consideration of the movement was adjourned till the 28th inst.

A COMPLIMENTARY benefit will be given at the Camden Theatre, by kind permission of Mr Frank Curzon, on Friday afternoon, at 3 0 p.m., to Mr Leslie Hughes, who has for the past three years held the position of acting-manager, on which occasion it is proposed by a number of friends and well-wishers to make him a suitable presentation.

MR J. R. BRYAN, the acting-manager of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Nuneaton, was married to Miss Loydall, of Walsgrave, on Saturday last, the officiating minister being the Rev. Hugh Bryan, Vicar of Stoke Golding, uncle of the bridegroom. The presents, which were useful and handsome, numbered upwards of 100. The honeymoon is being spent at Weston-super-Mare. The managing-director, Mr A. F. Cross, on behalf of his co-directors and the staff, presented to Mr Bryan a silver-mounted waiter and silver tea set. In making the presentation Mr Cross alluded to the harmonious manner in which the staff had worked together during the past year.

PADEREWSKI was hissed three months ago at the Châtelet, Paris, by three young men, who consider that the piano as an instrument does not harmonise with an orchestra, and that concertos written for that combination of instruments are bad art. After much litigation it has been decided that every Frenchman has a right to hiss.

MR VIVIAN GRANTHAM will present at the Elephant and Castle Theatre on the 25th inst. a new Russian drama by Robert Castleton. It will be played by a company including Miss Agnes Imlay, who has just concluded five months' tour with Mr W. W. Kelly as the Empress Josephine, in A Royal Divorce. Mr Ernest E. Norris is responsible for the production, which will be toured under Mr Grantham's personal direction.

AT the termination of the visit of Miss Violet Sims's Brand of Cain company at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, last Saturday night, a pleasing and unexpected incident took place. At the close of the third act a magnificent bouquet of the choicest roses, made by the King's florist, and subscribed for by several of the prominent townspeople of the Borough of Windsor, was passed over the footlights by Mrs Ricketts, the wife of the popular resident-manager. Miss Sims appropriately acknowledged the gift, and mentioned that the great success of The Brand of Cain was largely due to the able manner in which her company had supported her and to the stage-management of Mr Bannister.

AN extensive lease of St. Julian's Hall, Guernsey, has been acquired by the Channel Islands Entertainment Company, Limited, of which Mr C. Robert Perkins is managing-director. Many changes have been initiated in the hall during the theatrical vacation. A scene dock has been constructed at the back of the premises; the stage has been enlarged; the improvement in the dressing rooms is very marked; and an electric lighting installation has added much to the comfort and elegance of the auditorium. The stage, too, is furnished with new and additional scenery by Mr W. A. Lowe. At the conclusion of the theatrical season many more important alterations are to be effected, and the hall will then be replete with every luxury and convenience. The hall was reopened on the 14th inst. with Charley's Aunt.

MR HENRY CRISP, who was so long connected with Charley's Aunt, has, we regret to hear, become totally blind. He would be pleased to hear from any old friends at his address, 145, Kennington-road, S.E.

THE interest that can be taken by regular theatre-goers in a small part well played formed a pleasing feature of a recent production of The Silver King in Australia. When the drama was first produced at Melbourne, in 1883, Mr John Bryan was the cabman, and no subsequent production was regarded as complete unless this minor character was placed in the same actor's hands. Mr Bryan is advanced in years, but it does not take much coaxing to bring him out of retirement to play the cabman in the Railway Station scene of The Silver King. No Melbourne playgoer would be satisfied with a cast of the piece from which its "one and only" cabman was omitted.

MR ALAN BORTHWICK, who has just concluded his third successive season with the Arthurian Company of Players, has been re-engaged by Mr Herbert Greville for his autumn tour of The New Clown.—Mr W. S Hartford has been re-engaged by Mr J. M. East to play Pierre Lorance, in Proof, at the Coronet Theatre next week.—Mr V. Willox Cadogan, who has recently concluded a long tour with Mr Tree's company, in Resurrection, has been released by Miss Lena Ashwell. He is now playing Teddy Pinkley, in Whitewashing Julia.

MR SILVANUS DAUNCEY and MR M. V. LEVEAUX will commence their second tour with Mr Henry Arthur Jones's successful comedy Joseph Entangled at the Opera House, Buxton, on Thursday. Mr Dauncey and Mr Leveaux have engaged Mr H. B. Warner for the part of Sir Joseph Lacy, and Miss Mona K. Oram for that of Lady Verona Mayne. Other members of the company are Mr Lawrence Grant, Mr Horace Lane, Mr Cecil Brooking, Mr Stanley W. Ashworth, Miss Claire Cavendish, and Miss Shelley Calton.

MR JOHN A. ATKIN, of The Grip of Iron fame, and Mr Walter Howe, who, after winning his spurs at the Vaudeville in Messrs James and Thorne's time, was for years one of the best-known leading men in Australia, will produce on Aug. 1, at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, a strong domestic drama, and have booked a number of the best suburban theatres, as they intend touring the play through the autumn.

THE Charles Rube Prize of the Royal Academy of Music has been awarded to Ivy St. Aubyn Angove, Rowsby Woof, James T. Lockyer, and Walton O'Donnell. The examiner was Professor Johann Kruse. Heathcote Long (chairman) The Frederick Westlake Memorial Prize (pianoforte) has been awarded to Gladys Law. The adjudicators were Messrs E. Kiver, H. R. Eyers, C. F. Reddie, Tobias Matthay, and Oscar Beringer (chairman). The Parepa-Rosa Prize (soprano) has been awarded to Ida Kakn, Ethel Lister being highly commended and Caroline Hatchard commended. The examiners were Mesdames Sobrino, Bertha Huth, and Emily Squire. The Hannah Fitzroy Prize (violin) has been awarded to Henry J. Boden. The adjudicators were Messrs Josef Bláha, A. Gibson, W. Frye Parker, Professor Willy Hess, and Hans Wessely (chairman). The Charlotte Walters Prizes (elocution) have been awarded to Carmel Goldschmid and Alberta Kavanagh. The adjudicators were Miss Annie Child, Mrs Crowe, Mr Norman Forbes, Miss Katie Thomas, and Mr Henry Lesingham (chairman). The Walter Macfarren Gold Medals (pianoforte) have been awarded to Claude Gascoigne and Winifred Christie. The examiners were Messrs Carlo Albanesi, H. R. Eyers, Tobias Matthay, C. F. Reddie, and Oscar Beringer (chairman).

MR KENYON MUSGRAVE, who is suffering from pleuro-pneumonia and complications, is, it is hoped, out of any immediate danger; but his condition, we are sorry to say, continues to be far from satisfactory.

A NEW and entirely original farcical comedy entitled The Uninvited Guest, by Hugh Leslie Dobree, has been secured by Mr Gordon Ingram for production, the latter gentleman himself playing the leading rôle.

MISS DAISY MURCH has been engaged by Mr Edward Terry for his forthcoming tour.—Mr Claude King and Miss Violet Luddington have been engaged by Hardie and Von Leer for their autumn tour of A Path of Thorns, to play the two leading parts, starting on Aug. 1 at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool.

MR L. F. CHAPUY, Professor of Elocution at the Guildhall School of Music, has been the recipient of a handsome aneroid barometer, presented to him by the selected pupils who took part in his successful performance in the theatre of the school on Tuesday.

THE fourth annual conference of the Actors' Church Union was held on Friday afternoon at the Bishop of Rochester's House, Kennington-park. The following resolutions were moved by the hon. secretary:—(i.) That the following words be added to Rule 4, par. b, of the constitution: "That the president shall appoint one or more corresponding members, whose duties shall be to send (while on tour) periodical reports (if possible, weekly) to the hon. secretary with regard to the progress of the Union; to put him into communication with priests willing to become chaplains; and to further the work of the Union by any other means in their power." (ii.) That the words "Or of the hon. secretary" be added to Rule 6, par. d; also the words "Associates to pay an annual subscription of not less than 2s. 6d.;" and a speech was made by Sir Charles Wyndham on the relation of Church to Stage in the twentieth century. A discussion followed.

THE son of a servant in the service of Mdlle. Delvair, an actress of the Comédie Française, recently secured a quantity of Mdlle. Delvair's letter paper and wrote to her acquaintances soliciting loans. One of these friends, finding that the actress delayed repayments, wrote to her, and the fraud was discovered. The lad was immediately arrested.

M. LOUIS HILLIER has made arrangements with M. Felix Riche, the well-known Paris impresario, for the return to London next summer of practically the same company which was recently so successful at the Avenue. The season, however, will be of longer duration, and is intended to open with Maurice Donnay's brilliant comedy, La Bascule.

MR C. ROBERT PERKINS opened the Jersey Opera House for the season last Wednesday, when that most amusing adaptation of Le Coup de Fouet, entitled Just Like Callaghan, was excellently performed by Mr F. Mouillot's company, with Miss Elsie Chester and Mr Arthur Holmes-Gore in the principal parts.

THE King and Queen, Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Khedive of Egypt, and the Duke and Duchess of Fife were present at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, last night.

OTTO KRUGER, a tobacconist, of Kilburn, was again charged on Wednesday, at Marlborough-street Police-court, with being concerned with Marie Marthaler, not in custody, in stealing and receiving £3 000 worth of jewellery belonging to Miss Nellie Seymour. Miss Seymour's jewels and her maid, Marie Marthaler, disappeared together on May 24. Communications with the police resulted in recovering £1,000 worth of jewellery, and it was found that the prisoner had sold some of the stolen pearls, worth £750, for £80 and some diamonds. Kruger, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Gipsy Touzeau was nominated for election as a member of the Association. The hon. solicitors reported the recovery of a judgment for debt and costs in a claim made on behalf of a member; and they were requested to write for information in support of a claim made by another member for damages against a railway company. A former member was reinstated. A further consideration of the questions involved in connection with the agitation for three-quarter fares for the individual benefit of members of the Association was postponed for three months. Arrangements have been made for the provision of a "resting room" for ladies on the upper floor of the premises. The question of the employment of one of the boys maintained at the Taplow Grammar School by the Actors' Orphanage Fund as a junior clerk was considered, and finally arrangements were made for the visit of one of the members of the council and the secretary to the school for the purpose of making the necessary selection. A sum of money was voted for the provision of certain furniture.

WE regret to announce the death, at the early age of nineteen, of Miss Evelyn Cross, a promising young actress, whose illness we referred to some time since. On March 24 she was attacked by influenza at the West Pier, Brighton, whilst playing Lucy, in A Pair of Spectacles, and from that time she never recovered. Miss Cross commenced her theatrical career at the early age of six, when she played Nellie, in Bronson Howard's The Old Love and the New, at the Grand Theatre, Hull. After a tour of this piece, she was engaged as Dick, in The Girl I Left Behind Me, in which she appeared for two years, under the managements of the Messrs Gatti and her uncle, Mr M Russell Rosse. After an interval she rejoined Mr Rosse, and played leading parts with him in Mr Thomas Thorne's repertory. These included Violet, in Our Boys; Carrie, in The Guv'nor; Violet, in Confusion. Her last appearance in London was at the Dalston Theatre in February, when she played Violet, in Our Boys. Her last illness was softened by the kind ministrations of nuns and priests of St. John's, Brighton, and a special mass was held for her in that church on Wednesday morning, the day of her funeral. Her mother and sister and her aunt, Mrs M. Russell Rosse, were with her to the last.

MISS MADGE M'INTOSH, who appeared as Mrs Carrington, The Pharisee's Wife, at the Duke of York's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, is in private life Mrs Graham Browne. She has recently been on tour in Cousin Kate, being specially chosen by Messrs Frederick Harrison and Cyril Maude to play Miss Ellis Jeffreys' part. She was with Mrs Langtry at the Imperial Theatre in Mademoiselle Mars, and also made a hit in some productions by the Stage Society.

"LETTY" will begin its provincial tour, with Mr H. B. Irving and Miss Irene Vanbrugh in their original characters, at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Sept. 12. Mr Dion Boucicault, who played the mild photographer at the Duke of York's, will join the company later.

MR LEVILLY, in consequence of the success attending the spring tour of Amorelle, is sending out two companies this autumn, one opening at Douglas on Monday, and the other at Hastings on the 25th inst.

ADMIRAL VON KOESTER gave the seamen of the German fleet on its visit to Plymouth permission to visit Devonport Theatre on Monday night at the invitation of the proprietor, Mr Carlton, who welcomed them most heartily.

MR EDWARD A. COVENTRY AND MR JOHN R. COLLINS will open their tour with Thoroughbred on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Margate.

THE Queen and the Princess Victoria were present at the performance of Faust, at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, on Tuesday night.—The Queen and Princess Victoria were present at the performance of Carmen, at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, on Wednesday night.

AT the Theatre Royal, Leeds, on Monday, Mr S. F. Cody's company opened in The Klondyke Nugget. Mr Cody sustains a leading part admirably, and Mr E. Leroy, Mr Vivian Cody, Mr Leon Cody, and Miss Edith Mumford render specially valuable assistance.

SMOKING AND AMUSEMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It is not generally realised how seriously the existing requirements of the Lord Chamberlain—there is no law on the matter—respecting smoking affect the regrettable dispute between the theatrical and music hall managers about sketches. Were it not for this absurd and indefensible clause, the course of the music hall manager would be very simple. He would merely apply for a theatrical licence, which would give him all the permission required for a music hall or variety theatre entertainment.

The whole view taken by our belated authorities of the amusement business is irrational. Places of amusement are merely shops; and the only "law" on the subject—outside the necessary defences against indecency—should be the desires of the customers. If the authorities were to prohibit pork from being sold by our butchers there would justly be an indignant outcry. Is it in the least more sensible to dictate to a theatrical audience as to smoking? It is for the public to say whether they wish to combine the delights of tobacco with enjoyment of the drama. If the public did not like smoking in the theatres, they would keep away; and the manager would soon alter his arrangements.

Many people now live in flats, and, consequently, make a practice of dining at restaurants. The modern taste for dining at these places has made important changes in the amusement business, and has diverted much patronage from the dramatic to the variety theatres. People linger over their dainty dinners at restaurants; and, finding themselves too late to see the commencement of a play, drop in at a music hall. The same habit makes so many persons late in arriving at the theatres. Smoking is not only permitted but encouraged by public opinion in places where it was once sternly forbidden. At one time you were not allowed to smoke in restaurants till after a certain time—at Simpson's restaurant, in the Strand, it was nine p.m. Now you may see people smoking after their lunches at any restaurant, and ladies joining their companions in the soothing cigarette at such places as the Prince's and the Carlton.

In the prospectuses of the Empire, Brighton, Limited, just issued for a new company, we read: "The property has been fully licensed for many years for music, dancing, and dramatic performances, and also for the sale of wines, spirits, beers." This means that though stage-plays have been performed at the Empire, Brighton, smoking has always been permitted. Why should what is right at London-by-the-Sea be wrong in London-on-the-Thames?

All this makes the non-smoking clause in the theatrical licences issued by the Lord Chamberlain specially obnoxious and absurd. What right has that official to make, by an insertion with his own pen, an important addition to the law of the land? It will, of course, be argued that the present Lord Chamberlain found the practice of inserting the non-smoking clause in existence when he succeeded to the office, and that he simply followed precedent. But suppose his predecessor had committed suicide, would the present Lord Chamberlain have felt it necessary to do likewise.

Yours faithfully,
AN UP-TO-DATE PRO.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT-GARDEN.

Carmen was given on Wednesday at Covent-garden with the customary success, although the hot weather evidently affected Madame Calvé to some extent. But the brilliancy of her acting as the gipsy heroine made her Carmen as effective as ever, and secured the warmest approval of a very large and enthusiastic audience. M. Dalmores made an excellent Don José. It is a character extremely well suited to his passionate and energetic style, and he was particularly successful on Wednesday night. M. Gilibert, Cotreuil, Dufriche, Riéss, and Renaud sustained their respective parts with the best possible effect, and Miss Agnes Nicholls as Michaela, Mdlle. Helian, and Miss Kirkwood, efficiently completed the cast. Signor Mancinelli conducted.

THEATRICAL GARDEN PARTY.

A garden party in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund took place at the Royal Botanic Gardens on the 8th inst., and was attended by many well-known actors and actresses. During the afternoon the Prince and Princess of Wales, who were received by Sir Henry Irving, drove up in semi-state, and made a tour of the gardens, now in the height of their summer beauty.

On the hustings before an old fashioned booth displaying sensational placards in startling colours Mr Lionel Brough and Mr Brandon Thomas played the part of showmen of a bygone generation. "Walk up, walk up!" shouted Mr Brough, "There is now to be performed a startling, curdling, 'art throbbing tragedy entitled The Track of Blood! It is to be played by the nobility and gentry of the theatrical world. Such a cast never was, nor never will be seen on any stage. Walk up, walk up! All other performances are spoorious, and this is the only show!" Mr Thomas, with oily black wig and eyeglass, looked the old travelling actor to the life. Valuable assistance, as money-takers, was given by Mr J. C. Buckstone, Mr Horace Watson, Mr Alfred Turner, and Miss Adela Measor. There were quite a number of blood curdling posters executed by Mr Alfred Morrow, Mr George Morrow, Mr T. Friedensen, Mr A. Garth Jones, Mr Campbell Gomer, and others, and carried by Mr A. G. Onslow, Mr R. Bottomly, Mr Reginald Eyre, Mr Wilfrid Foster, Mr E. Macdonald, who were sandwich men, and by the following sandwich board ladies—Miss Nellie Seymour, Miss Lydia West, Miss Darrell, Miss Kitty Mason, and Miss Denvil.

The bill of the play stated that the piece to be given "for the first time on any stage whatsoever," was "a startling, pathetic, and entrancing melodrama in two acts, six scenes, and one mechanical effect," by Robert Marshall, called

The synopsis of the scenery will give a fair idea of the plot, which varied to an extent with every performance. Act 1.—scene I, The Coiner's Den, Whitechapel—The Devil at Work; scene II., The Library at Tooting Towers—The Deed; scene III., The Ballroom at Tooting Towers—The Arrest. Act 2.—scene I, The Dungeon—Awaiting Death; scene II., The Prison Roof—The Escape; scene III, The Cruel Sea—For England and Honour. The proprietor of this booth, where so much capital fooling and quaint burlesque acting were to be witnessed, was returned as Mr Cyril Maude, with Captain Robert Marshall as the prompter, and Mr Paul Graener as the musical director.

Meanwhile, outside in the grounds there was a cricket match of actors v. actresses, under the direction of Mr Aubrey Smith and Miss Vane Featherstone, the actors playing left handed. Mr Rutland Barrington was captain, and distinguished himself as a "lob" bowler, while Mesdames Eva Moore, Pattie Brown, Lettice Fairfax, and other ladies, in pretty white gowns, with large white motor caps, batted with much spirit. Mr Aubrey Smith, who is as good a cricketer as he is an actor, although bowling left-hand, captured a good many wickets. Messrs Oscar Asche, Hayden Coffin, H. V. Esmond, Fred Terry, Sydney Brough, and William Devereux were also in the actors' eleven.

Miss Phyllis Broughton arranged a hat-trimming competition for actors, in which Mr George Alexander was prominent. Mrs Cecil Raleigh's "Aunt Sally" was patronised by scores of delighted visitors. The Prince and Princess of Wales were among the spectators, and were evidently much amused.

During the afternoon the band of the Honourable Artillery Company played, and performances were given by the mandoline and guitar players, under Signor Zarega, by the Æolian Ladies' Orchestra, under Miss Rosabel Watson; and by The Follies, that clever and versatile band of musical artists, under Mr H. G. Pélissier. Signor Volpi introduced his dogs and goats; and Mrs Edward Compton, assisted by Mrs Wright and Miss Marie Dainton, had a stall for the sale of dairy produce. Mr Guy Waller was acting manager, and Mr Arthur Wellesly stage manager; and many others rendered active assistance towards making the festival a success.

MOODY-MANNERS COMPANY.

It is with the greatest satisfaction that we are enabled to congratulate Mr Manners on the improved prospects at Drury-lane. When we visited the theatre last Friday to witness the performance of Verdi's Traviata we found the house well filled and evidently prepared fully to enjoy the beautiful melodies of the opera. Verdi's Traviata was liberally assailed when first produced, and it will be remembered that many operatic purists thought the subject unfitted for musical setting, but the charm and freshness of the music overcame all objections, and at the present day few works can boast of a greater number of admirers. An opera so full of delightful and expressive melodies could not long be tabooed, and with such a competent and even brilliant vocalist as Madame De Vere as the heroine, the hapless Violetta was in excellent hands. Madame De Vere sang the pretty music with the utmost fluency and ease, and was in every way a satisfactory representative of the character. A few may have craved for a more pathetic rendering of the final music of the opera where the heroine recalls with so much tenderness the delights of the past, but it would be simply hypercritical to find any fault with the rendering as a whole, and, indeed, few modern vocalists could have equalled Madame De Vere in dash and brilliancy. Her voice is equal to any demand, and her intelligence places the lady in the front rank of modern vocalists. The audience evidently appreciated this, and gave a hearty and unanimous welcome to Madame De Vere. Mr O'Mara was also extremely good as the lover, Alfred, and the charming music of the part gave him ample opportunities of distinguishing himself, of which he took the fullest advantage. Mr Dever was better suited than usual in the character of the elder Germont, especially in the air made familiar in the Italian version as "Di provenza il mar." Mr Dever had the good taste to sing it without effort, and thus preserved the quaint grace of the music. The chorus was, as is always the case with the Moody-Manners company, of high quality and the general efficiency and artistic taste of the stage arrangements deserved the warmest commendation. La Traviata was repeated on Saturday and on the following Tuesday with complete success.

MR RICHARD BADGER, who recently offered the County Council a sum of £2,500 towards a monument to Shakespeare in London, has met with a rebuff. The General Purposes and Local Government Committees report that while fully approving Mr Badger's plan and deeply appreciating his generosity, they are unable to recommend the Council to accept any financial responsibility in the matter.

"THE PHARISEE'S WIFE"

A Play, in Three Acts, by George Paston, Produced at the Duke of York's Theatre on Tuesday Afternoon, July 12.

Henry Carrington	Mr C. AUBREY SMITH
Mrs Carrington	Miss MADGE M'INTOSH
Rosamund	Miss MOLLY PEARSON
Toby	Master HUGH WAKEFIELD
Mrs Rolfe	Miss HILDA RIVERS
Julian Rolfe	Mr CHARLES QUARTERMAINE
Mrs Waxwell	Miss H. M. FRASER
Rufus Pagnall	Mr GRAHAM BROWNE
Albert Baxter	Mr GEORGE TROLLOPE
Mrs Lewis	Miss DARRAGH
Currie	Mr S. T. PEARCE
Maid	Miss MAY MULVEY

The lady who calls herself "George Paston," and is the authoress of "A Modern Amazon" and "Side Lights on the Georgian Period," is apparently not entirely unacquainted with M. George Lemaître's Le Pardon, to say nothing of Dumas's Françillon. But there may be many agreeable variations on the same theme; and "George Paston" has written a piece full of human interest, spiced with up-to-date piquancy, and showing considerable appreciation of stage requirements.

The Pharisee is Henry Carrington, a barrister, who takes the ordinary male view of the relations between husband and wife, and forbids Mrs Carrington to continue to know a certain lady who has gone wrong. Quite unexpectedly, Carrington "goes wrong" himself. A Mrs Lewis "throws herself at his head," and, as she is an intoxicating female, he succumbs to her witcheries. The result is that he is made the co-respondent in a divorce case, and his name gets into the newspapers. He wants his wife to forgive him, and sends to her as an ambassador a Mrs Rolfe, who is separated very happily from her own spouse. Mrs Carrington decides, before forgiving her husband, to put him into moral quarantine for a while. So she goes down to a cottage in Surrey, and stays there with her two children, while Mr Carrington remains working in town.

Mrs Carrington's companion in her seclusion is one Rufus Pagnall, a warm-blooded young man who is passionately in love with her. The fact that he is offered an appointment in China causes the inevitable explosion; and, for an instant—while Pagnall is kissing her—Mrs Carrington's virtue is in danger. She rallies, however, and dismisses Pagnall, who departs regretfully.

In the next act we see Carrington hard at work in his chambers. Here he is visited by Mrs Lewis, whose health has broken down, and who comes to borrow £200 to take her to Monte Carlo. Carrington goes out to get the cash, and Mrs Carrington, arriving, meets the divorcée, who goes off after a bad coughing attack, leaving husband and wife to their interview. Mrs Carrington confesses her weakness in ambiguous terms, which allow Carrington to believe that she has actually "gone wrong." He bursts into a tirade of violent indignation; but finally reviews the situation with sufficient calmness to pardon his wife entirely. Then she tells him that she was tempted, but resisted the temptation. So they are reconciled. "It is so easy," she concludes, "to forgive a fellow-sinner.'

The piece was thoroughly well played. Mr Aubrey Smith's stern, aquiline features, stalwart figure, and strong and firm method, made him an excellent representative of the "Pharisaical" husband. Miss Madge M'Intosh played Mrs Carrington with a wealth of emotional expression and tender earnestness; and Miss Hilda Rivers delivered Mrs Rolfe's acute criticisms of life with a polished neatness which greatly added to their effect. Miss Darragh decidedly distinguished herself as the consumptive divorcée, depicting the reckless despair and callous gaiety of Mrs Lewis with remarkable effectiveness and ability. Miss Molly Pearson was an agreeable representative of Rosamund, and Mr Charles Quartermaine did useful work as Julian Rolfe, a harmless old lady being naturally embodied by Miss H. M. Fraser. Mr Graham Browne was appropriately passionate and romantic as Rufus Pagnall, and a clever bit of comedy was Mr George Trollope's representation of the repentant clerk, Albert Baxter, Mr S. T. Pearce devoting commendable care to his treatment of the small rôle of Currie.

Opinion as to the merits of "George Paston's" play will undoubtedly depend greatly upon whether the critic belong to the male or female sex. The audience at the Duke of York's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon was chiefly composed of ladies, who called loudly for the "author" at the end of the performance, Mr Graham Browne making the usual statement as to absence and information.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

In the theatre of the Guildhall school of music on Friday, July 8, the pupils of Mr Soutten, the esteemed and popular professor of stage dancing, gave a very attractive performance. The first item was a graceful and romantic dance called "Dreamland" by Miss Margaret Budie, whose efforts fully realised the title, and were enhanced by the clever music of Franz Von Blom. Mr Soutten, having been originally trained as a musician, never makes the mistake of selecting unsuitable dance music. In this respect he again displayed his taste in several instances in the choice of compositions by Auber, Mezzacaro, Bachmann, and others. In the Neapolitan Tarantella Miss Irene Ashton succeeded perfectly. Her spirited action, aided by the tambourine, almost made one fancy oneself in the "Sweet South," the land of poetry and romance. Miss M. Chilvers clinked the castanets prettily as La Belle Inès, and proved herself fully equal to the graceful Spanish dance. In the "Scène de Ballet," given by Miss Chadfield, we were treated to the old school of ballet as we remembered it at the old Her Majesty's Theatre when the "long Thursdays," as they used to be called, came to an end in the early hours of Friday morning, but were never too long when Fanny Elssler, Cerito, Carlotta Grisi, Duvernay, Taglioni, and other votaries of Terpsichore were to be seen. The "Gavotte de Vestris" again recalled the ballet dancing of the last century, the Misses Chadfield and Dora Addison winning abundant plaudits. Other entertainments varied the programme, and as a striking contrast the Sleep-walking scene from Macbeth was introduced. Miss B. Apps was the Lady Macbeth, and did herself credit, but would have been still more successful if she had not been inclined to a certain hysterical delivery of the text. But who could reasonably expect a young student to master the tragical communings of Lady Macbeth? a character associated with Mrs Siddons, Madame Ristori, and other great stars of the stage. Mr Grant and Miss Bickerton as the Doctor and Gentlewoman were efficient. The Balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet was given with a female Romeo, Miss Malenoir, a talented pupil of Signor Gustave Garcia. The young lady displayed much ability, and delivered the text most artistically. Miss M. Brodie acquitted herself with distinction as the heroine. The duet from Ponchielli's opera, La Gioconda, was a little beyond the powers of the Misses Willby and Buchanan, but happily there was no serious fault to find. The programme concluded with the operetta The Girton Girl, by Alfred J. Caldicott, in which Miss Malenoir appeared successfully as the Girton Girl and Miss Apps represented a Milkmaid; other milkmaids being the Misses Bickerton, Blakeway, Chadfield, Chilvers, Addison, Ashton, Newman, and White. Mrs Charles P. Smith bestowed her customary care on the young ladies, and Miss K. Richards rendered efficient assistance at the pianoforte.

MR H. W. MOTE, solicitor for the Actors' Association, recently appeared on behalf of Mr Hugh Moss at the Bankruptcy Court to oppose the discharge of Mr William Mallaby, late of the Worthing Theatre. It was suspended for two years.

A CHAT WITH MR. LEO DRYDEN.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

We have all known Mr Leo Dryden as a clever and refined vocal comedian and character actor, who by hard work has gradually progressed to his present important position in the music hall world, but perhaps few of us have known Mr Dryden as a philosopher. He is not merely a philosopher concerning himself solely with the theatrical profession, for if you have the opportunity of enjoying the pleasure of his society for an hour or so, you will find that he has ideas and ideals of his own regarding nearly every department of life. We, however, can only interest ourselves in these columns with what he has to say about the stage and the conditions governing it.

"A very satisfactory feature which characterised the life of the last century," says Mr Dryden, was the transmigration of the variety theatres from taverns to respectable houses of entertainment, while hardly less remarkable has been the converting of dramatic theatres into music halls. Of course this has been due to the desire on the part of the public for short entertainments. The business man who leaves work at six o'clock in the evening does not want to sit for three or four hours trying to unravel a long story that is being enacted on the stage; a couple of hours' light amusement is quite sufficient. I consider that the falling off in attendances at the theatres has been entirely brought about by lack of enterprise and foresight and failure to follow the signs of the times. Everyone agrees that recreation for the mind is as much essential as recreation for the body, but, I ask you, is there any recreation in sitting out the long dreary waits between the acts which are supposed to be enlivened by a selection played sometimes by a very inferior band? It is really enough to drive people to the bar, which reminds one of that story of the manager who announced from the footlights that, owing to an accident to the scenery, there would be a long wait, but if the audience would be quiet the band would play a selection, when a small voice in the gallery shouted, 'All right, guv'nor; don't let the band play; we will be quiet.' Personally, I think that smoking should be allowed in the theatres, and it would, I feel sure, be much appreciated, but I have no sympathy with the facilities that are afforded for drinking in the auditorium, as it has a tendency to make people forget what they are looking at. Mr Forbes Robertson in a recent speech on music hall entertainments said that people will sometimes take a fancy to rubbish. Speaking as an artist of thirty years experience, I fail to see where the rubbish comes in. Many years ago, I admit, things were somewhat different.

"Speaking about charity concerts and the like events," continues Mr Dryden, "it seems to me that artists — especially those who are in the zenith of their success—are expected to give their services free on behalf of any charitable object. An artist will travel out of his or her own way to do a turn, and be kept waiting, as an artist who has once reached his destination does not like to go away without having fulfilled his mission. The promotors of the charity entertainment might probably condescend to thank the artist for his services in the cause of benovolence, but there is one thing they forget — that something of a more tangible form might be acceptable to the performer."

Mr Dryden, who comes of a musical family, was born in Limehouse, and commenced singing in the streets for his living (by-the-way, many of our present-day stars have started "al fresco"), so it may well be imagined that he has had a hard struggle in following the profession which he now adorns. He always had a leaning for the business, and at many establishments where at an earlier period of his life he had been refused permission to sing outside, he has since appeared inside as a star for twelve and thirteen weeks at a stretch.

The subject of this interview likens himself to David Garrick in the pathetic passage which the celebrated 18th century actor is supposed to dedicate to his mother:—

I caused her but one anger, that was when I adopted my profession. She forgave me—she forgave me—mother like. I became a famous actor—applauded, feasted, marvelled at by the many. But my triumph came too late, too late. My mother was dead. Her tears weigh upon me yet.

And so he is going to be David Garrick on the stage in the episode he has produced, entitled An Actor and a Man. Mr Dryden shows in the episode how the purse-proud Simon Ingot induces David Garrick to play the part of a drunken scroundrel in order that the former's daughter, Ada Ingot, may be cured of her affection for the actor. Garrick eventually succeeds in disgusting the object of his affections by smashing bottles, glasses, shuffling cards, stowing aces up his sleeve, singing drunken ditties, and insulting Ingot's guests. He is ordered to leave the house, and on reaching his usual meeting place he recounts the whole story, but when a byestander insults Ingot and his daughter, Garrick challenges him to a duel. Mr Dryden has been highly complimented for his characterisation of Garrick, and one paper went so far as to state that Mr Dryden was fulfilling a mission similiar to that which David Garrick so determinedly started more than a century and a half ago. That mission is the elevating of music hall ideas and entertainments.

"I have never yet," says Mr Dryden, "allowed myself to indulge in low suggestiveness, and I will never do so. I am continually striving for the betterment of the quality of performances brought before music hall audiences. Why should not Shakespeare be introduced on the variety stage? Take, for instance, such a scene as might be made of Brutus speaking from the rostrum and giving his reason for the assassination of Cæsar."

Mr Dryden has some equally bold opinions to offer in other directions. He does not think that artists should be permitted in front of the house where they are performing, because, as he puts it, "familiarity breeds contempt." He himself believes in being a citizen off the stage and an artist on.

"Fussiness and outside applause I detest," he tells us. "The approbation or the silent condemnation of the audience is sufficient. The reason why some artists are treated with a certain amount of contempt," he goes on, "is due to their want of dignity. They are too anxious to be on good terms with their patrons and those who engage them. Friendship and business can never be combined, for the simple reason that each one is striving to get the better of the other. I hold that directly an artiste leaves the stage he should try and forget it."

Among the many songs which have helped to make the name of Leo Dryden famous can be mentioned "Love and Duty," "The miner's dream of home,' "The miner's return," "India's reply," "Josephine," "Great White Mother," "Mercia," "Bravo! Dublin Fusiliers," "Lucie Manette," "Mice and Men," "Napoleon's Son," and "For Freedom and Japan."

Mr Dryden is an interesting conversationalist, and some day he may possibly give the public the benefit, in book form, of the original theories which are the outcome of his intensely philosophical temperament.

Mr William Bradford is excellent as Lieutenant Cecil Peyntland, and Mr Reginald Brown does well as Lieutenant Adolphus Cholmondeley. Each of the military parts are well played, and Mr Jack Bigwood as Jem Stokes and Mr Cecil Morand as Michael Farthing are entitled to credit for the energetic way in which they help to keep the ball of fun merrily rolling. Mr Frank Stuart sustains the character of Sir William Cunningham with great credit, and a special word of praise is due to Miss Allen for her broad comedy as Katie Stubbs. Others in the cast who merit commendation include Miss Belle Russell, Miss Marian Mayne, and Mrs Thompson.

MISS STELLA BRERETON'S AT HOME.

The advantage of preliminary training for the stage is generally recognised by our chief exponents of dramatic art, and though there are leading actors who are sceptical as to the advantages of any other preparation for the theatre but that to be gained behind the footlights, it is certain that the path of the cultured recruit who is practised in elocution and deportment is cleared of many stumbling blocks. The force of this contention was brought vividly to the mind of the writer when listening on Tuesday afternoon to a programme of recitations given by the pupils of Mrs Douglass (Miss Stella Brereton) in the pretty garden of her residence, 30, Park-village East, Regent's-park. Fortunate, indeed is the student who obtains so experienced a guide at the outset of a histrionic career, for Miss Brereton is an actress whose wide range of parts in Shakespeare and the legitimate renders her particularly fit as a stage mentor. The programme presented on the boards of an advantageously placed outdoor theatre at the foot of a descending lawn was commendably unambitious, and commenced with a couple of pianoforte soli by Madame Roe, who played the incidental music and accompaniments throughout the afternoon very skilfully. Miss Nan Wyatt was the first to take the stage, reciting a poem entitled "The King's Command," a pathetic story of a boy monarch who has a mortally injured youth brought into his apartments. The humbler lad dies, and when truculent and traitorous nobles invade the privacy of their young king, and seek his life, they are shown the lifeless form of the boy. This stratagem saves the life of the warm-hearted boy, who has shown so convincingly his right to rule. Miss Wyatt's intelligence and aptitude were exhibited throughout the piece, and the emotional capacity was shown in the expressions of tender solicitude belonging to the chief character of the piece. Mr G. H. Pickering sounded an agreeable light comedy note in his monologue. An impressionable youth—we will call him Bertie—has an affaire decœur with Barbara, the sweet daughter of Sir Bucephalus and Lady Bowler. At a dance at Portland-place some misunderstanding arises, and Bertie comes away in a huff. After a row with the cabman he relates his trouble, and determines in the future not to worry himself about the other sex. But a note on his programme from Barbara puts a very different complexion on matters, and he rushes back to the ball and enjoys two pirouettes in paradise. Mr Pickering betrayed scarcely any trace of the amateur. He was fairly at his ease, was never awkward, and knew what to do with his hands. He displayed, too, considerable command of humorous expression, and was amusing. Miss Cheatham, a tall and handsome brunette, chose a tragedy of Sedgmoor—the theme of many a drama—for her recitation, and retained the interest of her hearers in the story of rival lovers, who are condemned to death. By the cruel whim of their captors it is decided that the winner of a race between the pair shall live. The conditions are that one shall be mounted and the other on foot. The rider "pulls" his horse, thus enabling the runner to win the contest and live. The fair reciter possesses the dramatic instinct, and delivered with some force the strenuous lines of the piece. With further practice and tuition Miss Cheatham will be enabled to do greater justice to her natural gifts. In "Michael Ivanowitch," a story of Russian patriotism and French cruelty, Miss Maggie Maskall, a typical English blonde, quite sounded the depths of heroic resolve, and managed her charming voice with much skill. Miss Edith Maskall, a pretty brunette, and a sister of the previous "speaker," submitted "Fra Giacomo," the tragic poem by the late Robert Buchanan, and gave excellent expression to the mocking indictment of the wronged husband, the tragic conclusion of the poem being notable for its vigour. We should much like to see these sisters in the Balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet. Miss Maude Lacy, the most advanced of Miss Brereton's pupils, highly distinguished herself as Ariel, singing with considerable charm "Where the bee sucks." In a becoming brown costume with wings of sheen she suggested the lightsome spirit of the fay of The Tempest, and also evinced much intensity and fervour in her recitation "A Polish Boy." With a sympathetic voice, which she manages very skilfully, and natural grace Miss Lacey should do herself credit in the profession of her choice. Miss Edith Maskall was heard to advantage in Queen Katharine's appeal in the fourth scene of the second act of Henry the Eighth; Miss Garton agreeably emphasised the humour of F. Anstey's description of a pastoral play performed under hopeless conditions of weather; and Mr G. H. Pickering, who made up as the comic countryman of the drama, struggled manfully with the difficulties of a provincial accent in his recitation, "Michaelmas Day"—a story of an affectionate goose who imitated the example of its distinguished predecessors in the Roman Capitol and saved its master. Mrs Douglass was heartily complimented upon the success of her entertainment, and the promise displayed by her bright and attractive cohort of pupils. She received a gracious letter from Mrs Kendal, who was unable to be present, but sent a message—"all success"—from Yorkshire. Kindly letters of encouragement also came from Sir Theodore Martin, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr C. W. Somerset, Miss Mary Moore, and Mr H. Beerbohm Tree.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LE RABIOT,"
Vaudeville, in Three Acts, by M. Gaston Marot,
Produced at the Théâtre Cluny, July 7.

Lacoste	M. LURBEAU
Benoît	M. ARNOULD
Pluchet	M. GRAVIER, fils
Alfred Chalumet	M. MARIUS
Eudoxie	Madame FRANCK-MEL
Césarine	Mlle. DESCHAMPS
Antoinette	Mdlle. AMORI

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, JULY 14.—Even for a "summer piece," Le Rabiot is a poor production. Fortunately, Cluny audiences are not very particular, so it is just possible that the play may manage to subsist during the dog days. The silly plot is as follows:—Baudurier, a young doctor, has been ordered to do his thirteen days' military drill at Melun, and in order to avoid his mistress, Césarine, meeting Eudoxie, his wife, he tells the former that his regiment is stationed at Auxerre. On his return home he learns from a friend that Césarine, incensed at having gone to Auxerre without meeting him, threatens that unless he spends a few days with her she will make things hot for him. The frightened doctor thereupon induces an innkeeper at Melun to send him a telegram, supposed to come from the colonel of his regiment, wherein he is ordered to return immediately to Melun to undergo the four days' imprisonment (Rabiot) to which he has been sentenced for neglect of duty. Having triumphantly shown this telegram to his wife, he starts off to meet Césarine. Ill luck, however, will have it that his Colonel comes up to town that very day to ask for a medical consultation; and Eudoxie, discovering the trick played upon her by her husband, at once leaves for Melun on vengeance bent. And then a wild chase begins, wherein all the personages in the piece appear and disappear in the time-honoured fashioned. The audience seemed to enjoy all this rubbish, fairly well interpreted by an average cast.

"LE PAON,"
Comedy, in Three Acts, in Verse,
by M. Francis De Croisset,
Produced at the Comédie-Française, July 9

Boursoufle	M. DE FÉRAUDY
Frontin	M. GEORGES BERR
De Brécy	M. DENELLY
Subtil	M. JOLIET
Gratelard	M. FALCONNIER
De Lussac	M. GARRY
Patu	M. SIBLOT
Annette	Mdlle. LECONTE
Lucinde	Mdlle. SOREL
Azaïs	Mdlle. DE FAVA

M. Francis De Croisset's new comedy is not well constructed, and several scenes drag considerably. But it is bright, and, in its Louis XV. style, it is not lacking in charm. The Baron de Boursoufle, the essence of conceit and the biggest braggart on record, has been nicknamed by his friends Le Paon—the peacock. In the opening tableau we find him, disguised as a countryman, in a small inn making love to Annette, the innkeeper's niece. He has, it seems, betted one thousand francs with his friend, De Brécy, that in less than a week he will have turned Annette's head. Being neither handsome nor young, he uses a stratagem that wins the girl's affections. He recites beautiful verses, and displays a marvellous knowledge of all things, a knowledge which, like his poetry, he picks up as he goes along. No wonder the guileless maiden admires the man's genius, and she not only acknowledges her love for him, but proposes to follow him to Paris. To any man this triumph would be sufficient, but Boursoufle is different from the rest of humanity. He does not even think of making Annette his mistress, but as she is remarkably pretty and graceful he intends to have her taught dancing and singing in order to show the world that his latest conquest is not an ordinary peasant girl. Annette has spent a week in Boursoufle's house. Thanks to her dancing master and singing teacher she has blossomed into a delightful little lady, and Boursoufle has invited "all Paris" to see the miracle he has worked. The eventful night arrives. "All Paris" has put in an appearance; but, alas! Annette is so nervous that she stumbles in her menuet, and when she opens her mouth no sound issues. The ladies giggle, the men crack jokes, and the crestfallen Boursoufle decamps, leaving Annette in possession of the house, which, in a fit of generosity, he has made over to her. When the curtain rises on the final tableau we are in the grounds of Annette's house. The girl, more than ever in love with Boursoufle, has remained virtuous, although she is supposed to be the mistress of the young coxcomb De Lussac. She tries to rouse the "peacock's" jealousy, and she succeeds. Her elderly admirer experiences the delightful sensation of loving someone else besides himself, and little Annette, the innkeeper's niece, becomes Madame Le Baronne Boursoufle. M. Feraudy's impersonation of Boursoufle was a masterpiece; and Mdlle. Leconte supplied a splendid sketch of the guileless but shrewd little country maiden.

THE marriage is announced of Madame Jane Hading with M. Arnaud, a young talented actor. M. Arnaud has never appeared on a Paris stage, but in Bordeaux and Lyons he has had great success.

THE Variétés has once more engaged our old friend, M. Baron, who will make his reappearance as Bobèche, in Barbe Bleue. A special rôle has also been written for him in M. De La Palisse, the new operette by M. Claude Terrace.

MDLLE. ROSELIA ROUSSEIL, the distinguished actress, has tried her hand at playwriting, and has just finished a big work, Judith, which will very likely be brought out during the coming season. It is the story of Judith and Holophernes, and I am told that Mdlle. Roussell has treated the subject in a remarkable manner.

ELOCUTION AND ORATORY.

At the Cripplegate Institute on Wednesday evening the annual examination took place of the leading students of the Shakespeare Schools of Rhetoric and Dramatic Arts, founded in 1889, and still conducted by Mr Carrington Willis.

Mr Alfred F. Robbins, president of the O.P. Club, was in the chair, and, in his opening remarks, he observed that he was glad to be present to show that he sympathised with the objects and was pleased with the work of the schools. To encourage a pure delivery of the language, to raise the standard of dramatic art, and to stimulate the national drama, both old and new, were highly laudable objects of ambition. On the first point, he could speak not only as a persistent playgoer but as a frequent attendant in the House of Commons, for while visitors to the Commons' gallery could not cry "Speak up," as they had often to do in the theatre gallery, that cry was more and more to be heard from the floor among members themselves, because of the growing inarticulateness of the speaking. Oratory was as dead in the House of Commons as elocution in the theatres, and for much the same reasons—the lack of systematic training and the reluctance to take pains. In the matter of systematic training this institution had done, and could do, much for those who desired to appear on the platform or the stage; and, if a similar one could be founded as a kind of annexe or "side show" to the Theatre Royal, Westminster, it would do an incalculable amount of good to the legislator and to those who were constrained to listen to him—an indication for a fresh opening for his talents which he hoped Mr Carrington Willis would take to heart. In our theatres themselves, moreover, it was becoming increasingly painful to listen to even leading actors and actresses who could not, or would not, articulately enunciate their words so as to be heard by the whole audience, and he held that it was something very much in the nature of a fraud upon those who had paid to hear a play and then were not allowed to catch the words. This institution might surely claim to be in some sort a pioneer of the more extended effort now being established by Mr Tree, as for fifteen years it had been as a voice crying in the wilderness in various parts of London, and the time has assuredly now come for its work to be recognised at the full. Just as that mediæval and [misguided patriot, Jack Cade, had observed that reading and writing came by nature—a theory which our education authorities had failed to adopt—so there were some who argued that acting could not be taught. In the same strict sense of the phrase, the writing of literature, the composition of music, and the painting of pictures could not be taught; but the author was certainly none the worse for having learned the alphabet, the composer for being aware that there was a major as well as a minor key, and the painter for knowing how to draw. Granted that the actor must have a natural gift, so must the author, the artist, and the musician; and as with them so with him—the gift must be trained in order to secure its highest development. And, therefore, every effort and every institution which would assist to emancipate us from the moan and the mumble, the hesitancy and the haphazardness, of much that is now presented to us in Parliament and the pulpit, on the platform, and the stage deserved cordial encouragement.

Mr Acton Bond, as honorary examiner, then conducted the tests of the several candidates—twelve in reading, eighteen in reciting, and five in acting, with the result of awarding a first-class certificate for reading to Miss Ella Backwell, and for reciting to Miss Winifred Rae; a second class certificate for reading and reciting to Miss Beatrice Smith, for reciting to Miss Lettice Frost, for reading to Miss Winifred Rae, and for comedy acting to Miss Ella Backwell. Mr Bond accompanied the awards with some sound advice to the various aspirants; and a very hearty vote of thanks to him for examining, and to Mr Robbins for presiding, closed the proceedings.

GUILDHALL DRAMATIC RECITAL.

On Tuesday evening the pupils of Mr Chapuy gave a dramatic recital in the theatre, the plays chosen being Orange Blossoms, by J. P. Wooler; The Little Treasure, by the late Sir Augustus Harris; and Who's to Win Him? by J. T. Williams. In the first piece Miss Jennie Davies, who was set down for the character of Violet Hope, was owing to an accident prevented from appearing, her place being taken by Miss Cook, who displayed considerable talent. Perhaps the best of the performers in Orange Blossoms was Mr. Harden, who, as Septimus Symmetry, proved himself a really capable actor. Messrs Smith and Pope were entitled to commendation, and the two ladies may also be mentioned, who acquitted themselves creditably. They were the Misses Tomkins and Padger. The Little Treasure came next, and owed not a little of its interest to Miss Shill, who as the heroine, Gertrude, played very prettily and naturally. Miss Sheba Brozel made her mark as the maid, Miss Emma Cook played carefully as Mrs Meddleton, the cast being completed by Mr Moore and Miss Stella Tomkins. In Who's to Win Him? Mr E. Spencer played with discretion as Cyril Dashwood, Mr William Smith gained credit as Mr Prattleton Primrose, Mr Collins did good service as Squire Brushleigh, and among the ladies Miss Jennie Davies, the young lady who met with the accident, courageously appeared as Arabella with her arm in a sling, and met with much sympathy, also deservedly winning considerable applause. Other ladies who merited praise were Miss Dorothy Jared, Miss Stella Tomkins, Miss Sheba Brozel, and Miss Emma Cook. The general standard of excellence in the delivery of the pupils reflected the greatest credit upon Mr Chapuy, who had evidently taken great pains with the young people. Miss Eva Shacklock, a pianist of no little skill, played selections from Godard, Liebling, Moszkowski, and Liszt with graceful execution, and Mrs Charles P. Smith had, as usual, charge of the young ladies. The opera class still continues to rehearse Gounod's Romeo and Juliet, under the direction of M. Jacobi, on Thursdays and Saturdays.

DEATH OF MR. W. WALTON.

We regret to announce the death, at the age of forty-four, of Mr William Hemming (professionally known as William Walton), which took place at Bolingbroke Hospital, Wandsworth Common, on Friday last week.

The deceased gentleman had been in failing health for a considerable time, and, despite the best medical care, gradually became worse, falling at last a victim to that terrible disease—cancer.

Mr Walton was well known in the theatrical world as the younger member of the famous Walton Family so popular a few years back. He took part in the first performances of Mr G. R. Sims's comedy Crutch and Toothpick (playing and creating the rôle of Jubbins), Mother-in-Law, and the amusing burlesque The Corsican Brothers. After a most successful provincial tour, during which he produced several pantomimes at Leeds, Sheffield, and many other towns, Mr Walton set sail for Australia. Here, after producing and playing in several pantomimes, Mr Walton left for America and South Africa, meeting with the greatest success. In Germany Mr Walton produced a pantomimic ballet, which gained for him the highest esteem in German theatrical circles.

At the close of his Continental tour Mr Walton proceeded to Brighton, where, at the Eden Theatre, he produced many successful pantomimes. One of the greatest hits Mr Walton made was his performance as Friday, in Robinson Crusoe, which, by-the-way, was the last part he played at the Fulham Theatre last Christmas.

The interment took place on Wednesday last at Abney-park Cemetery. Among the many friends and relatives gathered at the grave-side were his widow and daughter, his brothers (John and Fred), his eldest sister (Polly), Mr and Mrs Hand, Mrs and Miss J. Hemming, Mr and Mrs George Swinnerton, Mrs Free, Mrs Hart, Mr and Mrs Robbins, and many other sympathisers. The first part of the burial service was read in the cemetery church by the Rev. A. O. Palmer, B.A., the cortège then proceeding to the family vault. The coffin was covered with beautiful wreaths sent by—among others—the following: Widow and daughter (Daisy), his sister Polly, brothers Alfred and Watty, his niece (Louie) and husband, Jack and Marie Hemming, Frank and Florrie Hemming, Mr and Mrs George Swinnerton (nephew), "A Little Friend," Mr and Mrs Robbins, and G. Johnson.

Mr Walton's untimely death will be heard of with the greatest regret by his many friends, both in London, the provinces, and the Continent, and the stage is all the poorer by the loss of one who in his day was in the foremost rank of pantomimic artists.

Mr Edgar Curtis at the Bandstand, Clacton, has been going great guns with "Folkestone for the Day," a song which Miss Marie Lloyd has generously given him permission to sing on the halls. Big business has ruled at this popular rendezvous during the past week; largely by the sweet singing of the daughter of Mr Robert Forsyth.

The Smythsons commence on Monday at Cardiff a five months' provincial tour of the Stoll and Moss Empires, reopening in London on Dec. 19.

At the Tivoli, Leeds, this week, the Creo Bros. are very popular in The Gypsies; Yamamoto and Koyoshi, Japanese equilibrists, are well received; Sable Fern, vocalist, has a good reception; as also have the Passmore Bros., eccentric novelty comedians. Neil Kenyon, Scotch comedian, appears with success; and the comedy element is supplied by Queen and Le Brun, Arthur Gill, and the Arleys.

STAGE ANIMALS.

A writer in the Daily Chronicle this week gives an interesting collection of reminiscences of "Animals that Act." He says:—"In Mr Lewis Waller's production of Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner at the Imperial Theatre, which has apparently to rank as one of the few really successful plays of what is generally admitted to be a very disastrous season, the horse which figures so conspicuously on the hoardings may pride itself as being not an incidental character but the god in the machine, and, indeed, the very pivot on which the whole play turns. If it had not been in its place to be stolen from the heroine by the dashing young Southerner there would have been no cause for her resentment in the first act, while if it had not borne him back from the battle in which he was so seriously wounded the happy events which spring from that return would never have happened.

"Horses have often figured in plays, and it was not so many years ago that Mr Hermann Vezin, in The Duchess of Koolgardie, used to ride on to the stage of Drury-lane as previously, in A Royal Divorce, at the Olympic, he used to do as Napoleon. Drury-lane, indeed, has been the scene of many a drama in which horses have figured conspicuously. Was it not there that Ben Hur was produced with its wonderful chariot race, in which the horses galloped, not in make-believe fashion across the stage, but on what were to all intents and purposes treadmills, so that, without appreciably moving, they covered a considerable distance before the very eyes of the audience? That historic stage, too, has seen the introduction of many a horse-race, notably that in which Mr Leonard Boyne used to ride; while horses have been used in many of the other autumn dramas, for example, The Great Ruby.

"It is no modern desecration of the drama, as some people call it, this introduction of quadrupedal personages among the men and women whose aim and object in life is to 'hold as 'twere the mirror up to Nature'—and great is the saving grace of the introduction of those words 'as 'twere,' as they shelter all the bad acting of which the stage has been capable since Shakespeare wrote that much-quoted phrase. Shakespeare himself not infrequently suggested the introduction of animals to heighten the effect of certain scenes, and when at His Majesty's Theatre, a few months ago, Mr Beerbohm Tree produced Richard II., the chief characters rode in procession through the stage-painted streets of London. In the play, too, in which Miss Ellen Terry made her first appearance and her first success on the stage, Charles Kean's revival of A Winter's Tale at the Princess's, ponies were introduced into the revel scene in which Perdita and Florizel dance their merry dance with the village folk. In almost every production of As You Like It large shaggy hounds are led in leash in the forest scenes, while to heighten their effect—though, it must be admitted, it more often adds a touch of unintentional comedy—goats are led across the stage by the shepherds.

"When Lady Archibald Campbell started the now frequently observed custom of producing plays in the open air, in her As You Like It at Coombe, a deer, which had been recently killed in Scotland, was carried on to the stage slung across a couple of poles, and the realism it introduced could not fail to be distinctly and olfactorily observed by the audience, though whether it was appreciated was quite another matter. Among the dramatis personæ of the Shakespearian plays it can never be forgotten how important a colleague the dog Crab is of the clown Launce. Without Crab not a little of the peculiar humour of the comedian would be entirely lost. Even more important than Crab was the part played by Binkie in Mr Forbes Robertson's production of The Light That Failed.

Mr Fred Terry's constant appearance as Charles II., in Sweet Nell of Old Drury, with a King Charles' spaniel in his arms, gave historic point to the distinction of a class of animals which, hitherto absent from the stage, nevertheless play a very important part in the drama of real life. Dogs, indeed, have long held their own on the stage, from an early date to the modernities of musical comedy in general and Sergeant Brue in particular, and many a dog drama has delighted a less exigent public than that which now frequents the play-houses. Such a drama was The Forest of Montargis, in which a large dog was trained to seize the villain by the throat, the actor being protected from the animal's teeth by wearing a thickly padded collar.

"The donkey, which proved so recalcitrant a member of the cast of Veronique at the Apollo, is the second which has within a comparatively short time graced the London stage, the other being Ping Pong in The New Clown, in which Mr James Welch made so conspicuous a success at Terry's Theatre. When Miss Mary Anderson first produced Mr W. S. Gilbert's one act play Comedy and Tragedy at the Lyceum, a donkey played an important, if not distinguished part, though it was behind the scenes, and so, therefore, not seen by the audience.

"It is difficult to say at what animals the dramatist will draw the line, for did not the Hippodrome present last Christmas a pantomime avowedly written around a troop of elephants, while Mr Max Pemberton has introduced a monkey into The Finishing School, and a play is, it is rumoured, in preparation in which the 'leading character' is a giant cobra."

MR. TREE'S SCHOOL.

Mr Beerbohm Tree, in his pungent "Introduction" to Mr Austin Fryers's just-published "Guide to the Stage," strongly vindicates his action in establishing a Dramatic Academy. Says Mr Tree:—"That I should find myself in agreement with Mr Austin Fryers's views in favour of the necessity for dramatic training I fully anticipated, for I have had the privilege of knowing for many years past that he was confirmed in this true faith. My own endeavour—which, I am happy to say, promises to be entirely successful—to found a School of Dramatic Art has aroused not a few storms in some theatrical teacups.

"The School of Dramatic Art, instead of overstocking the profession, or introducing the incapable, will have the directly contrary effect of reducing the ranks of the profession to the limits of capability. In a private school run for profit, mere considerations of business may induce the proprietor to retain a pupil who is hopelessly incapable, but in my school, as in the Paris Conservatoire, the incapables will be weeded out by examination.

"I should be sorry if any action of mine should be considered by my professional brethren to be calculated to deprive them of their means of livelihood. But it is the opinion of myself and others who have given this subject their most careful consideration that the very reverse will be the effect.

"Every year brings in its train a new batch of aspirants in every art; the rising generation, as Ibsen said, is always knocking at the door; and those who hate to hear the demand for admittance must, I am afraid, find their only consolation and comfort in the decreasing birth-rate. Instead of stocking the London stage with intelligent-looking young men and pretty girls whose appearance is their only passport, we shall tell them to—go to school.

"In all reason, how can the erection of such a barrier be more prejudicial to the chances of the provincial actor than the present haphazard method?

"I maintain that, in view of the death of the stock companies, some such school is an absolute necessity for the well-being of the stage, and I am aware that this opinion is shared by all the leading men and women of our profession."

SALFORD.

Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—A triple bill is provided here by Mr Geo. M. Marriott and Edith Finlay, and good houses are giving due appreciation of the fare. Miss Edith Finlay made a good impression in a long scena, called The Goldsmith's Wife, an incident in the life of the ill-fated Jane Shore, and also in a sensational episode entitled London After Dark as Clara Holmes. Mr G. M. Marriott as Ferdinand Santos and Mr H. Gilbey as Richard Seymour represented villainy. Mr Otto Minster as Gerald Lyle, Mr Walter Rousby as Bob Simmons, Mr T. M. George, Miss T. Foster, Mr Reginald Fox, Mr H. Lauderdale, Mr Harry Cooke, Miss Muriel Alleyne, Miss Gracie Walker, Miss Ruby Hamilton, and Miss Maude Tremere. The scenery, effects, and costumes are admirable.

Empire Palace.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—That wildly farcical absurdity, The Bricklayers, is again making the rafters ring with hearty laughter, thanks to the cleverness and agility of the famous Boisset troupe. Those old-established Sheffield favourites, Rezene and Robini, are as funny as ever, and other talented performers this week are Victoria Monks, a pretty and graceful English comedienne; Paul Conchas, athletic juggler; Alexandra Edwin, ballad vocalist; Lulu Gould, serio-comic; the Hoopers, comic jugglers; Gus Garrick, comic vocalist; E. THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

Patent Illustrated. Ventilation: Air and Smoke Treating. Patentees, Green, T., 10, Hunters-road, Aston Manore, Warwickshire. In order to ventilate, disinfect, or perfume theatres, foul air or smoke is drawn into a chamber by a horizontally-arranged fan driven by water jets impinging in pockets on its periphery. After depositing the solid particles on the water in the bottom of the chamber, the air, &c., escapes through an outlet and a grid (or perforated plate) into the atmosphere or back into the building. The open lower end of the chamber is preferably immersed in water in an outer vessel. Disinfecting and perfuming substances may be inserted between the grid and a perforated cover, or may be mixed with the water in the chamber. The inlet pipe of the apparatus may be connected to hoppers, attached in conjunction with guards to polishing benches. According to the provisional specification, an absorbent screen, saturated with a disinfecting or perfuming liquid, is fitted over the inlet or outlet of the apparatus.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 3d, 1901

THE STATE OF THE DRAMA.

It has become quite a customary recreation of the modern magazine editor to start a "symposium." The symposium is an excellent arrangement "all round." It provides the magazine with several pages of capital copy gratis; it gives bold advertisement to those who contribute to it, and it is absolutely harmless. The symposium in the English Illustrated Magazine is edited by M. TIBURCE BEAUGEARD, who puts to his contributors the questions, "What would be the most practical and effective means of giving a new impetus to the drama? Would the institution of a State-aided theatre and of a State-aided conservatoire be beneficial or detrimental to dramatic art? and Would the reform or abolition of the Censorship of Plays advance the interests of the drama?"

Amongst those who send replies is M. EMILE BERGERAT, the famous French poet and playwright, author of Plus Que Reine, Le Capitaine Fracasse, Manon Roland, La Pompadour, and Petite Mère, who is now engaged upon a five-act play, called Madame Royale, for SARAH BERNHARDT, and a drama in verse, Le Roi d'Yvetot for M. COQUELIN. M. BERGERAT says:—

Among the practical means of encouraging dramatic art in England, there is one only that is worth mentioning, as it embodies all the rest: that is the study of Shakespeare. I am a French author, and I read him every day; were I an English author I should read him every day, every night, and every Sunday. Shakespeare is the beginning and the end of dramatic art in all tongues and all countries. He contains all its technique and limits its almost boundless power. Can it be possible that England is suffering from a dramatic anæmia when she alone, of all nations, is the triumphant possessor of the only remedy? Last June, in the week when my piece, Plus Que Reine, was being played by Sarah Bernhardt at the Adelphi Theatre, I wandered about the streets of London—you will smile!—simply to saturate myself with the air that Shakespeare breathed. I seemed to see his spirit everywhere, and followed him silently around Leicester-square, ready to sink into the earth with shame when I fancied he stopped before the posters of my play. "Maître des Maîtres!" I mentally exclaimed, "Thou who wert Molière, Corneille, Racine, Marivaux, and Victor Hugo in one, with, moreover, the liberty to think, to speak, and to dream, I implore thee, glance not scornfully at me and turn thy head away from the Adelphi Theatre!" It is we French dramatists who should, and would, have come to you for advice, if Shakespeare were performed in London as he ought to be, that is, every day and everywhere. I should then have asked of you the most practical means of encouraging dramatic art in Paris, and saving it from sinking deeper into the mire of anti-artistic commercialism which now threatens to engulf it! And do you know what you would have replied?—"Cling to our Shakespeare! He will restore all you have lost, or are fast losing: ideas, style, and everything else. You will then have good comedians, good comedies, and good comediographs or dramatists, and you will be delivered from State-protected institutions and routine, which only serve to stifle your national genius."

Another important opinion is that of M. FELIX DUQUESNEL, the well-known French dramatic critic and playwright, formerly the manager of the Paris Odéon. He says:—

Are State-endowed theatre favourable or detrimental to Dramatic Art?—I will not say they are detrimental, but I cannot go so far as to state that they are useful. Should the Censorship of Plays be abolished or reformed?—I see no reason for abolishing it. It is very harmless and sometimes useful. How are we to encourage the production of fine dramatic works?—Fine dramatic works require no encouragement. Their production is spontaneous.

M. AUGUSTE FILON, the clever writer on dramatic art, says:—

I fail to see the advisability of doing away with that harmless and, after all, plausible person—the examiner of plays. In any country it is well that someone should have the power to spare the public an exhibition of gross impropriety in costume, language, or moral tendencies. It is commonly asserted that public disapprobation would be a sufficient check to offenders. I should not trust too much to that. Besides, when a scandal has been produced, if only once, before two thousand spectators, is it not rather late to put a stop to it?

MR HERMAN HEIJERMANS, the Dutch playwright, author of The Good Hope, an English version of which was produced at the Imperial Theatre in April of last year, says:—

State-aided theatres are always harmful, for the State protects timid and easy art. Wherever the State or head of the State endows drama, art loses its youth, its enthusiasm, its revolutionary ideas. And evolution and revolution are as necessary to humanity as the spring to nature.

MR GORDON CRAIG gives it as his opinion that it would be best—cheapest for the State, and kindest to the nation—if the State left this matter of the art of theatre alone. An art is a very difficult matter for a State to take in hand. The most practical, the most cultured man in all England may very easily make a blunder about so delicate a matter as this.

The only answer to the queries put to the contributors to the "Symposium" which goes to "the root of the matter," is that given by Mr G. K. CHESTERTON, who writes:—"The futility of most modern reforms consists in the fact that people are trying to improve institutions without any real feeling of why those institutions are there. The theatre can only be reformed by theatrical people It is useless to ask a man to sow the seeds of a real drama if he has never felt dramatic. The drama must come from the people, like everything else."

Here we have the real "common-sense" of this whole question of the elevation of dramatic art. It is absolutely useless to endeavour to force upon the public a drama more intellectual than they desire. We do not believe for a moment that avarice is the motive power which impels our London managers. We are certain, on the contrary, that if the choice lay between making large fortunes by producing the kind of pieces for which they feel antipathy, and making a moderate income by the highest art of which they are capable, all our leading managers would choose the gratification of their own instincts in preference to the increase of their banker's balances. But Art demands sympathy and encouragement from men. The failure of a play not only affects a manager's pocket; it is a direct intimation that his fellow-countrymen do not admire the entertainment he offers to them. We can remember many instances in which failure has been the result of high aims; we cannot recall a single one in which a leading actor-manager has deliberately descended in order to make money. The love of the admiration and affection of their fellow-men is the ruling passion with all our actor-managers, and they will seek the bubble reputation even in the teeth of the Official Receiver. It is the sentimental not the financial, blow of a failure which pierces them to the heart.

The playgoing public are the only people to blame in the matter. They hold the future of the English drama in their own hands. The manager, urged by his personal ambition, is always ready to "go one better" than his patrons in the way of aspiration. But he cannot ignore them altogether. It was all very well for an author like STENDHAL to write his novels, certain of their not being appreciated for many years afterwards. An actor-manager must have his sympathy and support "paid down," otherwise he is threatened not only with pecuniary loss, but by that Insolvency of Hope which is the worst of all kinds of bankruptcy. The success, however, of Mr BEERBOHM TREE and other artistic and popular entrepreneurs shows that a manager may be an enterprising and ambitious artist, and yet maintain his position as "the admired of all admirers."

There is abundance of sensation in this new drama, which was successfully produced on Monday evening at the Alexandra Theatre, Hull. Startling situations follow one another in rapid succession, and the story unfolded is interesting from beginning to end. A young fisherman named Dave Stannard is the hero, and the first scene is the exterior of his cottage. A false charge is brought against Stannard of having received contraband goods; and Nat Wilson, a coastguard, having obtained a search warrant, visits the cottage. Dave's wife, Mary, was formerly a sweetheart of his, and she appeals to him not to report anything against her husband. Stannard, however, declares his innocence, and the men get to high words and then to blows. The fight is interrupted by the entrance of Luke Dezzard, a dealer in contraband goods. He takes up a gun and shoots Wilson. A witness of what has taken place is the fisherman's little son, Davy, and Dezzard contrives to kidnap the boy, to prevent him giving evidence. When the police appear upon the scene they discover Stannard standing by the dead body of Wilson. The evidence looks black against Stannard, as his gun is also found by the corpse. He is arrested and committed for trial on a charge of murder. He, however, succeeds in escaping, and reaches home only just in time to prevent Dezzard committing another crime—the murder of Mary Stannard, who has infuriated the desperado by refusing to accompany him abroad. The fisherman is again arrested, but eventually is able to prove his innocence. A death by violence is the fate which awaits Dezzard, and happiness once again brightens the lives of Dave Stannard and his faithful wife. Mr Frank E. Petley as Dave Stannard plays with force and conviction. Mr Melville Bickford does well as Luke Dezzard. Miss Marie Loreth scores as Mary Stannard, and Miss Ethel M. Warde wins favour as Zamora. Mr Wittie Wattie Walton as Tat Spavvin is extremely amusing, and receives excellent support from Miss Lizzie Primmer as Suzette. Special scenery has been painted for the production by the resident artist, Mr Tom Bogue. The piece is being sent on tour by Messrs Marris and Bickford.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—To prevent any future misunderstanding, I wish to point out that I have a scena upon the subject of "David Garrick," entitled The Romance and Reality of an Actor's Life. It is similar in many respects to the one Mr Leo Dryden is now working. As I offered this same scena to Mr Chas. Morton, of the Palace Theatre, and Mr Adney Payne, of the Oxford, as far back as February last, and also mentioned the details of same to several prominent people, I trust this will prevent any accusation of plagiarism, "infringement, or colourable imitation."

Yours faithfully, SYDNEY T. PEASE.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

SPECIAL TO THE ERA.

THE Garrick Theatre staff, to the number of sixty-one, will have their annual outing on Sunday. The party will leave the theatre at 9 30, and drive in three four-horse brakes to Reservoir Head, Earles Tree, Bushey, where dinner will be served. A visit will then be paid, by invitation of Mr Arthur Bourchier, to his house and grounds on Bushey Heath, where sports will take place, including a tug-of-war between various departments.

THE Alhambra working staff annual outing took place on July 10. Taking train at Liverpool-street, at 9·15 a.m., the company, numbering about seventy, including Messrs George Scott, W. H. Woodford, and Charles Wilson, proceeded to Felixstowe, where an excellently prepared luncheon awaited them at the Orwell Hotel. During the meal some complimentary speeches were made, interpersed with vocal and instrumental music, kindly arranged by the genial manager of the hotel, Mr Carl Rosinski. At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Messrs J. Lenard, George Pitts, J. H. Radford, and A. Godfrey for their arrangements. Driving and boating parties were arranged for the afternoon, and the company departed by the 7 33 train from Felixstowe after a most enjoyable day.

THE Prince of Wales's Theatre staff outing took place last Sunday. To the number of sixty-two the members drove in four-in-hand brakes and one pair-horse brake supplied by Mr Bailey. Dinner was provided at the Poll Hill Arms, near Sevenoaks. The party had an enjoyable day. The healths of Mr George Edwardes and Miss Edna May were drunk with enthusiasm. After dinner a cricket match was arranged. "Uncle" Wilks distinguished himself as wicket-keeper, and introduced some novel points. He justified his position as the "fly" man of the theatre.

A CRICKET match between Mr Rudd's Eleven and Mr W. Sheldon's Twelve, played at Poll Hill on July 10. The following is the score:—Mr W. Sheldon's Twelve.—E. Wilks, b S. Sheldon, 0; J. Bradley, st Rudd, b Craige, 1; G. Seabrook, b S. Sheldon, 0; W. Sheldon, run out, 3; J. Inglethorp, b S. Sheldon, 2; Stirling, run out, 0; Barratt, run out, 0; Sims, run out, 6; J. Cherry, b S. Sheldon, 0; H. Kemp, st Rudd, b Sheldon, 2; T. Kenwood, c Rudd, b Smiley, 0; Goodwin, not out, 1; extras, 3; total, 18. Mr Rudd's Eleven.—S. Sheldon, b W. Sheldon, 36; Fanning, b W. Sheldon, 0; Rudd, b W. Sheldon, 10; Craigie, b Seabrook, 1; Maloney, run out, 5; Gibbs, c and b Sheldon, 3; Smiley, b Seabrook, 4; Orme, b Seabrook, 0; Francis, run out, 2; S. Ball, b Sheldon, 1; Teesdale, not out, 0; extras, 3; total, 65.

THE arrangements were in the capable hands of Mr H. Kemp, secretary and treasurer; Mr T Wilks, Mr Chandellor, Mr Rudd, and Mr Lloyd, stewards. Mr W. Sheldon, master carpenter, presided at the dinner.

AT the half-yearly general meeting of the Heads of Departments, held on the 8th inst., the financial statement submitted was approved, and a copy will be supplied to all members. The sick fund shows a balance of £47 2s. 4d., the benovelent fund one of £72 8s. 6d., the general account one of £1 10s. 4½d.; total, £121 1s. 2½d. Mr C. King, property master, the Garrick Theatre, was elected a trustee in place of Mr H. Skelley, deceased.

THE Alhambra Staff Sick Fund shows a balance of £184 6s. 5d. to June 30 During the past quarter no sick pay was called for, a phenomenon which has not occurred for many years. Mr George Montgomery, who has held the office of secretary for the past five years, is to be congratulated. Mr A. Godfrey is treasurer, and Messrs A. Parrott and F. Wilson auditors.

WITH reference to the distribution of the Dramatic and Musical Fund, Mr Edward Terry wrote as follows to Mr Wm. Johnson, in reply to a request that he would receive the deputation that waited on Mr Tree, and was reported by us on the 12th inst.:—

"Dear Sir,—Please excuse delay in answering yours of the 4th inst. I would willingly have received a deputation, but I am quite unable to spare the time.

"With regard to The Era cutting, my suggested distribution is correctly reported, but the operatives, who are members of Dramatic and Musical Fund, are best able to judge which operative society should participate in the proposed division, and I know the trustees would acquiesce in their decision. I have read your rules, which are admirable for the purpose; but I should like you kindly to tell me whether your benevolent fund benefits are limited to subscribers to your society—in short, have you ever given money to a non-member?

"Yours sincerely, EDWARD TERRY.
"Terry's Theatre, July 11th."

The following reply was sent to this letter:—

"Dear Sir,—We have to thank you for your letter of the 11th inst., received to-day, and regret that you are unable to receive our deputation with reference to the distribution of the Dramatic and Musical Fund. We should be glad to arrange for the deputation to wait on the committee of the Musical and Dramatic Fund if a meeting can be arranged.

"With reference to the operatives who are members of the Dramatic and Musical Fund, we would point out that some of them are members of the General Theatrical Sick and Benevolent Fund, which is one of the societies named for participation; such members would naturally and not unreasonably give preference to the society of which they are members.

"This society only assists those of its members who subscribe to its benevolent fund. It does not help those members or non-members who do not subscribe to the benevolent fund. We do not know any society which gives grants from any of its funds to non-members.

"We are aware that the Dramatic and Musical Fund had formerly an open fund—a benevolent or charity fund—but it was the only case of its kind within our knowledge.

"You, sir, with your wide knowledge and long experience of theatrical funds will, we are sure, agree that it is of the greatest importance to induce members of the profession to subscribe to funds established to aid them in time of need. No funds could long exist which were open to those who neglected to subscribe to such funds. Our members are only required to pay one shilling per year to the benevolent fund, and they must be clear on the books before they are entitled to claim assistance from that fund; but we augment their contributions by the co-operation of all the members in promoting concerts, &c.

"We beg to refer you to the statement made to Mr Tree—that if there be no objection to giving a portion of the Dramatic and Musical Funds to our sick and benevolent funds we would undertake to use the funds entrusted to us as an open fund or the nucleus of a national sick and benevolent fund, designed to be self-supporting, and open only to subscribing members. We think all experience in such matters is against an open fund; but if it were a condition of the gift that such funds should be available to any member of the working staff, we would suggest that it would be difficult to prevent imposition unless the funds were administered by trustees who were personally in a position to judge, whose judgment could be trusted, and who were assisted by an organisation such as this.

"In conclusion, we beg to point out that the General Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Society does not help non-members; that it has only about 140 members. On the other hand, this society has about 800 members in London, and includes among its members almost all the representative men connected with the West-end theatres and music halls.

"Trusting you may be able to give our views and facts your further consideration, we beg to remain, Yours respectfully,

"Signed JAMES CULLEN, President.
"G. H. DYBALL, Vice-President.
"WM. JOHNSON, General Secretary.

ON Sunday last the staff of the Empire Music Hall, Birmingham, held their annual outing, which was very much enjoyed by those present. Snow-hill Station was left at 9 0 a.m. for the journey to Stratford, where char-à-bancs were in waiting to convey the party to Bidford. A lovely drive through Shakespeare's country served to give a good appetite for the dinner, which was capably served at the White Lion. Boating and fishing were indulged in, and a start was made for home about 7 0, Birmingham being again reached at 9 0.

BESIDES the members of the staff the following were also present:—Mr and Mrs M'Manus, Mr and Mrs Foster (Bordesley Palace), Mr Lester Collingwood (Alexandra Theatre), Mr, Mrs, Miss and Master Bushell (Gaiety Theatre), Mr and Master Wallis, Professor Hubbard, Mr and Mrs Percy Krone (Miss Florrie Forde), Mr and Mrs Hill, Mr and Mrs Feltham, &c. "Success to the Birmingham Empire" was proposed by Mr Lester Collingwood, to which Mr Matcham suitably replied.

AN interesting memento of the late Lyceum Theatre has found its way to the south-east of the metropolis and is in the possession of Mr Philip Sheridan, the chief electrician of the Crown Theatre, Peckham. The relic in question consists of the identical music stand that was fixed in a prominent position in the centre of the footlights for the use of the musical director, from behind which Miss Ellen Terry and Sir Henry Irving have delighted the Lyceum audiences for so many years. Mr Lionel Belmore, who was assistant stage-manager at the Lyceum, has given Mr Sheridan the following list of names of those who, amongst others, have directed the celebrated Lyceum orchestra from this stand:—The late Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Dr. Villiers Stanford, Meredith Ball, the late François Cellier, Hamilton Clark, Edward Jones, Robbins (or Reubens), and Raymond Roze, &c. The stand is in the shape of a lyre. Mr Sheridan came on it by accident, whilst rambling through the yard of a local "housebreaker."

THE stage staff of the Crown Theatre, Peckham, will hold their sixth annual outing on Sunday, Aug. 7, at Margate, where the headquarters will be Mr Miles' celebrated Crown Hotel. The arrangements are in the hands of Mr Philip Sheridan, electrician, who, with Vice-president Mr Master Carpenter Wade and Stewards Morgan, Buck, and Blakey, will see that everything is in order.

ON Sunday last the staff of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, journeyed to the pretty seaside resort, Sutton-on-Sea, for their annual picnic. The weather was of an ideal nature for such an event, there being brilliant sunshine all day, the heat being pleasantly tempered by a cool sea breeze. In such conditions a most enjoyable time was spent, the forms of amusement indulged in being many and varied. The party were accompanied by Mr J. H. Curry (managing-director), Mrs Curry, and Mr Sydney Tolfree (assistant-manager).

The Grand Theatre and the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Derby, have just closed their doors for a short summer vacation. Mr T. Edwards, the popular proprietor of both establishments, recently entertained the regular staff at each place of amusement to an excursion to Dovedale. Invitations were also extended to the wives of the employees, and the party, which numbered seventy-five, assembled outside the Royal Hotel shortly after eight o'clock, where five of Mr W. Freeman's brakes were in attendance to convey them to the famous resort. The weather was of the most summer-like description; in fact, if anything, the heat was just a little too great, though the drive out was exceedingly pleasant. After a short stay at Ashbourne, Dovedale was reached at about half-past eleven, and at noon an excellent luncheon was partaken of at the Peveril of the Peak Hotel. After the meal the party made for the dale, which just now is to be seen at its very best. Some of the more energetic of the company ascended Thorpe Cloud whilst others wandered quietly up the dale, and greatly enjoyed the magnificent scenery. The company reassembled at the Peveril at half-past four for dinner. At the conclusion of the repast Mr C. Denley, the manager of the Theatre, referred to the excellent feeling that existed between Mr Edwardes and the whole of the members of the staff at the theatre, and on behalf of the theatre staff presented to Mr Edwardes a beautifully illuminated address. It was enclosed in a handsome gilt frame, and recounted some of the many acts of kindness Mr Edwardes had done to his employees. Mr H. Taylor, the manager of the Palace Theatre of Varieties, briefly seconded the proposition, which was agreed to with much enthusiasm. Mr Edwardes, in replying, heartily thanked the staff.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

"THE IDOL OF KANO."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—My attention has been called to a par in The Era of July 2, to the effect that the romantic light opera The Idol of Kano, produced at the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, last April, is from the pen of Mr Frank G. Bayley. Mr Bayley was principal comedian and stage-manager. Mr T. P. Arkell composed the music, and I wrote the "book."

Yours faithfully, WILL F. HEWER.
Dudgrove, Fairford, Glos., July 12.

IN the Bankruptcy Court, on Wednesday, before Mr G. W. Chapman, was held the first meeting of creditors under the failure of Oscar Lotinga, a music hall artist and actor, professionally known as Oscar Luck. It appeared that debtor had, during the last twelve years, been associated with the Six Brothers Luck. He estimated his liabilities at between £500 and £600, and attributed his present position to loss in connection with a cinématograph exhibition with which he toured for a short period. The case was left in the hands of the official receiver.

IT should be stated that in addition to the amounts subscribed for the late Jean Stanley published last week the M.H.B.F. granted him £5 on May 12 last, and on June 9 voted £3 to his widow.

AT the City Varieties, Leeds, this week Charlene, expert juggler, gives a remarkably clever show; Gerald Mount is exceedingly popular with mimicry; and Coram, a smart ventriloquist, appears with success. Sadie Simpson is a coon artiste with a good style; Tom E. Hughes and Dion Wade, comedians, both please; and excellent entertainment is supplied by Keith and Merson, acrobatic comedians, and the Haywards, in their speciality act.

PASTORAL PLAY AT LEICESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It is rarely that the public of Leicester have had the opportunity of witnessing so complete a production of a pastoral play as that given by Mr Philip Sanders and the capable combination of ladies and gentlemen that he has gathered around him, which includes Miss Mabel Moore and several members of Mr F. R. Benson's company. Mr Philip Sanders, who is the son of the Rev. Canon Sanders, the vicar of St. Martin's Church, Leicester, is also a member of Mr Benson's company, and is to be heartily congratulated on the success that has crowned his efforts. Shakespeare's delightful comedy Twelfth Night was selected for presentation in the grounds of Mayfield, Stoneygate. It is hardly necessary to explain the plot, or to point out the beauties of this famous comedy, as everyone has read of the ideal of young love, which is brought out so strongly by contrast with the doings of Sir Toby and his friends. But perhaps a word of explanation is necessary with regard to the representation of the comedy. The play presents certain difficulties to the "pastoral" performer, as one or two of the happiest bits of comedy take place within the limit of four walls. Mr Philip Sanders, in his adaptation of the comedy as a pastoral play, has been very successful in his work, and not wishing to lose these fragments of comedy, has endeavoured to present the play as nearly as possible in its entirety, thereby sacrificing none of its beauty and materially adding to the humour of the play as a pastoral production.

The various parts were well played, but Miss Mabel Moore must be singled out for her delightful rendering of Viola, which was in every way a most successful portrayal. Mr Philip Sanders made an ideal Sir Toby Belch, his performance being distinctly interesting. Mr B. A. Pittar played Orsino with a thoroughness and cleverness deserving of all praise. Mr G. F. Hannam Clarke was an excellent Clown, and Mr E. H. Hincks was also very good as Fabian. Miss Ethel Hincks deserved praise for her capital embodiment of Olivia, and Miss Ethel White to be congratulated on her singing. Both Mr George Tolier as Sir Andrew Aguecheek and A. H. Paget as Malvolio gave admirable renderings of their respective parts. The settings to the songs were used by kind permission of Mr H. Beerbohm Tree. The orchestra, numbering twenty-two performers, was under the conductorship of Mr Vincent Dearden, and Mr Philip Stanhope stage-managed with success. The costumes were supplied by C. and N. May, of London. The limelight was by Mr Rayson, of Bioscope fame. The proceeds of the five performances are to be devoted to a charitable purpose.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

MR HERBERT CAMPBELL'S friends and admirers will deeply regret to hear that he is seriously ill. Last week, while stepping into his carriage, the horse started, and he fell and hurt his leg. The injured limb became very much inflamed, and erysipelas set in. The invalid took to his bed, and was progressing favourably until Tuesday about midday, when he had a paralytic seizure. He remained unconscious until Wednesday, but on Thursday a slight improvement set in, and the doctors have some hope of his recovery. The seriousness of the situation is emphasised by a muffled knocker and a straw-strewn roadway. We all wish the popular comedian a speedy recovery.

IT is satisfactory to find that it is now becoming quite the fashion to allow English musicians to direct orchestras in London theatres and music halls. This was scarcely the case a few years since, when a native born conductor was rigidly ignored, and had to give place to Herr Ruffelherren or M. Jacques Portebaton. Even in minor theatres the foreigner ousted the Britisher. But Messieurs the managers and directors of amusement enterprises ont changé tout cela. Mr Charles Morton has always had an excellent band at the Palace Theatre, and it has invariably been directed by an Englishman; Mr Herbert Clark has succeeded M. Leopold Wenzel at the Empire; M. Georges Jacobi's resignation a few years since at the Alhambra let in Mr George Byng; and now we hear that Mr Walter Slaughter, the composer of Marjorie, has been appointed to the New Coliseum, wherein a very special feature will be made of the orchestra.

MR SLAUGHTER is an excellent selection, as before he became musical-director at many of our most important West-end theatres he gained most valuable experience in the orchestra of the South London Palace, where he wrote the music of several ballets, produced by Mr and Mrs Poole in the early eighties. He was quite a youngster then, and his energy was inexhaustible. "The Dear Homeland" and "Speed on," two of Mr Slaughter's most successful songs, must have brought him a small fortune, but their publication was in the halcyon period of unpiratical days. The popular composer married a clever solo dancer—one of the Lauri family, who retired on her marriage.

AMONG the earliest engagements at the Coliseum are Miss Madge Lessing, the American comedienne, who delighted us as Violet Grey in the revival of The Belle of New York at the Adelphi, when it was called the New Century. How truly demure and pretty, too, was the fair Madge as Eliza, in All on Account of Eliza, at the Shaftesbury Theatre in April, 1902. Miss Sylvia Sablanc is another of Mr Stoll's variety recruits, and she will be remembered for her happy impersonation of Josephine in The Medal and the Maid, at the Lyric in April, 1903. Mr Eugene Stratton and Mr R. A. Roberts are more familiar names to our variety readers, and need no introduction.

MISS MABIE DAINTON, who has resigned her part in Sergeant Brue, will be seen again shortly on the variety stage, where she first captured the favour of Londoners as a mimic. She made a fugitive appearance before she was grown up in an unsuccessful production at the now defunct Opera Comique, but really commenced her theatrical career in the States, returning on Feb. 21, 1901, to assist at the opening of the Apollo Theatre in the part of Paquita, in The Belle of Bohemia, which, however, failed to attract. Her success in the part of Mrs Pineapple, in the long run of The Chinese Honeymoon at the Strand Theatre, is well within the recollection of our readers. Miss Dainton has hereditary ability, her mother being Miss Jenny Dawson, a favourite burlesque actress.

MR HAL FORDE, who is now at the London Pavilion exciting everyone's envy with a cool-looking evening dress costume of white linen, made a most successful appearance last Christmas as the Duke of Brum in Mr H. E. Moss's production of The Golden Princess and the Elephant Hunters at the Hippodrome, and will return there next Christmas. Mr Forde is also booked for the London Pavilion until 1908. He has in preparation an excellent song, with the attractive title of "My Lady Nicotine," which is founded on the celebrated picture of that name.

WHY should not lady artistes be allowed to enter as jockeys in the Donkey Derby at the Music Hall Sports? is the question asked by Miss Rose Winstanley. She had been at immense pains and considerable expense to train her donkey Lily for the event, and sent in her entry form, properly filled up, with the requisite fee. After a delay of over a fortnight the form and fee were returned, the applicant being advised that she was not eligible. Miss Winstanley feels confident that there would e many lady artistes enter next year if they were allowed to compete, and she is prepared to make a match with her own animal over the course at the Herne-hill grounds for the sum of £25 or upwards.

THE lease of the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, and the valuable fully licensed premises known as the Britannia Tavern are to be offered at the Mart on Friday next, at one o'clock, by Messrs Herring, Son, and Daw. The theatre, which has seating accommodation for about 2,500 people, has recently been handsomely redecorated at a very great outlay, and is lighted throughout by electricity. Modern luxury is reflected in pile Axminster carpets, lift-up seat armchairs covered with crimson plush in the stalls, and upholstered pit seats. The stage is one of the largest in London. The whole property is held under a lease.

FRIENDS of Mr Thos. J. Noble, late manager of the Bedford and the Ealing Theatre, who is now in charge of the Alhambra Theatre box-office, will hear with regret of the sad loss of his mother, who passed away peacefully at two o'clock on Thursday. Just prior to her death she received the intelligence of her son Charles S. Noble's election as Member of Parliament for Lake County, Florida, U.S.A.

MISS JESSIE LONNEN AND MISS NELLIE LONNEN, the two young daughters of the late Mr E. J. Lonnen, the well-known Gaiety comedian, who since the death of their father have been fulfilling engagements at the Vaudeville, in Blue Bell in Fairyland, Quality Street, and The Cherry Girl, have decided to try the variety stage. By way of experiment, they gave on Wednesday evening as an extra turn at the Brixton Empress a new song, "The King's Navee," in midshipmen's uniform, and a new Mexican dance "Navato," also in suitable costume. In both efforts they acquitted themselves admirably; and at the end of the dance, which caught on immediately, they were applauded to the echo, the audience being obviously disappointed that time did not permit of an encore.

WE regret to hear of the death of the wife of Mr Harry King Lloyd, son of Arthur Lloyd, who passed peacefully away at Brompton Hospital on Friday morning. The deceased lady had performed with her husband in duologues for the last five years, and will be greatly missed. Mr Lloyd will have the sympathy of his brother and sister artistes in his sad bereavement.

GEORGES HACKENSCHMIDT, the champion wrestler of the world, is specially engaged to appear for two weeks at the Tivoli. He will make his first appearance there since his recent victory over Jenkins at the Albert Hall on Monday, when he will be opposed by some of the chief wrestlers of the day

IF extensive and attractive advertising counts for anything, the new theatre of varieties, known as the Ardwick-green Empire, Manchester, should have crowded houses on the opening night, Monday next, if not the whole week. The initial programme includes, besides several popular and strong turns, that magnet, Fred Karno's Saturday to Monday sketch, with Fred Kitchen in the cast. The building has been executed under the direction and from designs of Mr Frank Matcham, at a cost of £45,000, and every comfort has been provided for its patrons. With Mr Oswald Stoll as the managing-director and Mr Will Collins as acting-manager, Manchester is in for a good thing.

"LORD" GEO. AYTOUN, the variety agent, is now on his annual holiday, in company with the Scottish Barnum, Mr Ernest Sheldon, in the Lake District. He is walking, biking, fishing, boating, hooking, and booking all kinds of talent—perch performers, cod acrobats, salmon cyclists, sole tumblers, eel contortionists, flat comedians, fly comic singers, reel dancers, floundering serios, and Music Hall Sport winners.

MR PEARCE BUTLER is on a flying visit to Dublin to make arrangements for a Continental circus to open there in the Rotunda Gardens. He leaves Dublin this evening, arrives in London on Sunday, and proceeds to Lowestoft to undertake the management of Mr Geo. Gilbert's Hippodrome, which is to be opened on Mr Gilbert's usual elaborate scale immediately.

PROF. TED HEATON, the celebrated diver and swimming expert, who is paying a return visit to the Central Pier, Morecambe, by his promptitude averted on Monday evening what might have been a fatal drowning accident. A young man named Cryer, a visitor, of 25, Robertshaw-street, Bingley, who was watching Mr Heaton's preparations for diving, stood up on the railings, and, becoming faint, fell over into the water. Professor Heaton at once dived after him and rescued him in an exhausted condition.

THE Hastings Hippodrome will be reopened on Monday, by the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Hastings, Syndicate. Mr Harold Penney is appointed the general manager. The new staff will number many of those under the old management. Mr Walter Denton will again conduct the orchestra.

THE Birmingham Empire annual staff outing took place at Bidford-on-Avon last Sunday, when it was found that Mr A. W. Matcham, the well-known resident manager and treasurer of the Empire, had made every provision for the enjoyment of his party. Dinner was provided at the White Lion, and the usual toasts were given, after which Cleeve Mill and other interesting spots were visited. Fishing, boating, &c., were indulged in, among those present being Mr Lester Collingwood, Mr and Mrs Bushell, Mr and Mrs Foster, Mr and Mrs Macmanus, Mr C. Price, Mr Bert Wilson, Mr J. H. Whittaker (who motored), Miss Florrie Forde, the Two Bostons, J. Hubbard, and many others.

THE removal of an entire block of buildings opposite the main entrance of the Grand Music Hall, Sheffield, has brought this prosperous hall quite to the front, and it now occupies a commanding position in what, when the Corporation's schemes are materialised, will be one of the finest squares in the city. To be in keeping with the altered state of Westbar, the Grand, under the direction of the energetic and Napoleonic Mr Burns, has been cleaned, renovated, and entirely redecorated, inside and out.

THE name "Grand," electrically displayed in big letters along the top of the building, imparts an air of gaiety to the altered and improved district which was once the centre of the Sheffield amusement world. Old pros. will remember the famous Casino Theatre, music hall, picture gallery, and roof ballroom; and what old-timer doesn't remember with affection the famous Old Tankard, where the great George Leybourne made his last appearance in Sheffield in 1884, "Squint" Milner's Star Varieties, Sladen's, the London, where Pat Feeney and Vance were favourites, and the Gaiety. There is a great future in store for this part of the town, thanks to municipal enterprise.

THE many friends of Mr Johnny Thornborrow, the genial little manager of the Empire, Middlesbrough, will regret to learn that he has been seriously indisposed of late. A week ago he was taken suddenly ill with internal bleeding, and had to take to his bed. We are glad to be able to state that he is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

THE Empire, Brighton, Limited, has been formed with a capital of £30,000 in 6,000 shares of £5 each, of which 5,000 are now offered for subscription at par. The company, says the prospectus, has been formed for the purpose of acquiring the well-known substantial and magnificent Empire Theatre of Varieties, Brighton, together with the licenses, furniture, fittings, plant, scenery, and effects, and for further improving and carrying on the same. The property, which has been fully licensed for many years for music, dancing, and dramatic performances, and also for the sale of wines, spirits, beers, &c., is situated in the centre of the town, having an important frontage to New-road, with additional entrance at rear in Bond-street. The premises are freehold, with exception of a small portion at rear, which is held on lease having about forty-eight years unexpired at rentals amounting to £105 per annum. The theatre was rebuilt in 1892 at a cost of over £17,000.

MR EUSTACE JAY, the enterprising manager of the Palace Croydon, has been organising a singing contest at that popular house, which came off on Friday. For the best imitation of Mr Sam Mayo prizes of a guinea, half a guinea, and five shillings were offered, and the successful candidates were to be invited to appear to-night. The respective claims were to be decided by a plebiscite of the audience, a voting-paper being supplied to each patron on admission.

THE next meeting of the Haverstock Trotting Club is fixed for Thursday next at the usual rendezvous, Wembley Park. Special interest attaches to the trials which are to be held to lower the records of a mile by a single horse and pair of horses. There will be an open handicap, with £70 in prizes. A military band will be in attendance.

A YOUNG circus performer named Louis Gardiner, who broke his back while performing in London, recently arrived in New York from England. The patient is a native of Milwaukee, where he is now being taken. Mr Pierpont Morgan witnessed the accident, and forthwith undertook to pay all the unfortunate man's expenses. A nurse engaged by the financier attended Gardiner during the voyage. Mr Pierpont Morgan's private secretary met his protégé, and superintended the arrangements for his safe transport home.

MR DAN RANDALL'S concert party on the common at Littlehampton has been delighting numberless people during the season, and it seems a pity that a steam roundabout should be allowed to pitch so near the entertainers, the organ interfering with the enjoyment of visitors who have paid to hear the concert.

MR TOM HOLMES (Oliver and Holmes) and Mr John E. Nash (husband of Lil Hawthorne) had a fine day's sport on Loch Lomond on Wednesday, 6th inst. Between them they landed 15lbs. trout. They also caught some fine sea trout, Mr Holmes landing a beauty weighing 4lb. They were all caught with the fly.

MR AND MRS G. H. CHIRGWIN were hurrying to catch the train to Brighton, where they are now staying, when the lady missed her purse, which contained £2 10s. and a diamond stud, valued at £100. Mr Chirgwin has offered a reward of £10 for the recovery of the gem.

MR TOM CRAVEN, who holds an enviable pantomime record, returns to the Grand, Islington, at Christmas, to play one of the robbers, in The Babes. It will be remembered that three Christmases ago Mr Craven played the Baron to Harry Randall's Page, in Cinderella. Mr Craven has played in no less than five London pantomimes, to say nothing of the leading provincial cities.

CAICEDO, who pirouettes and somersaults on a wire as easily as the ordinary acrobat does on terra firma, still holds his position at the top of the bill at the London Hippodrome, where his daring performances have been given since May. He visits Mr Barrasford's Paris Alhambra at the termination of his London engagement.

MANY Londoners who laughed heartily at the vagaries of the Idle Apprentice in the Marlborough Theatre's first pantomime, have hastened during the week to the Oxford to renew aquaintance with Mr Tom Foy, who, in the laughable sketch, A Yorkshire Lad in London, has caused screams of merriment nightly, as the tyke "from Sowerby Brig, near Halifax."

MR AND MRS CHARLES BECHAM and family are enjoying a much-needed holiday at Margate, and Mr Wheeler is acting lieutenant in charge of the Paragon. Mr Fred Miller will be leaving town to-day for his summer holiday.

MR GUS ELEN, who has been having an excellent time at Fordingbridge, where he has spent his holiday, returns on Monday to the Metropolitan, at which establishment he is an enormous favourite.

MR FRANK GLENISTER, with Mrs Glenister (Miss Rosa Glenn) and the children, is having a very nice quiet time in his bungalow up the river, where the happy hours are passed in boating, fishing, and bathing. The popular Frank has always a welcome for thirsty friends, and we will therefore not advertise the exact spot where he is to be found during the next week. Mr William Cobbett is looking after things at the London Pavilion during his absence.

MR GEORGE GRAY has in active preparation a new and elaborate sketch production in four scenes, entitled Parson Grey, V.C. It has already been produced for copyright purposes, and will shortly be submitted to a London audience.

WE are sorry to state that after Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie's engagement at the Empire, Birmingham, last week, she was taken seriously ill, and was unable to appear at the Camberwell Palace this week. We wish the clever lady a speedy recovery.

MR ALBERT WHIPP (of the Haydn Quartet) has this week accepted from Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn a specially written musical piece of Spanish interest, entitled Captured by Brigands. This piece is now in active preparation for production at an early date, and Londoners will have an opportunity of "sampling" the novelty in the near future, as after a short provincial tour with it the Haydn Quartet will produce it at some of the principal "variety" theatres in the metropolis.

THE Haytors have just returned from a highly successful tour of South Africa, under the Hyman Syndicate. Though too late for the Music Hall Sports, ship sports on the R.M.S. Saxon were held on the same day, in which they won three events; and, not unmindful of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, a concert was given the same evening on board, at which was collected a sum of £12, a portion of which will be given to the Home Fund. They speak highly of the latest addition to the British Empire.

MR AIF. AUBYN'S song, entitled "Ma little brown gal," which was so successful in the Grand Theatre pantomime, Croydon, and subsequently on the halls, has been secured by Messrs Reeder and Walsh for publication. It is by those up-to-date song writers, Messrs Alfred J. Lawrance and Harry Gifford.

THESE gentlemen are also responsible for the charming song, entitled "Lazy Maisie," now being sung with such success by G. H. Elliott. This number has been purchased for publication by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, and owing to its success, Mr Elliott, who is now at the Tivoli, has secured another from the same authors, entitled "Ma Havannah Queen," which he is producing immediately.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING has been graciously pleased to accept a copy of Mr Thomas Worth's patriotic song, "Englishmen are Englishmen." Mr Worth, a well-known man in Brighton, has published the song with the firm of Messrs Francis and Day.

THE 363rd meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Fred Neiman presiding. The secretary reported that fourteen new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,352. The hon. treasurer's financial statement for June was submitted, and on the proposition of Mr Joe Lavender, seconded by Mr J. P. Dane, was passed as read.

A COMPLIMENTARY matinée benefit will be given at the Royal shortly to Mr Ernest Abbott, who was recently acting-manager at the Cambridge, and was connected with the Holborn variety house during Mr Harry Lundy's management.

THE Victoria, Broughton, Limited, is now closed for alteration and redecoration, and will reopen as a music hall on Aug. 1, with Mr C. A. Wilkes as managing-director. Mr C. S. Wilkes, his son, and a brother of Mr Arthur B. Wilkes of the Tivoli, Manchester, will take up the post of manager. Mr C. S. Wilkes was at one time the manager of the Cambridge, in which position he succeeded Mr A. E. Oliver.

AT the Leicester Borough Police-court, on Monday morning, before Sir Thomas Wright and other magistrates, Mr Harding, solicitor, renewed his application on behalf of Mr Restall, late licensee of the Theatre Royal, Windsor, for a music and liquor licence for the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Wharf-street, Leicester. In support of this Mr Harding pointed out that his clients had been taken quite by surprise by the suggestion that the licence should be surrendered. Mr Restall was quite willing to close the bars inside the building, and to isolate the vaults altogether; but he was not, however, willing to sacrifice this licence to put money into the pockets of the owners of public-houses near at hand. A few years ago the house was entirely rebuilt, with the sanction of the Bench, and a large amount of money spent upon it. It was suitable for no other purpose than that of a music hall. There had been no misconduct on the part of the owner, but he had had the misfortune to have the place unoccupied for two years. Superintendent Hawkins said since the music hall had been closed Wharf-street "was like a little heaven." The chairman (Sir Thomas Wright) said the magistrates would adjourn the matter for another week, in order that two magistrates who sat upon the Licensing Bench might have an opportunity of attending.

MR LEONARD BARRY, who is this week playing The Moochers' Walk at the Holloway Empire for the third time, is now in his 150th consecutive week with this most successful scena, but owing to his bookings for his new production The Soldiers' Promenade he is sending out a No. 2 company with The Moochers' Walk.

O'GUST, who has had the honour of performing before the King, has been engaged by Mr Tom Barrasford for the Alhambra, Paris, on Aug. 1, for one month, after which he returns to fulfil long-standing engagements in the British Isles.

MR LOUIS W. BRADFIELD, the well-known singing comedian, starts a short engagement on Monday at the Empire, where he will introduce a burlesque of that popular ditty "Sammy," entitled "Sally in the pit," words and music by Mr Paul Rubens. Mr Bradfield will be supported by a chorus of ladies, twenty-four in number, and will also sing "Mr Mosenstein," Harry Gordon's song in The Girl from Kay's. Mr Bradfield enjoys favouritism both on the theatrical and variety boards, as his appearances at the London Pavilion and the Palace Theatre have testified. Miss Marguerite Cornille, who also appears at the Empire on Monday, will give among other songs a topical one entitled "The Little Brown Man of Japan."

THE second annual outing of the Chelsea Palace on Sunday was marked by glorious weather, and high spirits reigned supreme among the happy party starting for a day at Slough. It was no slough of despond; for the company on arrival dined most sumptuously at the Dolphin Hotel, the caterer being Mr W. Millard. The parable of good-fellowship and loyalty was taken up by Mr Edward Swanborough, who proposed "The King and the Royal Family" and "Mr Henri Gros and his co-directors," his eloquent sentences being received with great enthusiasm. The toasts of "The Staff" and "The Orchestra" were acknowledged in modest terms by Mr Harry Bawn and Miss Angelo Asher, who filled the vice-chairs. A beautiful drive to Burnham Beeches followed the dinner, and the party returned to Slough to tea at 5·30. Waterloo was reached about 10·0 o'clock The signal success of the outing was largely due to the stewards, Messrs C. Marchant, C. Reed, G. Bailey, A. Felmingham, A. Wolf, and J. Eaton, jun.

A COMMITTEE meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund Provident Society was held at York Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. Mr Frank Heath presided, and there were also present Messrs Wm. Bailey, L.C.C., C. Wainratta, Dan Thomas, W. West, and W. Brisco. The secretary (Mr R. T. Baines) read a letter from Mr W. Bailey resigning the position of hon. treasurer, and explaining that, acting under medical advice, he was giving up all the work he possibly could. He added that he was very sorry to sever his long official connection with the Fund. The resignation was received with much regret, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr Bailey (who had left the meeting) thanking him for the valuable services he had for so many years rendered the society.

ON the motion of Mr Wainratta, seconded by Mr Dan Thomas, Mr Frank Heath was elected hon. treasurer in the place of Mr Bailey. This being the first meeting of the committee since the death of Mr Herbert Sprake, who was for several years one of the trustees of the Fund, a vote of condolence with the two sons of the deceased gentleman was passed, on the motion of Mr Pat Carey, seconded by Mr Dan Thomas. Before the meeting separated news was received of the serious illness of the president of the society (Mr Herbert Campbell), and the secretary was requested to convey to Mrs Campbell the regret and sympathy of the members.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund committee will be held next Wednesday, the 20th inst., at 2 0, to appoint a trustee and for other important business.

THE directors of the Palace Theatre, Limited, desire to contradict the report that they have acquired a site in Tottenham-court-road for the purpose of erecting a music hall.

MISS ETHEL WALKER, whose refined entertainment at the piano at the recent London Chevalier recitals was so much appreciated by all lovers of the humorous, has been recruiting at Worthing during the past fortnight, and will commence her provincial tour at Hastings Hippodrome on Monday, following on to Folkestone, Southampton, and other seaside resorts.

MR JOHN D. HAMLYN, the well-known naturalist, has left for West Africa to make a collection of specimens for a private customer. His researches will extend all along the coast, and he hopes to return in October next.

ARA, ZEBRA, AND VORA, who call themselves "the Eskimos in Lapland miracles," presented at the Palace, Manchester, last week, their new show, which is quite a success. One of the Eskimos has a small parrakeet which talks in three different languages at the word of command, and answers questions.

MR PAT CAREY, who has recently visited the Rand, had many interesting conversations with Mr W. G. Eaton, the musical director of the Johannesburg Empire, who has apparently settled down as a colonist. Mr Carey will commence a five weeks' engagement at Great Yarmouth on August Bank Holiday with Mr James Chappell, this making his third season with the genial old "governor."

MR DAN LENO, who is enjoying the ozone at Folkestone, officiated last week as the auctioneer at an old English fair, and kept his audience in roars of laughter by the humour of his remarks. No arrangements have been made for Mr. Leno's appearance at the theatres during the autumn, but he has a standing engagement at the London Pavilion for years ahead.

MR ARTHUR ROBERTS finishes his successful engagement at the Palace Theatre to-night, and opens his provincial tour on Monday at Yarmouth, afterwards visiting all the principal seaside resorts, returning to town in October. His business-manager is Mr Charles F. J. Watts.

MR TOM STUART has had to cancel his engagements for the past two weeks owing to blood poisoning in the arm, but hopes to resume work on Monday at the Queen's Palace, Rhyl.

MR J. J. FRUIN, secretary of the Music Hall Home, tenders the sincere thanks of the committee to Miss Vulcana (Atlas and Vulcana) for the further sum of £3 10s. towards that charity, the third amount collected by her on her Australian tour. Such valuable help for a good cause should be an incentive to other artistes to follow Miss Vulcana's example.

THE Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, at their weekly meeting on Tuesday, decided owing to the flourishing condition of the finances of the Association, to devote another 40gs. to charity, and have forwarded cheques for £10 10s. each to the Railway Benevolent Institution, the Railway Servants' Orphanage, the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Home Fund. It is interesting to note that since the formation of this prosperous Association, no less a sum than £711 has been distributed in charity, £178 having been given to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and an equal amount to the Music Hall Home Fund, while similar sums have been sent to the different railway charities.

THE most entertaining and realistic turn of the Britannia this week is that furnished by Mr Cliffe Berzac, who is presenting his most ingenious sketch, False Start. The sporting proclivities of the Hoxton Britons have been much exercised by realisation of a race on a real course, and the various exciting incidents have evoked thunders of applaus

"THE FELLOW THAT ANNA KISSED" is the name of a new sketch to be produced at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, this evening. The central figure will be an "Anarchist," and the title is a playful phonetic reproduction of this word. Mr C. V. Rolfe is the author.

MR HARRY ATKINSON, who has been in this country quite long enough to make us forget that he is known as the Australian Orpheus, sails for the Antipodes on Saturday next, in order to fulfil a tour of twelve months. Mr Atkinson made his first important appearance on the variety stage in this country at the Trocadero.

MR R. H. DOUGLASS, who is giving his latest humorous monologue at the Empire, has been on the stage nearly all his life, and can tell any number of good stories and amusing experiences. Last Christmas he appeared in the pantomime at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, as the Dame, playing the part of a woman for the first time, and made such a hit that he intends to act Dames as long as his engagement with Mr Robert Arthur continues, and that is for the next four years, making eleven years under one management. He will soon be starting for a tour in South Africa that will prevent him—as it is to be followed by a Moss and Thornton tour—from reappearing at the Empire until 1906, when he is booked for three months.

HERE are a couple of Mr Douglass's pantomime yarns. A certain "pro." visited a "grand Christmas production" on the outskirts of Birmingham. It was so frightfully bad that he went to the acting-manager in the middle of the performance and demanded his card back! In another pantomime in the north of England there was an elaborate hunting scene in a wood, in which an intelligent fox-terrier, most carefully made up as a fox, ran across the stage with the hounds after him in full cry. On the first night, directly the "fox" made his entrance, he took umbrage for some unaccountable reason at the energetic movements of the conductor of the orchestra, and instead of scampering across the wood ran down to the footlights and commenced to bark furiously. To say the people shrieked feebly expresses the "fox's" reception, but when the hounds presently appeared, and he calmly joined them and trotted away in their company, the actors realised that if the success of a pantomime artist is shown by the loudness of the audience's laughter, Dan Leno himself never made such a hit as their barking "fox."

THE following anecdote shows "Dick" Douglass's dry humour. Some years ago, when he was playing the small part of the Captain in Robinson Crusoe, a rehearsal was called after the first night Owing to the pantomime being far too lengthy, several cuts were made, Mr Douglass being the chief sufferer. Being rather sensitive, he took this drastic treatment greatly to heart. At the end of the rehearsal the proprietor, who was his own stage-manager, asked all the comedians for suggestions to print on small hand-bills to be distributed outside the theatre. One comedian thought that the title of his song would be most attractive and another proposed the catch-phrase he was using; but Mr Douglass quietly took up a book of the words which contained photographs of all the artistes in the pantomime. Cutting out a picture of himself and one of the proprietor he placed them side by side on a piece of notepaper and handed it round, having written beneath "The Captain and his cutter."

MISS MARY COLLETTE, who is the daughter of Mr Charles Collette, and niece of Lady Bancroft—her mother's maiden name was Miss Blanche Wilton—is an exceptionally good pianiste, having studied when she was a very young girl under Miss Mathilde Verne, who was a favourite pupil of the late Madame Schumann. Miss Collette also plays the banjo, sings, and is a daring cyclist and horsewoman. There is a good little story of this vivacious comedienne, in which she figures as a dramatic critic at the thoughtful age of seven. She was taken to see her father in a starring part on tour. It was evident that she did not share the general opinion of Mr Collette's performance, for she expressed the criticism to him afterwards that the play was "extremely dull," and when he said that the rest of the audience seemed to enjoy it, she crushingly added, "They were so few that I think they were afraid to hiss!"

"DIXIE," the famous plantation song, which was as popular in its day as "Jump Jim Crow," was composed by Daniel Decatur Emmett, a very well-known minstrel. As a boy he was a phenomenal fiddle player, and when his parents wanted to make him a blacksmith young Emmett objected, and, like some other famous entertainers that we might mention, joined a circus. He afterwards formed several minstrel troupes, and was a member of the Christy Minstrels. He has just died at Ohio, at an advanced age. "Dixie" brought him very little money.

THOUGH the prospects of large sketches are at the moment clouded the drama in miniature is undoubtedly flourishing, and a particularly neat specimen of it has been amusing audiences at the Bedford during the week. It is called a new and original dramatic episode in one act, and bears the title of A Daughter of Pleasure. The plot turns on the adventure of a youthful hero entrusted with the sum of £10,000, which he has to deposit in a bank for the purpose of helping its exchequer during an expected run on it. On going to an hotel he meets a former sweetheart, who has established a "past" since they last met. Foolishly enough he gives her his confidence, and Dalilah tempted by the prospect of immediate wealth, drugs him and robs him. In taking the notes from his pocket she discovers that the bank is the one in which her mother's money is invested. There is an immediate revulsion of feeling. The despairing girl with feverish haste endeavours to restore him to sensibility, and, of course, succeeds. The notes are restored, and he makes a dash for the train which is to bear him away on his mission, and the audience becomes convinced that he will be just in time.

THE principal parts are played by Mr J. G. Grahame and Miss Zerlina Harrington. The gentleman is the son of the well-known actor of that name, and will be remembered in the old Strand days as a light comedian and leading juvenile. Young Mr Grahame is following in his father's footsteps, and displays ease and naturalness in his acting. Miss Zerlina Harrington, who appears as the lady of shady reputation, is a daughter of Mr Charles Harrington, of Uncle Tom's Cabin fame, and displays a genuine dramatic grip of a part that is by no means easy to play.

MISS FANNY ROBINA'S dashing impersonation of "Claude Duval" is winning golden opinions from all sorts of people on tour, and her cultured singing of "Don't fly away, Rob n," is also adding to her reputation as a vocalist.—Miss Mildred Harcourt, who so successfully made her début at the Camberwell Palace of Varieties last week, will appear on Monday at the La Scala Theatre of Varieties, Italian Exhibition, Earl's-court. — Miss Brickwell, a daughter of Mr H. T. Brickwell, made an excellent impression at the Oxford on Saturday afternoon in her song, "If I were a man."

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr Jack Edgar, as usual, is presenting an excellent programme at the fine variety house in the Edgware-road, and there is much that is alluring in the current scheme of amusement. Both services are burlesqued—or, rather, their stage traditions are burlesqued—in the course of the evening. Douglas Jerrold's Black-Eyed Susan evidently supplies the basis of Mr Chris Davis's skit, Blue-Eyed Sarah, which has been specially written for Mr George Mozart, whose one-man dramas have for some time been a funny feature in the principal variety houses of the West. Mr Mozart rapidly sketches the various characters, who ejaculate in the nautical lingo that cleverly parodies the vocabulary common to the T. P. Cooke type of piece. Sarah is invited to slip her mainstays and throw her "grappling irons" round the hero, and the bearded pirate, the dandy captain, and the virtuous sailor are presented in the most whimsical manner possible. Amusement, too, is got out of the scenery, the supers, and the properties; and the merry piece of farcical nonsense fulfils its mission in the promotion of hearty laughter. In The Raw Recruits Tommy Atkins has what Artemus Ward used to call "larx." Drill is vexation, and the goose-step is the genesis of wild acrobatics on the part of John Leopold and company, who are responsible for the production. Tommy's sweetheart figures conspicuously; and there is a general desire to buy the redcoats' discharges on the first rumour of active service. The fun, which is commenced in the barrack yard, is continued "outside the village barracks," where fantastic tricks and knockabout business of the most hilarious kind keep the audience in one "vast substantial smile." There is one advantage in the absurdity. It is entirely destitute of plot—a very desirable condition in these days of sketch prosecutions. Much excitement is caused about midway in the programme by the appearance of Miss Gracie Grahame, who chants "Oh, Charlie, there you are," and upbraids him for his fickleness. "Charlie" was represented on the night to which we are now alluding by a white-hatted individual in the stalls, and the scene between him and the singer certainly provoked considerable hilarity. More artistic entertainment is supplied by Miss Millie Hylton, who, in a pretty boy's costume, sings of "Nancy Lee," a maiden who recks not of lovers' vows. Miss Florrie Robina has a coon song concerning Rose and the Kentucky shore, to which she does complete justice, rounding off her success with a fascinating dance. Miss Dorothy L. Clarke is also responsible for a tuneful coon song, and Miss Georgina Leonard's claims as a burlesque actress are agreeably urged. Much laughter is heard during the entertainment contributed by Rich and Rich, a duo with a fund of droll patter and an amusing song in "Jenny, my own true love." Mr Tatten Hall in his song enlarges on the value of repose, and gives a practical illustration of his belief by singing it in bed. The originality of this idea cannot very well be disputed, and Mr Hall is to be congratulated on his success. Mr R. A. Roberts, the Protean actor, occupies a conspicuous place in the bill with his famous sketch Lucinda's Elopement, which has had the longest run at the music halls of any production of a similar kind. There is no need to comment at this time of day on the young actor's excellent impersonation of Mrs Twiddles, whose humorous qualities are well preserved in spite of repetition, nor need we praise at any length the cleverness of his character acting or the celerity of his changes. Mr Austin Rudd is happy in his "policeman" song, and there is drollery in the doings of Mr J. A. Wilson, Negro comedian. A very fine set, consisting of an electrically lighted staircase that takes up the whole of the stage, is used to display the agility and grace of Nadji, who is termed the queen of hand-balancers. Her pretty face and handsome figure are much admired, but not more so than her well-executed feat of walking up and down stairs on her hands with her legs poised in the air. She adopts the topsy-turvey position very gracefully, and her success is well deserved. Other turns in the excellent bill are Mr Edgar Granville, comedian; Mr Walter Blake, an eccentric dancer; the Avrignys, Japanese jugglers; Mr Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; and Mr Victor Travers.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The liberal patronage extended to Mr J. L. Graydon's old-established and popular Drury-lane variety house is pretty evenly maintained all the year round, and the hot summer weather has little effect upon the nightly attendance. A probable explanation is that it is the custom of many of its patrons to pay the hall a weekly visit. Good judgment is always shown in the selection of the company, and the one doing duty this week is no exception to the rule. An early start is made by Miss Millie Denham, a young lady whose singing is characterised by an unusual distinctness of utterance. She opens with a ditty concerning a certain Molly, whose many charms speedily win her a sweetheart. Miss Denham's other selection, "You're my little ray of sunshine," tells of a maiden who is the only comfort of her lonely father in his declining years. A little girl in the auditorium sings the refrain, and the audience express their appreciation of this pretty number in no half-hearted fashion. Solo and Mayo, comedy artists, contribute an amusing duet, "Come along with me," in which they appear as a Frenchman and a lady. They also score in a second duet, the gentleman appearing as a Quaker, who implores his fair companion, a giddy serio, to "Repent, repent, dear sister." She responds by a high-kicking exhibition, and the Quaker becomes enamoured of the syren, so that eventually it is she who has to repeat his pious exhortation. A skilful dance by the couple is greatly applauded. Mr Fred Dunstone causes a good deal of merriment with his ditty "Pilgrims of the Night;" and Mr Frank Coyne, comedian, is fortunate in the possession of some amusing chorus songs, including "Shift up a little bit farther" and "What's the use of a pair of kilts to me?" The last-mentioned ditty is sung in the character of a window-cleaner who has donned the garb of old Gaul in order to please his lady love, a Scotch lassie. Mr Coyne also contributes another amusing song, and his success is pronounced. Stave, billed as the "Indian electric comedy artist," makes use of an elaborate stage setting to gain his effects, indulges in much patter of a more or less amusing nature, extracts melody from a huge property lion by deftly shaking its mane, tail, and legs, and plays popular airs on an electrically illuminated banjo, portraits of Kitchener, Nelson, Buller, and other famous people being at the same time shown at the back of the stage. Cruikshank is well described as "a fellow of infinite jest," his humorous wheezes, new and old, causing considerable laughter. He also gives proof of his skill as a 'cello and banjo player, besides scoring with a ballad. George Antill sings a funny parody on "Pansy Faces" and also "You are a-carrying on," concluding with a smart dance. Goggin and Davis are a couple of especially smart dancers and acrobatic comedians. They introduce a comical sword combat, and their wonderful somersaulting fully deserves the hearty applause it evokes. The Imperial Quartet are four prepossessing and clever young vocalists, who make an attractive picture in their pretty frocks and scarlet hose. They sing "Ma Gipsy Queen" with much charm, a skilful and exhausting dance which concludes their performance evoking loud plaudits. Mr R. W. Bentley has a quaint nursery rhyme song, and a grotesque appearance and style. There is plenty of interest in the clever interlude of Alexander and Hughes, musical comedians. Their instrumental selections are well rendered, and their entire show is neatly worked and particularly entertaining. The Sisters Reveni, a pair of refined and pretty duettists, give a tuneful ditty, "'Tis a love song," while their rendering of the always popular "Eileen Alannah" is listened to with close attention, and at the conclusion there is a burst of hearty applause. Cline and Clark, comedy artists, are well received, and John Marx, the modern Hercules, performs wonders in a lifting contest. Miss Dora Lyric is a pleasing comedienne; Frank Hardie and company are appearing with continued success in the military sketch entitled The Honour of the Regiment, and the Bioscope presents a series of interesting up-to-date pictures.

DUCHESS BALHAM.

A variety entertainment seems to have become quite established in favour at the handsome building which was opened and formerly known as the Balham Theatre, and the two performances a night system has also met with marked approval. The programme this week contains quite the usual number of attractive and popular turns. A great favourite is Mr Victor Travers, who has made it his business to burlesque the coon singer and song. His hair is of the most extraordinary bluish tint, and with one leg of his trousers turned up he presents a most grotesque figure, alone sufficient to evoke a burst of merriment, which is renewed when the moon begins to play tricks, to the pretended astonishment of the coon vocalist, who has thus to contend with the vagaries of the limelight man. "Have you ever seen this in a cornfield?" cries Mr Travers, and with his back to the audience he imitates the figure of a scarecrow to perfection. This hard-working comedian's devices for causing laughter are many, but they are all effective; and he is also a very nimble dancer. With these accomplishments it would be surprising if Mr Travers met with other than a most enthusiastic reception. The lady and gentleman known as Conway and Couch appear in a duologue called The Lady Next Door. A young artist, who is ambitious of becoming famous, is greatly disturbed in his work by the persistent singing and playing of the lady who resides next door; and to free himself from the nuisance he annoys her in various ways, even going so far as to throw missiles at her window. The lady, indignant at this treatment, pays a visit to her next door neighbour, and recognises him as a former lover whose letters, however, suddenly ceased. He fails to identify her, as she, being about to start on a motor ride, wears goggles, which afford an effectual disguise. The war is carried into the enemy's camp by the lady placing some sticky substance on a chair whereon the artist sits with disastrous results. He retaliates by advertising that bull dogs are required next door, and the lady is pestered by rough looking men with their canine pets. Again calling she finds the artist absent, and removing the picture he has just finished, places her own fair head inside the frame. The artist on his return recognises in "the lady next door" the girl he paid court to; and she inquires why he did not reply to her last letter. He explains that he never received it, but she avers she placed the note in the usual spot, and here it is found. The couple then are reconciled, and lovers' vows are renewed. The sketch is smartly played, and well received. The gentleman known as "Spot, the enchanting coon," is appearing here this week in his original scena, called "The Cake-Walk Craze." He has the assistance of some sixty performers, the stage being crowded with representatives of tinkers, tailors, soldiers, sailors, and other callings too numerous to mention. A cake-walk competition has also been arranged in connection with this act, and the grand finals were decided on Friday night. Amongst the ladies engaged this week is Miss Lilian Doreen, whose admirable contralto voice is heard to advantage in two songs, the most notable being a new one written and composed by Mr Kendall Robinson, entitled "Only for you, dear heart." Miss Doreen meets with a most cordial reception. The Imperial Boys' Orchestra, consisting of thirty trained musicians, give an excellent performance, one of the lads distinguishing himself as a vocalist. Clive and Clark, a dark gentleman and a fair lady, do well as coon singers and dancers; and another favourite couple are Goodfellow and Gregson, in a smart comedy act. Mark Leslie and Harry Conlin, comedians, are successful contributors, the last mentioned scoring with the ditty "I'm not going to play any more." Mr Clifford King is the manager here, and Mr H. C. Newman the acting manager. Mr Alex Humphreys has the direction of an excellent orchestra.

HANNEFORD'S circus visited Sligo on Monday and gave two performances. The four Hannefords supplied a marvellous display of horsemanship. Alvar and Alvar, with their wire-walking, were well received. Pat Fitzgerald proved himself a clever comedian, and as a juggler Senato was successful. The show is toured by Mr Fred Lewis.

A NEW "EMPIRE."

The Ardwick Green Empire, Manchester, is to be opened on Monday next, when a most attractive programme will be presented twice during the evening. This handsome edifice has been erected at a cost of about £45,000 from the designs of the well-known theatrical architect Mr Frank Matcham. The site is freehold, and is the property of the company (the Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire, Limited). Mr Oswald Stoll is the managing-director, and Mr William Collins has been appointed acting-manager. The contractor is Mr Alfred Hodkinson, of Manchester, who is to be congratulated on having erected this magnificent theatre in the short time of thirty-three weeks, and this during the winter months, when stoppages had to be made through inclement weather and short hours of labour. It is only through indefatigable exertions that it has been completed in the contract time. The elaborate decorations have been carried out by Messrs F. De Jong and Co., London, and the general effect is most striking.

The ceiling in the main entrance, situated at the corner of Ardwick-green and Hyde-road, is divided into three bays, radiating from the corners over the pay-box, which is formed in hardwood, with ornamental columns on top, supporting soffits to ceiling; arched entrances are formed, the one leading to the stalls waiting-room, and the other to the grand circle waiting-room; the ceilings and walls of the staircases and waiting-rooms are all richly decorated.

The auditorium, treated in Renaissance style, has a large coved ceiling, divided with arched panelling, filled in with artistic allegorical figure paintings, representing Arts, Music, Dancing, &c., relieved by rich ornamental work, ample provision being made for ventilation, and the electric light has been worked in conjunction with the general scheme of decoration. The box elevation, with its pilasters and pediments, is surmounted by some finely modelled figures; from the back of these pediments arches lead up to the main ceiling, from the springing of which groups of cupids blowing trumpets give the whole a very artistic appearance. The proscenium frame is in Scagliola marble, with semi-circular corners and richly designed panelling above, the centre of which is filled in with dancing cupids; the whole of the work is treated in cream and light olive green tints, relieved with gold, while the draperies, seating, and wall covering are in rich copper colour, forming a rich contrast, and giving the whole interior a noble appearance which can hardly be excelled.

Over 1,000 tip-up chairs have been supplied by the firm of Messrs Lazarus and Co., London. There are very few, if any, theatres throughout the country that contain so many. Row after row of them in parallel curves make a truly handsome display.

The handsome draperies of the proscenium, boxes, and entrances generally have been supplied from the designs of Mr Frank Matcham by Messrs Goodhall, Lamb, and Heighway, Limited, of Manchester. The material used for the proscenium and box draperies is a silk plush of a striped design relieved with satin de luxe of the new tanette colouring, and to the designs of the architect, the result being a very fine, rich effect. The fixed upholstery, which is of a most comfortable and luxurious description, has also been supplied by Goodhall, Lamb, and Heighway. The auditorium has been covered with rich and lustrous pile carpet in shaded copper colourings, and the main staircase and landings with a similar carpet in rich Turkey colourings, with massive brass stair rods and eyes. The carpets have been supplied by Messrs Cranston and Elliott. The system employed in electrically lighting the Ardwick Empire has been designed by the consulting engineer to give a maximum of comfort in the auditorium, with brilliancy of light on the stage. There are equivalent to 4,150 8-c.p. lamps installed. The auditorium lighting has also been arranged on the most up-to-date and approved lines, whereby it is impossible for any accident to put the theatre in darkness. The system provides for two entirely distinct installations in the front of the house; both installations light each of the corridors, exits, circles, &c., so that in the event of a temporary failure of one installation there would not be a complete failure of light, each installation alone being large enough for lighting purposes. This duplex system of lighting adds considerably to the initial expense when opening a theatre, but the public will find in the lighting and other departments at Ardwick that nothing has been sacrificed which would add to their safety or comfort. The fittings were specially designed by the engineer to harmonise with the scheme of decoration.

A fireproof biograph chamber is built at the back of the circle. Here permanent cables and switches are always ready for use whenever a biograph turn forms part of the entertainment. Over the roof will be found an electric sign bearing the word "Empire," formed of incandescent electric lamps. The sign is driven by an electric motor, and can be regulated to run at different speeds. The ventilation is operated by a motor-driven fan placed over the roof. The vitiated air from the auditorium is drawn up and expelled into the outer air. The stage lighting and stage switchboards are made to the consulting engineer's special theatre designs. All the lights can be regulated, by means of special fireproof resistances, from a central switchboard placed on an iron gallery above the stage. Here changes in the lighting effects are made, the lights can be changed from light to blue or red suddenly or slowly to imitate sunrises, sunsets, &c. A large number of electric limelights complete the stage installation. The contractors for the installation were Messrs Blackburn, Starling, and Co., Limited, who carried out the work to the drawing and under the supervision of Mr E. Wingfield Bowles, Victoria-street, S.W.

The heating of the theatre has received special attention, and is carried out on the "Hornet" patent rapid circulation hot water system, a novel and certain method of ensuring quick circulation and securing a higher temperature in the radiators and coils than can be obtained by the ordinary hot water systems. Large radiators are fixed in the entrances, saloons, orchestra, stalls, pit, circle, &c., and so as to avoid the cold draughts usually experienced on the raising of the curtain the stage has been treated as liberally as the auditorium, thus ensuring an equable temperature on both sides of the curtain. All the dressing-rooms are heated by pipes, and a large galvanised cylinder, also heated from the same system, gives a liberal supply of hot water to all the lavatory basins and for cleaning purposes. For the protection of the auditorium from the stage in case of fire, a fire curtain is fixed. This curtain is a large steel frame, covered on each side by stout wire-woven asbestos cloth, secured to the steel frame by hundreds of screws and bolts. The cloth is then saturated with fireproof paint. This frame slides up and down on the face of the proscenium wall in steel channels, and when raised is lowered by the slight movement of a lever fixed on the proscenium wall, and as an extra precaution in case of fire the lowering can be done from the stage door office, thus avoiding walking across the stage. Hydrants are fixed upon all floors, also upon the stage and flies, and an ample supply of buckets filled with water are fixed near each hydrant valve.

APPEAL FOR J. H. WOOD.

Mr J. H. Wood was for many years a well-known proprietor and manager of music halls in Hull, Leeds, Empire (Bow), and others, and the first to increase artists' salaries. Mr Wood was a patient in the Middlesex Hospital, London, for two years suffering from rodent ulcer, and has undergone four operations and the loss of one eye. He is now pronounced incurable, and is at the present time an inmate of the Christie Cancer Hospital, Oxford-street, Manchester. It is proposed by a few friends to raise a sum by subscriptions and a benefit to enable him to have what the doctors advise—a complete rest and change of air by the seaside. Any sums subscribed will be acknowledged in The Era.

THE HIPPODROME.

Seldom has the "poetry of motion" been more agreeably exemplified than by Don Juan A. Caicedo on the high wire at the Hippodrome this week. The perfect ease with which he performs the most difficult feats must be the result of an absolute accuracy of judgment, a muscular system entirely under the control of the will, and a physical training which has resulted in the whole bodily powers being concentrated on the accomplishment of Caicedo's extraordinary achievements. He stands alone in his line, on a pedestal far loftier than that which he occupies before advancing along the thin thread of steel which crosses the arena. "King of the Wire," he also rules in the hearts of the public, who recognise in Caicedo one of those rarely-gifted artists in whom natural bent and rare industry and energy have united with marvellous results. The management at the Hippodrome is fortunate in having secured Caicedo, who is highly popular with the refined and intelligent class of patron who is attracted by the superior and always excellent entertainment offered under the general management of Mr Frank Allen. Caicedo has again triumphed at this establishment, where enthusiastic plaudits have rewarded his graceful and active evolutions. A "turn" which creates much interest is that of Gallando, who models in clay in sight of the audience. He produces a fine group of a peasant girl with a calf. In the intervals of working on this he produces several caricature heads on a board, shaping easily recognisable portraits of the late Mr Gladstone and Sir Redvers Buller. Boswell's Miniature Circus has some amusing features. A round table is made to revolve rapidly, and on this dogs run and jump over small gates. A pony is also placed on the table, and gallops as it goes round. A performing donkey introduces much realism into his attack on a clown-groom, and the antics of a couple of boys on the riding machine create roars of laughter. Newhouse and Ward's bicycle business is always entertaining. One of the performers, besides doing various startling feats, manages to ride a tall "bike" about ten feet high. His balancing power is extraordinary. He also jumps his machine, laterally, from one to another of several high platforms, to which he ascends by means of steps. His companion's lithe form and eccentric attitudes in a burlesque ride are very amusing. Rayfayette's dogs are admirably trained, and do some novel tricks. For instance, an immense bull-dog walks up and down flights of steps carrying on his head a small white poodle. The crowning exploit of the canine troop, however, is the daring somersault done by one of them from a high platform on to his master's shoulders beneath. A smart effect is created by a dog which turns over and over, wearing a "harness" studded with electric lamps. The Anthony Powell Family, two ladies and two gentlemen, are very dashing and spirited artistes. On two well-trained ring horses they exhibit remarkable agility and strength, and their leaps and attitudes prove them to be experts in their art. O'Gust's well-known imitations are as popular as ever, and he has added to the old list many "up-to date" mimicries, the sounds made by a motor car and a "tube" train being reproduced with great accuracy. The truth and fidelity of O'Gust's entertainment is acknowledged by all. The Maningos are excellent head-to-head balancers; and the Caledonian Boys' Orchestra supplies a very popular and pleasing musical item, which is cordially received and evidently enjoyed. In the weather we are now having nothing could be more acceptable than the imagination of snowiness which is created by Siberia, the "frozen river" scene being delightful in its suggestions of low temperature. The auditorium of the Hippodrome is one of the coolest places in London of an evening, and those who visit the place remark with gratitude upon the freshness and purity of the atmosphere. It is only fair that this great merit should be repeatedly acknowledged. It is in the times of great heat that we best appreciate the enterprise, the scientific skill, and the lavish expenditure which have created these most acceptable atmospheric conditions.

THE ELLIOTTS AND SAVONAS AT MORECAMBE.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.

Mr John Gardner opened the season at the Alhambra on Monday with a show that would do no discredit to one of the principal holidays in the year. The principal item on the bill is, of course, the great musical troupe the Savonas, who scored such a marked success at the Alhambra during last season, drawing crowded houses nightly. Since then the Savonas have been touring the Continent, and have secured a number of entirely new and marvellous instruments. Selections are played from all the great composers, including the famous overture from the opera of William Tell. Perhaps the most effective point in the performance is the Storm scene from William Tell, which is executed in a truly marvellous manner by these clever exponents of mirth and music. The Storm scene is realistic in the extreme, the artists producing correct and life-stirring representations of the thunder, lightning, rain, wind, and the shrieking of wild birds escaping from the storm. The whole scene is bewildering, and is, in truth, a masterpiece in effect. This talented troupe play on over fifty different kinds of instruments, and the frequent and quick changes from one to another are a feature of the performance. The stage fittings are of the most magnificent character, and include over 1,000 variegated electric lights, a veritable vision of splendour. Not the least interesting is their capital imitation of driving, the tinkling of the bells and the cracking of the whips lending realism to the scene. The Six Cycling Elliotts give a performance on their cycles which is beyond description, and can only be rightly appreciated after being witnessed. They ride on two wheels, and on one wheel, and verily it looks as though they would ride on none were it humanly possible. These expert and marvellous cyclists defy comparison or competition.—Morecambe Visitor, July 13, 1904.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.

With that enterprise which has characterised the management of the Alhambra Palace since it was opened at Easter, 1901, Mr John Gardner maintains the general excellence of his programmes. This year he opens his season with such splendid attractions as the musical marvels, the Seven Savonas, and those clever cyclists, the Six Elliotts. The Savonas contribute a turn which for brilliance of setting, variety, and talent is unequalled amongst the musical shows on the variety stage. Their playing of the overture to the opera William Tell, and the Storm scene from the same composition by Rossini, is a revelation. It is not too much to say that the audience are thrilled with the rendering of this powerful music. In the lighter portions of their entertainment the Savonas are equally at home, and their saxaphone playing is admirable. The hunting chorus which brings to a finish this colossal musical act is a delightful bit of work. Smart, well-dressed, and quite at home, the Elliotts in their bicycle business are fine, and rounds of applause are the reward of these popular people.—Morecambe and Heysham Times, Wednesday July 13, 1904.

THE Newry steeplejack, Gill, assumed a new rôle on Monday evening, when he appeared as a variety artiste at the Palace, Belfast. After an enthusiastic reception, he detailed his experiences in eluding capture while holding the fort at Sugar Island, Newry. Pointing out that it was for simple drunkenness and for singing "Dolly Gray," that he was arrested and ordered a month's imprisonment, he said he could not have been very intoxicated, for he was arrested at 8 30 and liberated at 11 30. He sang a verse of "Dolly Gray," apparently to the satisfaction of the audience.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Of Great Greenock Fair the local chronicler thus speaks:—"The fair, with all its attendant fun and frivolity, is here among us once more, and erstwhile sober-minded folk betake themselves to the grounds and deliver themselves to the sheer abandon that is permissible only at this season of the year. Money is freely spread over the shows or exchanged for a romping gallop on the ever-popular steeds or an exciting neck-to-neck race in the "poultry farm" to the accompaniment of all the latest popular airs. In spite of the advance of civilisation, it will be seen that there still remain sufficient of the primitive man (and woman) in us to enjoy a good rowdy romp. To say that the fair, holus bolus, is in the capable hands of Mr John Wilmot and his sons, is to say that everything is of the best, and that no stone has been left unturned to secure the most recent attractions. And when it is added that this year the entertainments excel previous fairs, both in point of numbers and as regards variety, it will be agreed that if Greenockians, and the people from neighbouring towns and villages, do not find the pleasure they seek after, the blame cannot be rightly laid on the head of Mr John Wilmot. Besides the five roundabouts—the steeplechasers, the roosters, the gondolas, and the miniature railway—there are, on the Princes Pier ground, Johnston's circus, M'Indoe's theatre of varieties, and Texas Jack's exhibition of sharpshooting and knife throwing. Also two shows which should not be missed are Haydn's clairvoyant and thought-reading entertainment—a clever piece of work—and Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall mysteries, which incomprehensible gentleman can truly work marvels armed with nothing more extraordinary than a Japanese fan. This is his first appearance in the town. Then there are Green's Cinématograph and Chipperfield's menagerie. On the Campbell-street ground another menagerie known as Sedgwick's Yankee ought to be seen, and also Paola's miniature circus and Harris's conjuring show."

Our own reporter on the fair ground gives the full list of shows, &c.:—Sedgwick's great Yankee menagerie, Mrs Johnson and Son's variety circus, M'Indoe's electric theatre, Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall, Mr Geo. Green's Cinématograph, Chipperfield's French menagerie, Harry Paulo's circus, Mrs Harris and Son's varieties, the Marvellous Haydns, Horatio's giant horse, and Capt. Texas and Eagle Davis, the descendants of the Royal Boswell Family. A full complement of the lessee's machines included Mr John Wilmot's switchback gallopers, Mr James Wilmot's Canadian switchback, Mr Wattie Wilmot's racing cockerels, Mr John Wilmot, jun.'s, tunnel railway, and Mr Geo. Wilmot's three-abreast steeplechasers. Palmer's manual swings concluded the machine list. The first class shooting saloons of Messrs Biddall, Horne, Wright, Rostron, Palmer, Sheeran, Strand, Dawson, and M'Indoe. The photographic saloons of Messrs Eden and Walton, Maley, Hammond, Gothard, Stott, Towler, and Kelly Bros. Wallop's coker shies, strikers, and other fun, were provided by Messrs Lovell, Slater, Hunter, Price, Matchett, Pattison, Sheeran, Graham, Dawson, Palmer, Steens, Henshaw, Smith, Macintosh, Strand, Stevenson, Knight, Salvoni, Cook, Moore, Hearl, Towers, and Carroll.

Headless-cross Cherry Wakes—a capital fair held in the vicinity of Redditch—attracted large crowds of holiday makers. The shows in the front rank were Chipperfield's Cinématograph and theatre of varieties, Holloway's entertainers, the great ghost illusion, and the excellent concerns of Mr Thomas Clarke, the local caterer and fair ground lessee; the electric switchback, range of park swings, rifle saloon, coker and Emma sheets. The other entertainers were Messrs Wilson, with shooting concern, throwing games, and variety stalls; Taylor, with throwing games and stalls; Seaton, with varieties and stalls; Hawkes, Colley, Daniels, Chinn, and others, with variety stalls; and Messrs Chipperfield and Wilson, with fisheries.

Astwood Bank, on Saturday, July 9, was visited by the Herbert Combination of open-air amusements, the steam horse set, the swings, the bottle battery, coker sheet, Emma sheet, and varieties, all by Charles Herbert, with whom were Messrs Newman, Smith, Roberts, Hawkes, and Phipps, with variety and other stalls.

On Tuesday last the Royal Hippodrome (Lord John Sanger and Sons, Limited) paid a visit to Crewkerne and gave two performances in the fair field, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening. Messrs Elton and Olrac were clever and amusing in their horizontal bar act; the Crotchet Troupe received great applause for their "Musical Moments;" the Norways, "the men up the stick," proved worthy of the recognition they received; Miss Hoffmann deserves every praise for the excellent manner in which she has trained her chestnut mare; Messrs Etherdo and Pugh were good in their flying trapeze act; the De Burstows scored in their cake-walk on the telegraph wire; Girkoff's Russian ponies on the revolving table (introduced by Herr Hoffmann) were marvellous; Ping Pong and his steeplechase dog caused great amusement; Mons. Anetto, the flying cyclist, showed cleverness in his act; Toga, Oriental juggler, did well; and a smart bit of horsemanship was witnessed in the jockey act by Mr Herbert Horley.

Jennings's Theatre opened at Evesham on Saturday with The Soldiers of the King. The Colleen Bawn, Good as Gold, Weary Willie and Tired Tim, and other plays have been performed during the week.

At Cookhill we have C. Herbert's roundabounts, swing boats, African jungle, cokernut sheets, stalls, &c.

At the Coronation Gardens, Tenby, a refined programme has attracted large crowds. Mr R. W. Russel, impersonator, represents characters from Dickens in a masterly manner. Miss Maud Davies's singing is highly appreciated. Mr Stuart Alexander is a great favourite. Mr Gilbert Ternie does a good turn, and Mr Reuben More is well received.

Mr Haggar has paid his usual visit to the fair ground, Milford Haven. During the benefit performance given in aid of the Milford Football Club, Mr Haggar was informed that four children had been left orphans by the sudden death of their mother. He announced that the whole of the receipts at a performance on the 8th inst. would be handed over to a committee of gentlemen appointed to assist the little ones. Mr J. D. Danter kindly gave the use of his racers, swings, shooters, cokernut, Mollies strikers, and ringboards.

Subscription to the Guild Funds, per Mr Wm. Chaplain:—Mr J. Whyatt, 10s. 6d.

Bellphejor, The Lady of Lyons, and The Sailor's Return have been the plays placed upon the boards of Mr J. Orton Hayes' People's Theatre, at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fair Ground, this week. On Saturday night Mr Hayes's season at Carmarthen closed. Ryan and Ryan, Irish comedians and knockabouts, have appeared with success here this week.

The employees of Messrs Mellor and Sons' Owl Lamp Works at Oldham had their annual outing on Saturday at Chester. Leaving Oldham at 6 20, they arrived in Chester about 8 0, and made their way to Kendrick's Restaurant, where a substantial breakfast awaited them. Two landaus then conveyed the party to Hawarden, where they viewed the Castle and the old church. After partaking of slight refreshment at the Glynn Hotel, they went to Chester. After dinner the party chartered an electric launch to take them up the River Dee to Eaton Hall, the seat of the Duke of Westminster. En route to the station the party halted for a few minutes at the Bell and Stirrup Hotel, where it was moved by Mr J. Fowler, and seconded by Mr G. Baxter, "That the best thanks be given to Messrs Mellor and Sons for providing the outing." The toast "Success to the firm of Mellor and Sons" was drunk with musical honours, and was suitably replied to by Mr Herbert Mellor and Mr S. D. Mellor. The party arrived at Oldham at 11 10.

Bradford (Tong-street) Fair Ground had for its entertainers last week Harry Ashington's Theatre of variety and animated photography, Goldthorpe and Marshall with Venetian gondolas, W. H. Marshall's big wheel, Messrs Brooks and Edmonds with gem swings, Barker's Winchester range and highfliers, highfliers and swings by Jameson and Rilfey, throw-away games and varieties by Messrs Bassett, Walker, Ingram, Holdsworth, Riley, Ryan, Sugden, Fawcett, Burgess, Jameson, and Illingworth.

At Consett were Walter Murphy's magnificent switchback railway, shooting ranges of Messrs Potts, Toogood, and Walker.

At Bishop Auckland were W. and B. Murphy's No. 2 set of gondolas, Richardson's horses, Cowie's juvenile horses, George Paine's and Testo's Cinématograph, Cooper's Bioscope and Filmland, and Newsome and Robson's shooters.

THE LONDON HIPPODROME

HEAD OFFICE STAFF ANNUAL OUTING.

It is always a pleasant duty to chronicle the social functions of a big and phenomenally successful amusement enterprise like Moss' Empires, Limited. It has been our pleasant duty since the opening of all their concerns to record both the business and the family side.

There is no reason here to enlarge upon the working basis and all its attendant details; suffice to say the guiding spirits of the largest firm of its kind in the world do, once now and again, take unto themselves a slight respite from the whirlwind of business, and so this occurred last Sunday, when the annual "wayzgoose"—to put it in printer's parlance—of the head office staff took place. The little crowd left Waterloo in a special saloon at 9 45 a.m., and arrived all safe and sound at Staines, where carriages were in attendance to convey the party to the landing stage. Waiting for them in the lovely sunlight was the steam launch Westralia. Punctually at 11 0 the pretty little boat started on her happy journey for a trip up the river. Nothing could have been more delightful for all parties—a beautiful boat, plenty of good material to supply the wants of the inner man, gorgeous weather, happy faces, and everything else that could be wished for in a bachelors' party. The first stop was made at Monkey Island, prior to which luncheon was served on board.

MENU.

Lobster Salad, Salmon Mayonnaise,
Poulet Recherche,
Ham, Tongue,
Galantine of all kinds,
Quails in Aspic,
Cheeses, Salads,
Hothouse Desserts, and so on, and so forth.

MANAGERIAL STAFF OUTING, LONDON HIPPODROME.

Elliott, who so very kindly organised the outing—and very excellently he did it; Mr Thomas Swinney, Mr W. Noakes, Mr Walter Cook, Mr Fred Trussell, the genial acting-manager of the London Hippodrome; Mr Henry W. Garrick, the Press manager; Mr Thomas Osborne, Mr W. J. M'Kenna, and others.

After the sports the party took ship for Maidenhead, making a stay at the Ray Mead Hotel, where tea and other refreshments were partaken of. To the accompaniment of Mr Frank Parker's phonograph the return journey was made. The party had the pleasure of listening to the great Caruso, Madame Melba, and other of the various operatic stars without the trouble of coming to town to see and hear them.

Before landing at Windsor, Mr FRANK ALLEN, in response to a request, made a short speech, in which he said that nothing gave him more pleasure in the world than to be with the party, and to be cognisant of the fact that his officers, both inside business and out, were so affectionately associated. He was proud of them all, both present and absent; and it was his proud boast to be the foster-parent of such a happy and industrious family, &c.

Mr FRED TRUSSELL, in replying on behalf of everybody, proposed Mr Frank Allen's health, and thanked him for the enjoyable day he had afforded them. He referred, in well chosen words, to the proud position held by Mr Allen of ruling the tremendous interests and controlling the enormous staff under his care, not with the rod of iron of the despot, but actually reigning in the hearts of every one of his employees, who looked to him as a friend to whom they could go to find a ready sympathiser in trouble, or a willing sharer in their joys. The family disembarked at Windsor and returned to town heartily happy and delighted with everything. Waterloo was reached at 10 p.m.

IN reference to our paragraph last week respecting the journey of artists from Newport to Nottingham, the Midland Railway Company informs us that they have a new ordinary train leaving Newport on Sundays at 12 29, due at Nottingham at 7 40; but if there are twenty or more artists travelling the time of arrival will be 6 15.

AT the Palace-by-the-Sea and Winter Gardens, Tynemouth, this week are Judge's performing parrots, which are amusing and entertaining. C. Lebert, conjuror, is smart; the Snow Family, grotesque skaters, and the George French's troupe of acrobatic cyclists, remain under engagement; Mr Alan Turner, baritone (late of the Moody-Manners opera company), is accorded a flattering reception; the Royal Court orchestra, under the bâton of Herr Arnold Biomé, please with their various, well-rendered selections. In addition there is an up-to-date show of animated pictures.

THE new syndicate which has taken over the King's Theatre of Varieties, Walthamstow, has closed the house for a few weeks to allow of important structural alterations as well as complete redecoration. It is hoped that all will be in readiness for reopening on August Bank Holiday.

On arriving at Monkey Island the happy little band disembarked and proceeded to disport themselves. The 100 Yards Running Match was won by Mr W. Noakes, who also secured the 150 Yards against seven competitors. Mr "Trundley" Armstrong, the famous thin man, distinguished himself by carrying off the honours in the 500 Yards Walking Match; likewise did the gallant Armstrong win the Wrestling Match, catch-as-catch-can, ten rounds. Mr Frank Parker was guilty of winning the Veterans' Running Match, while Mr Henry W. Garrick acted as timekeeper and stakeholder. Conspicuous among the merry and convivial party were Mr Frank Allen, general manager; Mr Frank Parker, stage and equestrian director; Mr William Armstrong, chief of staff; Mr Frank

MR EDITOR,—Sir,—I beg to draw your attention to a slight mistake made by your Deptford correspondent re the recent production of A Convict's Daughter at the Broadway Theatre. He stated that the title-rôle was represented by Miss Davis Murch. The part was played by, yours faithfully, DAISY MURCH. July 14.

MR ANDY KERR, comedian and dancer, was successfully operated on at the Royal Infirmary, Liverpool, on Friday, June 24. He is now progressing favourably, and would be pleased to see all friends at No. 7 Ward.

"URBAN" WAR PICTURES.

A new series of Russian-Japanese war pictures was shown at the Alhambra on Monday evening by means of the Urban Bioscope. These most "up-to-date" views have been photographed by English war correspondents in Manchuria; and are intensely interesting in the present position of affairs in the East. A deeply impressive display of the military force of Japan is given in the representation of its Imperial Guard marching, four abreast, through lanes of applauding beholders. The succession of smart little soldiers, with their rifles at the "slope," seems endless; and is only broken at rare intervals by an officer on horseback. Then we are presented with a picture of the military funeral of the brave Japanese standard-bearer who fell at the battle of the Yalu River. Very curious are the varieties of costumes reproduced. The most modern attire contrasts strangely with dresses which remind us of The Mikado at the Savoy, in the old Gilbert and Sullivan days. The body is deposited in a sitting position in a receptacle which is borne to the grave on poles by reverent friends of the deceased. The procession is one of great solemnity, and the honour done to the hero shows how greatly courage is admired in Japan. If horsemanship could win battles fought on the modern system, the extraordinary agility and daring of the Cossack riders, who appear in the next view, would be certain to secure victory for their "side." On their wiry little ponies they place themselves in various risky attitudes at full speed, standing erect upon the saddle, leaning backwards till their hands touch the ground, and swooping down to pick up an article from grassy plains. Then one of the regiment gallops out, and falls from his steed. Another rides up to the recumbent figure, makes his horse lie down, lays the apparently injured man across the saddle, induces the animal to rise, and then, mounting also, bears away his comrade. A review of Russian sharpshooters is also depicted, the curious costumes of the staff and the manœuvres of their small steeds making the spectacle lively and amusing. A valuable addition to these Far East films is a series of Toronto Fire views. We see the engines hurrying to the scene of conflagration, and afterwards watch them playing upon the fire. A specially effective spectacle is that in which the orange coloured flames are seen raging amidst ruins of high houses. The necessity of dynamiting dangerous walls and buildings creates sensational subjects for the photographer. After the explosive has been fixed, comes the thundering descent of the débris, followed by the rising of immense clouds of dust and smoke. Very desolate and strange is the spectacle of the ruined streets, with miles of ghastly walls and "gutted" houses to tell of the ravage wrought by the "devouring element." Altogether, the last series of films supplied by the Charles Urban Trading Company is quite up to the high standard of that enterprising and celebrated firm, and copies are certain to be eagerly applied for in all directions. In our recent notice of the Alhambra, we hardly gave sufficient attention to Perzina's monkeys. Some dozen of these well-trained simians, as well as cockatoos and a cat, perform feats which are not only amusing but curious by showing the point to which the education of the quaint little quadrumana can be carried. In their little suits of clothes, seated in a line in excellent order, Perzina's monkeys have a strangely human appearance, and the intelligence which they exhibit in the performance of their tricks increases the theory conveyed in the sailor's humorous proverb that they can talk well enough, but conceal the fact lest they should be made to work. The cockatoos are splendid specimens, and they and the obedient "puss" are equally amenable to the firm but kindly discipline of their accomplished trainer.

MUSIC HALL ATHLETIC SPORTS.
Re THE DONKEY DERBY.

In the advertisement for the above it did not state that lady artistes were not eligible. I refer to my entry. I received a form, which I returned correctly filled up, also enclosing my entrance fee, which was accepted. After a delay of over a fortnight the form was returned to me marked "Not eligible," my entrance fee being enclosed. I should like to know why lady artistes were objected to, there being nothing stated in the advertisement as to sex. I feel confident that there would be many lady artistes enter next year if they were allowed to compete. It has put me to a great deal of trouble and expense training my donkey Lily, but that I do not mind, as the sports are for a good cause.
Yours faithfully, ROSE WINSTANLEY.

A most interesting film, showing a regiment of these hardy horsemen marching towards the field of action.

The undernoted Film (No. 7,410) is one of the Finest Films as regards quality, steadiness, and interest that has ever been secured, and we most strongly recommend it. The way in which the Shinto priests try to prevent our Photographer from obtaining a picture of the sacred "ark" by pushing it towards the other side of the street is most interesting.

NEW SENSATIONAL ELGE FILM.

A RAID ON A COINERS' DEN.

You will glance at the title and say, "H'm, the subject sounds a likely one!" And you will be right; and when you have seen the film your conclusion, we trust, will be that we have made the most of promising material.

We have certainly spared neither time nor expense in endeavouring to obtain a picture chock-full of exciting incidents, and at the same time giving a comprehensive representation of a coiners' den. The scene of the "den" itself was specially built and fitted for this film, and the various implements used in the manufacture of base coin are plainly seen. The electrical fittings are on an elaborate scale, and various melting pots and cauldrons all go to make the scene a realistic one.

The film, of which a brief description will be found below, is the result of several weeks' arduous and careful preparation, and we think our customers will admit that it has been time and care well spent, and the verdict, we feel confident, will be that of all sensational films taken this is THE SENSATION.

DESCRIPTION.—Scene one:—Interior of the Den—The Counterfeiters at Work—Swell of the gang arrives after a trip, bringing back the real goblins. Scene two:—Exterior—Another member of the gang arrives, gives the sign, three claps of the hand, and the door is opened by an old hag. A detective who has been in hiding approaches; he has discovered the secret sign. Hearing footsteps approaching he again retires, and the various members of the gang file out of the house. The door is then closed by the hag. When the coiners are out of sight the detective returns, gives the sign, and is admitted by the old woman. He searches her when he arrives in the den, and, as a part of his plan, he disguises himself in her shawl and bonnet, and awaits the return of the gang. They soon arrive and are admitted. The "bully" of the gang is very much perturbed when he discovers that they have been tricked, and makes promises of "King's Evidence" and "all that sort of thing;" while the swell, who is covered by the detective's revolver, in a moment of hesitation on the latter's part seizes the revolver from his hand, and the others then fall on the unfortunate detective, who is bound and gagged, and after the spurious notes have been burned, and the coin stowed away, the gang make their escape. A chase ensues, in which the whole of the gang are caught, being run to earth in a thicket whilst making a desperate bid for freedom. Meanwhile the detective has been released, and the picture closes with the coiners being LED INTO PRISON. Full of thrilling incidents.

No. 630. WHEN THE SLEEPER WAKES.
A practical joke upon an old gentleman forms the theme of this picture. The old gentleman, seated in his garden, has tilted his chair right back and fallen asleep. Two boys, seeing him thus, conceive and carry out a practical joke. They fetch a long board and arrange it see-saw wise, with one end just underneath the old man's feet, and upon the other end they place a pail of water. They then retire to safety to watch the result, which one youngster accelerates by squirting with the garden-hose down the old man's neck. He wakes suddenly, and his chair pitches forward on to the board, which, in turn, projects the pail of water up in the air and right over the head of the victim. An animated little comic picture.
Length, 50ft. Price, £1 0s. 10d.

No. 631. A DAY IN THE HAY FIELDS.
Haymaking is one of the country industries which has always appealed to artists on account of the many picturesque and beautiful scenes which it presents. In this photograph all the various phases are beautifully shown, from the cutting of the grass until the hay is piled high on the stack. First we see a field of long grass with the reaping machine at work, and it is very pretty to see the grass go down before the machine drawn by the two fine horses. Next the field is "shaken," or, in other words, the cut grass is tossed high in the bright sun by an ingenious machine and left spread out on the ground. Later on another clever device is drawn over the field and the hay is left raked up into long ridges ready for carting. This is the stage at which the children love to get into it, and we have a very pretty view of a number of small kiddies indulging in a delightful romp in the sweet-scented hay. Lastly, the carts come along and gather it all up, huge masses at a time, and carry it off to the farm, where willing hands stack it high upon a rick ready for winter food.
Length, 200ft. Price, £4 3s. 4d.

"THE ONE TOO MANY," Dramatic Sketch, in One Scene, by Percival H. T. Sykes, Played for the First Time at the Chelsea Palace of Varieties, on Saturday, July 2.

Senor Rio ..... Mr CLAUDE HAVILAND
Beppo ..... Mr F. T. BENSON
Bapo Sancho ..... Mr PERCY MURRAY
Senora Ziska ..... Miss LENA PENROSE
Senorita Marda ..... Mrs PERCIVAL SYKES
Zerlina ..... Miss GIOVANNA MORGANTI

The sure progress in refinement made in the halls owes not a little to Mr Percy Murray, a sketch artist who was among the first to lay aside the conventional condensations of melodrama and to give the public bright and cultured expositions of scenes and incidents of human existence. He has displayed in his productions a high ambition, mounting them with elegance and taste, and in his latest effort, produced on Saturday at the magnificent Chelsea hall, he has furnished a sketch which in subject, in conception, and in treatment would grace any programme. The scene is laid amid the Peruvian plateaux of South America, the exterior of a native homestead forming an exquisite set, in which the sun's rays on a limpid stream are ingeniously caught, while amid the luxuriant foliage resound the songs of birds. It is the trysting place for the youthful Senorita Marda, who is shortly to be married to Senor Rio, captain of the Peruvian army and the nephew of the mayor of the town. The rejoicings are clouded by the arrival on the scene of Bapo Sancho, a ne'er-do-well, who, though of gentle birth, was the scapegrace of the family—the one too many. Years before, to escape financial troubles brought about by drink, he had enlisted as a soldier in the ranks. In this capacity, he had, under an assumed name, not only robbed the Mayor but run away with his daughter, who was disowned by her enraged father. Marda was the only child of the union, and on the death of her mother was consigned to the care of her aunt, Senora Ziska, Sancho's sister, who has grown to love her as if she were her own child. Just as the maiden's future seems secured by her marriage to Captain Rio, her father appears to claim her. In vain his sister declares that the girl is better off without the knowledge of her father, in vain she points out that the Mayor will never allow his nephew to marry the daughter of the disreputable outcast. Sancho insists upon having his child, and Marda, with filial obedience, prepares to go with him. The Senora, determined that Marda's life shall not be thus spoiled, makes another fruitless appeal to her brother, and then offers him brandy into which she has put poison, but just as he places it to his lips it is dashed to the ground by Marda, who declares she has performed her first duty as a daughter. Her likeness to her mother is so striking that Sancho proclaims that she lives again in his daughter, who protests that she is like her dead parent only in looks, as according to her aunt her mother was one of the noblest of her sex. These are the first words of sympathy that Sancho has received from his family, and, full of gratitude, he determines to leave the girl in peace, denying that he is Marda's father—a prevarication that is confirmed by his sister. A hacking cough tells plainly that he has not long to live, so he bids his daughter a last good-bye, and, checking with a sign the cry of recognition uttered by the old village postman, departs on his lonely way. The romantic spirit of the piece was admirably preserved by the performers, who all did justice to their parts. Mr Percy Murray in the title-rôle gave a vivid portraiture of the outcast, filled with the bitterness of a wasted life yet thirsting for the love of his child. He held the audience in a firm grip by the power of his impersonation, the deep pathos of which was intensified by his earnestness and sincerity in the delivery of his lines. Mrs Percival Sykes acted with maidenly grace as Marda, and quite realised the tender solicitude of the young girl who obeys with cheerfulness the parental mandate. The fiery and resolute Ziska was realistically presented by Miss Lena Penrose, who dealt conscientiously with the part, presenting its moods of passion and tenderness with equal sincerity. Mr Claude Haviland made a gallant and courteous lover, and a few brief moments of comedy were introduced by Mr F. T. Benson, who gave a clever character study of Beppo, a garrulous old postman, Miss Giovanna Morganti as a peasant girl introducing a verse of "In Old Madrid" which was well sung. Evident pleasure was given throughout the piece, which is assuredly destined to form one of the most successful of Mr Murray's repertory.

The surest draw in the business. Beautiful scenery and dresses for this production. Special Engagement of Miss LENA PENROSE, in her creation of Ziska, and the author's wife, Mrs P. H. T. SYKES.

No vulgar sensationalism. "THE ONE TOO MANY," as all Percy Murray's Sketches, appeals to all the most Refined and Cultivated Audiences. THE SUCCESS OF THE CENTURY. Approved and Immediately Booked by Henri Gros, Esq. Agents, R. Warner and Co.

"AN ACTOR AND A MAN."

A David Garrick Episode.
By G. D. Wheeler.
An Artistic Triumph.
Refrain:
They may not deem it fit for thee
To be an actor's wife,
I may unworthy be of thee
To guide thy hand through life.
They may despise the player now,
But prove to them I can
That David Garrick still can be
An Actor and a Man.

Sung in the Character of David Garrick by

MR. LEO DRYDEN

One of those who are successfully striving to higher the tone of the variety stage.—Liverpool Daily Post.

"AN ACTOR AND A MAN."
"AN ACTOR AND A MAN."

Copy of a letter from an anonymous admirer of refinement and high effort :—

June 28, 1904.

Dear Sir,

In "David Garrick : an Actor and a Man" (which I saw last night at the Middlesex), you have a worthy successor to former triumphs. The rapt attention of an audience (which prior to your appearance had been at times boisterous) and the genuine applause at the end must have been very gratifying.

Yours very truly,
AN ADMIRER.

Leo Dryden, Esq.

Such letters as the above speak volumes, and only tend to prove that art is and will in future be appreciated when displayed in variety theatres, as the following list of former successes will prove.

"LOVE AND DUTY,"
"LOVE AND DUTY,"
a Descriptive Song that was sung in Great Britain, Australia, Africa, and America by every lover of vocal sentiment.

"THE MINER'S DREAM OF HOME,"
"THE MINER'S DREAM OF HOME."
Sung in every Land where the Mother Tongue is spoken, and furthermore, Translated into several Foreign Languages.

"THE MINER'S RETURN,"
"THE MINER'S RETURN."
which ranks Second to "The Miner's Dream of Home" in popularity.

"INDIA'S REPLY,"
"INDIA'S REPLY,"
a creation which received flattering approval in a special article by G. R Sims, the Charles Dickens of the period.

"JOSEPHINE,"
"JOSEPHINE."
The only Napoleonic Song that was sung by the masses and played on barrel organs,

"GREAT WHITE MOTHER."
"GREAT WHITE MOTHER."
A British North American's tribute to the late Queen Victoria. Sung in the character of an Indian warrior seven years before "Hiawatha" was set to "rag-time" paraphrase.

"MERCIA."
"MERCIA."
Sung in the Character of Marcus Superbus, the Roman Patrician.

"BRAVO, DUBLIN FUSILIERS."
"BRAVO DUBLIN FUSILIERS."
Another Ear-haunting March Refrain that eventually became the Song of the Transvaal Campaign.

"LUCIE MANETTE."
"LUCIE MANETTE."
Suggested by Charles Dickens' novel "A Tale of Two Cities." Sung in the Character of Sidney Carton, the self-sacrificing hero of a reign of terror and retribution.

"MICE AND MEN."
"MICE AND MEN."
Suggested by the Play of that name.
A most refined Song and pretty Air.

"NAPOLEON'S SON."
"NAPOLEON'S SON."
Suggested by "The Exile."
An Episode in the life of Napoleon while a prisoner at St. Helena.

"FOR FREEDOM AND JAPAN,"
"FOR FREEDOM AND JAPAN."
Produced at the Empire, Stratford, Feb. 19, 1904, amidst a scene of wild enthusiasm, is considered a fitting successor to "India's Reply."

"AN ACTOR AND A MAN,"
(an Episode in the life of David Garrick), showing how the purse-proud Simon Ingot induces David Garrick (who is despised by the nouveau riche and his City friends), to play the part of a drunken scoundrel, in order that his daughter, Ada Ingot, may be cured of her misplaced affection for the actor.

Garrick eventually succeeds in disgusting the object of his affection by playing the drunkard, smashing glasses, bottles, decanters, &c., shuffling cards, "stowing" aces up his sleeve, singing drunken ditties, and insulting Ingot's guests. He is ordered to leave the house, and on reaching his club recounts the whole story; but when a bystander insults Ingot and his daughter Garrick challenges him to a duel.

When he reaches his chambers he, Hamlet like, soliloquises, and enacts the drunken scene.

Those who say there is no art in Variety Theatres should see

"AN ACTOR AND A MAN."

Then they will probably paraphrase the oft-quoted "Veni, Vidi, Vici," and say, "I doubted, I observed, I acknowledged."

Many thanks to Captain Evans, Councillor Davies, J. H. Walker, Esq., T. Gannon, Esq., and others for Costly Presents; also J. Ingram, Esq, for Present of Cheque for £100.

The scene at the Palace on Saturday night beggars description. The curtain rose and discovered the Officers and Men of the City and Bristol Marine Ambulance Corps, numbering over One Hundred, in Full Dress Uniform, and about Fifty of Dr. Bodie's most important cases that he has successfully treated during his three weeks' stay. Over half-an-hour was occupied in the Presentations to the Doctor, the value being over £300, including a cheque for £100 from a grateful Patient. At the fall of the curtain Dr. Bodie was recalled again and again, and was cheered to the echo, the curtain falling on a scene never before witnessed in the annals of Public Amusement in Bristol.

The popularity of the demonstrations of Dr. Walford Bodie, despite that this is his sixth visit, has not waned in Sunderland. Indeed, they seem to attract more now than they ever did. Twice the Palace Theatre of Varieties, where the Doctor is paying another visit with his own company, was completely packed at early door prices, hundreds having to go away disappointed who could not gain admittance. . . .—Sunderland Daily Echo, July 5, 1904

Columns and columns of the local Press devoted to describing this Great Show. My beautiful Printing on the walls and windows the admiration of all. Equal to Barnum and Bailey's Great Show. A perfect avalanche of Sensational Novelties, including the Latest Sensation,

MR. PAT DOHERTY,
the Irish M.P., at the GRAND T., ISLINGTON.
The Era, June 25, 1904.
GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.—In the illuminated hall and garden in the Irish piece of "The Colleen Bawn," Mr Pat Doherty, a most acceptable Hibernian comedian, who is known to his legion of friends as the Irish M.P., sings a couple of excellent songs and dances with a neatness of style that is rare in our days.
Weekly Press, June 25, 1904.
Mr Pat Doherty, the Irish M.P., fresh from his sea trip is receiving a warm welcome nightly at the Grand Theatre, the astute Mr Davey having secured him to give his songs and dances in the popular Irish drama, "The Colleen Bawn." The M.P. has to acknowledge many encores. Club Life, July 2.
After a pleasant but brief chat with Mr George Davey, we were introduced to the clever and popular music hall artist, Mr Pat Doherty, whom we had the pleasure of subsequently hearing in his celebrated song of the Irish M.P., also seeing him in his splendid dancing, which made us feel, who have known him so many years, that he had got back to his old Clerkenwell form. Pat received a good reception, and the applause, which he undoubtedly deserved, was unstinted. We wish him every success for his future professional career.
Islington Gazette, June 21.
GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.—A special feature of the performance was the appearance of ex-Councillor and Guardian Pat Doherty with a couple of good Irish songs and dances. These, with some merry patter, made a not unwelcome nor inappropriate diversion.
Islington Post, June 24.
GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.—Mr Pat Doherty, whose name is familiar to Islingtonians as the famous household word, is responsible for a couple of good Irish songs and dances. Mr Doherty is, indeed, warmly welcomed, as he deserves to be.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright, and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st. 1901.

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, JUNE 7.—The Darling of the Gods is perhaps the most gorgeous production which even Mr J. C. Williamson has staged in Sydney. Mr H. W. Varna, from Her Majesty's Theatre, London, has transferred to Her Majesty's Theatre, Sydney, all the completeness of the Beerbohm Tree mounting, and Mr Clyde Meynell supervises the work of the company, headed by Miss Maud Jeffries and Mr Julius Knight. The scenery is the best so far given us by Messrs Coleman-Dixon and Little, whose Japanese pictures are welcomed with rounds of applause. The very fine music, composed by William Furst, was tastefully conducted by Mr George Hall, and every detail that stage craft could devise or money could buy was there to educate the public in the customs, costumes, and life in Japan. Miss Maud Jeffries was altogether admirable as Yo-San. Mr E. A. Warburton made Zakkuri sufficiently tyrannical, cunning, and blood-thirsty to typify the ambitious politician. Miss Rose Pendennis (Rosy Sky), Miss Marie D'Alton (teacher of manners), and Miss L. Clifton (a beautiful geisha), were all that the small parts asked for. Mr Harry Plimmer was a good Saigon, and praise is due to Mr Eardley Turner for his Kato and Banzo.

MELBOURNE, JUNE 8.—The ever-popular Silver King was selected by Mr J. C. Williamson for the final production of Mr Beerbohm Tree's dramatic company at Her Majesty's Theatre, and crowded houses were experienced throughout its run of fifteen nights. As Nellie Denver Miss Maud Jeffries was quiet, sympathetic, and forceful, the part being one that has been associated with her name in many productions of the drama in England and America. Wilfred Denver, however, found a new exponent in Mr Julius Knight, who may justly claim to rank with his several predecessors in the part in this city. The Jaikes of Mr Eardley Turner was a fine piece of character acting, and full justice was done to the comparatively easy part of the Spider by Mr Arthur Wontner. In a cast so rich and varied it is difficult to make comparisons, but Mr Hans Phillips, the Henry Corkett of the original Melbourne production (1883), must be commended for his keen appreciation of the peculiar combination of cowardice and humour that distinguishes "the Dook o' New York." Miss Rose Pendennis was allotted the rather thankless part of Olive Skinner, and Miss Kitty Howard was an unaffected and pleasing Cissy Denver. Messrs A. E. Warburton, Herbert Leigh, George Chalmers, and Harry Plimmer were respectively well placed as Detective Baxter, Geoffrey Ware, Elijah Coombe, and Cripps.

"THE GIRL FROM KAY'S" succeeded Three Little Maids at the Princess's Theatre on the 4th inst. The house was crowded to overflowing, and the bright "comedy farce with music" was received with many expressions of approval. Three Little Maids ran to only fair business for three weeks, but the new piece will probably do better. Mr G. P. Huntley at once sprang into favour through his interpretation of Lord Cheyne in the first production. That this artist is not a one part actor is now pleasingly shown in his acting of Hoggenheimer, in The Girl from Kay's. Next to the leading comedian Miss Madge Crichton scored a decided hit in the part of Winnie, the girl from Kay's, and other parts were comparatively well played by Miss Delia Mason as Norah, Miss Elsa Ryan as Ellen, and Miss Maud Hobson as Mrs Chalmers. Mr Maurice Farkoa in the part of Henri Daneau was a repetition of the Frenchman in Three Little Maids, and Mr J. E. Fraser acted fairly and sang exceedingly well as Fitzthistle. The hall porter, Joseph, was quaintly portrayed by Mr George Carroll, and Mr R. St. George was rather boisterous, but effective, in the part of Theodore Quench. A local actor, Mr Arthur Lissant, made a creditable Mr Chalmers. The piece is beautifully staged, Mr Dixon being responsible for the scenic work, while the London-made costumes are a leading feature of the production.

MR JOHN WALLACE, the veteran stage-manager, was the recipient of a complimentary benefit performance at Her Majesty's Theatre on the afternoon of May 27. All the theatrical companies playing in Melbourne at the time, with the exception of Mr George Edwardes' company, contributed to the performance. Miss Olive Noble and Messrs Percy Walshe and Frank Stirling played The Man in the Street, a comedy trifle by Louis N Parker, and Mr Eardley Turner's happy little comedietta, The Dunmow Flitch, was effectively played by the author and Miss Noble.

SYDNEY, JUNE 14.—THEATRE ROYAL.—On the 11th The Price of Place was introduced to Sydney playgoers by Mr Bland Holt with a completeness which secured the intense admiration of his patrons. Some first-class tableaux had been painted by Mr John Brunton. The aged Premier of England gave Mr Walter Baker perhaps the best opportunity of his long career, and he fully availed himself of it. The murder of the Russian secret service agent was thrillingly done. Miss Frances Ross was a graceful Kathleen; Miss Harrie Ireland was excellent in the rôle of Baroness Manola Blanco; and Miss J. Pollock was much too good-looking for the solid middle-aged Mrs Tulk. Mrs Bland Holt made a lot of the part of Lady St. Azuline, and Little Brightie Smith played the girlish and sorrowful Mary Vine. Mr Charles Brown was Sir Henry Delahere, and Mr Albert Norman, despite surrounding improbabilities, made Benton prominent in the story told. Mr Max Maxwell was too young looking a bridegroom, and Mr A. Harford was a good Hon. John Addcott, M.P. Miss Frances Rutledge revelled in the part of the Lady Superior; Mr Bland Holt portrayed Aristides Tulk, M.P., in a most amusing style, and the whole company combined to make a success of the performance. The House of Commons, Skating Carnival, the Convent, and St. George's Chapel, Windsor, were all in the pictorial display provided by Mr Holt.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Here The Darling of the Gods will run until the close of the Williamson-cum-Tree season on the 24th. Miss Maud Jeffries is easily the "star" in this performance. Mr Clyde Meynell still controls Mr Beerbohm Tree's interests here.

CRITERION THEATRE.—The Marriage of Kitty, so cleverly acted by Mr Williamson's English comedy company, is delighting the patrons of this house. Miss Florence Hamer—the much-interviewed and copiously photographed—is a delightful actress, and Miss Dore Musgrove justifies in a large degree Mr Williamson's judgment in choosing her to play Kitty, which she does in a charming manner.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Here Edward Lauri, May Beatty, and the large company revel in the fun and melodies of The Rose of Riviera. Miss Garstang has won the hearts of all, Miss Nixon has hosts of admirers, and the Bovis Brothers excel as comedians.

PALACE THEATRE.—Tom Nawn's vaudeville company changes its bill every week, and now has as central attraction, Pat and the Genii, capitally played by Tom, Hattie, and Katharine Nawn. The old favourite, Pete Baker, has fresh turns, and the Hiawatha Troubadours do Indian choruses and dances. Miss Gladys Boyd sings illustrated songs. The Tossing Austins, Musical Johnstons, and Miss Dorothy Drew, in the goat and rag-sellers' songs, are provocative of much applause.

TIVOLI.—Last Saturday brute force, in the person of Carkeek, gave way to intrepid courage and superlative grace in the shape of the Eussems, who do a marvellously clever acrobatic turn. Their reception was enthusiastic, and the audience loudly cheered their performance. Miss Maud Beatty, the handsome Drury-lane "boy," captivates everybody, and her appearance is heartily welcomed. The inimitably nimble Nat Clifford has a new budget of amusing items, and Miss Clara Keating, a juvenile song and dance artist, has made a most creditable first appearance at the Tivoli.

"BENEATH THE SURFACE."

A Dramatic Sketch, in One Act and Four Scenes, by Chas. Norman, Presented for the First Time on any Stage at the Metropole Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, July 18.

Lord Avondale ..... Mr A. M'Callah
Gordon Chudleigh ..... Mr Geo. Byrne
John ..... Mr De Lee
Bill Bobster ..... Mr W. Williams
Ralph Paton ..... Mr C. Norman
Maud Avondale ..... Miss Joan Vanderbilt
Jessie Paton ..... Miss Mamie Stuart

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr Chas. Norman's dramatic sketch, Beneath the Surface, which was put on at the Metropole Theatre, Manchester, on Monday afternoon last, is designed to occupy about half-an-hour in a variety programme. It is a serious attempt to depict coal-mining life, with sensational accessories, and a story containing a central motive of revenge. The piece belongs to the category of condensed dramas, having within itself big possibilities of elaboration; but Mr Norman has confined his attention to the interesting sequel of events which have already taken place. We are introduced to Lord Avondale, the owner of collieries, to whose account is laid the crime of having enticed away from her home the daughter of a collier named Ralph Paton, who, however, ignorant of the identity of the real miscreant, has enlisted his lordship's sympathy to the extent of persuading him to try and find out the man who robbed him of his child. Jessie Paton is supposed to be dead, and her father's ruling idea is to wreak deadly vengeance on her betrayer. It suits Lord Avondale at this juncture to fix the crime on Gordon Chudleigh, to whom he bears no goodwill; and, so that Chudleigh may be out of the way and the old man's thirst for vengeance satisfied at one stroke, he agrees to Paton's desire that he shall take Chudleigh down into the mine, where Paton shall be in wating to deal the death-blow. As a matter of fact, Jessie Paton is not dead, and she reappears to Lord Avondale, who attempts fruitlessly to bribe her to go away again. A second scene shows all the paraphernalia of the pit-mouth in a characteristic setting, with graphic and interesting incidentals. The third scene is the Interior of the Pit, and here comes the crucial point of the situation. Will Ralph Paton kill the wrong man? He is there in hiding, and Lord Avondale and his intended victim duly come down. By a clever arrangement of his material Mr Norman contrives, not only that Ralph Paton learns the truth in time, but that his arraignment of Lord Avondale comes as a surprise to that duplicitous gentleman, the upshot being Paton's attempt upon his life. It is not murder that ensues, however; it is accident, in the shape of a realistic explosion and a fall of coal, by which Avondale is killed. He is brought to the top of the pit dying. Jessie Paton comes there also, to be reunited to her father and to forgive the dying man.

A vein of human interest runs through the story, made apparent by the vigorous and convincing impersonation of Ralph Paton by Mr Chas. Norman. It is also relieved by touches of comedy, in which Miss Joan Vanderbilt as Maud Avondale showed to distinct advantage. Miss Mamie Stuart as Jessie Paton sustained the pathetic note with credit, and Mr A. M'Cullah, though a trifle heavy, played Lord Avondale with effect. Beneath the Surface should prove an attractive and a profitable addition to the list of dramatic sketches on the halls.

"WHY WILLIAM LIED."

A Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Philip Clifford, Produced at the Marina, Lowestoft, on Monday, July 11.

William Jackson ..... Mr Harry B. Stanford
Charlie Smythe ..... Mr Thomas Reynolds
Colonel William Jackson.. Mr Chris Walker
Dr. Jack Gordon ..... Mr Philip Clifford
Dick Norris ..... Mr R. Van T. Ranney
Police Inspector ..... Mr E. Porter
Lunatic Keepers ..... Mr W. Dell / Mr R. Timbs
Dorothy Dean ..... Miss May Holland
Virginia K. Hobbs ..... Miss Frances Davies
Mrs Col. William Jackson Miss Molly Paget
Jane ..... Miss Nora Norwood
Mabel Dean ..... Miss Laura Burt

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr Philip Clifford's comedy, which was recently produced at the Lowestoft Theatre, keeps the audience in continual laughter during the last two acts, the first creating amused anticipation. The William who lies is one William Jackson, a young stockbroker, who is engaged to be married to a handsome widow, Mrs Mabel Dean, who believes him to be the soul of veracity. William has a friend, Charlie Smythe, and on the eve of the former's wedding day they have a night out at a club. The establishment is raided, and William and Charlie are taken off to the police-station. In the morning they are brought up and remanded on bail, but they have been noticed in court by a sharp young Chicago heiress, Miss Virginia Hobbs, who is staying with Mrs Dean, and who has gone to the police-court to inquire for a lost dog. After his night in the cells, William gets home with his dress suit concealed by a cabman's cloak. He is to be married at 12·0 o'clock, and has to appear at the court at 2·0 o'clock, with a prospect of imprisonment without the option of a fine. He dare not confess his difficulty to his future wife, and takes refuge in "tarradiddles." An officer with the same name as his own has been gazetted a major in the Imperial Yeomanry, and is to proceed at once to South Africa. William tells his wife that upon him has fallen the honour of fighting for his country. The wedding takes place, and just as it is over a constable appears on the scene with a warrant for William's arrest. William states that the "bobby" is a messenger from the War Office, and "goes where glory waits him." For a year he stays in concealment at a place called Slushton-in-the-Mud, and then, in a gorgeous Yeomanry uniform and plumed helmet obtained from a costumier's, comes home, and the whole place is decorated in his honour. William tells the most astounding stories. Then the real Colonel William Jackson and his wife turn up, and the complications are more laughable than ever.

The play went merrily from start to finish, and was capitally performed by a talented company. Mr Harry B. Stanford as William acted with fine self-restraint and genuine humour, and caused great amusement by his delivery of the "tarradiddles" of the unveracious hero. As Charlie Smythe Mr Thomas Reynolds played with cool cleverness and real drollery. The part of Mabel Dean was sustained with creditable simplicity by Miss Laura Burt. Miss May Holland as Dorothy Dean was very sweet and bright, and Miss Davis made a smart and lively Virginia Hobbs. Mr Reginald Van Ranney as Dick Norris was bold and natural, and Mr Philip Clifford rendered excellent service as Dr. Jack Gordon. Mr Chris Walker as the fiery old Colonel Jackson acted with great spirit, and Miss Molly Paget was very praiseworthy as Mrs Jackson. Why William Lied is certainly a most amusing farce.

Mr Tom Hopcutt, the genial and courteous licensee and general manager of the Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough, is enjoying a well-earned holiday in Switzerland.

Sidney Carlton, forty-four, described as a theatrical agent, of Leeds, pleaded guilty at Scarborough on Wednesday to three charges of defrauding seaside landladies by falsely representing that he was authorised by the proprietors of the Londesborough Theatre to engage rooms for members of theatrical companies. It was shown that he had called at twenty-six addresses, and collected a shilling commission at each place. Previous convictions having been proved, Carlton was sentenced to twelve months' hard labour.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—One of the most powerful melodramas that have been produced at the Aldershot Theatre is undoubtedly The Temptress, the performance combining talented acting and fine spectacular effect. A capital portrayal of the title-rôle is contributed by Miss Grace E. Leslie, and she finds an excellent partner in the heavy passages of the play in Mr F. D. Daviss, who does well as the villainous Lucas Denbigh. Mr Geo. Dalper gives a capital impersonation of Philip Welford, whilst many amusing incidents are brought about through the funny sayings and doings of Mr Herbert Williams (Bob Tanner), Mr W. G. Gelling (Francis), and Miss Mattie Everett (Rhoda). A difficult rôle, Pedro, is ably played by Mr H. W. Hatchmann. Miss Vasht Wynne is capital as Marion, and Miss Ada Ryder's Madge is a clever performance. Messrs Arthur Sheldon, Walter Bosco, and Wilfred Grahame do well.

The Bandurria Troupe delight all with their mandoline performance, their selections so cleverly rendered being enthusiastically received. Bob Stephenson is a funny Irish comedian, his songs being inimitably rendered and his dancing being voted first-class. Reed and St. Clair appear in their speciality, entitled Spoof from Africa; the renowned Jake Almo Troupe have made a big hit and created laughter with their comical bar act; Kurtz is a really marvellous juggler, and appears to great advantage in his act, "The Mexican Vaquero." BIRMINGHAM.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Mr Norman E. Partriege has by his visit this week abundantly shown that Shakespeare is by no means caviare to the Alexandra clientèle, while his own popularity is nowhere more evident than in this the great city of his birth. On Monday Mr Partriege appeared in the character of Hamlet, conferring many new beauties on the part, and winning for himself a great ovation. Mr Story Gofton as Polonius, Mr B. Holloway as Laertes, Mr D. Beattie as the King, Mr Philip Gordon as the First Gravedigger, Mr J. Hinton as the Second Gravedigger, and Mr E. Wellesley as Horatio assisted in the success, with Miss Millie Ford, who as Ophelia played her difficult part well. The Merry Wives of Windsor, Ingomar, As You Like It, Garrick, and Othello have likewise proved the young star to be an actor of brilliant parts, and the company, which is presented by Mr Esmonde Bramley, well supports him.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Convent Bell, with Mr Howell Webb's company well installed in their parts, was received here on Monday with every sign of success. Mr Howell Webb still gives his finished and forcible impersonation of the villain. Miss Ellen Sennett has even increased the charm of her performance as the heroine. Mr Chas. Homer sings his various songs to much applause, and acts as the hero in the approved manly fashion. The Three Laurels, in their ping-pong speciality, are amusing; as also are Hicks's clerks. Austin and Cowan render their duets with effect; a clever trapeze act is that of the Sylvines Trio; and the Two Manazanares, in their balancing horseshoes act, are good. Rose Harvey sings her songs in her happiest manner. Jack Lorimer and Harry Maxam, comedians, and Freezo, the mystic, are well received.

Another clever animal act is that of Cabaret's dogs. Sable Fern, comedienne, is an old favourite here; Neil Kenyon, Fred Cary, and the Bros. Redmond keep their audience in good spirits; Nelson Hardy, ventriloquist, is entertaining; and the Lizzette Troupe of lady tumblers, the Three Richards (acrobats), and the Three Sisters Anderson, in their feet balancing act, are all exceedingly clever. Elsie Rubina, wire dancer, and J. Devoye, with his performing pony, are also in the programme.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident Manager, Mr Geo. Foster.—Paul Conchas, Continental juggler, meets with a hearty reception. Plenty of laughter is caused by the eccentricities of Bard and O'Brien, and G. W. Foster, the Five Ashleys, Will Haines, Roze and Calvert, and Tom Le May, the musical clown, are strong favourites. The Two O'Malleys create roars of laughter with their patter; Les Bollingers provide an unique act as rag painters; Leonard Barnes displays ability as a sketch artiste; and Nell Richardson, comedienne, completes the bill.

BLACKPOOL.

His Majesty's Opera House.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr Glyn Osborne's company is here this week with The Island of Pharos, which appears to please the numerous holiday makers, who lend their patronage. Mr Arthur Wilmot impersonates the Earl of Enniscorthy, and Mr Daley Cooper plays with considerable cleverness the part of Henry Sykes. William Sykes, the detective, has a good exponent in Mr Maitland Dicker, and Messrs A. L. Barber (Lord Yeovil), Frank Louden (Reginald Powys), and Leonard Russell (Sir John Kerr) also give meritorious performances. The Earl's three daughters are capably portrayed by Misses Cissie Vaughan, Bella Graves, and Ada Rodney. Miss May Clifton is suited to the part of Antigone, and Miss May Brooke does well as Chloe. Miss B. Luscombe plays the arch-nymph.

Huddlestone.—Messrs Huddlestone and Tiller's ballet, entitled Killarney; or, From Kerry Fair to the Gorgeous Feast, has proved a great triumph, and is now witnessed twice daily by big audiences. Preceding the ballet is a capital variety entertainment provided by the Price Troupe, the Kremo Family, Charles Let, with his performing animals, and the Lieslyn Quartet of Glee Singers.

The vivacious Lillie Langtry is still retained, and is a great favourite. R. A. Then there are Billy Hobbs, coon comedian; Millie Lindon, vocalist; Les Brunins, equilibrists; Carlo and Maie, acrobats; Brothers Horne, comedian; Kitty West, vocalist and dancer; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, which is always welcome.

Prince's Hall, Grand Hotel.—An event of considerable interest is the first appearance before Bournemouth audiences of the Misses Ethel and May Harry-Nash, daughters of the late well-known and respected manager of the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth. The occasion was marked by costume recitals on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. These clever young artistes have already given proof of their histrionic abilities in the provinces, where they have earned laurels. They are assisted by Mr Guy H. Inglis (author and composer) and Mr L. Ashton-Jarry (raconteur and humourist).

BRADFORD.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—A capable company, organised by Mr Sydney Spenser, is engaged in the representation here of that gentleman's excellent drama The Hero of the Flag. There is much that is commendable in the piece, which is quite new to the patrons of the theatre, and its patriotic element and naval colouring are much appreciated by the audiences. Miss Lizzie Hall is Mabel Forrester, "the hero," and she achieves a distinct success in the part; and Mr Arthur Chisholm is excellent in his acting as the light-hearted "tar," Jack Lawrence. Mr Spencer is effective as the scheming scoundrel, Paul Mansfield; and Miss Maude Yorke plays with power the part of the discarded wife, Ruth Clifford; and the catspaw, Stephen Clifford, Mr G. F. Royd fills with ability. The comedy element of the piece is well brought out by Mr Johnny M'Elroy as Johnny Truckle, and by Miss Maud Le Ray as his affianced, Jenny Stubbs. The remaining parts in the cast are ably filled, and the drama is well staged, the stirring incidents creating considerable interest.

Empire. — Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr P. A. Lennon.—In his usual irresistible style Mark Sheridan, the quaint comedian, is simply convulsing the audiences here, and Carl Hertz, the illusionist and conjuror (assisted by Mdlle. D'Alton and company), gives a mystifying entertainment which is startling. A musical entertainment which is given by the Jackson Family is distinctly clever, and there is both humour and harmony in the part-singing by the American Comedy Four. Edwin Barwick's "Mimetic Monologues" are very clever, and funny too, and in coon song Victoria Monks is bright and certainly original. The Hoopers go through a clever hoop spinning and juggling entertainment humorously. Rezene and Robini contribute some fun in original style, and the comic, eccentric, and unique vocalism by Fred Zola and E. J. Sheldon are acceptable items in the excellent programme.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—An up-to-date sketch, Motoring, given by Harry Tate's No. 1 company, has the double claim of originality and humour, and there is a clever exhibition of expert trick cycling given by the Westwoods. Connie Milton submits an acceptable comedienne turn; Brindall and Cooper are good comedians and dancers; Leighton and Mona's musical sketch is pleasing and smart; Frank Cass proves an entertaining comedian; Rita and Roma are diverting in a good vaudeville turn; and there is much interest taken in a cake-walk competition arranged by the management, which is to be extended over the whole of the present week.

BRIDLINGTON.

Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The promenade concerts given by Herr Winternitz's Royal Viennese Orchestra gain in popularity every week, the violin solos of the talented conductor being an especial treat to the thousands who assemble nightly in the large new pavilion. The vocalist this week is Mr H. Ward Kemp, a very pleasing baritone. Mr H. Flockton-Foster's costume entertainers are very pleasing. Wednesday was a grand gala night, the firework display being given by Messrs James Pain and Sons.

New Spa and Gardens.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—The company's English orchestra is this week raised to its full strength for the season, and the concerts given under the direction of Dr. Churchill Sibley are very enjoyable. Mr Tom Child is the vocalist for the week, and his fine tenor voice is heard to great advantage in the large pavilion. The London Pierrots always give a capital programme. The American Biograph pictures, in the Grand Hall, are exhibiting some capital moving pictures of the recent Royal Yorkshire Yacht Regatta, recently held in the bay, and also pictures of the Hackenschmidt v. Jenkins wrestling match.

People's Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr William Morgan.—There is a capital variety company here this week. The Marvellous Dillons give a rare show in the form of a drawing-room comedy act, the gymnastic display being a remarkably clever performance. Harry Rylton is a taking eccentric comedian; Louis Vincent is a smart lady impersonator; Madame Stella does a clever double-faced dance; Landora exhibits some remarkable weight-lifting feats; and the Dewers, in their medleys and character sketches, give some very quick change acts. Lester Powell's comedy sketch company appear in their laughable farce Robert Macaire, in which Mr Frank Stoner as Jacques Strop proves himself a first-rate low comedian, and is ably assisted by Mr Herbert Lembey as Macaire. Miss Emma Poole as Marie, Miss Minnie Slater as Berthe, and Miss Maggie Powell as Clementine act nicely, and the other characters are well sustained.

Summer Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton.—Carl Mysto, the handcuff king, is the great attraction to the crowded audiences at this well-conducted resort, and his performance is very mystifying, his escape from the various manacles in which he is nightly bound being very quickly effected. The other items of the programme are contributed by the various members of the popular company, the songs and burlesque quartets of Messrs C. Beanland, Charles Danton, J. B. Bath, George Hyam, J. W. Ellison, and Syd Hind always being redemanded, and Mr P. Newman proves a most able accompanist.

BRIGHTON.

Aquarium.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—Vocal and instrumental concerts are given here each afternoon and evening this week. Miss Emilie Fleet (vocalist) and Mr Davenport (society entertainer) are specially engaged, and the Aquarium orchestra, under the direction of Mr J. W. Slatter, contributes popular selections.

Grand Theatre.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter this theatre, formerly known as the "Eden," was reopened on Monday evening, when Miss Louie Freear and company commenced a week's engagement with Boy Bob. The initial performance was under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of Brighton (Ald. and Mrs E. M. Marx), Sir John Blaker, Ald. J. C. Buckwell, J.P., and other leading local residents. During the evening Mr Ernest Carpenter embraced the opportunity of thanking the crowded audience for the hearty support they had accorded him. A few weeks ago, he said, he came to Brighton a veritable stranger, but the cordial manner in which he had been received on all hands had greatly helped and encouraged him. With regard to future arrangements, he said he intended running the theatre with the best kind of drama, such as the plays of that character produced at the Adelphi, the Princess's, and Drury-lane. At intervals the dramas would be sandwiched with plays of a lighter nature, and at Christmas he intended making a special study of his pantomime—a form of show of which he had had great experience in all parts of the country—and would found his pantomime on the story of "Little Red Riding Hood." Mr Carpenter's brief and ably delivered speech was received with enthusiasm. In Boy Bob the title character was sustained by Miss Louie Freear, whose acting was natural and marked by skilful touches of light comedy and tender pathos. Unstinted praise must be awarded Miss Marie Rignold for her subtle and powerful impersonation of Lottie Brenton; to Stephen Bond for his masterly portrayal of Captain Winton; and to Mr B. Soane Roby for his clever character study as Sergeant Daniels. Others who rendered able support were Miss Dora Rignold, a graceful Edith Vincent; Mr Slaine Mills as Colonel Vincent, Mr Brisco Owen as Lieut. Rex-Herrick, Mr Francis Hawley as Captain Fisher, Mrs H. A. Saintsbury as Mrs Candrough, Mr A. T. Hendon as Sergeant Field, and Miss Jessie Burgwitz as Dora Herrick. The play was preceded by the comedietta Good for Nothing, in which Mr A. T. Hendon and Miss Beryl Mercer were especially effective.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—Harry Randall, in his latest successes; John Lawson and company, in the sensational sketch Humanity; Queenie Lawrence, comedienne; George Gilbey, comedian; F. Warden Reed and company, in Married or Photographed; Ivy Bawn, a charming vocalist; the Brothers Egbert, in The Happy Dustmen; Kelly and Ashby, American acrobatic grotesques; Rita Resdan, impersonator of male characters; and the Alhambra pictures.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Mr John Tiller's company of sixty performers in a delightful pastoral, vocal, and spectacular ballet, entitled Harvest Home; Miss Ida Reene, in The Rake's Progress; Daisy Davidson, New Zealand soprano; the Corty Brothers, talented and whimsical acrobats; the Bros. Ashley in Next, Please; Florizell, the flexible lady aerial beauty; Lottie Siegenberg, protean artiste, in the quick change vocal sketch, The Lady Slavey; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr Charles Carey's company opened here on Monday with Little Lord Fauntleroy. Mr Charles Carey gave an admirable impersonation of the Earl of Dorincourt; Miss Elsie Chapin was very effective as Cedric Errol; Miss Alice Chapin's Mrs Errol was well played; Miss Gertrude Netterville made a pleasing Mary; Miss Lydia Busch was successful as Mina; while Mr Cecil Klein, Mr Walter Russell, Mr Everard Healy, Mr Arthur Vezin, and Mr George Henri also rendered satisfactory support.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is here this week with Cousin Kate. Miss Lilias Earle gives a very charming impersonation of Kate Curtis, and Mr Yorke Stephens is seen at his best as Heath Desmond. Miss Hilda Honiss acquits herself admirably as Amy Spencer, and other characters are ably sustained by Mr Walter Ringham, Master Vyvian Thomas, Miss Helen Dean, and Miss Betty Castle.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—A special performance was given here on the 15th inst. by Madame Sarah Bernhardt and her company, from the Renaissance Theatre, Paris, when the house was packed in all parts. The play selected was La Dame aux Camélias, and Madame Bernhardt's highly artistic portrayal of Marguerite Gautier was duly appreciated. The performance was followed with interest from the first scene to the last, when there was quite a demonstration, and the curtain had to be raised a number of times. Madame Bernhardt was excellently supported by Mons. Decoeur as Armand Duval, Madame Germain as Nanine, Mons. Uelis as Georges Duval, and Mesdames Patry and Seylor as Prudence and Nichette; while all the parts of lesser importance were played with exceptional care and precision.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—There was a good attendance here on Monday evening, when Miss Annie Bell presented a new version of Sapho, by Birkett Winning, supported by a good company. Miss Bell displayed exceptional ability as an emotional actress, rising to a considerable height of dramatic intensity in some of the powerful scenes. Mr John Davidson's impersonation of Jean Gaussin was at all times effective; Mr P. Roberts was highly successful in the short part of Eugène Flamant; Mr G. Antley was smart and amusing as Césaire; and Little Lottie Ray made quite a character study of the child Joseph. Other important parts had ample justice done to them by Miss Lottie Ray, Messrs G. B. Watson, H. Langford, and J. A. Storey, and the smaller characters were all very carefully performed. The mounting of the play by the New Sapho Syndicate, Limited, was satisfactory.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The Patty Frank Troupe of acrobats give an excellent performance, many of their difficult feats being quite novel. Nellie Howard and Willie Collinson present an amusing act, The Porter and the Parcel, in which Miss Howard represents a doll and dances skilfully. Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards," amuse with their absurdities; N. Kito, Japanese equilibrist, does some clever feats; Mdlle. Aladina's cockatoos are excellently trained; Mons. De Henau paints remarkably well with his toes and does other surprising things; both Harry Barker and Sid Bandon are successful in vocal turns; Burke and M'Voy amuse with comedy tumbling; and the Max Trevally-Harley Troupe do some comedy acrobatics. The performance concludes with some good Japanese animated pictures. The theatre is now being reupholstered throughout by Mr Charles Hatcher, of Broadmead, Bristol.

ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.—Superintendent, Captain Villiers.—On the 15th inst. and two following days Messrs Harcourt-Williams and Garnet Holmes presented pastoral plays here, the company being an exceptionally good one. The weather was all that could be desired, so naturally the attendance at each performance was very large. The company included, amongst others, Mr Harcourt-Williams, Miss Constance Robertson, Mr A. E. George, Mr Herbert Grimwood, Mr Halliwell Hobbs, Mr Alfred A. Harris, Mr Charles La Trobe, Miss Evelyn Hall, Miss Penelope Wheeler, and Miss Helena Clements.

BUXTON.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week we had the ever popular Charley's Aunt, played by Mr W. S. Penley's company. Mr W. Beaumont is responsible for a very capably acted Stephen Spettigue and Mr Sydney Lynn is also admirably placed as Col. Sir Francis Chesney. Mr H. Lynn gives a capable rendering of Jack Chesney, and Mr B. Lynn is also in every way excellent as Charley Wykeham. Mr E. Baker's "Babs" is fairly bubbling over with humour, and he greatly pleases the audience. The laconic Brasset is judiciously played by Mr Frederick Tyrrell. Miss L. Sibley as Donna Lucia acts with ease, and Miss Kitty Verdum and Miss Renie Roy are a sprighty pair of sweethearts for the undergrads. Miss Winifred Ingham played nicely her small part of Ellia Delahay. On Thursday Joseph Entangled was staged.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr George G. Ridley.—Here we have Uncle Tom's Cabin. The company is toured under the direction of Mr Charles Harrington, who also appears as Phineas Fletcher. Miss Hetty Johnson is the Eliza Harris; Mr J. Carr, Uncle Tom; Mr A. H. Majilton, Marks; Miss Sylvia Stella, Topsy; Miss Zerlina Zerbini, Cassy; and Little Minnie is the Little Eva.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—At the top of the bill we have Lady Mansel and Juveniles, who give a number of songs and dances in capital style. The Singing Box-makers (Dolly, Agnes, and Maud) are freely applauded for their vocal contributions, as are also the Brooklands, a couple of lively serios. Signor and Madame Prosper Benn give a neat musical comedy act under the title of From the Pavement to the Stage; Lacey's Erascope continues to find up-to-date subjects; while other artistes are Fred Walker, comedian, and Geo. Foyle, character vocalist.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank J. Donne.—The Maples are making a distinct hit with their spirited dances; Parke's Eton Boys include several attractive vocalists; Mr Ernest Rees' patter is as funny as any given here for some time past; Miss Violet Carlisle is starring as a ballad singer; and others in the programme are Ossi Souplessl, a supple contortionist; Frank Marney, comedian; and Millie Denham, burlesque actress and descriptive vocalist.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbury Hardy.—Messrs Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company forms the attraction here with the military drama, The Two Hussars. Mr James Stuart gives a fine impersonation of Colonel Manners. Mr F. J. Webb depicts Captain Paul Villiers with rare ability. Mr G. Paradise makes a droll Sergeant M'Finnie, and Mr Louis Nanton is a humorous Trooper Robert Runn. Mr Wilson Benge shows a manly Harry Alford, Mr T. James distinguishes himself as Lewis Montague, Miss Lallah Price is a vivacious Molly Cutts, and Ellen Maythorne and Will Gunstock are well embodied by Miss M. Danvers-Smith.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—Boucicault's Irish drama, Arrah-na-Pogue, is being played here by the stock company, under the direction of Mr Alfred Lester. Shaun the Post, the "rale Irish bhoy," is humorously impersonated by Mr Lester himself. Mr W. C. Bland admirably plays the character of Michael Feeney; Beamish M'Coul finds an excellent exponent in Mr Fred Emery; The O'Grady is acted in a dignified manner by Mr George Arthur, and the Sergeant by Mr D. Willing is well rendered. Miss Lalla Stanhope as Arrah Meelish is a typical Irish maiden, and the coquettish Fanny Power could not have a better representative than Miss Kate E. Leslie. The Royal will be closed next week, reopening on August Bank Holiday.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—The Fiends of London, a drama of undoubted merit, met with hearty approval on Monday from every part of the large house. The plot moves along on exciting lines, and follows the fortunes of the racecourse. Bob Archer, horse trainer and jockey, is brilliantly played by Mr Herbert Fuller; a finished performance was that of Mr F. C. Byron as the villainous Captain Crawley; Mr William Burgess was excellent as Sir Horace Bream; the rôle of Sophie Shade was well presented by Miss Agnes Collier; and the dual-rôle of Little Tim and Sally Frost by Little Gladys deserves warm commendation. The comedy is excellent, and the singing and dancing of Miss Emily Lewis as Flossie Sprint were thoroughly enjoyed. The Race Track scene in act four proved a tremendous go, and the specialities introduced in act one are of a high order.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—Paul Cinquevalli heads the bill this week, and the marvellous performance given by the world's greatest juggler keeps the audience absolutely spellbound. Considerable amusement is caused by the antics of his attendant. Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins provide a diverting sketch entitled Mashing the Missus, and endless fun is caused by the black-faced comedians Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq. The Three Missouris as "Captain Kettle and his Mates" give a clever and amusing acrobatic performance; George Booker and Mabel Narbis are a couple of exceptionally smart artistes; the Langdons give as fine an illustrated show as Cardiffians have ever seen; the Smythsons are good in their comedy sketch Our Suite; and Alix Lukos presents a series of dramatic reminiscences with elaborate effects. Owing to the indisposition of Madame Emmy, the Bioscope, with new pictures, deputised.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—The sensational drama entitled A Hidden Crime, played by Mr A. G. Lytton's company, is proving a considerable attraction here this week. Rose Adair, the heroine, is well rendered by Miss Hilda Clyde, while Jack Harrington, a detective, is in the capable hands of Mr A. E. Calver; Henry Adair, a retired miner, is effectively portrayed by Mr A. G. Lytton; Cecil Newton is well rendered by Mr S. Arnold; Marion Ferrara is ably embodied by Miss M. Romney; the same remarks applying to Miss Bessie Frank (Kitty Raynor), Miss Amy Valerie (Mrs Brander), Mr H. Ray (Tom Dacre, a journalist), Mr H. Melrose (Hop-Wah, a Chinaman).

CROYDON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—The military drama Dishonoured, with a very capable company under the direction of Miss Winifred Stuart, is meeting with much favour here. The play is interesting and is both well dressed and staged. Mr Percy Ballard cuts a most soldier-like figure, and throughout invests his part with distinction and considerable merit. Miss Winifred Stuart as Mrs Cunningham acts with considerable charm and care, enlisting both sympathy and applause. Mr William Bradford as Lieut. Cecil Peyntland acquits himself quite successfully of an onerous part, showing much promise. Mr Frank Stuart as Colonel Cunningham gives a firm reading of the part and looks well; and Mr Frank Fuller is successful as the Afridi Chief. Miss Marion Mayne is distinctly good as both Azeemah and Anna Maria. Mike Farthing is a good bit of character as delineated by Mr Cecil Morand, and Mr Jack Bigwood is very neat and breezy as Jim Stokes. Mr Sidney Palfrey and others render good aid in more or less important parts.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—It is with an expression of sincere regret, shared by the patrons of this house, that we preface this notice at the passing away of one of the directors, the famous Mr Herbert Campbell, a well-known figure and a staunch friend and favourite here. Large houses are the order, and a good programme is headed by the marvellous Japanese acrobatic troupe Lukuhima, the enthusiasm over them being unbounded. The M'Mays are spirited in their duet "Who's to nurse the baby" and dances; Mr T. C. Callaghan tickles the risibilities of the audience with his three good character songs; and Miss Dorothy Cameron, tastily attired in burlesque boy costume, charms us with her "I want to be a drummer," assisted by the exuberant young man in the band. The Palace pictures are a decided feature of the show here, and are keenly enjoyed. Mr Chris Wren is a funny fellow; Miss Elorrie St. Clair, a capital serio and dancer, hits the mark; and the Goodfellows also show to advantage as American comedy and dance artistes. Mr Edgar Granville sings an acceptable song about the Chelsea pensioner, &c.

DEAL.

SOUTH PARADE.—On Saturday the Bohemian concert party, under the direction of Mr George Sharp, gave entertainments to large audiences. The artistes consist of Mr Percy Musgrove, who has a nice baritone voice; Mr Charles Howarth, comedian; Mr Clifton West, comedian (both are very refined and cause a good deal of amusement); and Mr Thomas Kay works hard as accompanist.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—Another variety company is here this week, the combination being of considerable merit. Bugler Dunne, of Colenso fame, gives a number of calls upon the bugle presented to him by her late Majesty, Queen Victoria, and also takes part in a military sketch entitled Defending the Flag, and he has probably never been more cordially welcomed than here. Frances and Frances, in the comedy sketch A Misunderstanding, give convincing proof of their ability; and La Belle Kosa, Royal mandolinist, is clever and engaging. Queena Barnes contributes in fine style some popular songs, and Frank Tyrell, comedian and dancer, is distinctly clever. Much genuine diversion is created by Professor Benson, ventriloquist. A sensation akin to a furore follows the contribution of Collin and Irene, second-sight experts.

DOUGLAS.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming; Business-Manager, Mr T. R. Wood.—Mr George Edwardes's company, in San Toy, holds the stage at the Grand Theatre during this week, and has drawn large audiences. The piece is really delightfully played, and goes with a swing, which is accounted for when it is known that Mr J. A. P. Malone was responsible for the production. The name-part is played by Miss Fanny Dango, who makes a real success. San Toy requires an actress as well as a singer and a dancer, and Miss Fanny Dango is an artiste. Miss Alice Lethbridge, of course, is "just so" as Rose Tucker. An actress of her reputation and experience seldom makes mistakes. Miss May Francis made Poppy the bright young English girl. Amongst comedians of resource Mr John Humphries holds rank. The Mandarin secured laughter. Mr Colin Coup as the Emperor was well suited, and the Li of Mr E. Statham Staples was adroitly comic. One difficulty in musical comedy of this calibre is the jeune première, because he must be a tenor and he should be manly. On the obiter dicta of that great writer, George Eliot, "When God made a tenor he spoilt a man." This statement is contradicted by Mr Reginald Kenneth, who plays Captain Bobby Preston. He looks Young England, and he sings the patriotic song, "Motherland" with pathos and passion. The Dudley of Miss Maud Darling was bright, and the other characters were adequately enacted. The chorus was picturesque and could sing.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.—The production at the Gaiety Theatre of Amorelle this week has been something of a function. The musical-director, Mr Harry Rushworth, is associated with the island. The audiences have been large and appreciative. The comic opera, written by Messrs Barton White and E. Boyd Jones, with music by M. Gaston Serpette has every essential element which makes for popularity. The composer has provided numbers of a champagne quality. The story is interesting; the lyrics are graceful and clever. The interpretation is excellent. Miss Stella Gastelle is by way of being a genius, and her creation of Amorelle is a truly charming characterisation. She sings with verve, she dances with grace, she acts with intensity. Mr Eric Thorne as Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crowe was artistically amusing. He disdained caricature and contented himself by securing the laughter and applause of a highly intelligent audience. Miss Kitty Cavendish was a pleasing Lesbia; the Marina of Miss Madge Avery was most acceptable; Mr Phil Carlton as Jules sings well and acts with distinction; Mr Newton Ide also is an acquisition as well as an addition to the cast. Other important characters are well played by Messrs F. Carrington, George Paulton, and Robert Fairbanks. The dresses are beautiful, the scenery is excellent, and the whole production stamps Mr Herbert Ralland, who is responsible for it to Mr Levilly, whose company it is, and to the public, as a stage-manager who knows his business from A to Z.

THE NEW EMPIRE.—Managers, Messrs Elderton and Smith; Business-Manager, Mr A. E. Smith.—The revival of the pantomime Babes in the Wood has attracted good audiences to this popular place of amusement. They like the clever acting of Messrs Maxwell, Padley, Mathews, Miss Elsie Douglas, and the other members of this hard working company.

PALACE, LTD.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain.—It is not easy to achieve a reputation, but with an effort it is possible. The Palace, because its directors with their manager are men with brains who think of to-morrow as well as to-day, have not only secured a prestige for the entertainment they exploit, which no mal-adroitness could destroy, but they keep it up. During the afternoon Mr Harry Wood and the Palace orchestra and Mr George Burton's Pierrots give an al fresco entertainment. In the evening at seven Mr Burton's Strolling Bohemians submit an interesting show in the Kiosk at the gates. At eight dancing commences in the Grand Ball Room. The variety programme includes that clever dramatic vocalist, Mr Leo Stormont; the Imperial troupe of vocalists and dancers; Mr Harry Freeman, who still continues to sing Bacchanalian songs which have stirring choruses; and another interesting item is Jean Seul, the Indian mystery. This show has created much interest. The Strolling Players give an entirely novel performance which evokes enthusiastic applause. The two Anartos, clever and resourceful comedians, make the artistic success they deserve.

DERBY CASTLE—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Kelly.—There has been a record week at Derby Castle. The Island is peopled by Scotchmen, and Mr Harry Lauder is the star turn. As a humourist of the style peculiar to the land of cakes, Mr Lauder has few equals, and his countrymen regard him as the Cockney does Mr Dan Leno or Mr Arthur Roberts. There is a new bijou theatre so as not to interfere with the dancing, which continues from eight until eleven. The programme is an excellent one, and includes Messrs Barratt and Knowles, quaint comedy merchants; Baroni and Kemp, who give a remarkable exhibition of quick changing; Paulinetti and Piquo, who present a clever gymnastic act which possesses humour; up-to-date animated pictures, and Miss Cassie Walmer, an experienced vocalist and smart dancer.

THE HIPPODROME.—Directors, Mr C. H. Powell and Mr F. J. Connor.—A circus has ever a charm for pleasure seekers, and the enterprise which Mr C. H. Powell and Mr F. J. Connor control so admirably has drawn crowded audiences during the week. The reason is that the programme presented is clever. The Lynches, song illustrators, cause great enjoyment. They are really refined vocalists, and the coloured pictures which illumine their ballads are artistic. The Cee-Mee Family give a daring turn. The cake-walking horse has many admirers. Ernestine's living statuary is an artistic interlude. The clowns are funny. Every item is worth seeing, from Algie, the juggler, through a long entertainment, which includes the Grovinis, Harland and Rollinson, the Dog Minstrels, and Cattle, the ladder king.

BUXTON'S PIERROTS AND VILLAGE draw large audiences with an excellent entertainment.

BURTON'S PIERROTS on the promenade demand and deserve their share of patronage.

DARE'S MINSTRELS on Douglas Head are now reaping a rich harvest for clever work.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Mr Stanley Cooke and company are doing every justice to the presentation of A New Clown for three nights. The principal figure in the play is that of Lord Cyril Garston, a rôle undertaken by Mr Stanley Cooke. His impersonation is full of humour, and applause loud and sustained follows him from his initial entry to the conclusion of the comedy. Captain Jack Trent finds an admirable exponent in Mr Fred Paul, who deserves the strongest commendation for his portrayal. The ruffianisms of Thomas Baker are duly emphasised by the excellent acting of Mr Fred Lake. A capital part, and one thoroughly suited to its exponent, is that of Mr Dixon, the circus proprietor, played with brilliancy by Mr Herbert Greville. Mr James Benwell is entitled to high praise for his energetic and effective study of Billy, the "modern Hercules." Mr Alan Borthwick is amusingly eccentric as Mr Pennyquick. Mr Humphrey Warden is good as Figgis. The small part of Mr Lamb is in the hands of Mr Allen Spencer. Miss Evelyn Maxwell is charmingly natural as Maud Chesterton, and Miss Violet Greville is equally good as Winnie. Miss Amy Francis contributes some of the best work of the evening in her delineation of Rosie Platt, the circus favourite. A word of praise must be given to Ping-Pong, a highly intelligent well-trained donkey, who adds considerably to the success of the comedy scenes, and is the recipient of well-merited applause. The New Clown is preceded each evening by an excellent curtain-raiser entitled The Test. Charles Frohman's company in Sherlock Holmes came here on Thursday.

DUNDEE.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Dundee Empire Company, Limited.—Mr A. W. B. Kingston's company is producing a dramatised version of "Rob Roy." Mr Kingston in the title-part makes an impressive figure as the bold outlaw. As Bailie Nicol Jarvie Mr Harry Egan has greatly enhanced his reputation. The other characters are in capable hands, and a good performance is given.

DUBLIN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—Mr Dudley Clinton and company entered on their second week here on Monday, when the farcical comedy Betsy was presented. Mr W. H. Denny gives a laughable interpretation of Mr Dawson; Mr Birkett was ably taken by Mr Dudley Clinton; the Mrs Birkett of Miss Bessie Harrison was a creditable performance; and as Adolphus Birkett and Dick Talbot Messrs Keith Fraser and A. C. Thornhill were all that could be desired. Mr Henry Doughty made a capable Captain M'Manus; Miss May Jerrold was excellent as Betsy; William was capitally played by Mr W. Prince Wells; and as Mrs M'Manus Miss Elizabeth Watson was very good. Miss Edith Leyland as Madame Polenta, Miss May Sydney as Clara Peyton, and Miss Ethel Maguire as Nellie Bassett were also satisfactory in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—On Circumstantial Evidence is being played here this week by Mr Charles Clifford's company. Jack Ogilvy has an able exponent in Mr Gordon Stuart; Miss Maud Camfield is most effective as Violet Ogilvy; Mr Charles Clifford admirably sustains the rôle of Captain Hamilton; Miss Mildred Eversleigh cleverly acts the dual parts of Olga and Mary Brandoni; Mr Larry Clements gives a humorous impersonation of Jeremiah Tobin; as Tim, the waif, Miss Gladys Clifford displays much ability; Mr A. M. James does well as Sir Laurence Kinlock; and as Polly Smithers Miss Addie Adair is capital. Mr Milton Curtis as Captain Hamilton, Mr J. Holt as Sergeant Cavour, Mr M. Taylor as Sergeant Gabriel, Mr Anderson Delph as Warder Symes, Mr James Long as the Convict, and Mr Dalton Bosher as Antonia are all worthy of mention.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The management here has provided a good all-round bill for the week, the premier position being allotted to Nellie Wallace, whose catchy songs are nightly encored. Arthur Lloyd and company are most amusing in the sketch Little Charlie; or, the Twin Sisters, and Dion Wade is a droll comedian. The New York Nippers in their entertainment entitled Bedtime cause no end of laughter. The Howards are a successful musical turn, as is also Maud Ross, comedienne. W. H. Liddy is a clever character vocalist; Will Mitcham, musical comedian, meets with approval; Palles and Cussick, who remain from last week, are still scoring; and the Empire Pictures, showing recent events, are also good.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy. — The attraction here this week is Claude Ginnett's Rejected Remounts, a most interesting show, which is well received. The Cullane Trio, in the sketch, The Dudc's Dilemma, meets with success; and Annie Cohen is a pleasing comedienne. The poses of Mdlle. Leah Kloet are artistic; W. P. Dempsey is a clever comedian; the Lynchs (Nell and Joe) are expert rifle shots; and Jack M'Cormick is an acceptable character comedian; Stanley and Vandyke give an agreeable turn; and Amy Bellwood, comedienne, and Wilfred, the Canadian marvel, also contribute to a well-varied programme.

EASTBOURNE.

Miss Jessamine Newcombe does well as Lady Maud, and Mr Frank Morton as Flash Jack is excellently placed. The scenery is pretty and effective.

LEICESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—In Dark Siberia, presented by Mr T. Jarman's company, is the attraction here this week. The play, which is on a first visit, is well mounted, and met with a cordial reception from a capital house on Monday evening. Riley (Captain Victor Gordon), Mr Charles Osborne (Major Waroff), Mr H. Seymour (Colonel Nevski), and Mr Fowler Thatcher (Sergeant Petrovitch).

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—At the head of the usual attractive vaudeville programme presented here is George Lashwood, who is always sure of a hearty welcome. Mr Lashwood is singing some new and melodious songs, the audience insisting on encore after encore. At the other end are the Andos, happy little Japs, who are giving a wonderfully smart show, consisting of juggling, wire-walking, and acrobatics. A sensation is caused by one of the troupe ascending to the roof by walking up a rope, and then sliding down again to the stage. The Glenroy Troupe of male and female characteristic dancers are scoring their usual success; Manning's Entertainers, in their latest sketch, A Hotel Boots, are creating the heartiest of laughter; Mdlle. Yvette, with her miniature hippodrome, supplies a clever and entertaining item; Billy Farrell, Creole comedian; the Sakers (Alfred and Alice), society entertainers; the Densmores, in a comic juggling pantomime; and Chris Richards, a very versatile eccentric comedian, are others who give turns that are meeting with well-merited appreciation.

The company, which is an all-round good one, includes the author, who acts the part of Captain Thornton; Mr Austen Milroy, who gives a pleasing presentation of Stephen Haysel, a doctor; and Miss M. Mr Herne is seen to great advantage in the prominent rôle of Harry Oaklands, the hero of the story, while the corresponding part of Mary Bathurst, the heroine, is rendered with distinction by Miss Ida Millais. These are very capably supported by Mr Fred Conyers (who makes an excellent villain), Mr William Matthews, Mr Claude Haviland, Mr Sidney H. Morton, Mr Alfred Burrows, Mr Vaughan Howe, Mr George North, Miss Kate Maynard, and Miss Sybil Hammersley, most of them contributing a share towards the humour of the piece. Stringer.—The sensation of this week's programme here is undoubtedly Amelie De La Greze, a vocalist of abnormal gifts, who demonstrates her ability to sing a note three octaves higher than the middle C on the piano. The notes are reached apparently with no more effort than an ordinary singer employs, and the tone is as sweet and mellow as that of a flute. The next important turn on the programme is Brinn, in "Pastimes on a Battleship," in which he exhibits enormous strength and courage. A very pleasing item is Nelson's Newsboys' Quintet of harmonious vocalists; and good turns are contributed by Horace Wheatley, Irish comedian and dancer; Fred Keeton, comedian; Du Bois and Ramza, American eccentric acrobats; the Eight English Roses, vocalists and dancers; and the Bros. Decker, the American who was anxious to pose as a Britisher; and Mr John R. Collins was a capable Claude Nizril. Mr Richard Boleyn was effective as Lord Landacre, and Mr George Elliston scored as the sharper Jeb Tosh. Miss Hilda Stewart was particularly good as the Hon. Miss Rita Rosslyn scores as Corinne, and Miss Emma Lester plays Susette most commendably. ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General Manager, Mr C. M. Julian.—The good business one usually associates with a visit of Mr Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce has again resulted this week. The piece seems to lose none of its hold on the public, and the various episodes in the career of Napoleon and Josephine are followed with the greatest interest. The principal characters are admirably sustained by Mr G. W. Cockburn and Miss Amy M'Neill, and amongst their supporters are Messrs W. Dexter, Frank Stone, W. T. Clifford, A. Wellesley; Misses Lilla Wilde, Beatrice Webb, and Little Doris Fitzgerald.

WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr William Holland.—On Monday, in the presence of a large audience, two ballets, under the personal direction of Mr John Tiller, Dresden China and Jolly Jack, were successfully launched. The first deals with the period associated with Watteau, and there is some pretty minuet work, while the second deals with life in a fishing village in the "good old days" of smugglers and the press-gang. Both are mounted and dressed with care and at considerable expense. The principal characters are entrusted to Misses Bessie Cohen, Lizzie Haye, May Sharples, Mabel Higson, Bella Bates, Pollie Bates; Messrs Bob Selvidge and Teddy Gibbs. The music is tuneful and is rendered with much taste by Mr Thomas Shaw's band. In the rôle of Isobel, Miss Maggie Fraser affords pleasure by her songs and dances. Miss Mary Palmer as Tilly Tinsel, Miss Belle Fossette as Miss Matilda Birkins, and Miss Harland as Olga capably fill these parts. Much hearty laughter is occasioned by Mr Francis Hope, who, as Lieutenant Archibald Lambton, dons for the greater part of the evening feminine apparel. Mr Frank Stather acts and sings in good style as Frank Saville, and Mr Jack Durant as the Prince and Mr Eric Dalvere as Major Davenport give adequate performances. Some smartly executed dances are contributed by the Rosie Rice Quartet. The orchestra and chorus are under the direction of Mr George Sheldon, who has written the book and lyrics.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Mr Edward Marris's new drama, As Midnight Chimes, is meeting with a favourable reception this week from Palace audiences. Mr Frank E. Petley depicts in a suitably vigorous and manly way the rôle of Dave Stannard. Much ability is displayed by Mr Melville Bickford in his effective delineation of Luke Dezzard. Mr Witty Watty Walton, a favourite comedian, has plenty of scope as Tat Spavvin, and never misses a chance. He is assisted in the comedy scenes by Miss Lizzie Primmer, who makes a bright Suzette. Miss Marie Loreth submits an earnest and sympathetic embodiment of Mary Stannard. Mr Henry Beaufort gives a good impersonation of Ezra Gamble, and Mr Percy Maitland does well as Nat Wilson.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Florrie Forde is making a welcome appearance here with a budget of new songs, which she gives in her usual rousing, swinging style, and her success is emphatic. Wonders, indeed, are the Wille Brothers, whose exploits as head and hand balancers are simply marvellous. In the way of trick cycle riding nothing better could be desired than the skilful exhibition given by the Kaufmann Troupe, composed of eight ladies, and their attractive appearance is another point in their favour. Edwin Boyde is responsible for some of the heartiest laughter heard during the evening, a fitting acknowledgment of his powers as a comedian. A precocious juvenile artiste is Hanid Alexander, who gives her songs with true expression and displays much proficiency as a pianiste. The merit of Stewart and Morgan's performance in their vocal speciality is quickly recognised; and Lew Wells with his saxophone solos and humorous remarks is well received. Walter Groves is warmly welcomed, and as Artful Jim, in the sketch of that name, his comical acting and gagging illusions to "poor Pink" cause much merriment. B. and T. Kreegers, in a grotesque musical extravaganza; J. H. Hirst, in his facial act; Little Fred, with his acrobatic and football dogs; and Jessie Burnett, comedienne, are all successful contributors to an attractive programme.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—The Creo Brothers are appearing in their sketch The Gipsies, in which they amply demonstrate their ability as acrobats, and there is a vein of comedy throughout their proceedings which makes their act very enjoyable. An old favourite in George Ripon is well received in his vocal comedy efforts. The operatic burlesque Jack Sheppard affords Verno and Voyce the opportunity of displaying their excellence as vocalists. Strength and gymnastic ability are exhibited by the Three Romas, the gladiatorial marvels, while Steel and Laing are expert dancers, the male partner treating us to some smart tumbling and acrobatic work. Clarice Netta is a pleasing vocalist, and Raffin's monkeys give an interesting performance. The Three Sisters Selwyn in song and dance are favourably received, and A. G. Spry, comedian, is singing two songs at each performance. Animated pictures are also exhibited.

A CHAT WITH MR. EILLE NORWOOD.

Mr Eille Norwood was adjusting a cleverly-contrived bald patch on his head, the "sensitive spot" referred to by Lady Jessica, for the part of Gilbert Nepean, in The Liars, which he is now playing in Sir Charles Wyndham's company at the New Theatre, when our representative called upon him.

"When did you enter the profession?" "Shortly after graduating at Cambridge. I commenced with Mr F. R. Benson's Shakespearian company, appearing as Paris and similar parts, and was with him for the best part of a year. After that I was engaged for Fedora and Marks and Faces, and then went to Mr Edward Compton for leading parts."

"Fine experience, but hard work!" "Yes, indeed, but there's the luck of it! I had the good fortune, for years of touring, to play in nothing but répertoire, a chance that rarely occurs nowadays, and in later years I found the training of inestimable value."

"Are you a quick study?" "Very. As an instance I may mention that the week after I joined Mr Compton, I played Young Marlow, Monday; Joseph Surface, Tuesday; Captain Absolute, Wednesday; Harry Dornton, Thursday; Aulaby, in The Actor, Friday; and Tom Tallyhaut, in Garrick, Saturday."

"A stiff week's work truly! Didn't Mr Compton produce your first one-act play Hook and Eye?" "He did, in Leeds, and I am glad to say that the piece has since been played by most amateur clubs in England and the Colonies, and Chalk and Cheese, a later one of mine, has proved equally fortunate."

"When you left the Compton comedy company where did you go?" "I believe my next move was to the now-demolished Globe Theatre to play Captain Gilchrist, in Bootles' Baby, which part I took up at two hours' notice, appearing without any rehearsal with the cast. I was retained for the country tour with the full London company, on the conclusion of which I signed to go to Australasia, under the management of Mr Brough and Mr Boucicault, where I remained for three years, acting in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, Tasmania, and New Zealand."

"What was your favourite part out there?" "Clement Hale, in Sweet Lavender."

"Have you ever played it in England?" "No; but I have frequently represented Dick Phenyl, in the same play."

"Somewhat of a contrast, eh?" "Yes; but that's just where the advantage of répertoire training comes in; you don't feel tied down to one line or style of acting."

"On your return to England you went into management on your own account, didn't you?" "At Terry's Theatre, where I produced a three-act farce of mine, The Noble Art, but although I started well, the General Election came along, and I had to accept defeat, and solace myself with the favourable notices that appeared in the papers.

MR. EILLE NORWOOD.

Some time after that I was laid low by a serious illness, which resulted in the necessity of a severe operation being performed, and when I was able to resume work I found I was completely forgotten, and had slipped back to zero! But whilst Micawberising I produced plays for the Duchess of Sutherland, the Marchioness of Zetland, the Countess of Lathom, Georgiana, Countess of Guilford, Lady George Gordon Lennox, Lady Bolton, Lady Ribblesdale, Lady Milner, Mrs Willie James, Mrs Arthur Wilson, Mrs D'Arcy, Mrs Arthur Knowles, and Mr Ernest Beckett. I resumed my professional acting in Hook and Eye at the Vaudeville Theatre, whence I went to the Strand Theatre, where, by arrangement, I 'presented' my three-act farce The Talk of the Town; and after my season there I was engaged for a principal part in The Little French Milliner (the title was my suggestion), at the Avenue Theatre."

"And then?" "Then, as there was 'nothing doing,' I went to my home in the north, firmly convinced that I should never get another engagement—a common complaint with actors! But I didn't waste my time. In addition to the words and music of some songs—one that I recently wrote for the Cambridge Footlights Club, and sung in the revived New Dean last May Week, will shortly be introduced into a West-end popular musical comedy—I wrote and produced a three-act play, The Favours of Fortune, for Miss Muriel Wylford; then I was engaged by Mr Arthur Bourchier to play his part of Bramley Burville, in Mr H. V. Esmond's My Lady Virtue at the Garrick Theatre, appearing in it for a month, during which time Sir Charles Wyndham witnessed my performance, and offered me an engagement for leading parts.

"Your first appearance was in Mrs Gorringe's Necklace, I believe?" "Yes, and after that very successful production My Lady of Rosedale was staged, in which I had an excellent chance as Fitzallen."

"And which the critics agreed you made the most of!" "I was very fortunate to win their good opinion; but Sir Charles is the finest stage-manager I have ever been under, and the successful result of one's work is in no small measure attributable to his admirable methods. For the play following, The Bride and Bridegroom, I was cast for the Bridegroom, but the piece did not enjoy the run that was anticipated, for which the unfortunate disturbance on the first night was chiefly responsible; and, after a brief revival of David Garrick—in which, by the way, Sir Charles wore a pair of buckles I lent him that formerly belonged to the great David himself—The Liars was revived, and my allotted rôle was that of Gilbert Nepean."

"And your future plans?" "I sail for America in September for lead with Mr Nat Goodwin, who releases me to return to England in time to reopen at Easter with Sir Charles Wyndham, in London, in a new play."

The curtain rises on a beautiful scene depicting Ching Foo's Tea House (Exterior), where a chorus is being sung. On the conclusion Ka-Hi announces that the Viceroy has lost his family heirloom, the famous ruby which has been their Excellency's lucky talisman for generations, and he offers a reward for its recovery. Ching Foo comes and tells the girls that the Viceroy is expected to visit them during the day for the purpose of collecting the taxes due. The visit is a failure so far as increasing the funds of the national exchequer, and the disconsolate Viceroy enquires from his secretary if he has heard from the matrimonial agency in London concerning his application for a wife, who must be wealthy. Tang-a-Lang answers that he has cabled a reply to Princess Stephanie, of Mashonaland, accepting her proposal, and further that she is expected to arrive that day. Belle Brighton, a new tea girl, from the Piccadilly Pagoda, London, who has been engaged by Ching Foo, arrives, and is mistaken by Tang-a-Lang and Viceroy for the Princess. The Princess Stephanie arrives later, and complications ensue over the mistakes. The Viceroy gets in a hopeless muddle, and says he is ruined, as he has lost his ruby, proposed to two ladies at once, and does not know what to do. Lieutenant West offers to find the ruby, as he has heard Ching-Foo, in his intoxicated ramblings, say he has stolen the ruby and concealed it in the Temple of the Gods, Canton, and the act closes as the Lieutenant commences his journey.

Act two discloses the Temple of the Gods, with worshippers chanting and offering their devotions at the shrine of the idol. The Lieutenant is followed by the Viceroy, and the latter is persuaded by the former to personate the idol, so that they can watch Ching-Foo and find the hiding-place of the ruby. The Viceroy does so, and some funny scenes ensue. Finally Ching arrives, and is confronted by the Lieutenant, and in the struggle which follows Ching knocks the Lieutenant down, and is about to escape when the Viceroy throws off the idol's robes and seizes him; but, after all, Ching again makes off with the ruby.

Ching Foo hides in the gardens of the Temple with the ruby. Lieut. West comes in search of him, along with Viceroy's daughter, Pitti-Pat. Lieut. West leaves her to search the grounds, when Ching Foo, who has been hidden, appears and confesses he has been in love with her for years. She repulses him. He strikes her and leaves her insensible. Hearing the priests approach, he hides in a tree. Lieut. West finds Pitti Pat. She tells him Ching Foo is about and has the ruby. He discovers Ching. They fight, and Ching Foo is disarmed by West. The Viceroy enters, and Ching Foo is searched, the ruby being found on his person. The Viceroy gives his consent to his daughter's marriage with West, and commands Ching Foo as punishment to marry Princess Stephanie. He himself (the Viceroy) arranges to marry Belle, and all ends happily.

The artistes had been well rehearsed, consequently everything passed off pleasantly. Mr J. G. Maine (Ching Foo) compensates for lack of lines by some excellent character acting. Mr Fred Danvers (the author) combines the character of Viceroy with the stage-management, and succeeds in infusing an amount of comedy which is relished by the audience. Tang-a-Lang finds a capable exponent in Mr Dawson Dewick, who introduces some lively songs. Pitti Pat is pleasantly delineated by Miss Mabel Mainwaring, and Miss Marie Rainbird as the Piccadilly tea-girl and Miss Emmie Milstead as the Princess Stephanie are able exponents of their respective parts.

The music and scenery and everything are worthy of the management of Mr J. Gar Kiddie, who takes the piece on what must be a successful tour.

"CUTTING OUT A PRIZE."

A One-act Play, by Fenton Mackay,
Produced, for the First Time on Any Stage, at the Grand Theatre, Margate,
on Monday, July 18.

William Blifkins	Mr RICHARD BOLEYN
Benjamin Blifkins	Mr GEORGE ELLERSTON
Harry Weatherly	Mr HAROLD E. WADEBY
Nance	Miss BEATRICE EGERTON

Nance is a romantic young lady who comes to her two uncles, William and Benjamin, as their orphaned ward. The two guardians have no difficulty in dealing with the wayward girl all the while she is young enough to be submissive to their rather old-fashioned bachelor habits. But when she begins to blossom into womanhood she shows she has a strong will, and wants to have her own way in everything. Through her pet, Fido, falling into the water, and its rescue by Harry, she gives her heart into the keeping of the breezy young sailor, but this coming to the knowledge of her uncles they threaten to keep her a prisoner in the house in order to prevent her seeing one they regard as an adventurer. Nance becomes rebellious; she shows her temper, lets them see they cannot bend her will like a piece of steel, as they put it, but that when pressed too far, like the metal in question she can spring back, and she at once commences to make things very lively for her uncles by a wrecking of everything within her reach. The distant sound of smashing crockery brings her uncles to the verge of distraction. Then William hits upon a brilliant idea. Why not engage someone for a consideration to cut out this Harry? From the window a young sailor is seen. He is interviewed, falls in with the suggestion, and, needless to say, it is Harry. He undertakes, in true nautical style, to cut out the prize for a consideration of £20. The uncles are delighted; so are the two young people. Nance affects a dislike for the effusive lover, and then by a little scheming they are permitted to go out together. This is the opportunity waited for. They hasten to the registrar "round the corner," and come back effectively "spliced," and the cruel uncles relent.

The little piece was well played, Mr Richard Boleyn and Mr George Ellerston being most amusing as the uncles. Mr Harold E. Wadeby played the young sailor effectively, and Miss Beatrice Egerton made a charming and vivacious Nance. The play makes an excellent curtain-raiser, and was well received.

THE Great Eastern Railway have arranged a direct service of motor omnibuses between Lowestoft and Southwold, viâ Kessingland, Wrentham, and Wangford. It commenced on Monday. The motors will make eight journeys daily in each direction with Kessingland and three with Southwold.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The twenty-first annual general meeting of the corporation of the Royal College of Music was held on Monday at Marlborough House, with the Prince of WALES, the President of the College, in the chair. Among the members of the corporation present were Prince Christian, Lord Leven and Melville, the Hon. G. W. Spencer Lyttelton, C.B., Lord Tredegar, Lord Windsor, Sir J. Barran, the Rev. Sir G. H. Cornewell, Sir Edward Green, Sir E. W. Hamilton, Sir Hubert Parry (director), Sir C. E. G. Phillips, Mr C. B. Stuart Wortley, M.P., Mr C. R. Spencer, M.P., Sir C. Lister Ryan (hon. auditor), the Mayor of Bradford, Mr L. S. Benson, Dr. Eaton Faning, Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Mr A. H. Littleton, Mr W. H. Leslie, Mr G. A. Macmillan, Mr Charles Morley, M.P. (hon. secretary), Mr F. Pownall (registrar), Mr J. W. Sidebotham, M.P., Mr S. Ernest Palmer, and others.

Mr CHARLES MORLEY, M.P. (hon. secretary), read the annual report of the council, the chief matters of interest in which are referred to in the President's observations in moving its adoption.

The Prince of WALES said:—I now beg to move "That the report and accounts be received and adopted." I will only say that I have much pleasure in doing so, for they give a highly satisfactory record of the past year, and they testify to the prosperous conditions of the college. At last year's meeting we were able to congratulate the director, professors, and all concerned upon the excellent results recorded for the past year. I think you will all agree that the state of affairs this year justifies us in renewing those congratulations with increased heartiness. As we have heard from the report, at the beginning of the college year in May, 1903, there were 391 students, and at the close the total number was 440. Ten years ago there were only 310, so that that is an increase of over 100. The result of the examination for the title of Associate of the Royal College shows a steady increase of nineteen more than the previous year. Out of 241 candidates examined 113 obtained certificates, of whom fifty-five were pupils of the college. This is a strong proof of the efficiency of the course of instruction, and we have further proof in the successful careers of so many of the pupils after they have left the college. The number of appointments gained by college pupils during the past year was most satisfactory, and includes, as you have just heard, appointments in New Zealand and South Africa and other parts of the Empire. Works of great interest and also of high merit have been performed by the students. A very successful performance of Humperdinck's Hansel and Gretel was given by them at Christmas, and several performances of absolutely new works from foreign countries have been given for the first time in this country. Mr Ernest Palmer, the founder of the Patron Fund, I am sure may be congratulated on the success of the first concert given under that scheme in which we are glad to see that the Royal Academy of Music was so well represented. During the past year the old college building, so long empty, has, I am glad to say, found worthy tenants in the Royal College of Organists, and no doubt it will result in extending the good work of that institution. We are indebted to Mrs Laura Clark for her generous endowment of an open scholarship giving free musical education at the college. Among the losses we have sustained through death is that of Mr Sampson Fox, to whose liberality we are indebted for the splendid building which the college now occupies. I am glad, however, that, as his son has accepted the vacancy thus created in the council, we shall have a representative of the second generation of the family to assist in guiding the future of the college. Lastly, I have much pleasure in stating that the finances of the college are in a very satisfactory condition. It will be my pleasing duty to report to the King, who continues to follow with interest the welfare of the college, how vigorous and efficient is its work, and that good results continue to crown the labours of those who direct and carry out its system of education. I have now much pleasure in moving "That the report of the accounts be received and adopted."

Lord WINDSOR seconded the motion. He felt sure that his Royal Highness, who had taken such a great interest in the work of the college, and the King, who had done so for so many years past, must be gratified to feel that the college was achieving great results in the development of music in this country.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The PRESIDENT then presented the Challen gold medal for pianoforte playing to James Friskin (scholar), the John Hopkinson medals for pianoforte playing to (gold medal) Helen Boyd; (silver medal) Ethel M. Brigstock (scholars); and the gold medal presented by Raja Sir Surendro Mohun Tagore of Calcutta, in commemoration of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, for the most generally deserving pupil of the year, to Vera Warwick-Evans.

Mr C. B. STUART WORTLEY, M.P., moved:—"That the thanks of this meeting be respectfully offered to his Royal Highness the President for having allowed a meeting to take place at Marlborough House, and for presiding at the same, the members of the corporation desiring at the same time to express their sincere appreciation of the active interest which his Royal Highness takes in the welfare of the college." He said that his Royal Highness's connection with the college was by no means nominal or perfunctory. As in everything else he did, he threw himself with energy into the duties which he had undertaken. In giving the priceless services which he rendered to the corporation his Royal Highness was doing good in one of many and by no means the least of the ways in which he assisted the progress of the British race and the unity and solidarity of the British Empire.

Prince CHRISTIAN seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The PRESIDENT—I thank you for the kind way you have received this vote of thanks, which has been proposed in such kind terms by Mr Stuart Wortley and by Prince Christian. I can only assure you it is a great pleasure to me to have presided here to-day, and I am very pleased to meet you all here in this house. I should also like to remind you that this is the twenty-first annual general meeting of the college, and I think we may say that the college has come of age under very bright auspices. The success of manhood cannot be attained without overcoming the difficulties, trials, and disappointments of youth; and we are largely indebted to those into whose hands the direction of the institution has been confided for the manner in which it has been safely steered through its early life. Among those who have contributed to the success the honorary officers must not be overlooked, and I ask you to join with me in recording our best thanks to Sir Charles Ryan, Dr. Gerald Harper, and Mr Charles Morley for the attention which they have readily bestowed on the duties of their respective offices.

The proceedings then terminated.

MISSING RELATIVES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As I have not heard from my family for the last fifteen years, I have taken the liberty of writing to you to see what you could do for me in tracing them. My father's name is Charles Wood, scenic artist or stage-manager, and my sister's name Miss Amy Wood. My sister's husband's name is Walter Freeman, but his stage name is Walter Manfree. They also have two children on the stage I believe, named Charley and Amy Manfree. I don't know whether they are alive or not. I am enclosing a letter for my sister Amy Wood, for you to direct for me if possible. Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK J. WOOD.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "PROOF."

Mr Davey's wisdom in selecting the above drama as the attraction for the ensuing week was very evident on Monday night, a full house being present to renew their acquaintance with the play. Proof is an excellent example of the better class drama, rational in plot and characterisation, blessed with some good dialogue, and above all constructed in a manner that shows the skill of the experienced playwright. Mr Oswald Brand is again responsible for the production, and it is, as might be expected, on that high level of excellence that he has set himself to maintain, the dresses and mounting being on an exceptionally complete scale. The stock company is entrusted with the representation of the play, and once again we have to chronicle a good all-round performance. Miss Helen Bancroft, who plays the rôles of Madeline and Adrienne, shows great intensity, her acting in act one of the play being exceedingly good. Miss Kate Brand, too, as Valentine gives a very fine portrayal of the character, her scene with Mr Berlyn in act two arousing the audience to a high pitch of excitement and enthusiasm. Miss Mary Hardacre as Madame Deprets is very commendable. Miss Nellie Gilmore as the Duchess submits a very pleasant and sympathetic performance. Miss Winnie Leeson as Julie is acceptable in a small part, and Miss Sadie Gold as the child is very intelligent and natural. Mr Leonard Yorke as Pierre Lorance makes a deep impression, his acting being dignified and impressive, while in the second scene of the prologue he rises to a height of dramatic intensity that gained loud applause. Mr Hal Collier as Chamboran has a very poor part, but makes the most of it. Mr Ivan Berlyn as Lazare again presents a well-conceived character study, which is complete in all respects, his acting in act one being very fine. Mr C. Doughty plays Victor with the necessary heroic touch, and made a good impression on the audience. Mr Arthur Estcourt as the Duke brings his ripe experience into play with happy results. Mr G. Chandler as the Seneschal is commendable, and the remaining smaller parts are all in good hands. The drama was received with unqualified favour, the company gaining two calls during the night. The press representative of this theatre, Mr C. W. O'Connor, deserves a word for the great courtesy with which he discharges his duties.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Lingford Carson, entitled, "THE HEART OF A HERO."

Messrs Carson and Granville's company in The Heart of a Hero, a cleverly constructed and highly interesting drama, is meeting with an enthusiastic reception at the Standard this week. Mr Fred W. Goddard as Jem Resdale possesses a thorough grasp of the character, and is deserving of great praise for his fine performance. In act three, where Resdale is called upon to denounce his sister as a murderess, and save an innocent woman from the scaffold, the inward fight between love and justice is cleverly portrayed, and Mr Goddard's acting reaches a high standard of excellence. Mr Charles E. Johnson gives a powerful impersonation of the unscrupulous schemer Wilfred Marl, and Mr A. B. Mackay makes himself sufficiently repulsive as the rascally Mark Marl. Mr Allan Carruthers is a comedian of high order and in Timothy Heighno has a part well suited to his abilities. His efforts are responsible for many a hearty laugh, and his performance is much appreciated. Mr G. B. Wright is manly and impressive as Jack Collinson, whilst Mr P. G. Beresford acts the part of Pritchard, the detective, in an able and business-like manner. Mr J. Harold as Henry Barker avails himself of every opportunity that is offered, and Mr Thompson Carruthers supplies a powerful delineation of the old miser, George Winston. Mrs Barker, known in the earlier portion of the drama as Mrs Ryder, is suitably portrayed by Miss Beatrice Hudson; May Ryder has a capital representative in Miss Laurie Pardy; Susie Slack is safe in the hands of Miss Ida Mackay; and Miss Cissy St. Elmo plays with earnestness and power as Nell Resdale, an erring woman. The scenery is in every way well suited to the production, and the minor parts are adequately represented by other members of the company.

THE WEST LONDON.

John Tollerton	Mr J. W. HENSON
Harold Sefton	Mr WILLIAM D. FAZAN
Antonio Orsini	Mr HILTON FRANCES
Squire Somerset	Mr F. R DALTON
Harry Somerset	Mr ALEXANDER WILLS
Sir Thomas Jones	Mr ROY BYFORD
Augustus Silvester	Mr F. PENNINGTON-GUSH
Mr Boddick	Mr R. LESLIE
Detective Hanson	Mr R. WADDINGTON
Ephraim Dobson	Mr O. J. CASTLETON
Mildred Marsden	Miss TRISSIE HUMPHRYS
Lady Thomas Jones	Mrs EDGAR COLONA
Ruth Mayfield	Miss ETHEL GRIER
Cynthia	Miss JOSEPHINE COLONA

Mr Leonard Pagden and Mr Lewis Gilbert are presenting this week at the popular Church-street house a melodrama that contains all the familiar characters and situations beloved of the masses; but if the plot is not remarkable for its novelty, it is developed in a series of cleverly contrived and sufficiently sensational scenes. In the first act the murder of Sir Geoffrey Somerset by Harold Sephton causes the arrest of Harry Somerset, upon whose shoulders the burden of the betrayal of a village girl named Ruth Mayfield is also placed. In the second act, where Harry is arrested for the crime, Sephton, to get Ruth out of the way, strangles her. The third scene is a Bond-street tea-shop, where Mildred, beloved by the hero and tempted by the villain, is earning her living as a waitress. Sephton discovers her, and when she refuses to accept his attentions he charges her with stealing his scarf-pin. Tollerton, a fine specimen of a Yorkshireman, who is "the faithful friend," has seen and heard all, and effectually disposes of Sephton's accusation by calling him a liar. In the third act, the scene of which is the studio of Antonio Orsini, who is in the power of the villain, considerable excitement comes of the torture of Mildred. She is lured to the studio by a letter which purports to come from Tollerton saying that he is ill and wants help. She arrives and is trapped by Sephton, who in order to force her to disclose the hiding place of the murdered Sir Geoffrey's will, binds her to a chair, and brands her with a red-hot iron. He is about to blind her, when Tollerton rushes in and saves her. The fourth act brings the audience back to Somerset Hall, where Sephton, hunted by the police, comes to destroy all evidence of the murder of Sir Geoffrey by getting rid of the knife. He is met by Antonio, and after a struggle is secured and handed over to the police. Mildred and Harry are now reunited, and all is made happy through the good offices of the faithful friend John Tollerton.

The fun is principally supplied by the bickerings and comic quarrels of Sir Thomas and Lady Jones, labelled aristocrats. My lady is very rightly exercised at the carryings on of the gay old boy, who, like Perkyn Middlewick, has made his money in the pork-butchering line. Sir Thomas pays desperate court to Cynthia, an artist's model, and in the studio scene poses with her as Bacchus for an Academy picture, the group being completed by Augustus Silvester, the nephew of Sir Thomas, who loves Cynthia for le bon motif. Mr Roy Byford, who plays the part of Sir Thomas, manages to emphasise the comicality of every situation in which he is placed, and the laughter of the house is the loudest when, sitting astride of a barrel, he poses with "the vine leaves in his hair." He is ably assisted by Mrs Edgar Colona, who makes the dragonlike watchfulness of Lady Jones a droll exhibition of wifely authority. Mr J. W. Henson as John Tollerton, the genial representative of the county of broad acres, is sturdy, emphatic, and breezy, and speedily becomes an immense favourite with the lovers of active virtue seated in front. Mr William D. Fazan as Harold Sefton, the rascally nephew of Sir Geoffrey Somerset, takes a serious view of his responsibilities, and his anxious and worried look is quite in keeping with the shady career of an uncompromising villain. Mr Hilton Francis plays the Italian Orsini in picturesque style, though he occasionally forgets the broken English accent. Mr F. R. Dalton in the short part of Squire Somerset contrives to be interesting; Mr Alexander Wills gives out the virtuous tirades of Harry Somerset with good effect; and Mr F. Pennington-Gush plays Augustus Silvester on acceptable lines of comedy. Miss Trissie Humphrys as the heroine struggling against the well-laid schemes of villainy does not spare herself, but puts her heart into her work, and wins a good deal of sympathy, being especially successful in the torture scene. Miss Ethel Grier does effective work as the victimised Ruth Mayfield, and Miss Josephine Colona displays an attractive figure in the Studio scene, and makes Cynthia an acceptable character.

THE CORONET.

Monday, July 18, "PROOF."

Sir F. C. Burnand's emotional drama Proof is here this week. Mr W. S. Hartford is the hero, Pierre Lorance, Mr Charles Langley, Count (afterwards Duke) D'Aubeterre, and Mr Oscar Adye the villain Lazare, and all three acquit themselves with distinction. Mr Arthur Burne is a manly Victor De Laugney, and Mr Charles Harrison an exceedingly amusing Chamboran. The hit of the evening, however, is made by Miss Eily Malyon, in the prologue as Madeleine and afterwards as Adrienne. This young actress should attain a high position in her profession. Miss Rose Ralph is a winning Valentine, and renders her one great scene with much effect. Miss Emily Dowton as the Duchess D'Aubeterre and Mrs B. M. De Solla as Madame Deprets are both excellent, and the minor characters are without exception capably played.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, by Jefferson and Sherwell, entitled "THE SHADOWS OF A GREAT CITY."

Joseph Jefferson's well-known drama, The Shadows of a Great City, is being played this week, and is attracting good audiences, who seem to be highly satisfied with the fare provided. The company includes several actors who have been appearing here recently, notably Mr Henry Wright, who is a host in himself as Jim Farren. It is a very amusing character, and Mr Wright makes the most of it. Mr J. J. Bartlett gives another of his polished villains as George Benson, a clever piece of acting, which deserves hearty commendation. The hero, Tom Cooper, is capably played by Mr J. C. Aubrey. The pawnbroker, Nathan, whose name betrays his nationality, is exceedingly well portrayed by Mr Harry J. Crane, who infuses much humour into the part. Miss Marie Housley is most successful in the part of Annie Standish in the earlier scenes and afterwards as Nellie Standish, her embodiment of the two characters showing her to be an actress of much ability. She has a personality of much charm which adds greatly to the effect of her acting. Miss Annie Brophy gives a clever portrait of Biddy Roonan, breezy in its style, and scores heavily. Mr Tom Taylor makes a good Arkwright. The minor characters are in capable hands. The play is produced by Mr John M. East and under the stage-management of Mr Tom Taylor. We must not omit to mention the incidental music, for which Mr Joseph Nurnberger, the resident-conductor, is responsible. It was most appropriate and rather above the average.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama by F. Marriott-Watson, entitled "WHAT A WOMAN DID."

Mr William A. Armour's company is here this week in the thrilling drama What a Woman Did. The romantic element is largely represented in Mr Marriott-Watson's play, and there is a well-constructed plot, based upon the desires and designs of a French marquis to bring about the ruin of Elise de L'Orme, the wife of a villager of Viray. He at first offers the bribe of money at a time when Elise and her husband are threatened with eviction from their humble home through non-payment of rent. The higher womanly nature prevails, and the spurned marquis seeks revenge in the immediate eviction of the young couple. However, the fortune that follows in the wake of the brave appears in this case, for Elise's husband finds the ticket he bought for a lottery has proved the winner, and affluence speedily takes the place of poverty. The scene changes to Paris, where the young husband, associating with the Marquis, has given way to gambling, with the inevitable result. The Marquis, still vindictive, finds himself with the trump card. On the pretence of befriending the husband, he lays himself out to ensnare Elise. His scheme is a deep and daring one, for it results, through his interception of a letter from Elise to a friend, in gaining access to her bedroom. The husband arrives, and the Marquis gloats over the fact that he has damned her in the eyes of the young gamester. The story proceeds to reveal a series of sensational incidents, and illustrates in striking form the life of Paris in its gayest circles as well as its side of shade and despair. In the third act, where De L'Orme entertains his guests in his own grounds, a number of variety turns are introduced with highly pleasing results. Mr William A. Armour gives a careful and thoroughly capable embodiment of Conrad De L'Orme. Mr Frank Adair plays the part of the villainous Marquis with well-marked effect, and his acting wins the full approval of the audience. Mr Owen Edwin gives a clever and impressive sketch of the repellant character of the hunchback, Pitou. Mr Will Simpson in the rôle of Fritz makes excellent use of his opportunities. Mr Tom Wallace as Peter Pippin, a vendor of quack medicines, supplies a very happy portrayal of the itinerant healer of all the ills that flesh is heir to. Miss Dora Price deserves much commendation for her admirable rendering of the heroine, Elsie De L'Orme. Miss Louise Cove does well as La Papillon. Miss Nita Imeson as Nanette meets with deserved success. Miss Tina Shaw as Fanchon displays much vivacity, and Miss Elsie Day is seen to advantage as Marie Brisson. Miss Violette Vivienne as Julie Valois and Miss Louie Lenora as Teresa Hervé also lend assistance in minor parts.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, July 18, Mr W. H. Cecil Pierpoint's Adaptation of "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Mr John Tully's company is playing Uncle Tom's Cabin at the Dalston Theatre this week, and although the fine weather has resulted in the reverse of full houses here as elsewhere, in this instance the audiences are at any rate appreciative. The character of Uncle Tom is consistently sustained by Mr Kora Deanrajah. He succeeds in making onlookers feel quite sorry for the good old slave who is the special victim of the cruelty of Simon Legree, the slave-owner, whose brutal nature Mr Fred G. Kay manages to depict in a way which does him credit as an actor. Mr Charles Colwyn is Mr St. Clair, a planter, and Little Marie effectively sustains the part of his daughter Eva, whose death forms one of the most effective scenes in the play. Mr W. H. Cecil Pierpoint represents Phineas Fletcher, a Kentuckian pedlar. Miss Cissie Sefton appears in a dual rôle, representing the wife of a slave and also Cassy, a slave girl, who eventually gives the brutal Legree his quietus in the form of a revolver bullet. Miss Marie Lyndon is Aunt Ophelia, and Miss Kitty Wood puts in some good business, including dancing, as Topsy. Others in the cast include Miss Lilian Danby, Miss Mabel Rutledge, Mr James Palmer, Mr Edward Aldworth, Mr St. Vincent Beechey, Mr E. Kellen Taylor, Mr Edward Simpson, Mr Fred Martin, Mr Thomson, Mr Johnson, Mr Taylor, Mr J. Stewart, and Mr H. Danby, the latter proving himself an expert with the tambourine and also the rifle. Among the speciality artistes must also be mentioned Charles H. Mack (banjo), Sam Taylor (laughing darkie), and Lilian Francis (Quadroon vocalist).

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, July 18, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled "EAST LYNNE."

Mr Wilson Barrett's version of Mrs Henry Wood's famous novel has been drawing good audiences to this theatre during the past week, and the play has had the advantage of being interpreted by an exceptionally able company. Miss Haidee Wright in the rôle of Lady Isabel shows great dramatic power, and by her art reduces most of her audience to tears. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy is well fitted for the part of Archibald Carlyle, and plays it in a natural and convincing manner; Mr Cecil Elgar's Francis Levison compels the complimentary hisses which are accorded to him from all parts of the house. Miss Marion Fawcett obtains great applause for her rendering of the French maid, Suzanne, in act two, scene one, where she shows her aversion to the supercilious and mocking Levison. Miss Julie Kennard as Cornelia Carlyle is satisfactory; Miss Lilian Mason and Miss Gladys Rhys as Joyce and Wilson respectively make the most of their parts. Mr Benson North shows versatility in the parts of Lord Mountsevern and Lawyer Dill, and as the latter he contributes a delightful piece of acting in a light comedy vein. Mr Gambier Melford as the peppery Justice Hare is good, and so is Mr Stanley Harrison as Richard Hare. Miss Jessie Winter makes a charming Barbara Hare, and little Ida Thompson as Little Willie quickly wins the sympathies of her audience. The necessary comic relief is supplied by Mr George M'Kenzie as Police-constable Bullock, each of his sallies being punctuated by uproarious laughter.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, July 18, the Melodrama, in Four Acts, entitled "THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

The latest resources of science—nay more, future and hypothetical scientific methods—are laid under the obligation of providing sensation in the above play. To quote the programme, "Victor proves that radium is a re-discovery of an element known and used in prehistoric times, and—combined and acting with another potent but forgotten force—is the scientific explanation of the miraculous powers of the ancient magician's wand." How the gods yelled when Victor Stanhope, whether arrayed in man's clothes or in the habiliments of a charming young lady, overcame the machinations of the two villains by the aid of this "power" encased in a small tube! Miss Daisy Scudamore is to be congratulated on her impersonation of this scientific young gentleman. Mr James Gelderd contributed a clever impersonation of Cyrus Telford, while Mr Frank Harding and Mr Algernon Syms are worthy of praise as the two aforesaid workers of evil, Zadok and Herman Foxbane, père et fils. Miss Cissie Podmore made a capital boy, Boldie Mansfield, and Miss Mabel Scudamore was responsible for a forceful piece of acting as Edna Volta. The comic relief, in the hands of Miss Nannie Mead as Arabella Binks and Mr William Ames as Peregrine Patch, provoked roars of laughter; and minor parts were carefully sustained by Messrs Withers, Rolls, Wright, Osborne, Sully, Leigh, Loftus, and Moray.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, July 18, the Play, in Four Acts, by Louis N. Parker, entitled "THE HAPPY LIFE."

A great dramatic treat, deserving of far more patronage than is being vouchsafed to it by local playgoers, is being presented at the Stratford Borough Theatre this week by the engagement of Mr Herbert Waring and a representative company in The Happy Life. There was no lack of enthusiasm at Monday night's performance, for this well-constructed play is of intense domestic interest, and with its splendid interpretation and the additional attraction of introducing to Stratford that brilliant actor Mr Herbert Waring, it could not but find favour with those to whom the dog-days is not a period of abstention from playgoing. Chief interest centres round the character of Cyril Charteris, portrayed with that artistic ease, fluent diction, and consistency which one would naturally expect from an actor of the calibre of Mr Herbert Waring, and he becomes a prime favourite as the play proceeds. Another emphatic success is scored by Miss Maud Hoffmann, whose graceful appearance and histrionic ability render the part of Evelyn very prominent. Mr William Sauter plays in incisive manner and with much expression as Prince Szczepanowski, and Mr Harry Cane contributes a performance replete with merit as John Charteris. Jimmy Pastor has a capital exponent in Mr Arthur Hardy, and Mr George Warde brings his ripe experience to bear upon the part of Dicky Smith with happy results. A graphic sketch of the dissipated Vyvyan Pettigrew Smith comes from Mr Philip Leslie, and Mr John W. Laurence plays appropriately as Harold Boughton. Mrs Russ Whytal is bright and entertaining as Maggie; Halcyon is charmingly delineated by Miss Mabel Knowles; and Mrs Pettigrew Smith is represented in natural style by Mrs H. Cane. Other parts are satisfactorily rendered by Miss Mabel Dubois as Plunkett, Miss Alice Campbell as a Temple laundress, Mr Gordon M'Intosh as a waiter, and Mr A. Long as Carter.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Lewis Gilbert, entitled "THE PENALTY OF CRIME."

A capital attraction is provided this week for the habitués of the Stratford Theatre Royal by the engagement of Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company, in The Penalty of Crime, which contains plenty of sensational incidents and an abundance of comedy business and interpolated songs and dances. George Gibbons is a very trenchant villain in the hands of Mr Sam Arthur, and Mr Fred Hodson makes a manly Guy Glendinning. Mr J. Leicester Jackson in the light comedy rôle of Bertie Chumbley—a strange mixture of vice and virtue—is always interesting, and Mr Harold B. Ford supplies fun of the more robust order as Michael O'Reilly. Mr Charles Lambert supplies a well-defined sketch of Martin Norris, and Mr Fred Morton Wright plays well as Mr Glendinning, but has no great chance. Miss Blanche St. Albans looks very charming as Elsie Norris, and easily enlists the sympathy and interest of the audience; Miss Phyllis Damian makes the waif Joe a general favourite by her bright and buoyant impersonation; and Miss Nellie Lambert is a vivacious Peggy Sharpe. Minor parts are played with intelligence and care. The drama is well mounted and dressed.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held last Tuesday, James Chas. Taylor, Frank H. Denton, Robert H. Forster, Leonard Hubert, and Mabel Verne were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Actors' Association. The honorary solicitors reported they had advised certain members, and were requested to issue certain summonses on behalf of members. It was agreed that arrangements should, if possible, be made to hold a meeting of the members and others at Manchester some time in the autumn in order to give the members of the profession an opportunity of hearing an explanation of the aims and objects of the A.A. Dr. Hugh R. Phillips, of Palace-court, W., was elected an honorary medical officer to the Association. The secretary reported engagement of one of the boys supported by the Actors' Orphanage Fund at Taplow Grammar School as a junior clerk.

THE ACTORS' CHURCH UNION.

The fourth annual conference of the Union was held on the afternoon of the 15th inst. at Bishop's House, Kennington-park. The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of ROCHESTER occupied the chair; and those present included Mrs Talbot and her daughter, Mrs Edward Compton, Prebendary Villiers, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr Cyril Maude, the Rev. E. H. Moss, Mrs Alfred Bishop, Mr Charles Cruikshanks, and the Rev. Walter Bentley (secretary of the American Actors' Church Alliance).

The Rev. D. HOLE (hon. secretary) read the report for 1903-4. It stated that since the issue of the last report twenty-five new centres have been set up and six centres have lapsed owing to the removal or resignation of the chaplains. There was at present a total of seventy-one centres and ninety-four hon. chaplains as against fifty-two centres and seventy-two chaplains last year. The roll of professional members had increased during the past year from sixty-six to eighty-eight, and there were thirteen associates. One very encouraging feature of the past year had been the activity displayed by the members in furthering the work of the Union. The thanks of the committee were specially due to Mrs Edward Compton, Miss Haidee Heath, Mr Albert Felton, and Mr Chris Walker, who had been most energetic while on tour in putting the secretary in communication with priests who were willing to become chaplains, and otherwise furthering the objects of the Union. The Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway, the Rev. David Doritty (Manchester), Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mr Acton Bond, and others wrote expressing regret at inability to be present, and wishing well to the movement.

The Bishop of ROCHESTER, as President of the Union, said the meeting was the best they had had so far, and he was encouraged to hope that the Union was going to be of real use. The work was going forward. He would be, indeed, sorry if it should be supposed that the organisation was established for the edification or conversion of actors. One gentleman had suggested that this should be the aim, and indicated a particular class of actor as being especially fit subjects of its attentions. The objects of the Union might prove to be elastic as time went on, but its present and immediate aim was to ensure that members of the theatrical profession should receive as much respect and consideration from the clergy as any other class of the population. Actors were, in the very nature of things, kept a little aloof from the life around them, and it had been thought and said of them—of actors while on tour—that they knew nothing of the Church in the places which they visited, and that the Church in those places knew nothing of them. It was desired to remedy this, and clergymen in various districts had been appointed chaplains to endeavour to seek out the members of the theatrical profession who might be temporarily located in their districts, make themselves known, show that they and their churches were at the disposal of the visitors, set up personal intercourse, and do their very utmost to promote a better understanding and a better spirit all round. There were difficulties, but he thought all would agree that the attempt was a right one to make. There was no assumption of superiority, either on the one side or on the other. At least one good object had been achieved by the Union. It had, as on this occasion, brought members of both professions face to face under circumstances in which they could chat as friends and learn each other's views.

The business of re-electing the officers and committee having been disposed of, the Bishop called Sir Charles Wyndham to address the meeting.

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, who on rising was received with loud applause, said:—My Lord, when it was first suggested that, at this meeting, I should say a few words about the Actors' Church Union, I hesitated, as you are aware, to accept the task. For one thing, I felt myself somewhat unqualified for the rather delicate undertaking; for another, I was apprehensive that my action might be misconstrued as a mere exaltation of that ego which we are told is so dear to the actor-manager's heart. It is two years now since I became a member of the Actors' Church Union, and I did so because, after a careful examination, I became convinced that it represented a genuine and generous endeavour on the part of many of the clergy to build a bridge across the chasm which for so long has separated Church from Stage. From that distant time when the 1008 ponderous pages of the Puritan lawyer Prynne's "Histrio-Mastix" appeared to the present day, when so many clergymen—notably of the Roman Catholic faith—abstain from entering the theatres, even as spectators, a division and an antipathy between Church and Stage have existed. A most unnatural hostility—a separation of a mother from her child; for as we all know, religion, both in classical and in Christian times, gave birth to the drama. This inveterate prejudice is now dying out, but, like all prejudices, dies hard and slowly. I venture to prophesy that to your Lordship and your earnest helpers will accrue the credit of giving the final death-blow. There is still, however, much to do. Depreciation is always more acceptable to imperfect human nature than appreciation. The French philosopher tells us that tout comprendre c'est tout pardonner, but how rare is the intellectual capacity, and how much rarer the moral determination enabling one to understand everything. Happily, our two professions may now say that we are at least learning to understand one another. The clergy, on the one hand, are beginning to see that the theatrical profession has, like other callings, its special qualities and the defects of those qualities, but that, on the whole, it is neither better nor worse that others; that, though resenting patronage, it responds readily and warmly to sympathy. We, on the other hand, are beginning to realise the Christian aim of this Union, reminding us, as it does, how the conditions of the actor's life, particularly when engaged on tours, with the constant changes of abode, Sunday travelling, and the like, are such as to make it difficult for him to know the clergyman as his friend, in the sense in which the resident parishioner knows him, and we gratefully recognise that this organisation is an attempt to make a special provision for such special need. Its beneficial influence on the individual, morally and socially, promises to be great. We are more than glad to meet you half-way in establishing a brotherhood between us. Many years ago, while travelling professionally in America, where distances from city to city are often very great, often involving tedious journeys lasting from Sunday afternoon to Monday morning, a then leading lady of my company, happily still both in private and public adorning the London stage at various theatres, was accustomed on arrival to devote her mornings to religious service, to the deprivation of the rest necessary to fit her for her evening's work. I once ventured to ask her whether she could not realise that, inasmuch as the essence of religion was the lesson of faithful discharge of duty, she was quite conscientious in denying herself every Monday the rest which should have enabled her to give the best of her art in the evening to the public who had a right to expect it. She expressed her regret, but maintained that her devotions must stand above all other considerations. Two days later, however, she notified me that henceforth Mondays should be devoted to rest, giving as the reason for this change of attitude the fact that she had casually mentioned my protest to her spiritual adviser, who had promptly replied: "Mr Wyndham is right; duty to your fellows is duty to God." I confess that I was surprised at such liberal teaching from such a quarter; but that was twenty-one years ago, when the mists of night were between your Lordship's brotherhood and mine. Afterwards I was enabled to see that the enlightened priest, that sincere apostle of peace and goodwill to all men, was simply anticipating, as an individual, the attitude which the clerical members of the Actors' Church Union, a generation later, was destined to assume as a body. To-day, after these twenty-one years, the sun has mounted in the heavens, scattering in his royal progress the light of knowledge and the warmth of loving-kindness throughout the black and cold valleys of prejudice. It is to you, my Lord, and those associated with you, that we look, and we know we shall not look in vain, for the successful exercise of your self-imposed and noble efforts. In your Lordship's letter to me you were good enough to ask for any word or suggestion as to what more can be done, or what avoided. I do not think I can suggest any improvement of your methods, which seem to me to be based on the policy of approaching us, first as men, and afterwards as accepted teachers. Your Lordship is the architect of this bridge that is to unite us, and knows so much better how to build than I. I can only promise you that our care and our delight will be to help you in providing materials as sound as, thanks to you, the foundations are—already solid."

The SECRETARY then read a paper by Mrs Harry B. Stanford (Miss Laura Burt), who was unable to be present. She said she had been asked to speak on the methods of the Actors' Church Union of America and how far they are applicable to the Actors' Church Union in this country (she being a member of both bodies). The two societies were in many ways similar, and the growth and development of the work in America must be very gratifying to the founders of the Actors' Church Union in so far as it furnished the primal idea on which the alliance was based, namely that of ministering through chaplains to the members of the dramatic profession not as religious outcasts but as brothers. The theatrical calling, if not condemned, had been ignored for centuries by the Church, and its power for good or evil strangely overlooked. This was all the more surprising as the Church had been proud of her claim as the mother of all sorts and conditions of men. But the formation of these organisations has practically in spirit and in purpose restored to the Church her neglected sphere of duty, and this alone justified their existence. Many people when they heard of their work and objects invariably asked "Why was this not thought of before?" She made bold to assert that had it not been for two clergymen, one on each side, both Englishmen, and one of them formerly an actor, these organisations would never have been effected or the ideals for which they stand realised. It required an intimate knowledge (gained only through experience) both of dramatic life and temperament to enable them to cope with the special difficulties surrounding their work. To become mediators between the two great institutions and to bring them together after so many centuries of separation required a close knowledge of each, unbounded sympathy and indomitable courage and perseverance; yet this breaking down of the barrier between Church and stage was what the Actors' Church Alliance of America had already practically accomplished. Beyond the shepherding of the actor the whole relation and attitude of the Church towards the theatre had been changed, and the value of the stage as a great social and educational factor was at last recognised and more and more appreciated. Mrs Stanford then entered into details showing how this work had been accomplished. In conclusion she said,—"We believe our organiation justifies its five years' existence by its work already accomplished and in laying foundations for the future that will result in great good to the dramatic profession will help the Church in a practical way to realise her duty to that flock which hitherto as a body she has so strangely ignored and by drawing them closer together will benefit and bless the world.

The REV. WALTER BENTLEY, secretary of the Actors' Church Alliance of America, and formerly an actor, delivered an interesting address on the work of the Alliance, concluding by saying that without the Church they would soon become barbarians and without the stage would soon become lunatics.

At this stage a most informal move was suggested by Miss Talbot, and the conference was concluded under the shade of the trees in the garden.

Mrs EDWARD COMPTON read a short paper. She commenced by asking—Is the Actors' Church Union progressing as much as might fairly be expected, and if not, why not? Frankly, I don't think it is progressing as it should. It has been in existence four years, and we have eighty-five members, actors and actresses, and eighty-nine hon. chaplains. We have a conference once a year. Our President kindly invites us to his house, but do actors and actresses attend it as they ought? To me it appears the Union does not grow as it should because the actors and actresses do not join in sufficient numbers. And why don't they join it? I believe principally because they do not know anything about it, they do not take the trouble to find out, they are just a little prejudiced. When they do know about it they all seem ready to join—or nearly all those I have asked. There are guilds for other professions; surely we shall be the better for having one too, and regarding it as a bond of good fellowship. Some of our members lead travelling lives; and I know very well that to go to church regularly in such conditions is particularly difficult, and that it is much more easy to make excuses. Still, I believe that it is almost always possible to go to church once every Sunday; and then our chaplains are so ready if we ask it to give us a weekday celebration at an hour to suit us. We are just as responsible as anyone else—our work, our efforts, our influence just as important, however unimportant they may seem to us—and anything that can make us all realise this vitally necessary fact, is bound to be of the very greatest service. I want to beg those who have joined this Union to bring others to join it too and those who have not joined it to decide on doing so forthwith.

Mr C. J. CAMERON also read a paper in the course of which he rather sharply criticised the attitude of certain ministers of the gospel towards members of the theatrical profession. He said he thought it was the duty of the Church to take the initiative in this work; and it was also necessary to display more energy and enthusiasm in the efforts which were being made with so good an object.

The BISHOP OF ROCHESTER having delivered a closing address, thanking Sir Charles Wyndham and the other speakers for their support, tea was served on the lawn to the numerous guests.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, entitled "THE MOCKERY OF MARRIAGE."

The boards of the theatre are this week occupied by a company presenting this play. The scene of the rescue from certain death of the heroine on the Underground Railway by a chain of human links is very realistic. Mr Arthur Winpenny adopts the aggressive in both tone and bearing in depicting the rascally Dick Kenyon. Mr Harry Stebbing is needlessly supine as the luckless lover turned soldier, Jack Stanley. With vivid force Mr Frank Dalton portrays the fear and remorse of the ruffian Seth Pearce. Mr Will Skelton gets some hearty fun out of the part of the sleepy, musically inclined yokel Toby Wright. Mr Harold Grahame is distinct as Joseph Vernham; Mr Talbot Hindley is good as old Pete; Mr Conyngham Ellis succeeds as Ned Stanley; Mr Harry Nelson makes a capital Police-constable Rice; Miss Florence Zillwood plays Rose Vernham convincingly; Mrs Sydney Halling works well as Mary Ann Barnicoat; Little Katie is pathetic as Nelly Kenyon; and Miss Sullivan is an energetic Mrs Johnny Jones. Miss Olga Audre plays with distinction and graceful bearing as the wronged wife Alva Kenyon. The Four Aces add greatly to the strength of the company, and their acrobatic performance in the last act is watched with evident interest.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Prince of WALES presided on Monday over the fifteenth annual meeting of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music held, by permission of his Royal Highness, who is the president, at Marlborough-house. Those present included Mr Thomas Threlfall, the chairman of the board; the Hon. Spencer Lyttelton, the deputy chairman; Sir A. C. Mackenzie, principal of the Royal Academy of Music; Sir Hubert Parry, director of the Royal College of Music; Mr Oscar Beringer, Mr Walter Macfarren, Cav. Alberto Randegger, Dr. Eaton Faning, Professor Sir Charles V. Stanford, Dr. Peterson, principal of the M'Gill University, Montreal, and Professor Thompson, registrar of the University of the Cape of Good Hope.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed on the motion of the Prince of WALES,

MR THRELFALL read the report and balance-sheet for the year ended April 30 last. In this it was stated that in 1903 4 the number of candidates entered for the local centre examinations in harmony, counterpoint and practical subjects was 3,227, and in the rudiments of music only 268, as against 2,871 and 236 respectively in 1902-3. Of these, 100 took two subjects and seven three subjects, not reckoning the rudiments of music as a separate subject. In the rudiments of music examination the total number of entries was 2,337. Out of the total number of entries in the various subjects, there were 1,147 passes in the advanced grade and 718 in the intermediate grade, as against 1,188 and 488 in 1903. The percentage of passes was 54·85 in the advanced grade and 57 44 in the intermediate, against 56 97 and 54 95 in 1903. Of those who passed, "honours" were taken by 86 advanced and 54 intermediate candidates, as against 93 and 32 in 1903, the percentage of advanced honours being 7 49 and of intermediate 7 52, as against 7 82 and 6·55 in 1903. The popularity of the second period of the local centre examinations had now been established beyond all doubt, the entries for last year showing an increase of 313. The board had, therefore, decided to extend its operations in this direction by offering theory examinations in all its centres in November, the new arrangement coming into force next autumn. The number of candidates in the school examinations was 10,277, as against 9,519 in the year 1902 3. Centres at Douglas (Isle of Man), Albury in New South Wales, Horsham and Daylesford in Victoria, Stanhope in Queensland, and Malta had been established during the year. The examinations of the board in connection with the University of the Cape of Good Hope were successfully conducted by Mr F. Cliffe and Mr M. M. Barton. In Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, and Ceylon the examinations were held by Mr G. Langley and Mr G. P. Moore, and the board received from them on their return satisfactory accounts of the work and its prospects for the future. There were 944 entries in harmony, counterpoint, and practical subjects in the local centre examinations, and 635 in the rudiments of music, while for the school examinations 2,913 entries were received; eighty-five candidates also entered for the licentiateship of the Associated Board. The examinations in Canada held by the board in conjunction with M'Gill University in May, 1904, were conducted by Mr W. Wesche, who would proceed to Australia to hold examinations in Queensland, a part of New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, the remainder of the Australasian examinations being undertaken by Mr G. P. Moore. A visit to Malta made by the secretary in July, 1903, resulted in the establishment of the board's examinations in that island. Thirty entries were received in November last, and the number of passes (twenty-four) was above the average. The Maltese Government had given valuable encouragement by the offer of annual monetary prizes in each department of examination and in each division, open to British subjects who had been resident in the island for at least three years. The examinations there and in Gibraltar were conducted by Dr. Arthur Somervell. The annual exhibition given by the University of the Cape of Good Hope in 1903 was awarded to Miss Cecilia A. C. Packman, who had taken up her musical studies at the Royal College of Music. The secretary started on June 29, on behalf of the board, for a tour of inspection and inquiry in Canada and Australasia, and would proceed to India with a view to the establishment of the board's examinations there. The board desired gratefully to acknowledge its indebtedness to his Royal Highness the President for his kindness in enabling the secretary to procure letters of introduction to the Viceroy of India and the governors of the various provinces. The board deeply deplore the loss of an esteemed colleague and friend through the death, after a long illness, of Mr Edmund Macrory, K.C., who, during his four years of office, took an enthusiastic interest in the work. The appointment to the vacancy rested with the directors of the Royal Academy of Music. The balance-sheet and revenue account showed that financially the board was in a satisfactory condition. It had been decided, with the approval of Mr Leslie Probyn, the auditor, to carry a further sum of £1,500 to the reserve fund, and this amount would be invested in the trust security selected by him. The board wished to express its sense of obligation to the honorary local representatives in the United Kingdom and the Colonies for their continued co-operation and invaluable support, and the municipal and other public bodies who had again afforded facilities for the conduct of the local centre examinations.

The Prince of WALES, who on rising to move the adoption of the report was greeted with applause, said:—Ladies and gentlemen,—In moving the adoption of the report I am again able to congratulate the Associated Board of the two chartered schools of music on the continued success of its operations. I note that there is in the local centre examinations an increase of 388 candidates, and in the school examinations of 758, and that the special certificates, given to those who have passed the whole series of five examinations, number this year 67, as against 37 in 1903—an increase of nearly 100 per cent. When our local centres examinations were held for the first time in the year 1890 there were only 1,100 candidates. The board subsequently introduced the school examinations, and again, later on, extended its scheme beyond the shores of Great Britain and Ireland, and in the year 1903 the total number of entries for the Empire amounted to over 20,000. When we consider the responsibility of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music regarding these examinations and the maintainance of their high standard, and bear in mind the eminent position of the professional members of the board, it is difficult to over-estimate the amount of good which the examinations must be doing towards improving the quality of instruction in music throughout the Empire. And in this connection I am gratified to know that in the four years 1900 to 1903 in the British Isles alone the number of individual teachers of schools sending in candidates to the school examinations increased from 1,362 to 2,324. The examinations in Malta, the contemplated establishment of which I announced at our annual meeting last year, have made a notable start, the percentage of passes at the first examination being no less than 80. Acknowledgment is due to the Maltese Government of its valued encouragement of the scheme by the offer of the prizes mentioned in the report. The secretary of the board is, with my approval, making a tour of inspection and inquiry, which will include India, and may lead to the establishment of the board's examinations in that Empire. I am glad to see that Dr. Peterson, the principal of M'Gill University, is able to be with us again to-day, and that Professor Thomson, Registrar of the Cape of Good Hope University, of which I have the honour to be the Chancellor, is also present. In associating myself with the expression of thanks conveyed to the honorary local representatives and municipal or other public bodies, I should like to call attention to the usefulness of holding public distributions of certificates. They are of advantage in giving publicity to the work of the board, and I shall be very glad to hear that an increasing number of our honorary local representatives are able to organize such distributions. I now beg to move that the report and accounts be received and adopted.

MR SPENCER LYTTELTON formally seconded the motion, which was adopted.

The Prince of WALES then distributed the medals gained by candidates whose names are given above. At the conclusion of the ceremony his Royal Highness received the honorary local representatives who had not been previously presented.

Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, in moving a vote of thanks to the Prince of Wales, said that under the encouragement of his Royal Highness's presidency the work of the board continued to progress. They were grateful to his Royal Highness for the great interest he continued to take in the work, and wished also respectfully to tender him their thanks for permitting them once more to meet under his roof and for the gracious manner in which he had received them.

Sir HUBERT PARRY, in seconding the motion, said they all felt happy that an opportunity was afforded them of expressing their appreciation of the kindness of his Royal Highness in allowing them to meet at Marlborough House and in the encouragement he gave to their work.

The motion was agreed to amid applause.

The Prince of WALES, in reply, said:—Ladies and gentlemen, I thank you for the vote of thanks which you have just passed. I can only say that I do not wish at all to be thanked for the very pleasant duty which I am allowed to perform each year at the annual meeting. I am very happy indeed to have met you here to-day at my house.

The proceedings then terminated.

GUILDHALL DRAMATIC STUDENTS.

Mr Allen Beaumont's pupils were seen at the Guildhall School on Friday, July 15, in some little dramatic pieces, in which the careful teaching of Mr Beaumont and the talent of his pupils resulted in a most satisfactory entertainment. The first item was He and She, in which the irritable lady was played by Miss Ethel Gannon, a young lady who has won special honours at the school. In fact, Miss Gannon might take her place among professional actresses at once, she is so gifted and so well trained. In He and She Miss Gannon represented a voluble lady who has been left alone by her husband on her birthday, and on his return she overwhelms him with reproaches so rapid and continuous that he is unable to get in a single word. At last he takes from his pocket a jewel case and makes her understand that it contains a handsome present for herself. Whereupon she becomes as excitedly grateful as before she had been reproachful. Mr Ellerton appeared as the husband successfully. It was quite a pantomimic part, and Mr Ellerton does everything in dumb show. The second piece was Man Proposes, by Sydney Grundy, and again Miss Gannon carried all before her as the young lady who is anticipating a proposal that never comes, owing to Capt. Huntington, the lover, being so diffident. The brightness and buoyancy displayed by Miss Gannon could hardly be overpraised. Mr Guthrie Liddiard showed great ability as the gentleman who finds it so difficult to propose, and Miss Nellie Lake as Dinah was quite equal to her task, which was chiefly that of luring the hesitating gentleman to make the confession he was really eager to deliver only his bashfulness stood in the way. At length, being driven into a corner, so to speak, he finds it quite easy to do what had before seemed so difficult. The final play was a farce of the most rollicking character called Five per Cent., by F. W. Hayes. The scene is at the office of a matrimonial agent, one Wapshot, where everybody concerned is at cross-purposes, and the adventures of Mr Wapshot, his clerk, Cadwallader Smith, Mr Lucius Lowater, and some irresponsible ladies bent on matrimony proved so amusing that the audience literally shrieked with merriment. It is difficult to single out any performer where all entered so heartily into the fun. Mr Ellerton was thoroughly at home as the redoubtable matrimonial agent, Wapshot, his deep voice sounding very droll in the frivolous dialogue. Mr James Aitken fully brought out the whimsical character of the clerk, and Lucius Lowater was played with ample drollery by Mr Nicholas. The ladies were all excellent. The Widow Brown was in capital hands as represented by Miss Huntsman. Miss Enid Rose was efficient as Mary Smith, while Miss Castiglione made Sapphire Perkins an amusing character. Mr Wilfred Davies played pianoforte solos of Grieg, Liszt, and others between the acts with commendable brilliancy of execution, and Mrs Charles P. Smith exercised her customary care in superintending the appearance of the young ladies on the stage.

ON Saturday last was produced for copyright purposes, at the Adelphi Theatre, a new musical play The Gay Financier, by Bennett Scott and George Arthurs.

MR WILLIAM HARGREAVES, of The Private Secretary company, will at the end of the present tour have played the part of Cattermole nearly 3,000 times, a remarkable record of the continuous performance of a single rôle

THE CONQUESTS' FAREWELL.

On Monday evening the highly esteemed lessee of the Surrey Theatre, Mr George Conquest, began his farewell week's celebrations and benefit; and although his distinctive clientèle have looked forward in eager and pleasurable anticipation for weeks past to renewing acquaintance with many old Surrey successes and a host of those clever and gifted actors and actresses who have gained their laurels on the boards there, there was on Monday evening an air of sorrowful depression prevailing which was only momentarily dispelled by the appearance of some artiste who had gained a lasting reputation at the Surrey. Cheer upon cheer resounded through the house when that firm Surrey favourite, Mr Ernest Leicester, came forward to give with marked feeling and expression the following farewell ode from the fertile pen of Mr Malcolm Watson:—

To everything there comes at last an end,
Comes to the moment when, by friend to friend,
However heart and mind and soul rebel,
Must needs be spoken that sad "Farewell."
For us that time, alas, has come to-night,
The race is well nigh run, the goal's in sight.
Yet if the future seems obscure, o'ercast,
What brilliant mem'ries cling around the past.
We who in years gone by have made this place
Our home—our temple—for a little space,
Who, night by night, have trod its classic boards,
To find in your applause our best rewards—
We who have played our parts, content to gain
The scantiest harvest of artistic golden grain,
And, daring greatly, faced the footlight's blaze,
Half proud, half fearful, to confront your gaze—
To us remains, at least, this splendid thought,
The Surrey's fame can never be forgot.
For if, indeed, its glories must depart,
Its name lies close enshrined within each heart.
Nor lies alone, for side by side with it,
Behold the name of "Conquest" largely writ.
Just for an instant, through the long years run
Back to that famous time in '81,
When with the dear old "Guv'nor" in command,
His crew a merry and devoted band,
The good ship Surrey ventured on the seas,
Spreading its sails to catch each fav'ring breeze.
For twenty years his Bull-dog British pluck,
Brought him the best of fortune and good luck,
And what to life a sweeter flavour lends—
His kindly nature made him hosts of friends.

THE LATE GEORGE CONQUEST.

Alas! he's gone, yet sure the earth lies light,
On one who fought so good and brave a fight.
Then to the vacant throne was fitly beckoned,
Our friend and loyal comrade, "George the Second."
How he upheld the Surrey's ancient glory
Is for you all an old, familiar story.
Enough that fate decrees, with hostile frown,
The curtain on him, too, must be rung down.
The end is near, no longer shall the sound
Of happy laughter and of mirth abound;
No more the villain ply his horrid art,
Nor dashing hero snare sweet maiden's heart.
To one and all, with many a long-drawn sigh,
We soon must bid a sorrowful good-bye.
Yet grateful that, while mem'ry shall last,
We hold a priceless treasure in the past,
What if the good old Surrey disappear,
Its place is now and ever shall be here.
(Hand on heart)

Cheers, loud and prolonged, were a tribute alike to the sentiments expressed and the brilliant elocutionary powers of Mr Ernest Leicester, whose pointed delivery of the ode was punctuated with frequent bursts of warm applause. Mr George Conquest had selected from the Surrey's rich and abundant library a varied programme for each evening, which included a revival of some of the most popular and successful farces and dramas that have been produced on the theatre's historic boards. Thus, on Monday and Thursday evenings the pièce de résistance was that merry farce, We All Have Our Little Faults. In this Mr George Conquest appeared as the drunken, besotted tailor, Goosey, whose redundant figure and increased avoirdupois compelled him to abandon the tailor's board for the public-house. Mr Conquest was ably and loyally supported by Mr Frank Lister as the boosey pal, John Rollick; Miss Kate Olga Vernon as the resentful wife, Mrs Rollick; Miss Joan Wellman as the sister Louisa; and Mr Fred Conquest as the timid pastry-cook, Ginger Nut, their combined constant vivacity and untiring energy and inimitable humour not only creating unlimited merriment, but a furore of warm approbation. On Tuesday evening the Strangling scene from that powerful drama Mankind was chosen, in which Mr George Conquest again depicted with very intense realism the character of the Jew, Daniel Groodge, while that veteran actor Mr Charles Cruikshanks as Peter Sharpley, Mr Ernest Norris as the son, Edmund, and Miss Sophy Shenton as Mrs Bickerton filled their respective rôles with artistic merit which deserved great praise. The revival on Wednesday evening was Robert Macaire, with Mr George Conquest as Jacques Stropp, Mr Charles Cruikshanks in the title-rôle, Mr Frank Litchfield as Germeuil, Mr W. Stevens as Demont, Mr Ernest Cossart as Charles, Mr E. Giles as Pierre, Mr J. Miller as Sergeant Loupy, Miss Thompson as Louise, Mr George Conquest, jun., as François, Miss Rona Merrick as Clementine, and Miss Kate Olga Vernon as Marie, all the impersonations adding fresh lustre to each individual member of this unique cast. The latter was repeated on Friday evening, while the scene from Mankind will be reserved for the final performance to-night. At every performance during the week the variety stage has contributed its quota of enjoyment, for, thanks to the various managements, a host of variety and sketch artistes who have appeared in the Conquests' pantomimes during the Conquests' period—1881-1904—have put in an appearance, and found renewed favours amid the scenes of their former triumphs. Noticeable among these, and deserving of special mention, are Mr Walter Joyce's recital "The Charge of the Light Brigade;" Mr Ernest Norris's recital "Over the Hills from the Poorhouse;" Mr Sid Cottell's company, in The Substitute; The Five M.P.'s, in the sketch Ten Minutes Before the Lights are Out; Messrs Blake and Granby, in the sketch The American Millionaire; Mr Clarence Hague, in "The Seven Ages of Man;" Duse Mahomed's sketch company, in The Jew's Revenge; Mr Ernest Leicester and Mrs Bennett in a sketch; Mr Harry M'Clennan's company, in The Lady of Provance; Mr Jack Sergeant's lifelike impersonations of famous actors; Mr Arthur Conquest and Miss Lottie Hallett in an amusing sketch; and Mr Jo and Miss Marion Monkhouse in the sketch Waiting. Solo turns have been given by Mr Ernest Ball, Mr George Leyton, Mr W. P. Dempsey, Mr Walter Munroe, Sinclair and Grace Whiteford, Mr Charles Russell, Miss Jennie Belmore, Mr Harry Vawn, Mr Michael Nolan, Miss Daisy James, Tots Davis, Little Dando, Miss Florence Dainton, Miss Maud Nelson, Miss May Henderson, Rich and Rich, Miss Gladys Wilton, Miss Dora Lonsdale, Miss May Taylor, Mr Tom Leamore, Miss Gwennie Hasto, Messrs Eugene and Willie, Messrs Chivo and Moti, the Four Burnells, the Sisters Cora, Mr Harry Parker, Mr Bert Lea, Messrs Zara and Arno, Mr Frank Alexander, the Two Primroses, Clavering Craig, Dollie M'Calla, Walker and Lake, Harry Hyne, the Breton Troupe, Maggie Carr, the American Quintette, the Three Sisters Le Graham, Patty O'Brien, Wal Robins, Jessie Preston, and a host of others. Many extra delights were supplied on Friday; and on Saturday Mr Arthur Conquest's company will appear in the sketch Zacky, in which he will give his lifelike clever impersonation of a man monkey. The final scene will be graced by the presence of his Worship the Mayor of Southend, Councillor James Berry, J.P., and a strong and representative contingent of prominent Southenders, who chartered a special train to enable them to be present to honour their highly esteemed townsman, Mr George Conquest.

The admirable work of Mr George Conquest's acting-manager and benefit secretary, Mr Charles H. Bowmaker, must not be forgotten, for to his indefatigable exertions and proverbial courtesy the success of the week is largely due. The stage-manager, Mr Chas. A. East, and his willing band of assistants, Messrs J. W. Johnson, Geo. Manning, Ernest E. Norris, Gus Blake, and Harry M'Clennan, have had a busy time of it throughout the week, placing the turns with a judgment and rapidity only gained by experience; while the chef d'orchestre, M. Louis La Rondelle, and his excellent orchestra have enlivened each performance with their well-chosen and admirably executed selections.

PLAYWRIGHTS AND THE LORD CHAMBERLAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In the interest of authors and the Thespian world in general, I beg permission through your representative columns to advocate the enlargement of the powers of dramatic licensing by the Lord Chamberlain's office. My proposals are practical and simple, and can do no injustice to anyone. I claim for dramatic authors the right to register the title, mise-en-scène, scenic effect, dramatis personæ, songs, and music of plays without being hampered by the existing rule of a managerial acceptance of a work before one can get protection. In short, just as the rule is with respect to patents. If patentees could not secure protection for their inventions until some manufacturer had agreed to use the patent, then many valuable works would never see the light of day and gross injustice would be done to the genius of the nation, as it is to-day by the effete and rotten system in vogue in the Lord Chamberlain's department.

I fought for years for the abolition of the old Patent Office, through whose clumsy machinery and heavy imposts then put upon inventors the very best products of the brains of Great Britain had to seek the economical Patent Laws of the United States of America for protection. I want to do the same thing with the Lord Chamberlain's office. At present it is more of a toll gate than an office of good to authors. I want to enlarge and reform its scope so that, instead of paying three guineas for the right to produce a play, I could pay a preliminary fee of registration to protect my brain-rights from pirates during the time I an negotiating with managers for the production of my works, thus enabling me to secure copyright for my plays. If this reform were instituted it would lead to the improvement, financial and theatrical, of the Lord Chamberlain's office.

Yours faithfully, A. C. SHELLEY.

MISS BATEMAN'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Father Dolling's memory is cherished by a large number of men and women who were outside the influence of his parish work, but within the charmed circle of his friends, and it is felt by them that the example of his noble life might be handed down to other generations of Christian workers in the form of a Dolling Memorial Home, the aim and purpose of which will be in sympathy with the desires of a true philanthropist who lived the higher life. The project has a warm supporter in Miss Bateman, who valued deeply the cherished privilege of his friendship and his warm sympathy with those who follow the profession of the stage; and this lady organised the dramatic and musical entertainment that was given on Tuesday afternoon at Philbeach Hall, Philbeach-gardens, Kensington. Those who assisted included a number of Miss Bateman's pupils, and it was evident that much care had been taken in the rehearsals of the first piece, Mr Wynn Miller's Dream Faces, a curtain-raiser that has had a run at several of the West-end theatres. In the representation under notice Mr Percy Anstey essayed the difficult part of Philip, the ne'er-do-well father. Mr Anstey did not quite sound the depths of the more pathetic side of the part, and was, perhaps, better in Robert's display of bravado and bluff than in his repentance, but he was admirably distinct and very earnest. Mr J. H. Irvine, gifted with an excellent voice, made a manly lover, and he sounded the note of sincerity in Philip's love vows to Lucy, a part that was very sweetly played by Miss Gertie Lloyd, who was particularly good in the interview between father and daughter. Miss Lilian Stennis surprised us by the intensity and strength of her acting as Margaret, especially in the long and trying interview she had with Philip, in which her voice vibrated with pathos. The representation gave considerable pleasure, the performance quite reaching the professional standard. To the concert that followed Miss Muriel Gough contributed three songs, "Still wie die Nacht," by Bohm, "Amore Amor," by Tirindelli, and the Bolero from Verdi's I Vespri Siciliani, in charming style. Her voice is flexible and well-trained, and her quality and intonation are irreproachable. Miss Gwladys Roberts also displayed brilliant vocal endowment and considerable dramatic feeling in "La Cloche," a fine song by Saint-Saëns. Miss Roberts has not the control or command of her resources that she will have with further training and experience, but like Miss Muriel Gough she should make a name on the concert platform. Miss Dorothy Phillips, who took the place of an absentee, may be credited with a sympathetic rendering of "Sing me to sleep," in which the violin obbligato was played with much feeling by Miss Helen Gough, who chose as her solo a canzonetta, by Tschaikowsky. Miss Gough's tone and technique were excellent. Miss Edith Patching was heard to advantage in "Nymphs and Sylvains," by Bemberg. The accompaniments were carefully and artistically played by Mr T. H. Denman and Mr Hurbert Barth, the latter giving proof of considerable executive ability in a pianoforte solo. After the interval came the novelty of the afternoon, a duologue from the pen of Graham Aitken—who must be a lady—entitled

"ONCE BIT."

Averil Hope ..... Miss IRENE FITZGERALD
Joyce Templeton..... Miss GERTIE LLOYD

This trifle is concerned with a practical joke played by Joyce Templeton on Averil Hope. Joyce takes advantage of All Fool's Day, and bombards her friend with proposals from all sorts and conditions of men. One of them is from a Parsee, whose expressions of devotion are full of Oriental imagery, another from an aged general—all in a carefully disguised hand. Averil thinks her friend's conduct in bad taste, and when she reads another proposal, which is in the handwriting of Joyce's brother, she refuses to believe that it is genuine. Joyce is not prepared for the turn that affairs have taken, and in most repentant phrases pleads for her brother. Miss Jessie Fitzgerald suggested very capably the irritability and pettishness of Averil Hope, and Miss Gertie Lloyd was quite effective as Joyce Templeton. The entertainment wound up with The Burglar, a little piece by Margaret Cameron, in which the fun is furnished by exhibitions of fright and alarm on the part of a number of young ladies at the incursion of an imaginary cracksman, who turns out to be an amiable and inoffensive dog. The humours of the farce were capably sustained by Misses Katherine Haviland, Gladys Jones, Dulcie Lynch, Elsie Walford, and Hilda Scoles.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The orchestral and choral concert on Thursday evening at the Royal College of Music contained some important items, and commenced with a Suite for orchestra, composed by Mr James Friskin, and performed for the first time on this occasion. Mr Friskin may be heartily congratulated upon his talent as a composer, which may probably lead to his taking a prominent position among native musicians. The entire Suite has great merit, and the Tema con variationi with which the work concluded displayed quite remarkable ability. The reception of the young composer was enthusiastic in the extreme, and we shall look forward with deep interest to any future composition of Mr Friskin. The chorus of flower maidens from Wagner's Parsifal, act the second, was performed by permission of Messrs Schott and Co., the celebrated publishers of Regent-street. Unfortunately, the choral class on this occasion fell somewhat short of the standard required in the matter of intonation, but Miss May Hawker as Kundry deserved much praise. The Concerto for pianoforte in G major by Beethoven, a noble work, and a great favourite of the pianist Rubinstein, was played by Mr James Friskin. As an executant he displayed great capacity, especially in the final rondo, and his rendering of the entire concerto demanded the fullest recognition. Miss Maria Yelland sang the Inflammatus from Dvorák's Stabat Mater with excellent effect. The concert concluded with Schumann's Symphony in C Major, which was cleverly played by the orchestra, and admirably conducted by Sir Charles Stanford, who had a cordial reception. This was the last orchestral concert of the present term.

MOODY-MANNERS COMPANY.

At Drury-lane on Wednesday the late Sir Julius Benedict's popular opera The Lily of Killarney was performed, with the customary success usually attending the representation of this charming work. Benedict's opera has the advantage of melodies as fluent and graceful as those of Balfe and Wallace, while in The Lily of Killarney there are examples of musicianly treatment that will make it more lasting than Maritana or The Bohemian Girl. The heroine of Benedict's opera is a sympathetic character, retaining her original dramatic interest as shown in The Colleen Bawn, from which the libretto was taken. Madame Fanny Moody was at her best as the heroine, and seldom has she sung with such effect as in the principal melodies of the opera, especially in the charming air "I'm Alone." Mr John Child as Myles fully entered into the drolleries of the part, and the more serious character of Danny Mann enabled Mr Ludwig to prove his value as an actor and vocalist. Mr Maclennan represented Hardress efficiently, and Mr Magrath was excellent as Father Tom. Miss Ada Davies and Miss Teify Davies also assisted with their customary ability. The chorus—always deserving of high commendation at Drury-lane—merited approval, and the orchestra, under Mr Eckhold, was satisfactory.

THE ratepayers of Invercargill, New Zealand, have resolved to expend £20,000 on the erection of a municipal theatre.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

THE Coliseum Theatre, which is being built in St. Martin's-lane, and is to open next Christmas, will be about double the size of the Hippodrome. One of the novelties in this magnificent building will be the arrangement by which the King, on his visits to the house, will be conveyed to his private box. Directly His Majesty arrives at the entrance of the theatre, he will walk into a very pretty Louis Seize room. Immediately the doors of this room are closed, he will be taken by electricity to the door of his own private-box. Four shows will be given each day at the Coliseum—morning, afternoon, evening, and night.

THE death of Mr Wilson Barrett at one o'clock on Friday morning was quite unexpected. He was taken away from the Hotel Cecil, where he was staying, to the Medical Nursing Home, Devonshire-place, W., where his case was diagnosed as one of appendicitis. It was afterwards discovered, however, to be one of cancer; and Mr Barrett died from heart failure under the three operations which were immediately necessary. Few who saw him on his recent visit to the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, would have imagined that he bore within him the seeds of the dread disease which led to his death. By his decease is removed from the profession a worker of remarkable industry; an actor, playwright, and manager of all-round ability, and an honest, kindly, and straightforward man.

MR W. S. GILBERT'S performance of the part of Claudius, in Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, at the Garrick Theatre, on Tuesday, at the matinée for the benefit of the Bushey Heath Cottage Hospital, proved that, had he preferred to adopt the profession of an actor instead of that of a dramatist, he would certainly have been very successful. His diction was especially pure and polished; and his depiction of Claudius's gloomy remorse was thoroughly artistic and effective. It was a most agreeable and interesting sight to see the author of so many brilliant and witty pieces showing the way in which he wished his own clever and humorous lines to be spoken.

MR GEORGE EDWARDES is taking a rest at Carlsbad, and will not return home until the middle of August, when he will begin preparations for the production of a musical version of Mr Charles Brookfield's adaptation of Madame Fred De Gresac's comedy, The Third Moon. The music has been composed by Mr Sydney Jones, and the lyrics have been written by Mr Adrian Ross.

MISS PHYLLIS CECIL had an unpleasant experience on Wednesday while on her way from Great James-street to Mr Blackmore's agency. A hooligan sprang at her, and for a few seconds struggled for her purse. Her arm was hurt, and the man eventually got away, followed by a large crowd. Although he had not succeeded in getting the purse, he was pursued through small streets and courts for a long time. Two gentlemen who joined in the chase followed Miss Cecil to Bow-street Police-station and offered to give evidence for her at the police-court, should the man be finally caught.

AT Lancaster Station on Thursday morning, when His Majesty's Guests company, who were on their way from Lytham to Morecambe, were waiting for their train, a gang of convicts was being brought along the platform. One of them, happening to notice the labels on the carriages, "His Majesty's Guests company," exclaimed to a fellow-convict, "Some more of us, Bill!"

THE relations of Miss Mary Collette, who will next week marry Mr Ernest Bryant, have "done the State some service." Her great-grandfather, the late General Collette, Madras Cavalry and Governor of Jauena, served with distinction under Wellington in India. Her great-uncle was Colonel Collette, 67th Regiment. She has for uncles Colonel Elmes, Captain Childs (7th Hussars), and Captain Bashford (Scots Greys). Her cousins are Lieutenant-Colonel Collette, commanding at Shrewsbury, Captain Bancroft (23d Royal Welsh Fusiliers), and Lieutenant Geoffrey Bashford, R.N., while last, but not least, her father, Charles Collette, held a commission for some years in the 3d Dragoon Guards.

MR OWEN HALL jocularly suggests that some of Shakespeare's works would "go" better if they were adapted for the theatres owned by Mr George Edwardes or Mr Frank Curzon. "Imagine," he says, "the effect that would be obtained by any artistic comedian singing Hamlet's soliloquy. There would be far louder applause at the close than is obtained occasionally by some aspiring actors nowadays in the part. Another piece—a modern one now—that would make a fine libretto is The Second Mrs Tanqueray. You would make Paula a lover of music so as to introduce the necessary songs, and you would have a different finale. She would not shoot herself, as she does according to Mr Pinero's directions. Her husband would say that their lives were intolerable in the house where they are residing, and that they would henceforward live in Bohemia. The curtain would fall with the issue of invitations to a supper party at the Savoy, and with the announcement that Mr Tanqueray would in the summer be pleased to see all Paula's friends at their houseboat at Maidenhead. This would be a good finale, and the audience would leave their seats happy, whereas a suicide always makes one somewhat depressed."

MR HALL states that the librettist of a musical play is hampered in many ways when writing a "book." He cannot, for instance, write an elaborate literary love scene. "You see Mr Hayden Coffin and Miss Marie Tempest alone on the stage. You have been trained to know that they will sing a duet. It is useless for you to write beautiful dialogue leading up to the song. All that is wanted is for Mr Coffin to say 'I love you.' Miss Tempest replies 'I love you,' and Mr Coffin remarks 'Let us sing a duet.' The band then plays."

MR GILBERT was once staying at a Continental watering-place, where the usual "mixed bathing" was going on. A swimmer got into difficulties, and the local equivalent of the Humane Society man did nothing but gesticulate along the plage, waving coils of rope. Mr Gilbert, who is a fine swimmer, plunged in, and after many difficulties, saved the imprudent bather. What was his disgust when the cowardly but effusive bathing attendant, who had made no attempt to assist the rescue, rushed up to Mr Gilbert, threw himself on his chest, kissed him on both cheeks, and, weeping with emotion, gasped out:—"Mon ami! mon ami! Vous avez bien fait!"

A PLAY which certainly has had a checkered career is Le Père Lebonnard, by M. Jean Aicard. Written a great many years ago, it was originally intended for the Comédie-Française, Paris, where it had been accepted and even put into rehearsal, with M. Got in the chief rôle. But the author, being anxious to see the work produced, and fearing he might have to wait too long a time before it saw the footlights at the Français, took his MS. away, and tried his luck elsewhere, until, finally, it was brought out by M. Antoine, then manager of the Théâtre Libre. The piece has now gone back to the Comédie-Français, where it will soon be given with a capital cast, comprising MM. Silvain, Dehelly, Delaunay, and Mmes. Thérèse, Kolb, Géniat, and Louise Silvain.

M. ANTON TCHICHOFF, the well-known Russian author, died at Badenweiler on the 15th inst. His realistic play, The Three Sisters, written in 1901, found favour in Russia.

DURING the present Moody-Manners opera company's season at Drury-lane, ending this evening, no free tickets have been issued to any, except the Press. As many of the profession have written asking for tickets, and have been reluctantly refused, it has been decided to waive this rule, and a cordial welcome is offered to those connected with the musical and dramatic profession who can be present at the matinée of Tannhauser this afternoon.

MR W. S. GILBERT'S ability as an actor was shown when he was thirty-five years old. A matinée of Broken Hearts had been arranged for a charity. The author arrived at the theatre about one o'clock, to find that Mr Kyrle Bellew, who was to play one of the Knights, had fallen through a trap and hurt himself badly. There was no understudy, and only an hour before the curtain would go up. Mr Gilbert wired for wig and clothes, went on in Mr Bellew's place, and did excellently.

AN inquest was recently held on the body of Edward Austin Du Plat, who died last week in Lambeth Infirmary. The jury found that death was due to heart failure and congestion of the lungs. Mr Du Plat, who was only forty-six years of age at his death, went on tour last year with Smith, Brown, Jones, and Robinson, which he produced in November at the Brixton Theatre.

MISS ADA WEBSTER, who has been playing Ellean in The Second Mrs Tanqueray, on tour and at the Vaudeville Theatre, is an Irish girl who went on the stage in spite of the usual opposition of her non-theatrical family. From the first she only seems to have needed opportunity to prove her ability, and that opportunity came when she was playing a small part in The Price of Peace, at Drury lane, when Miss Lettice Fairfax was suddenly obliged to relinquish the ingénue part, and Miss Webster took it up at less than half an hour's notice. She is a soprano, and has many offers, if she chose to accept them, for musical comedy, and a few years ago she turned her talent for elocution to good account, reciting every Sunday at the concerts given by the Sunday League; but as she was on tour at the time, the work was almost too hard to be accomplished.

OF all Miss Webster's experiences as a "Sunday Leaguer," perhaps the most exciting was in connection with a Dagonet Ballad—and Dagonet himself. She had been asked to give "The Shipka Pass," and having studied it hastily, her sister was stationed at one side of the platform, book in hand, to prompt if necessary. Everything went well until the last verse, and then Miss Webster's memory suddenly failed. She turned eagerly towards the prompter, and discovered that the book was closed and her sister absorbed in the recitation. With surprising promptitude she invented a last verse—rhymes and all—on the spur of the moment, and flattered herself that not a soul would be any the wiser. After the concert, however, she was introduced to Mr George R. Sims, the author of the poem, who thanked her with mock solemnity for giving him a new idea, and has since congratulated her many times on her impromptu poetry.

OF the great army of "theatrical dogs" few, if any, were better known throughout the provinces than Miss Jennie Burgoyne's collie bitch Baby, which died at Dover on Wednesday. From five weeks old she was for many years the faithful and devoted companion of her mistress; and a very large circle of friends will join in sympathy at Baby's demise. She was a universal favourite, and the pet of all who knew her.

THE South Parade Pier, Southsea, on the sea front between Southsea Castle and Eastney Barracks, the headquarters of the Royal Marine Artillery, was seriously damaged by fire on Tuesday afternoon. On the pierhead was a spacious Pavilion constructed of wood, with corrugated iron roof, glazed at the sides, and with a stage on the floor at one end. An entertainment by the Merry Makers concert party was in progress when the alarm was given. The audience fortunately was a small one, and the company and the performers soon made their escape. The fire spread with great rapidity, and in about twenty minutes the roof of the building fell in. The refreshment and reading rooms were soon ablaze, and all that could be done by the Portsmouth Fire Brigade was to save as much as possible of the approach. The fire, which has caused damage to the amount of several thousand pounds, was, it is stated, caused by the throwing down of a lighted cigarette on the deck on the eastern side of the Pavilion. The South Parade Pier must not be confounded with the Clarence Pier further west, where entertainments are in full swing.

THE fire caused serious loss to the Merry Makers, who had only just commenced a week's engagement at the Pier. They lost all their theatrical properties, together with apparel, to the value of £50. Mr H. W. Stockham, of Birmingham's, company of Grecian harpists had appeared at the Pier Pavilion the previous week, and had left behind them their four harps, valued at £60 each, in the reading-room adjoining the manager's office, and dresses and music valued at over £40. All these were destroyed.

MR E. H. KELLY and MR C. M. HALLARD'S production of "George Fleming" (Miss Constance Fletcher's) new play, A Man and His Wife, at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, will take place on Monday, Aug. 8, with a cast including Mr C. Aubrey Smith, Mr C. M. Hallard, Mr E. H. Kelly, Mr Reginald Dance, Mr Charles Ware, Mr George Silver, Mr Reginald Rivington, Miss Enid Spencer Brunton, Miss Beatrice Coleman, Miss Kathleen Darvill, Miss Annie Hill, and Miss Nina Boucicault.

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE is in negotiation for a London theatre where to produce in October an English version, by W. L. Courtney, of M. Paul Hervieu's Le Dédale, which was produced in December last at the Théâtre Français.

MISS LUCY WILSON AND MR GORDON BAILEY'S tour of The Second Mrs Tanqueray and The Profligate was brought to a successful close on Saturday last at the Operetta House, Clacton-on-Sea. After bowing their acknowledgments again and again to a delighted audience, Mr and Mrs Gordon Bailey were somewhat surprised to find themselves encircled by the members of their company, who had appeared on the stage to express their grievance against the management. The "grievance" took the form of an illuminated address, with a quaint Queen Anne perfume casket of silver, with cut crystal facets, inscribed "To Paula, from her company." This was handed to Miss Wilson, and a Mascotte charm in the form of a golden sandal, with "Dunstan" inscribed thereon in brilliants, was presented to Mr Bailey. The presentation was deftly made by Mr Leonard Pagden and Miss Lola Duncan, and feelingly acknowledged by the gratified recipients.

THE cast of A Daughter's Crime, by Mr Russell Vaun, which will be produced by Mr Garrett Todd at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, on Aug. 1, will include Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Eva Allison, Miss Richardson, and Miss Pollie Emery; and Messrs Dennis W. Cleugh, P. L. Julian, Frank Emery, Frank Graham, Angus Alexander, Harry Talbot, Allan Wade, C. Lloyd, and William Vaughan.

MESSRS MATHEW H. GLENVILLE AND FRED OSMOND concluded on Saturday last at the Theatre Royal, Aldershot, a most successful tour with The Still Alarm. A fine autumn tour is booked, starting on Aug. 1 at the Theatre Royal, Worcester. The bookings extend far into the autumn of 1905.

"SATURDAY TO MONDAY" concluded its run at the St. James's on Friday, the 15th inst., when, at the fall of the curtain, Mr George Alexander briefly addressed the audience. He said:—"To-night closes my fourteenth season at the St. James's Theatre, and once again I have the honour to express to you my grateful appreciation of your support. Thanks to you, the two plays which you have witnessed to-night have been altogether successful. It is a pleasure to me that it has once more been my privilege to encourage the English dramatist of to-day, and I am glad to congratulate Mr Fenn and Mr Pryce on the success of their work here. I propose, as you may know, to reopen the theatre on Sept. 3 with a new play, founded on a novel by Mr Justus Miles Forman, and dramatised by an old favourite of yours, Mr Sydney Grundy, entitled The Garden of Lies. I hope it will win your favour as readily and fully as other romances here presented have done in times gone by. If so, it will be long before I have to open my cupboard and inspect the skeletons—I mean the skeleton plays—which lie there. Among them is Business is Business, played with such extraordinary success in Paris, a poetic play by John Davidson, referred to a year ago—I will now give you its subject—King Arthur and Lancelot—and another new play from the pen of Mr Stephen Phillips, whose Paolo and Francesca holds in our memories a special place—such, ladies and gentlemen, as your kindness to me must always hold in mine."

MADAME CALVÉ was indisposed on Monday evening at Covent-garden Theatre. She had suffered severely from the heat during the day, and only just managed to get through the part of Carmen. Two doctors were in attendance, and between the acts administered restoratives. Madame Calvé's condition was all the more unfortunate as the King, Queen, Princess Victoria, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Duke and Duchess of Connaught were present.

MISS KATHLEEN RIND, a young actress whose performance of Ellean, in The Second Mrs Tanqueray, and Irene, in The Profligate, with Miss Lucy Wilson and Mr Gordon Bailey's company on tour has done so much to enhance her reputation, made her first appearance as a reciter at Steinway Hall. After a course of tuition under Miss Rosina Fillipi Miss Rind joined Miss Lillian Herries' company, and played Louise, in Frou-Frou; Nella, in The Notorious Mrs Ebbsmith; Mildred, in A Fool's Paradise; and Nanine, in La Dame aux Camélias. In a stock season at Lowestoft which followed, Miss Rind amongst other parts played the title-rôle in Sweet Lavender. Then came a long engagement with Norman V. Norman's répertoire company, in the course of which a wide range of parts was played. Miss Rind, who possesses a wonderful gift of mimicry, is a capital swimmer, and paints in oils and water colours with considerable talent.

AN interesting little ceremony took place at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, on Friday night, the 15th inst., after the performance, when Mr Teddy Pearce, Mr Redford's much esteemed assistant manager, was the recipient of a very handsome silver tea service as a present from the staff on the occasion of his forthcoming marriage with Miss Pass, who has had control of the box-office at the same theatre for some considerable time.

TRAVESTIES of Hamlet—none of them as witty and clever as Mr W. S. Gilbert's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern—have been fairly numerous. Poole's was produced in 1810. The quality of its verse may be gathered from the King's speech:—

Well said, my lad! Cheer up, no more foul weather;
We'll meet anon, and all get drunk together.

Talfourd's skit on Hamlet was published at Oxford in 1849; the Hamlet à la Mode of G. L. Gordon and G. W. Anson was performed at Liverpool in 1877; and The Very Little Hamlet of Mr William Yardley was seen at the Gaiety in 1884. In Hamlet Improved, by Colonel Colomb, the last act of Hamlet is revised to ensure a "happy ending." Polonius, it appears, was only wounded by the Prince; Hamlet's father only pretended to be dead; and the King, Queen, Laertes, and Ophelia all come to life again.

THE tour of A Modern Judas, the new sensational melodrama by John Denton, which was produced in April last at Kingston, under the title of The Serpent's Tooth, will commence on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Islington. A company has been engaged including Messrs Percy Rhodes, Willie Scott, Harry M'Clelland, Trueman Towers, Frank Beresford, John Denton, and Misses Violet King, Ada Palmer, Dolly Harcourt, and Kate Walbran.

MISS IDA MOLESWORTH and MR MARK BLOW have secured the British rights of the American success, At Cripple Creek, a play quite out of the beaten track, and containing a new sensational effect. Three companies are now touring At Cripple Creek in America.

MR GEORGE DAVEY, the proprietor of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will on Aug. 1 celebrate his first anniversary, when a special programme, consisting of vaudeville and the drama, will be presented. Many of the stars in the variety world will appear, and a souvenir will be given away.

IN Vienna there were thirteen cases of heat attacks on Sunday, one being just after a performance of an operetta at the Englische Garten at midnight, when Mdlle. Modl, who had been singing, dropped down in a dead faint.

MISS ROSE DUPRÉ, who has been playing Lady Orreyd and other parts in Mrs Patrick Campbell's company for two years, wears a particularly effective dress in the Vaudeville revival. It is white lace, satin, and crêpe-de-Chine, embroidered with a design of golden grapes and foliage. Miss Dupré met with many amusing experiences during her tour with Mrs Campbell in America. She happened to be the only blonde in the company, and her fair hair and bright complexion attracted the attention of a party of Red Indians, whom they saw at a small railway station in the Far West. They looked from her to her companions with great curiosity and then at each other, and were heard to express themselves in two English words—"Pretty!" followed by an admiring "Clean!"

AT a "one-night stand" Miss Dupré was greatly surprised at one of the girls employed at the hotel rushing into her room, on the morning of her arrival, exclaiming, "Be quick! Be quick! They're startin'!" "What do you mean?" she asked in amazement. "Why, there's your company goin' to parade through the streets; there are ladies in buggies and gentlemen on horseback, and you'll be late!" Vainly did Miss Dupré explain that she had nothing whatever to do with a travelling circus, and the girl probably believes to this day that Mrs Patrick Campbell's company paraded the town.

IN Bute, one of the roughest towns in Montana, Miss Dupré had the satisfaction of surprising and lecturing a certain millionaire, whom she had heard was immensely proud of his wealth and importance. He was the owner, although she did not know it, of the big hotel where the company stayed. Through some accident Miss Dupré's luggage was not taken to her room as she had requested, but left on the sidewalk outside. She went into the office and indignantly asked a dull-looking little man, whom she mistook for the clerk, what he meant by such neglect and inattention. The little man listened meekly and promised to attend to the matter at once—and she heard afterwards it was the millionaire himself!

MR ARTHUR BOURCHIER, whose season at the Garrick Theatre ended on Friday, will begin his provincial tour of The Fairy's Dilemma at Glasgow on Aug. 22. He has engaged Mr Charles V. France to head the company, and to play the part of the Lifeguardsman in The Fairy's Dilemma. Mr France, it will be remembered, made a great hit in the performance of Brieux's Philanthropists by the Stage Society last winter.

MESSRS ASCHERBERG AND CALLAN have bought the rights of Le Sire de Vergy, the clever comedy by MM. De Flers and De Caillavet, with music by M. Claude Terrasse, recently produced at the Paris Varieties. Messrs Ascherberg and Callan, by arrangement with Mr Tom B. Davis, will produce an English version by Charles Brookfield at the Apollo Theatre at the end of the run of Veronique.

MISS VIOLET SIMS has been induced by the favourable reception which has been given by the public to her first play, The Brand of Cain, to write another, which will shortly be produced at a London theatre.

MR GEORGE MUSGROVE'S Belle of New York company embarks next week upon its seventh year of tour at the Londesborough Theatre, Scarborough. Much consternation will be created in playgoing circles on discovering that this merriest of musical comedies, despite the hold it still maintains upon the theatre-going public, is announcing its "farewell visit," but it appears that circumstances necessitate its withdrawal at the end of this tour, when the running will be taken up by The Prince of Pilsen, its fortunate successor at the Shaftesbury Theatre. The Belle, however, is not to be permitted to say good-bye to her admirers in half-hearted fashion. No diminution of charm will affect her last exit. To this end the "dream of fair women" who comprise her entourage will disport themselves in creations from the ateliers of the Rue de la Paix, and elaborate new scenery from the studio of W. B. Spong will enhance the effectiveness of the mise en scène. A new exponent of the title-rôle will appear in the form of Miss Noël Neville from the Savoy Theatre, Miss Lillian Digges the Fifi, Kitty Lindley, the Beauty of last year's Newcastle pantomime, the Kissie; May Angus-Young the Mamie Clancy, and statuesque Winnie Browne the queen of comic opera. Frank Lawton, of whistling fame, will reappear as Blinky Bill; Philip Leslie returns for Harry Bronson, and Messrs Harry A. Meymott, Max Copland, Cecil Burt, Selby and Sealy, Paddy Duprés, Chas. W. Anson, and C. Wakeman will resume their former rôles. Mr Leonard Hornsey is musical director, Arthur Linforth stage-manager, Hugh Fleming is again in office as advance director, and the responsibilities of general management are once more in the skilled hands of Charles Thorburn.

MISS LUCY WILSON AND MR GORDON BAILEY, whose tour of The Second Mrs Tanqueray and The Profligate has been attended with such gratifying success, have accepted a five-act play from the pen of a hitherto untried author, which they will present at a trial matinée at a West-end theatre early in September.

THE death of Mr Paul Kruger reminds Mr Matthew Brodie that he first heard of the demise of the late Mr W. E. Gladstone in the Press News office in Pretoria. He immediately went across to the Raad and conveyed the sad intelligence. The then President was much moved, offered up a short prayer, and disbanded the House, although the debate was on the all-absorbing dynamite question.

MISS CLARA BURDER, a young lady whose two brothers are on the stage, had a narrow escape from drowning at Brighton the other day, when she slipped off the groyne into deep water opposite Bedford-square. She was brought ashore in a very exhausted condition, and artificial respiration was resorted to for fifteen minutes, after which she was removed to the Sussex County Hospital, where she soon began to recover.

M. PAUL MEURICE, the veteran French playwright, although in his eighty-sixth year, is adapting George Sand's famous novel, "La Mare au Diable," for the stage.

MISS ROMA MERBICK, who has resumed work again, accepted Mr George Conquest's invitation to appear during his benefit at the Surrey this week. She played the part of Clementine, in Robert Macaire, and joined in a dance with Mr Charles Cruikshanks, the old Surrey favourite of the eighties and nineties, whose energy and vitality are as great as ever.

WHEN Mr Austin Melford opens at the Camden on Easter Monday, as Wilfred Denver, in The Silver King, his leading lady will be Miss Emélie Polini (daughter of Mr G. M. Polini), who gave such an excellent performance of the part last spring that Mr Melford at once engaged her.

MR C. A. CHANDLER has secured the rights of The Bells of Haslemere, and will tour the piece next month with a company including Messrs Leonard Yorke, Hal Collier, C. A. Chandler, and Misses Florence Chandler and Mary Hardacker.

M. ARMAND BOUR, the talented actor and late manager of the Theatre Victor Hugo, Paris, has become lessee of the Bouffes-Parisiens. It will be the first time since 1855, when Offenbach produced his famous opera-bouffes, that this playhouse will be devoted to comedies. M. Bour intends to inaugurate his reign with Florise, a three-act comedy in verse, by Theodore De Banville; after which Parisians are promised Rabelais, by the Count Du Bois. It was M. Georges Rochegrosse, the well-known painter, and the son-in-law of the author, who insisted that Mdlle. Berthe Bady should interpret the rôle of the heroine. Mdlle. Bady, it will be remembered, created the Maslowa, in Resurrection, and played the principal rôle in the French version of The Second Mrs Tanqueray.

MISS CONNIE MEADOWS has been engaged by Messrs Sinclair and Burnett for their autumn tour of False Lights.—Mr G. Moreton Williams has been engaged by Mr Eugene Bertram for Mr Frank Bertram's tour of The Convict's Daughter.—Mr Ernest Owttrim, who has recently concluded a forty-three weeks' engagement, playing Howard Wilson, the leading part in Mr Bert Coote's Fatal Wedding company, has been engaged by that gentleman for his forthcoming season, to sustain his old part, commencing at the Theatre Royal, Eastbourne, on Monday.

THE heat has proved too much even for the Folies-Dramatiques, Paris, which for the first time since three years has closed its doors. The Cluny Theatre, too, has followed this example. The Folies-Dramatiques will re-open towards the middle of August with Une Nuit de Noces. The Opera remains open all the year round, and the atmosphere does not keep strangers away, the house being filled with Americans, English, and Germans, for whose benefit Faust was performed.

WILLIAM THOMAS, aged sixty-five, who refused to give his address, was charged at Bow-street on remand, on the 15th inst., with stealing two rings from two actress sisters, Miss Violet and Miss Beulah Turner, of Torrington-square. The prisoner, according to Miss Violet Turner, borrowed a ring from her sister as a pattern to buy £400 of jewellery for witness. He tried to pawn it. Another remand was ordered.

MR GEORGE EDWARDES, on Aug. 22, at the Prince's, Manchester, will commence a provincial tour of The Duchess of Dantzic, with the original scenery and dresses used at the Lyric Theatre. The company will include Misses Adrienne Augarde, Billie Burke, Elizabeth Firth, and Evie Greene, and Messrs Courtice Pounds, Leonard Mackay, and Holbrook Blinn.

MISS ADA REEVE will, by arrangement with Mr Frank Curzon, open at the Criterion Theatre on Thursday, Sept. 1, with Mr Malcolm Watson's three act comedy Winnie Brooke, Widow, in which she has been appearing, with so much success, in the provinces.

MR LEWIS WALLER, who closed the Imperial Theatre on Friday, will produce there in the autumn a new romantic play called The Master of the King's Company, written by Sarah Barnwell Elliott and Maud Hosford. The piece has been played with success in America. The period is that of Charles II.

MR LESTER COLLINGWOOD'S autumnal tour of When London Sleeps, the bookings for which include the most important houses on the road, commences at Her Majesty's Theatre, Walsall, on Bank Holiday Monday, Aug. 1. Mr Collingwood, who is, we are pleased to say, flourishing like "a green bay tree" at his own theatre, the Alexandra, Birmingham, will on Sunday take the members of his staff out for the annual trip to Tewkesbury, whither, by a happy coincidence, the Birmingham Hippodrome party repairs on the same day.

MISS KATIE HOLLOWAY, who was such a success last year as Goody Two Shoes, has been engaged by Mr Arthur Carlton to play principal girl at one of his theatres next Christmas.—Mr William J. Miller has been engaged by Mr Edmund Tearle for the part of Rashleigh Osbaldistone in Messrs Howard and Wyndham's production of Rob Roy at Theatre Royal, Edinburgh.—Mr Charles Aldred, having concluded a successful stock season with Messrs Williams and Widdicombe at the Grand, Plymouth, will resume the part of Tigellinus for the third year with Mr W. Greet's Sign of the Cross company.

MR GRANVILLE BARKER, the new Cayley Drummle, in Mrs Tanqueray, was part author of The Weather Hen, played by Miss Mackintosh at the Comedy some time ago. Another of his comedies, The Marrying of Ann Leete, was one of the most peculiar pieces ever produced by the Stage Society. Mr Barker, who is the only son of Mrs Albert Barker, the reciter, made his biggest hit as an actor as Eugene, the boy poet, in Mr Bernard Shaw's Candida. He is greatly interested in the Stage Society and the Elizabethan Stage Society, having appeared for the former as Richard II.

MRS LANGTRY'S house, No. 15, Tedworth-square, was offered for sale by auction at Tokenhouse-yard on Wednesday, and withdrawn after a "highest bid" of £1,000.

THE first novelty at the Paris Rénaissance this season will be M. François De Curel's Le Coup d'aile. M. Guitry will then revive Les Maris de Leontine, the amusing comedy by M. Capus, which, brought out at the Nouveautés, enjoyed a long run. The rôle of Leontine, created by Mdlle. Cassive, will be played at the Rénaissance by Mdlle. Cheirel.

AT the first meeting of the executive committee of the reconstituted Liberal Unionist Council, held on Wednesday afternoon, the president, Mr Chamberlain, who was in the chair, proposed, and Lord Fitzwilliam seconded, a resolution thanking Mr Lewis Waller for placing the Imperial Theatre at the disposal of the council for the meeting on the 14th inst., and acknowledging also the ready assistance given by the members of the staff of the theatre in carrying out the arrangements. The resolution was passed unanimously.

THE so-called "classical" performances at the Theatre D'Orange, France, have been fixed for July 30, 31, and Aug. 1; and a subsidy has been granted to them by the French Fine Art Ministry. The three pieces to be produced this year are Hippolyte Couronne, by M. Jules Bois; Cinthia, by MM. Meunier; and Dionysos, by M. J. Gasquet. The latter is an adaptation in verse of Euripides' "Bacchantes." The interpretation will be first-class, with Madame Segond-Weber and M. Albert Lambert fils, of the Comedie-Française, and Mdlle. Brille and M. Darival, of the Odéon.

MR FRANK L. MOIR, who has just died at Deal at the age of fifty-three, was one of the most popular among composers of drawing-room ballads. One of his latest successes was "Down the Vale," the words of which were by Gunby Hadath, a young writer of lyrics who secured his first start in this much-favoured song.

A PUBLIC meeting was held at the Guildhall, Bristol, on Tuesday afternoon to decide whether the eleventh Bristol Musical Festival should be held in 1905. Sir Robert Symes (the Lord Mayor) presided, and said that ten festivals had been held. In all 104,654 persons had paid for admission. In 1902 the largest attendance was registered—namely, 13,556 persons—and the amount collected for the local charities was a very important item. He moved:—"That the eleventh musical festival be held in the year 1905, providing a guarantee fund of not less than £4,000 be raised." Mr G. E. Davies seconded the resolution, which was adopted; and on the motion of Sir Herbert Ashman, seconded by Alderman Hare, a committee was appointed with power to add to their number.

MR GEORGE WILLOUGHBY returned per P. and O. steamer Britannic on Wednesday last, after his highly successful tour of Australia and New Zealand extending over four years.

MR ERNEST R. ABBOTT'S company is at the Terriss Theatre this week with The Mariners of England. Mr Abbott gives an admirable impersonation of Lord Nelson, and acts throughout with striking dignity and power. Miss Ada Abbott as Mabel Talbot does excellent work, and Admiral Talbot is ably enacted by Mr Henry Toole. Mr John Lester as Captain Hardy is bluff, hearty, and vigorous. Mr W. H. Garbois as Captain Lebaudy does excellent work, and Mr Edward Ouston as Marston is commendable. Messrs A. M. Gray, Charles Wills, and J. Crighten as Admirals Collingwood and White and Lieutenant Portland give complete satisfaction, and Mr Thomas Searle is dryly droll as Old Tripps, Mr Horace Wheatley jun., being cleverly comic as Bill Bucket. Mr Edwin Keene as Tom Tripp and Miss Isabel Singleton as Polly Appleyard keep the fun going merrily, and Mr Herbert Morgan as Harry Dell and Miss Inez Harman as Nellie Dell do themselves very great credit.

THE competition of the singing classes at the Paris Conservatoire has proved unsuccessful. Pupils are admitted into the establishment because they have good voices. Nobody seems to trouble whether they are musically gifted and whether their voices have been properly "placed." With very few exceptions they sing through the nose or from the throat. In other words, those terrible creatures, the professional French "voice-breakers," who call themselves singing masters or mistresses, continue their work of destruction. The French have already societies for the protection of women, children, animals, &c. Why should not they start an organisation for the "Preservation of Voices!"

THE GARRICK HOSPITAL MATINEE.

On Tuesday Afternoon, June 19,
Revival of Mr W. S Gilbert's Tragic Episode,
in Three "Tableids," entitled
"ROSENCRANTZ AND GUILDENSTERN."

King Claudius	Mr W. S. GILBERT
Queen Gertrude	Lady COLIN CAMPBELL
Hamlet	Captain ROBERT MARSHALL
Rosencrantz	Mr LEO TREVOR
Guildenstern	Mr PAUL RUBENS
First Player	Sir FRANCIS BURNAND
Second Player	Miss CLO GRAVES
Ophelia	Mrs MADELEINE LUCETTE RYLEY

Mr Gilbert's "tragic episode," which was published in a Christmas number, was first played at the Vaudeville Theatre on June 3, 1891, at a matinée for the "Serpent" Relief Fund. On that occasion Mrs Theodore Wright appeared as Queen Gertrude, and Mr Frank Lindo, as Hamlet, supplied some ingenious imitations of Sir Henry Irving. The "skit" on Shakespeare's Hamlet was revived on Tuesday afternoon at a performance at the Garrick Theatre for the benefit of the Bushey Heath Cottage Hospital.

So much of the success of Mr Gilbert's method is due to his wit and literary skill that one shrinks from "telling the story" of his piece; which is, nevertheless, sufficiently unknown to justify, recapitulation. The idea is that King Claudius in his youth wrote a five-act tragedy. It was performed, or partially performed, only once, being, as the king admits "more than even sycophants could stand." The king suppressed the book, and made any reference to the play a capital offence. A copy still, however, exists, the one deposited with Polonius as Lord Chamberlain. Ophelia is betrothed to Hamlet, but she loves Rosencrantz. Rosencrantz and Ophelia agree to get rid of Hamlet by tricking him into acting the king's play. Ophelia steals her father's copy; it is shown to Hamlet, who, finding that it is a one-part piece with soliloquies, presents it before the Court. The King, having heard enough of the piece to satisfy him that it is his, stops the performance, and would have Hamlet executed immediately. It is arranged, however, that the Prince shall be banished to England, which, as the King says, is "welcome to his philosophic brain." The Queen suggests to Rosencrantz and Guildenstern that they shall break the Prince of his habit of soliloquising. They are to out Hamlet's speeches short by anticipating his words. He begins:—"To be or not to be," and one of the courtiers promptly and familiarly outs in and takes the words out of his mouth. When he asks Rosencrantz whether he can play on "this pipe," Rosencrantz replies, "Certainly, I'm rather good at it." When Hamlet lectures the actors, the First Player turns on him and tells him to stick to his own business, that of a Prince, and not talk of acting, of which he knows nothing.

The idea is very neatly worked out in comically respectable blank-verse, garnished with many allusions and an occasional pun. For instance, when talking of the fate which he allotted to those who mentioned the "damned" tragedy, Claudius remarks that the drama may have been bad but the punishment was "capital." Then there are satirical sidelong hits at the different exteriors of the actors who have depicted Hamlet, with many other racy, ingenious, and stimulating quips.

The great interest of the revival last Tuesday lay in the fact that Mr Gilbert played Claudius. The performance might have been an object lesson in the delivery of Gilbertian verse. The "retired humourist," as he has called himself, made every point, and made it in the most artistic and judicious manner, never over-emphasising the jest, but, on the other hand, being so crisp and distinct, so lovingly careful of inflexion and emphasis, that it was delightful to listen to such finished delivery of mock poetic verse. Mr Gilbert was admirably made-up, and the part evidently fitted him like the proverbial glove. Lady Colin Campbell was an agreeable interpretress of the character of Queen Gertrude; and Captain Robert Marshall made a most conscientious and resolute Hamlet. Mr Leo Trevor and Mr Paul Rubens presented a telling contrast as Rosencrantz and Guildenstern; and Mrs Madeline Lucette Ryley was a very pert and piquant Ophelia, full of mischievous charm. Miss Clo Graves being quite commendable as the Second Player. Sir Francis Burnand as the First Player brought down the house in a burst of delighted applause by his admirable rendering of the speech in which the Prince is reproved for trying to teach the actors their business. Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, which created a great amount of appreciative merriment, was preceded by The Fairy's Dilemma, in which Mr Arthur Bourchier and his excellent company appeared with their usual success. The matinée was well attended; and a bevy of charming actresses sold programmes for the benefit of the Bushey Heath Hospital.

THE ACTORS' CRICKET MATCH.

The fifth annual match between teams of London actors and Provincial actors, in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Actors' Orphanage Fund, was played on the 15th inst. at Kennington Oval, the ground and pavilion being kindly lent for the occasion by the Surrey Club. The London Actors eleven went in first, and managed to make a total of 165. Mr Aubrey Smith, an accomplished cricketer, scored 32 before he was stumped by Knox, off Denbigh's clever bowling. Mr Conway Tearle hit brilliantly, and was caught at cover-point when he had nearly reached a "fifty." After the innings of the London Actors' eleven, lunch was served, and was presided over by Mr George Alexander. The Provincial Actors then went in, Mr Leslie Holland making 24 and Mr V. C. O'Connor 31. Mr Egerton took seven wickets, the eleven being disposed of for 105, the London Actors thus winning by 60 runs. There were several interesting incidents in the course of the match. Mr Aubrey Smith twice sustained injuries from the bowling of his opponents, but nevertheless managed to hit a splendid "fiver." Mr Oscar Asche, whose appearance at the wicket inspired awe, missed the ball, and was out for 2, but bowled one man and caught another; and Mr F. R. Benson's active work as a fielder was warmly applauded. A very pleasant tea followed the match, Mrs George Alexander being presented with a pretty bouquet by the youthful son of Mr Leslie Holland. The strains of a fine band enlivened the proceedings, and a bevy of charming actresses sold "programmes." The weather was splendid, and the afternoon was very agreeably spent. The following is the score:—

MR HENRY SWINERD'S Dare-Devil Dorothy company, under the direction of J. W. Cordiner, will terminate on Saturday a fifty-two weeks' tour without a break at the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough. The autumn tour opens on Aug. 1 at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Mexborough.

DEATH OF WILSON BARRETT.

We regret to have to announce the death, at a nursing home in Albany-street, at 5 0 o'clock on Friday morning, of Mr Wilson Barrett. The deceased actor was discovered to be suffering from cancer, and three operations were found to be necessary. The last was performed in the early hours of Friday morning; but soon afterwards Mr Barrett was seen to be sinking, and in a short time he passed away.

The late Wilson Barrett was the son of a farmer, and was born in Essex. He was educated at a private school, and entered the dramatic profession at the age of seventeen. In 1874, after a valuable amount of experience in the provinces, he became manager of the Leeds Amphitheatre. As a provincial player of promise he was well known long prior to his first West-end appearances in London, which occurred in 1876, at the Princess's Theatre, when his wife, the late Miss Caroline Heath, played the heroine in W. G. Wills's Jane Shore, in 1876. But Mr Barrett had already been seen in London previously at the Surrey Theatre so far back as 1867, when he undertook the part of Archibald Carlyle, in East Lynne, owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr Richard Sheffield, when, instead of a revival of It's Never Too Late to Mend, that play had to be hurriedly produced. After this Mr Barrett took to touring, and the management of country theatres; but, like all good actors, his heart was in London town, and following up his first venture at the Princess's he took the Court Theatre (1879), and began with a revival of the old St. James's success of Fernande, superseded later by Courtship; or, the Three Caskets, by H. J. Byron. In 1880 he introduced Madame Modjeska to the English stage. On May 1 she appeared in Heartsease, an adaptation by James Mortimer. On Oct. 9 of the same year she played the title-rôle in Schiller's play of Mary Stuart, and on Dec. 11 secured another triumph as Adrienne Lecouvreur. On March 26, 1881, Romeo and Juliet was revived, and Mr Barrett played Mercutio. He was the Friar John, in Juana, produced on May 7. But it was not until Mr Barrett undertook the management of the Princess's, which he reopened on July 2, 1881, with a revival of The Old Love and the New, that that great success came to him which fixed him in the affections of the London public as a popular favourite. He gave one of the first opportunities to Mr Henry Arthur Jones, an unknown man at that time, with A Clerical Error at the Court, and again later at the Princess's with The Silver King, written in conjunction with Mr Henry Herman, in November, 1882, when two reputations at least were made absolutely on the stage—those of Mr Barrett and Mr E. S. Willard—to say nothing of Mr Jones. Previously to this he had produced The Lights o' London, by George R. Sims, followed up by The Romany Rye. Success attended Mr Barrett at the Princess's for years, and when Claudian came in 1883 he was drawing all London to Oxford-street. In Chatterton, by Henry Arthur Jones, Mr Barrett appeared in 1884, and in Hoodman Blind in 1885. One of Mr Barrett's most important artistic ventures was his revival of Hamlet at the Princess's Theatre in October, 1884.

He played Junius, in Lord Lytton's play of that name, produced on Feb. 26, 1885. In The Lord Harry, produced on Feb. 18, 1886, he was the Lord Harry Bendish. Mr Barrett's last production at the Princess's was Clito, on May 1, 1886, in which he sustained the name-part. He visited America, reappearing in London on Dec. 22, 1887, when he produced The Golden Ladder at the Globe, enacting the Rev. Frank Thornhill. On Feb. 22, 1888, Mr Barrett played Claude Melnotte at a morning performance. On May 17, at the Princess's, he produced an adaptation of "The Deemster," called Ben-My-Chree, appearing as Dan Mylrea. At the Princess's on Feb. 12, 1889, he produced Good Old Times, representing John Langley, J.P., and on Feb. 28 he produced Nowadays, depicting the Yorkshireman Saxton. Again he visited America, and on Dec. 4, 1890, opened the New Olympic, London, with the production of The People's Idol, in which he was the Laurence St. Aubrey. On Jan. 28, 1891, The Stranger was revived, with Mr Barrett as the Stranger. On April 21 a version of Belphegor, called The Acrobat, was produced, Mr Barrett being the Belphegor. Various successes of the Princess's were also revived during the season. His original productions include Jenny the Barber, at Bristol, on Dec. 10, 1891; Pharaoh, at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Sept. 29, 1892; Our Pleasant Sins, The Manxman (at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Aug. 22, 1894), and The Sign of the Cross at the Lyric Theatre, at the beginning of January, 1896, after a marvellously successful tour in America and the English provinces. The Sign of the Cross came from Mr Barrett's own pen. The play ran for over a twelvemonth at the Lyric, when Mr Barrett produced another more or less Biblical piece at the same theatre entitled The Daughters of Babylon, which was not so successful. Then, after a few revivals from his répertoire, and a special production of Othello, Mr Barrett again went on tour, and he also visited America.

A valued possession of Mr Wilson Barrett's was a letter from Mr Ruskin, in which, writing of Claudian, the great art critic said:—"You know perfectly well, as all great artists do, that the thing is beautiful, and that you do it perfectly. I regret the extreme terror of it, but the admirable doing of what you intend doing, and the faithful co-operation of all your combination, and the exquisite scenery, gave me not only much more than delight at the time, but were a possession in memory of very great value. What a lovely thing it would be for you to play all the noble parts of Roman and Gothic history in a series of such plays. . . . These things, with scene-painting like that at the Princess's Theatre, might do more for art teaching than all the galleries and professors in Christendom." Another valued souvenir of one of his greatest successes was a handsome silver tankard, of Georgian design, grapes and vine leaves forming the decoration, and the lid being surmounted by a stag, presented to Mr Barrett, with a pair of goblets, by the authors of The Silver King, and bearing the following inscription:—"To our Silver King, a token of our gratitude—a tribute of our admiration. Henry Arthur Jones and Henry Herman;" while on one goblet is inscribed, "Long life to our Silver King;" the other, "Health, Wealth, and Happiness to our Silver King."

Mr Barrett will always be best remembered by the season at the Princess's which commenced in the September of 1881 with Mr G. R. Sims's drama, The Lights o' London. It opened up an entirely new vista in melodramatic productions, and the realism of the scene in which the "supers" were real London costers, &c., attracted general attention. Mr Barrett's Hamlet, novel and original in many points, was a reading which, at any rate, gave rise to much interesting argument. In 1899 he had a season at the Lyceum Theatre, where he produced a remarkable drama by Mr Louis N. Parker, called Man and His Makers. Lately, he had been again industrious as a dramatist; and The Never-Never Land and Lucky Durham had come from his fertile and active pen. Mr Barrett was famed throughout the profession for his manly and sturdy character, his courage and enterprise, and his great ability and energy as an actor, a manager, and a dramatist. So vigorous did he appear on his recent visits with his company to the London suburbs, that the news of his death came as a sad and sudden surprise.

AT the Greenwich Theatre this week Mr Harry Foxwell and company are appearing in Mr Joseph Jefferson's successful play entitled The Shadows of a Great City. Mr Harry Foxwell gives a graphic representation of the Jewish pawnbroker, Abe Nathan. Mr Howell Travis supplies a powerful and clever embodiment of Tom Cooper; Mr John J. Hooker acts incisively as George Benson; Mr Arthur E. Tomlin is successful as Detective Arkwright; Mr Newton Pearce is excellent as Jim Farren; Mr J. Roberts is good as Simon Ables; and Messrs Fred Laidhon, John T. Halldon, Pat Quinn, and H. Doubell do praiseworthy work as Biggo, Crouch, Hammond, and the District Messenger. Miss Sheila Walsh is very successful as Annie and Nellie Standish; Miss Nellie Gray is a characteristic Miss Higgins; and Miss Molly Monaghan is deservedly a favourite as Biddy Roonan. The mounting is excellent.

"THREE LITTLE HEARTS OF GOLD."

Produced at the Metropole, Devonport,
on Monday, July 18.

CHARACTERS IN THE DRAMA.

John Vernon, alias Harper	Mr SAM LIVESEY
James Hamilton	Mr HERBERT CECIL
P.C. Smith	Mr LEONARD AARDALE
Bill Bibbs	Mr ARTHUR BYRON
Maud Hamilton	Miss JUDITH KYRLE
Mother Mag	Miss DAISY NORMAN
The Ayah	Miss ETHEL BOYCE
Arthur	Miss SUSIE JOY
Horace	Miss EDNA BRIGHT
Cissy	Miss CISSIE SERGEANT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In the prologue of this play we see Captain John Vernon and his wife, Maud, living happily in their bungalow in India. A certain Lieutenant James Hamilton makes love to the lady, the husband horsewhips him; but jealousy and misunderstanding arise. Captain Vernon and his wife quarrel, and she sails for England, Hamilton going home on the same boat.

Six years elapse, and the action of the drama begins. We are in a street in London on Christmas Eve. Captain Vernon has sunk to great poverty. His two children, Horace and Cissy, are on the streets, one of them selling matches and the other sweeping a crossing. He is divorced from his wife, who has married Hamilton, and she has one child, Arthur, born six months after her leaving India. Vernon takes to burglary, and enters Maud's house. He is about to kill Arthur when the mother cries, "Do not harm the boy; he is your own son!" The act ends with Maud announcing her determination to leave Hamilton's roof.

In Hyde Park, in the next act, Vernon and Hamilton meet each other, and after a struggle Hamilton attempts to shoot the Captain, but kills himself. Vernon and Maud are reconciled after full explanations, the children doing much to bring the two together. The re-marriage of John Vernon and Maud is made the excuse for the introduction of a juvenile festival, for which Mr Stephen E. Blythe has written some delightful music. There is plenty of singing in the play, Miss Mimi Fisher giving a "coon" song, Miss Edna Bright and Miss Cissie Sergeant contributing "The land of make believe," and Missie Susie Joy warbling "My Cosey Corner Girl" sweetly.

Mr Arthur Carlton's stock company gave a capital performance of the piece. Mr Sam Livesey as Captain Vernon was admirably dramatic. Mr Herbert Cecil's Lieut. Hamilton was effectively villainous. Miss Judith Kyrle as Maud acted with expression, ability, and self-restraint. Mr Aardale as the Corporal and as Police-constable Smith did himself great credit. Mr Arthur Byron as Bill Bibbs was very amusing, and his song, "There will be no beano there," took extremely well. Miss Daisy Morgan as Mother Mag was truly comic, and the Ayah of Miss Ethel Boyce was quite satisfactory. Mr Sam Livesey's stage-management was capital, and Mr Stephen Blythe conducted with decision and skill. Mr Cavendish and Mr Blythe appeared before the curtain in response to an enthusiastic summons at the close. Mr Cavendish thanked the audience for their reception of the piece, Mr Blythe expressing his gratitude to the company for the way in which it had been presented.

"THE LAST SHOT."

A Sketch, in One Act, by Ernest Leicester,
Produced at the Surrey Theatre on Thursday, July 21.

Gerald Baird	Mr ERNEST LEICESTER
William Tarvar	Mr A. B. IMESON
Private Williams	Mr W. STEVENS
Corporal O'Neil	Mr J. MILLER
Helen Darrell	Miss KATHLEEN RUSSELL

Considerable interest was shown in the production of The Last Shot. The scene is laid in the British camp on the Sabi River, South Africa, in the last Matabele War. We find Lieut. William Tarvar in command awaiting a convoy. He has been severely wounded; and Gerald Baird, a war correspondent, has nursed him through a long and severe illness, thus creating a firm friendship. Being surrounded by the Matabele hordes, Tarvar is afraid that he will not be able to hold out, and he confides to Baird that he is engaged to a girl in England, entrusting him with a sealed packet to give to her should he escape. Baird finds that the name on the packet is that of his fiancée, Helen Darrell. Just as he makes this discovery a messenger comes in under a flag of truce from the Matabele chief demanding surrender. The messenger proves to be a lady, who has been taken prisoner by the Matabele. Baird and Tarvar each recognise in her Helen Darrell, his affianced wife. Baird upbraids her for her faithlessness, and threatens to kill her. Tarvar, although wounded, prevents this; and Baird, to save the lives of those in the camp, rushes to the flagstaff and cuts down the British flag as a signal of surrender. He is fired at by the watchful Matabele, and receives a fatal wound. In his last moments he forgives Helen.

As Gerald Baird Mr Ernest Leicester acted with great earnestness and vigour, his dashing and manly style being very effective. As William Tarvar Mr A. B. Imeson played with feeling, artistic resource, and sincerity. As Helen Darrell Miss Kathleen Russell acted with delightful ease, girlish grace, delicate refinement, and womanly tenderness. Comic relief was provided by Mr J. Miller as a versatile Irish corporal, and Mr W. Stevens as Private Williams created much fun. The costumes, scenery, and effects were excellent.

"THE AMBLERS."

By B. L. FARJEON.

In her preface to this novel Miss Eleanor Farjeon tells us that it was the last work upon which her lamented father was engaged. The story was one which he had in contemplation for several years, and it eventually appeared in serial form in an illustrated weekly. Owing to unavoidable limits of time and space he was then obliged to write it in a very abridged form, but when the serial had run its course he commenced to rewrite it according to his original intentions; but unhappily it was never finished in its new form. She, therefore, has ventured to develop the unfinished portions of the story herself, and in this labour of love we must credit her with complete success, for "The Amblers" is interesting from cover to cover. The Amblers are a family of actors. To them, indeed, all the world was a stage, on which they played their parts conscientiously, and to the best of their ability. "They had been heard to boast that their ancestors had acted with Garrick at Old Drury, and that in the company at that time was an actor, Thomas Jefferson, the forerunner of a greater Jefferson—surely the finest comedian of the nineteenth century, whose Rip Van Winkle has become an immortal name all the world over. That Thomas Jefferson did act with Garrick, and played counter-parts to him, belongs to dramatic story, but the Amblers had no records to show that they were of the company, and their name is not to be found in Genest. They certainly possessed relics which had been handed down from generation to generation, but which of late years were rarely shown because of the modern tendency to scepticism; such as a pair of silk breeches which Garrick wore; the suit in which Palmer enacted Joseph Surface; a ring worn by Dodd in Aguecheek; the gartered stockings which graced the legs of John Philip Kemble when he played Malvolio in place of Bensley—the greatest of all Malvolios past and present; even a pair of gilt buckles, which they declared to have been presented by Mrs Margaret Woffington to a male Ambler, a handsome fellow with an eye for the ladies, as what actor has not?"

But we are principally concerned with David Ambler, who makes the most of golden opportunity when he takes the place of a star actor at the opening performances of the new Theatre Royal, Ridgway-on-Sea. Herein he plays Benedick to Margaret Delmore's Beatrice, and it is quite easy to guess that the well-simulated love of the stage merges into real affection. They are married in a little country church on a wintry day when the snow is falling. The reputation they have made in the country theatre procures for them a joint engagement in London at a salary of twenty-five pounds a-week each, and they are to "create" the chief parts in a new piece. "The night of the production arrived, charged with fateful possibilities for the future. It was the most notable première of the season, stalls and private boxes thronged with famous people, editors, critics, and the principal representatives of fashion and finance. Mr Penruddocke, the critic, whose London notices of the Amblers' first week in Ridgway-on-sea had done so much to stimulate public interest, was, of course, present, and anxious to see whether his earlier impressions would be confirmed. They were more than confirmed, and he said as much in a glowing eulogy. For David and Margaret it was a night of complete victory. There was scarcely a dissentient note in the press; a chorus of praise arose, and a general rejoicing at the discovery of a great actor and actress. They were courted and fêted, and for several months they occupied the throne which they had themselves erected. There was talk of a theatre for them, of which David should be the actor-manager and Margaret the leading lady."

The rift in the lute comes with the plottings of Lord Camburton, who has fallen violently in love with Margaret, and desires nothing better than an estrangement between her and David. The latter had helped a Mrs Sinclair, an actress who had made an unfortunate marriage, and had been left by her ne'er-do-well husband to starve with a child to support. Unfortunately David withholds his confidence from Margaret, and her suspicions, becoming roused, she visits her supposed rival. Mrs Sinclair is in deep distress at the loss of her child, and the helpful David comes to her aid with an offer of an engagement in Australia. The letter of thanks she sends to the kind-hearted actor is taken by the jealous Margaret as confirmation strong of a guilty intimacy. It runs as follows:—"I have London to-morrow as you arranged. God bless you, David, for all your goodness. Whatever happiness is left for me in this life I shall owe to you.—WINNIE." Margaret, in despair, leaves never to return, and goes to Paris, whither she is followed by Lord Camburton. Margaret discovers his base treachery, and her womanly indignation completely masters her, as the following scene will show:—

"'Ah, my angel!' he cried. 'You have made up your mind to do the sensible thing. We will leave Paris this afternoon. It is much the best, much the best. Before we go, let us drink to our future.'

"They stood confronting each other, each holding a glass, and as with a gay smile he put his to his lips, she dashed hers with all her force full into his face. It struck him between the eyes, which in an instant were suffused with blood. He could see but dimly when, wiping the blood away, he looked round for Margaret. She was gone."

The unhappy Margaret goes to her death in the valley of the Staubach, in Switzerland; but it is not to be. She seemed to hear the voice of her baby girl and she resolves to live and watch over her. In what way she does this we need not reveal to our readers, who may be referred to the book. Hero and heroine are reunited in the play in which they first met—Much Ado About Nothing—and in the same theatre at Ridgway-on-Sea. Among the audience was Lord Camburton, helplessly blind. After the curtain had fallen David and Marguerite in silence walked into the woods. All was peace; earth, sky, and air were touched with the eternal mystery of majestic repose. Heaven had lit its lamps, a soft air flowed whisperingly through leaf and branch. Otherwise not a sound save the hushed sound of their footsteps.

"He led her to the spot where he had first declared his love. Then David stopped, and she took no further steps.

"He turned to her. His face was sad, but there was an underlying tenderness in his voice.

"'Margaret, do you remember?'

"'May I address you as you address me?'

"'Yes.'

"'I remember, David.'

"'I have received the confession of the man who betrayed us.'

"'Do you believe him?'

"'I believe him.'

"'Oh, thank God, thank God!'

"'We have both suffered in the past. Let the future atone. Margaret, my faith is restored.'"

We must not pass over the delightful sketches of the vie intime of the Amblers; and sweet Susan Ambler—the most lovable of spinsters, the gentlest and most self-sacrificing of sisters, the chancellor of the family exchequer—she is worthy of a place by the side of Ruth Pinch. "The Amblers" should be widely enjoyed; and it is eminently a book for the profession to read, for it is full of appreciation of those who "please to live," from the highest to the humblest.

PRINCESS HENRY OF BATTENBERG, Prince Alexander and Princess Ena of Battenberg, and Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein were present at the performance of Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci at Covent-garden on Wednesday night.

FOR SYMPATHY.

WALTON.—Mrs William Walton (Annie Craston) and daughter Daisy thank kind friends for letters of sympathy in their sad bereavement.

AT the Pavilion, Ventnor, on Monday a variety entertainment by Mr Hugo Francis's company gave great satisfaction. Kardoe, the king of handcuff kings, completely mystified the audience. Some naval "bracelets" were introduced by a local coastguard; he was also heavily manacled with leg irons, but he was soon free. Madame Demonji gave a marvellous speciality reading; Miss E. Conway West, society entertainer, gave some humorous sketches; and Mr Hugo Francis proved himself a capital ventriloquist.

PRESENTATION.—Mr Lawson Lambert, who concluded a twelve months' engagement as business manager at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Saturday last, was on that evening the recipient of a handsome solid oak smoking cabinet and tantalus, fitted with fourteen pipes, ranging from a gold mounted meerschaum, and a quantity of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, &c. The presentation was made by Mr J. B. Mulholland on behalf of the staff and a few friends.

STRATFORD THEATRES OUTING.

The annual outing of the combined staffs of the Borough Theatre and Theatre Royal, Stratford, took place last Sunday at Southend-on-Sea. About seventy left Stratford station; and after a pleasant journey in specially reserved saloon carriages, the rendezvous was reached at 11 30. Tracks were at once made for the day's headquarters, the recently opened palatial Hotel Metropole, and several of the party took the opportunity afforded them of viewing, under the escort of the courteous manager, the elaborate interior and appointments of the hotel. Dinner was served at 12 30, by which time all were prepared to do full justice to the good things set forth on the tastefully designed menu. It was a matter for regret that neither Mr Fred Fredericks (general manager, Borough Theatre, nor Mr Sam Fredericks (manager, Theatre Royal) were present, the former being on the Continent, whilst the latter is on a holiday tour through the States and Canada, and in their absence Mr FRANK ROTHSAY (acting-manager, Borough Theatre) made a genial and popular chairman. Supporting him were Mr Walter Harding, box-office manager, Theatre Royal; Mr Sam Gething, manager, Stratford Empire; Mr A. E. Barnes, box-office manager, Borough Theatre; Mr Sam Silver, Mr Walter Fredericks, Mr Bert Ashton, and Mr C. H. Lyons, bar manager, Theatre Royal.

As the service was excellent, the enjoyable dinner was carried through with promptitude, and the CHAIRMAN then called upon the company to charge their glasses and drink the loyal toast of "The King and the Royal Family," which was received with acclamation.

The next toast was "Mrs Ellis-Fredericks (proprietress of the Stratford Theatres), Mr Fred and Mr Sam Fredericks," proposed in felicitous style by Mr HARDING, who in the course of his remarks said that although he had been connected with the Theatre Royal for the nineteen years it had been opened, he had never had a conflicting word with his employers, and he was proud that day to be in the service of Mrs Ellis-Fredericks.

Amid much enthusiasm Mr SAM SILVER briefly acknowledged on behalf of Mrs Ellis-Fredericks and family.

The CHAIRMAN then gave "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Mr Gething, remarking that it was a graceful compliment to their outing to have the presence of the manager of the Stratford Music Hall.

In response to a flattering reception, Mr GETHING said that he was only too happy to be with them that day; that he had always been on the best of terms with the officials of the two theatres, and that as long as he remained in Stratford he hoped it would continue to be so, and he was sure that the other visitors were equally delighted with the cordiality extended to them.

Mr FRANK ROTHSAY said he could not let the opportunity pass without saying a word in testimony to the excellent understanding and good-fellowship which existed among the employees, a state of affairs of which he as manager was very proud.

After the toast of "The Press" had been given and responded to by Mr BERT ASHTON, a move was made to the Winter Gardens of the hotel, where the ubiquitous "camera man" was in waiting to photograph the company.

This practically finished the scheduled arrangements, and the party were free for the rest of the day to go boating, driving, walking, and take advantage of the glorious sunshine according to their bent. A move was made for the station in time to catch the 7 30 train, which, after a swift journey, landed a happy band of pleasure-seekers unanimous in opinion that a most enjoyable outing had been spent.

As heretofore, the preliminary arrangements were carried through by Mr G. Saunders (Borough) and Mr W. Aldous (Royal), who well merited the highly successful work.

MR HARRY LITHO'S Troupe of Pierrots are paying us their annual visit to Felixstowe, and have been twice daily playing to crowded "houses." The performances are up to the usual standard. Mr Litho is a host in himself, and his character songs and patter are vastly diverting. Mr Frank Freear is an excellent comedian, and a great favourite. Mr Harry Edwards sings some excellent baritone songs in good style, and Messrs Redfern, Owen, and Geo. Snow work hard to make things lively for the amusement of the visitors.

AT the Palace and Winter Gardens, Tynemouth, the Dandies, in their original musical mélange, head the bill this week. The Four Rosaires are a clever troupe of American acrobats; the Three Boleros, in their comedy triple bar act, are amusing; Mr Arthur Winckworth (late of the Carl Rosa opera company), bass, is well received; Miss M. Thamas, contralto, proves herself to be a vocalist of no mean order; the Royal Court Orchestra still remains under engagements; and the evening entertainment winds up with an excellent show of animated pictures.

THE annual outing of the staff of the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, took place on Sunday, the 10th inst. The party, numbering thirty-five, travelled in coaches to Nanpantan, via Sawley. A MEETING of the members of the Dramatic and Musical Fund was held on Friday at Terry's Theatre at 2 0 o'clock to further consider Mr Edward Terry's proposals. THE first annual outing of the stage staff of the King's Theatre, Cardiff, took place last Sunday at Portcawl, a delightful Welsh seaside place. The party, numbering twenty-five, after being photographed in front of the theatre, were conveyed by saloon carriage on the 9 12 a.m. train, lunch being served on arrival. Afterwards, bathing and sports, and dinner at 1 30 p.m., the afternoon being spent in recreations that approved the individual taste. After a pleasant tea the party returned to town, all agreeing to a most delightful day. It is intended to make this outing an annual affair.

THE annual staff outing of the Newcastle Empire Theatre took place on Sunday last. The party, numbering over 135, journeyed to Shotley Bridge, Mr E. Leslie Conroy, the resident-manager, presiding. After dinner Mr Conroy proposed success to Moss Empires, Limited, and spoke in eulogistic terms of his directors and his resident-director, Mr Richard Thornton, who was unavoidably absent owing to a breakdown of his motor, but who joined the company with Mrs Thornton later in the afternoon. The speech was greeted with cheers. Sports were then indulged in, viz., a cricket match between Ladies v. Gentlemen, the gentlemen playing with broom handles and the ladies with the usual bats. This resulted in a win for the ladies by eighteen runs. The other items were foot and running handicaps, the prizes being given by Mr Mark Abrahams, and presented by Mrs E. Leslie Conroy. One of the funniest items of the programme was a hat trimming competition, organised by Mr Tom M'Naughton, and a handsome gold and ivory walking-stick was presented by Miss Alice Lloyd for this prize. The company reached the Empire, Newcastle, at 9 45 p.m. after a record and most enjoyable day.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

LOWESTOFT'S NEW HIPPODROME

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The latest addition to the amusements of Lowestoft is a spacious and substantial hippodrome, erected at a cost of some thousands by Mr George Gilbert, the well-known entertainer. A full description of the building appeared in the columns of The Era some three months ago; but it may be mentioned that accommodation is provided for 2 500 persons. The building is replete in every respect; handsomely decorated, furnished, and upholstered, and presents a brilliant spectacle when lighted by electricity — eight powerful arc lamps, together with a number of incandescent lamps, having been installed. The opening took place on Monday evening with considerable éclat in the presence of an immense audience, which included the Mayor and Mayoress (who was presented with a magnificent bouquet by Mr Gilbert), several members of the corporation, and many leading townsmen. Miss Amy Russell appeared on the handsomely appointed stage, and appropriately "opened" with a verse of the National Anthem, after which Mr Geo Gilbert stepped into the arena, and was accorded a vociferous welcome.

Addressing a few words to the audience, Mr Gilbert thanked the Mayor and Mayoress for their presence, and said he would do his best to amuse the public for many months to come. The building of the Hippodrome by Messrs John Young and Son, of Norwich, was, he said, one of the quickest things ever done—it had been erected in fifteen weeks, and that he contended was a record; it was only finished ten minutes before the performance.

The programme then proceeded. The Yoricks caused hearty laughter in their sketch, and Miss Amy Russell contributed a couple of musical numbers in excellent style. Dezmonti and Mora performed some remarkable feats on the triple bars, and Mdlle. Agnes Krembser gave a wonderful display as the lady Cinquevalli. The Three Sisters Chester, banjo soloists, dancers, &c., gave an attractive turn, and Miss Ida Kessanly's performing toy terriers were especially good. The turn of the evening was the first appearance locally of Johnny Trundley, the "Pride of Peckham," who was introduced with his father. In reply to a question, Johnny, who is five and a-half years and weighs 11st. 8lb., said it was his intention to be a jockey. The Dayton Family and Harry Coates, the singing navvy, were much appreciated, and the performance closed with a series of local pictures shown by the Bioscope, with an electric light of 20,000 candle-power. Music was contributed by an excellent orchestra, and during the interval the beautiful lounge and vestibule were much frequented. The whole performance passed off without the slightest hitch, thanks in no small measure to the efficient stage-management of Mr Stanley Steeds, formerly of the Hammersmith Palace of Varieties.

THE following subscriptions to the Jean Stanley fund have been received during the past week:—G. H. Chirgwin, 10s. 6d.; Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, 10s. 6d.; Mr Fred Marlow's list, £2 6s. 6d. (F. Marlow, 10s. 6d.; Mrs F. Marlow, 10s. 6d.; Mr and Mrs Marlow, jun., 10s. 6d.; G. Haecker, 10s.; Mr Clark, 2s.; Mr Wertheim, 1s.; J. Sergant, 2s.).

MISS LILY BURNAND'S latest song "Good old English girl," has met with great success at the Paragon and Empress. The pretty and popular lady leaves town for one week to appear at the Grand, Hanley. On the following week she opens at three London halls, with new songs and new dresses.

MR VERNON COWPER'S rendering of the song "The Poster Girl" is one of the hits of the production of The Belle of the Orient (J. Peterman's new sketch) at the Royal and Islington Empire. "The Poster Girl," we may add, has a smile that won't come off. Mr Cowper's acting as Lord Exmoor is also worthy of praise.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

NEWPORT.

EMPIRE.—Moss's Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Fred Karno's company with The Dandy Thieves heads the bill here. Miss Lucy Clarke is accorded a warm reception. Mark Anthony, a stylish singer, is delightfully entertaining, and one of Les Voces (whose partner was left behind in Swansea seriously ill) sings admirably. Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo piccaninnies provide a very attractive turn in cake walks and dancing; Tiny Arnold dances gracefully; and Madge May, a sweet singer, is applauded. Little Ganty is extremely quaint, and the Damm Bros., eccentric acrobats, give a capital show.

NEWQUAY

DRILL HALL.—On Saturday Mr Frederick Dale opened his Newquay season with the English Opera Singers by giving a concert in the Drill Hall. Miss Edith Serpell, as usual, charmed the house, and Miss Lily Pritchard also gave satisfaction with her excellent recitations and songs, as did Mr Claud Anderson, the possessor of a clear tenor voice. Messrs F. Dale in his humorous sketches and H. Coleman, pianoforte soloist and accompanist, called forth their respective share of the audience's appreciation. The stage has been considerably improved.

NORTH SHIELDS.

BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company has presented The Grip of the Law here this week. Mr John Clyde gives an artistic representation of Dave Arkwright; Mr E. D. Nicholls is a capable Zeph Sorrell; Mr H. R. Leigh is clever as Sergeant Frank Paul; Mr Courtney Robinson scores heavily as Jacob Hockaday; Mr Willie Black is good as Andy Blunt; Rose Hockaday is rendered in capital style by Miss Ruth Shepherd; Miss Ada Lucille is suitably placed in the dual-part of Mrs Baddiscombe and Marion Arkwright; Miss Ada Frank is pleasing as Beulah Bliss; and the remaining characters are in good hands. Mr Alex. Tay, described as the bricklayers' conjuror, also appears with much success.

Miss Cissie Moxon is heartily received as Flossie Kixie, Miss Nellie Lauraine is a capable Angelina Toft, Miss Kitty Jones is smart as Peggy O'Holligan, Mr Jim Woods is clever as Ebenezer Swanck, and Mr W. Harvey as Larry O'Holligan causes much laughter. Mr W. S. Hutchinson is amusing as Biddy O'Holligan, Mr Fred W. Graham makes the most of Cecil Tott, Mr R. H. Handow is seen to advantage as Sharpe Scrivener, and Mr J. Rogers scores as Thady Clancy. The Saxon Troupe of dancers are also warmly greeted.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The bill here is headed by Mr Dan Conroy, a clever comedian, who scores a great success. The Excelsior Glee Singers are also proving a great attraction; and Mr Schack Seebold, Swiss instrumentalist, is very entertaining. Les Barrs, eccentric gymnasts, cause hearty laughter. The Harts, in The Laughter Makers, are well received. Miss Alice Adeson, burlesque actress, is popular, and the Bio-Photoscope is still a special feature.

NOTTINGHAM.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—The Fighting Parson proves a huge attraction this week. The various scenes are realistically portrayed, and the sketch is replete with fun and interest which relieves the pathetic scenes, wherein Mr George Gray shows histrionic talent much above the average. The Werner-Amoros Troupe are exceedingly smart jugglers and comedians, especially the feats of Pierre Amoros, which gain him a hearty reception. The banjo playing of Earle and Earle rouses the greatest enthusiasm, and a tremendous ovation is given them for the overture "Semiramide." The Roman Singers are adding to their popularity by some excellent part-songs, and the comicalities of Lindon Wyatt are as amusing as ever. Charles Prelle submits a clever ventriloquial item in which he utilises his smart little dogs as subjects. Allis and Cassati bring out the laughter by their droll sayings, and Arthur Preece is well received for his songs. The Sisters O'Meers give a skilful exhibition on the tight-wire, and the programme is completed by Amy Sullivan, comedienne, and Charles Lilburn, comedian.

OLDHAM.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—The fine variety bill submitted here this week includes Miss Lydia Yeamans Titus, whose inimitable singing and mimicry are well received; Martin Chapender as an illusionist is very successful; Shawlene is greatly appreciated for his clever whistling; Miss Lillieth Leyton acts cleverly in The Order of the Bath, being well supported by Mr Cyril Wallis Mackey. Johnson and Belt have a novelty comedy turn in A Queer Customer, and the animated pictures are varied and interesting. Blanche Haddon, vocalist; Mdlle. Violi, instrumentalist; and Atroy, society juggler, complete the programme.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is here in The Octoroon. Miss Ada Elliston is realistic in the title-rôle; Miss Amy Hermann is a winsome representative of Dora Sunnyside; Miss Ada Tilley is clever as Paul; Mr Frank Strickland is well suited to the part of George Peyton; Mr Stephen Ewart is quite successful as Salem Scudder; and Mr Eric Hudson gives a clever impersonation of Jacob M'Closky. Mr Harry Leander is humorous as Ole Uncle Pete, and Mr Lonnen Meadows is very successful as Wa-na-tee. The Dahomian Troupe introduce a speciality in their clever cake-walk and banjo selection.

OXFORD.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Mr Ronald Grahame's stock company is this week presenting The Life of an Actress. Mr Geoffrey Broughton attains a high degree of success with his sympathetic and capable handling of the rôle of Grimaldi, while Mr Leonard Booker does well as Lord Arthur Shafton. Mr Ronald Grahame is very forcible as Captain Maltravers, and Mr Herbert J. Walton is capital as Selwyn Dawdle. Mr James Stephens scores considerable success with his humorous presentment of Wopshot, and is enthusiastically encored for his songs. Miss Lucy Victor is natural as Violet, and Miss Edith Lorraine is good as Mrs Hopkins, while Miss Edna Hana sustains the part of Julia with her wonted success.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Resident Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—The theatre was reopened on Monday night after the summer vacation by Mr Frank Nelson's company, who is appearing in the farcical comedy Trooper Hunt's Widow. Mr Wilfred E. Shine is decidedly successful in the title-rôle, evoking unrestrained mirth from a highly amused audience throughout the entire comedy, and he is ably assisted to this end by Messrs Joseph Hudson and Cecil Fowler as Gordon Ryder, a sporting gentleman, and Nathaniel Sapp, a small grocer, respectively. Mr Alec Flood is seen to advantage as the cousin, Richard Hunt, a farmer; and Mr Howard Cridland is well placed as Harry Fraser, a young solicitor; while Mr George M'Closkie makes an excellent Newman, Fraser's head clerk. Miss Amy Edmonds is winning as Frances Gresham, the vicar's daughter; Miss Susie Oak, Hunt's young housekeeper and sweetheart, contributes largely to the success of the piece; and Miss Ella Kitson is entertaining in her impersonation of Miss Fane Watson, a wardrobe dealer. The amusing duologue He and She, ably taken part in by Mr Howard Cridland and Miss Ella Kitson, precedes.

PAIGNTON.

PAVILION PIER.—Proprietors, the Devon Steamship Company, Limited; Entertainment Manager, Mr John A. Thomson.—The company engaged here is this week producing Madeline, in which Miss Margaret Watson plays the title-rôle with her usual success. Mr J. Durford Geddes enacts the part of Bertrand creditably; and Mr Edward W. Cudd as his evil genius Remy is worthy of mention. Mr Edwin Ling as Dr. Applani is admirably placed; and Mr Frank Medhurst justifies his selection as Henri De Brassier, Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd as Countess De Brassier leaves nothing to be desired; and Miss Nellie Ling is pleasing as Margaret.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is occupying the boards here this week with Saturday to Monday. It is rightly named an irresponsible comedy. The company is an excellent one, the mounting and staging being very satisfactory. Mr Stuart Champion as Lord Culvert (late captain R.N.) has a part that fits him to a nicety. He quite seems to revel in it. The Probyn Dyke of Mr T. A. Malden is a capital foil to the irrepressible captain; Mr Thomas Sidney is responsible for the part of the Rev. Lemuel Toop; and Mr Dallas Welford as Stanley Ridding is admirable. Mrs Wendover is well taken by Miss Moyra Creegan. Lady Diana Porchester is ably acted by Miss Madeline L'Estrange, her daughter Angela being brightly played by Miss Nancy Beresford. The curtain-raiser is Judged by Appearances.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little are presenting The Executioner's Daughter, and the lovers of sensational incidents are certainly having a good time. Paul Rovel, the hero, is played by Mr Wilson Howard in an able way; Mr Edward M. Hamilton as Monsieur Roche is a great success; the Felix Marius of Mr George Beverley is a powerful rendering; and Mr W. H. Sharpe is a capable exponent of Kretch. Miss Dorothy Riddle in the title-rôle plays consistently and well, and Miss Constance Stow enacts Helene Marie in a painstaking and careful manner.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—A capital bill is provided this week here. Mr T. E. Dunville heads the list, and his patter and mannerisms keep the house in one continual ripple. Ada Cerito, comedienne, has some well-rendered songs which are well received. Viviana, the dancing girl, is a very graceful and pleasing turn; Tom Parker, comedian is very droll; Carr and Rose, comedy vocal couple, give a clever selection of songs; and the Brown and Kelly company in the sketch My Wife's Baby is responsible for roars of laughter. The Lannons, high pedestal dancers; Amy Langtry, dainty comedienne; and the Kays, vaudeville entertainers, also appear.

PRESTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—Variety is here this week. The company, headed by the Brothers Onda, in their sketch A Quiet Night, includes Beattie Foster, vocalist; John Kurnell, comedian; Vance Brothers, musical specialists; Minnie D'Aubyn, coon vocalist; Gillin, illusionist; the Waffatangs, dancers; and Wallace Whitney, eccentric comedian.

The artistes who achieve marked success include Messrs Pacie Ripple, A. Kavanagh, F. Drawater, F. Billington, and the Misses Norah Maguire (a particularly gifted actress and vocalist), Jessie Rose, Mabel Burnege, and Theresa Rassam. All the favourite musical numbers have been enthusiastically received, many of those in The Mikado and The Yeomen of the Guard having to be repeated twice and thrice to delighted audiences.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. A. Hornby.—Mr Harry Paulton and company have furnished the attraction at the "Pav." this week, appearing before large audiences in the diverting farce, Niobe (All Smiles). Mr Paulton himself plays Peter Amos Dunn in his own brilliant and amusing fashion, and Miss Kate Connaught is extremely good as Niobe. Miss Kate Turner is a vivacious Mrs Dunn, and other parts skilfully interpreted are those by Miss Lucy Verrier (Beatrice Sillocks), Miss Annie Marian (Mary), Miss Grace Massey, Miss Agnes Paulton, and Miss Dorothy Rowe. Mr H. Paulton, jun., is a capital Cornelius Griffin, and a similar description applies to Mr J. Monkhouse as Tompkins and to Messrs T. G. Laurence and J. Walters in their respective parts. The Follies have appeared before appreciative audiences at the afternoon entertainments.

MUNICIPAL FETES.—Under the direction of Mr Hugo Gorlitz and the management of Mr J. T. Savage an attractive programme was arranged for the first municipal fête in Ellington-park on Thursday. The Grenadier Guards' band, the pipers of the Scots Guards, and the Ramsgate Corporation orchestra were engaged for the occasion, and the star artistes whose services had been requisitioned were Miss Jessie Parker, Mr Fred Wright, jun., Miss Marie Dainton, and Mr Jim Blakely. Illuminations and fireworks were also included in the attractive programme arranged.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—This week's bill is headed by the Arizonas, four in number, who prove themselves expert acrobats, tumblers, and contortionists. Tom Stuart, actor-mimic, scores a decided success with his clever impersonations of music hall stars and characters from Dickens. Mdlle. Vanda gives a novel turn as juggler and rolling-globe performer. The Sisters Charnley, pleasing duettists and dancers, are on a return visit; Señorita Eleonora performs some daring feats on the trapeze; La Belle Tosca, on the tight-wire, is both graceful and clever; Carlotta Mayson, descriptive vocalist, is well received; and the Vivigraph display of animated pictures adds to the variety of the programme.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr A. R. Sutcliffe.—An attractive programme is provided, including J. S. Whiteford, Scotch comedian; J. H. Scotland, basso; Elsie Steadman, comedienne; A. R. Sutcliffe, vocal comedian; G. M'Callen; and Foreshore Kershaw, accompanist.

E. H. WILLIAMS' MERRIE MEN.—The Merrie Men draw large and delighted audiences daily to their outdoor entertainments. Mr Williams has engaged several new members, including Arthur Stacey, comedian.

ROCK FERRY.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Acting-Manager, Mr Victor Wallace.—The salubrious weather is very favourable to pierrot entertainments, and consequently the gardens are well patronised. Mr Malcolm Scott is on excellent terms with his audience, and his impromptu patter is apropos and clever. Olly Oakley, the banjoist, is a master of his instrument; Daisy Lee is a sweet singer of soprano songs; Mr Victor Wallace is in favour with his baritone solos; and Bickley entertains with his menagerie pictures.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

14,962. Joseph Arthur Jagger, 11, Hatton-garden, London. Improved exit doors for theatres and public buildings.

PROSPECTUS.

This Company has been formed to acquire the Hippodrome at present belonging to Captain Fitzgerald at Pool Meadow, Coventry, and to erect a new and permanent Hippodrome on a site at Hales-street, in the City of Coventry, and to carry on in the present temporary building in Pool Meadow, the existing Hippodrome, until the erection of the new building, and after the erection of the new building and the installation of the plant therein to carry on business there.
The Hippodrome, originally erected by Captain Fitzgerald in 1903, has received a considerable amount of support in Coventry and the neighbourhood, and appears to have supplied what was desired in Coventry, namely, a first-class entertainment at popular prices.
The plan adopted of two performances each evening secures good attendances, and appears to have become very popular in the city and neighbourhood.
The books of the business have been submitted to the firm of Edward Thomas Peirson and Son, Chartered Accountants, Coventry, and the following is their certificate as to the profits from Aug. 3, 1903, to June 4, 1904, a period of forty-four weeks:—
17, Hertford-street, Coventry, June 18, 1904.
We certify that we have examined the books of the Coventry Hippodrome (which, so far as we have been able to test them, appear to be substantially correct) for the period Aug. 3, 1903, to June 4, 1904, inclusive, and we find that before charging salary of general manager, income-tax, depreciation or interest on capital, the results, as shown thereby, have been as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
For the twenty-four weeks ending Jan. 16, 1904, a profit of	664	10	5
For the twelve weeks ending April 19, 1904, a loss of	19	18	6
For the eight weeks ending June 4, 1904, a profit of	62	16	3
The net profit for the whole period of forty-four weeks being thus £707 8s. 2d., which, if maintained at the same rate, would show a profit for the twelve months of	836	0	2

In arriving at the above results the sum of £315 has been charged for rent.
(Signed) EDWARD THOMAS PEIRSON and SON.

With respect to the period referred to in the above certificate during which a loss was made, it should be explained that the management had, during the twelve weeks in question, raised the prices of admission, which increase was apparently not acceptable to the public, and resulted, therefore, in a loss. The succeeding eight weeks, when the prices were reduced again, showed a resumption of profits, and it is fair to presume that at the present rate of prices the old rate of profits will be resumed.
It will also be noted that the rent paid for the present temporary buildings, which has varied during the forty-four weeks, and which now stands at £9 per week, has been debited before arriving at the profits shown in the above account.
The Vendor has obtained options for the purchase of a site for the new Hippodrome in Hales-street, Coventry, particulars of which options will be found in a later part of this prospectus.
The site in question is situated in the centre of the city, with a frontage to a good thoroughfare, having the trams from Stoke, Payne's-lane, and Bell-green, which tap the main artisan population of Coventry running in front of it, and being close to the tramline from Coventry Station to Bedworth, which runs through the busiest part of the city.
Plans have been prepared by Mr Thomas Francis Tickner for the erection of a spacious and convenient Hippodrome on this capable of seating 1,500 persons, with the best modern appliances and conveniences, and his estimate of the cost is as follows:—

High-street Chambers, Coventry,
June 23, 1904.

Messrs Hughes and Masser,
Solicitors, Coventry.

Gentlemen,—
Re proposed Hippodrome, Hales-street,
I have made an approximate estimate of the proposed new building, of which plans have been sent to the City Council, and I find the cost will be about £7,500.
I am, Gentlemen,
yours faithfully,
(Signed) THOMAS F. TICKNER.

The plans have been passed by the City Council.
The new building will be furnished not only with a full-sized stage, but also with a circus arena suitable for the production of aquatic performances as well as ordinary circus performances.
A drawing of the elevation of the proposed Hippodrome, also showing the seating accommodation, accompanies the prospectus.
It is hoped that the building may be erected, completed, and properly fitted up before Christmas of this year.
It is intended to keep on the business of the existing Hippodrome until the new Hippocrome is opened, and then that the existing building shall be sold and its business transferred to the new Hippodrome.
The amount required for the purchase of the site and erection of the Hippodrome is as follows:—

Cost of Site	2,400	0	0
Estimated Cost of New Hippodrome	7,500	0	0
Purchase of Old Hippodrome	850	0	0
Formation Expenses	500	0	0

The £1,750 reserved as above for working capital will, it is considered, be amply sufficient for fittings, &c., not included in Mr Tickner's estimate and for working capital.
It is proposed, when the building is erected, to borrow a sum of £4,000 either on mortgage or debentures at interest not exceeding £5 per cent., which with the £9,000 present issue of shares will provide the £13,000.
The profits made by the present business, after adding to them the amount for rent, which, of course, will not have to be paid at the new Hippodrome, as per the certificate of Messrs Peirson and Son, will amount on the average to £23 4s. 8d. per week.

This for fifty-two weeks will amount to	1,208	2	8
It is anticipated that the company will receive from rent of cottages on part of site not required for the purposes of the Hippodrome, from rent of lock-up shop part of the building, refreshment stalls, &c., at least	100	0	0
	1,308	2	8
And after deducting interest on £4,000 at £5 per cent.	200	0	0
There will remain	£1,108	2	8

which would suffice to pay a dividend of £8 per cent. on the whole of the capital proposed to be issued, and to leave a balance of £388 2s. 8d. for Manager's Salary, Directors' Fees, &c.
This calculation is, however, based on the profits of the existing business. It is confidently anticipated that with a larger, more commodious, and more centrally situated building, the profits will largely increase without any corresponding increase in the expense of management, and consequently a higher rate of dividend may be looked for by the shareholders.
The Vendor, Mr Sylvester, has entered into an agreement with the Company to hand over to them the benefit of the options acquired by him for the purchase of the existing Hippodrome, and of the sites for the new Hippodrome.
The Company will pay to Mr Sylvester the sum of £500, out of which he will pay the preliminary expenses of and incident to the formation and floating of the Company down to the time when it becomes entitled to commence business. The estimated amount of the preliminary expenses is £400.
No agreement for underwriting of shares has been entered into.
The contract for the sale of the business is dated July 19, 1904, and made between Thomas Montagu Sylvester of the one part and the Company of the other part, and is for the transfer of the options for the purchase of land and of the existing building, and for the payment of £500 to Mr Sylvester in respect of the costs of the preliminary expenses as hereinbefore mentioned.
The following are the particulars of the agreements entered into:—
June 10, 1904. Agreement made by Frank Snape, Jordan Well, Coventry, to give Mr Sylvester the option of purchasing two houses in Hales-street for £500.
June 9, 1904. Option by Richard Wright, 14, Mount-street, Coventry, to Mr Sylvester to purchase property in Hales-street for £1,200.
June 9, 1904. Option to purchase property, No. 30 and 35, Chauntry-place, Hales-street, from Miss Bowen, Shilton, Coventry, for £700.
June 3, 1904. Option from Captain Fitzgerald, Priory-street, Coventry, to purchase Hippodrome for £850.
July 19, 1904. The purchase agreement between the Company and the said Thomas Montagu Sylvester mentioned above.
Mr Sylvester, one of the Directors, is interested as Vendor to the Company as above mentioned in the promotion of the Company, and the property proposed to be acquired by it. The other Directors are not interested in the promotion or property.
The business of the Hippodrome will be taken over subject to all existing trade contracts which are of the ordinary trade character
The minimum subscription on which the Directors may proceed to allotment is 4,000 shares.
The Articles of Association provide that the qualification of the Directors is to be the holding of twenty-five shares in the company.
The remuneration of the Directors is to be the sum of £25 per annum each, with a commission of £5 per cent. on the net profits, to be divided between the Directors, and such further sum as the Company may in General Meeting grant, and such remuneration is to be divided among them in such proportion as the Directors may determine.
The said Thomas Montagu Sylvester is to be the Managing Director of the Company for a period of five years at a salary of £200 per annum and five per cent. on the net profits of the Company.
The Certificate of Messrs E. T. Peirson and Son, the Estimate of Mr Thomas F. Tickner, Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, and the above-mentioned Contracts can be inspected at the Office of the Solicitors to the Company at any time during business hours.
A copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association is printed in the folds of the Prospectus, and forms part of it.
Where no allotment is made the deposit will be returned in full, and where the number of shares allotted is less than the number applied for the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the remaining payments.
Failure to pay any future instalments on shares allotted when due will render the previous payments liable to forfeiture.
Prospectuses and Forms of Application can be obtained at the Office of the Company or from the Solicitors or Bankers.
This Prospectus has been duly filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies.
Dated this 21st day of July, 1904.

This Form of Application may be used.

THE FORTUNES OF THE SURREY.

The severance of Mr GEORGE CONQUEST'S connection with the Surrey Theatre—which has been marked by such an eloquent tribute to his popularity this week, in the shape of a grand farewell benefit—and the uncertainty which surrounds the future of the old house combine to draw attention to its extremely varied history. One by one, the old playhouses, with their many interesting associations, are either destroyed or employed for other than dramatic uses. The Surrey has certainly seen many "chops and changes."

Taking a lease of a vacant plot of ground in what was then known as St. George's-fields, CHARLES DIBDIN, the famous song-writer and composer, CHARLES HUGHES, a clever equestrian of the time, and some of their friends who advanced capital, opened the first theatre on this spot in the year 1782, for the display of equestrian and dramatic entertainments on a plan similar to that which ASTLEY was then pursuing near Westminster-bridge

In 1794, Mr JAMES JONES took a repairing lease of the Circus from Lady WEST, at an annual rental of £210, and much of the popularity of future seasons was due to Mr JOHN C. CROSS, an industrious dramatist who wrote forty-four pieces for the theatre. On Aug 12, 1805, the Circus was burned down, the theatre being insured for £3,000 only, which scarcely covered one-sixth of the loss. A new house was erected from the designs of Mr CABANEL, at an expenditure, it was said, of £14,500, and opened on Easter Monday, 1806 Three years afterwards, the house being advertised for lease or sale, ELLISTON, on Feb. 23, 1809, sent in proposals to become a tenant. A lengthy correspondence ensued, but it ended with ELLISTON becoming the lessee for seven years, at a rental of £2,100 per annum. Under his management the theatre, now called "the Surrey," was opened on Easter Monday, 1809, with a new prelude called The Invisible Avengers, a melodramatic spectacle, and a pantomime entitled Harlequin and the Witch of Ludlam. A melodrama called Llewellyn was the first of the "dog pieces" produced at the Surrey, the two dogs, called Gelert and Victor, receiving daily visits at the stage-door between one and three, "in order to gratify that portion of the public who are unable to satisfy their curiosity in the evening relative to the remarkable sagacity of these animals." When ELLISTON gave up his lesseeship to take the new Drury-lane Theatre TOM DIBDIN became his successor. DIBDIN held the licence of the Surrey Theatre from July, 1816, to October, 1822. The theatre soon came under the direction of Mr WILLIAMS, associated with the once famous Boiled Beef house in the Old Bailey, and THURTELL'S gig was exhibited, after the murder of Mr WEARE, as one of the principal attractions in a piece called The Gamblers, brought out in January, 1824; and not only the gig, but the "identical sofa" on which THURTELL slept the night of the murder, and "the identical table" round which the party supped, appeared on the stage.

On Monday night, Jan. 30, 1865, the house was burned down. But a new and more elegant theatre was soon opened on the same site, under the management of Mr SHEPHERD, on Boxing-night, 1865. In October, 1872, the house was reopened with Miss VIRGINIA BLACKWOOD as "lessee and directress," who remained till June 1873, when Mr WILLIAM HOLLAND then assumed the direction. He was followed by the late GEORGE CONQUEST, with whom memories of the Surrey Theatre are indissolubly connected. Born in London in 1837, the son of a popular actor and an equally admired actress and danseuse, he was educated in the College Communal at Boulogne, where he carried off all the prizes for gymnastics. The late GEORGE CONQUEST'S male parent was originally a boot and shoe maker, who went on the stage and obtained an engagement under GOMERSAL in the old Garrick Theatre in Goodman's-fields. The old CONQUEST went into management at the Grecian Theatre in the City-road, and GEORGE was born in the house next to Goodman's-fields Theatre. He made his first theatrical success at the Grecian in 1857 as Hassarac in a burlesque on the subject of The Forty Thieves. At the following Christmas he played Pastrana Nonsuch in the pantomime of Peter Wilkins; or, the Flying Man. This was the commencement of that series of strange and daring acrobatic performances which made him so popular. He became a dramatist in somewhat peculiar circumstances. He fell in love with one of his mother's pupils, a pretty dancer, and proposed to marry her on the strength of a prospective engagement of two pounds a-week in Jersey. CONQUEST the elder immediately struck a bargain with his son to the effect that the young man should be engaged at the Grecian at the same salary, and, in addition to acting there, should undertake to supply the theatre with adaptations from the French or other languages. At that time the average price for the acting rights of a play was £4, and it was some time before young GEORGE was allowed to receive five shillings a-night for his concoctions. He adapted, for East-end purposes, CHARLES READE'S novel "It's Never Too Late to Mend," and was the cause of a great reform in the law of copyright READE had "novelised" the book from his own play, Gold, and Mr CONQUEST made a fresh adaptation of the novel. The matter was fought out to the end; and finally it was decided that the adaptation was an infringement of the plaintiff's copyright in the original piece. With the knowledge of the French language which he had obtained at Boulogne, young CONQUEST was able to deal with Gallic originals with remarkable facility. He developed his talent as an acrobat to an extraordinary degree. At the Grecian, in 1861, in the pantomime, The Devil on Two Sticks, he used twenty-nine traps for his evolutions. But it was when he came to the Surrey Theatre that his many talents had their fullest play. Not only did he impersonate bats and octopuses; he wrote, either alone or in collaboration, strongly sensational dramas, and played leading parts in them himself. His Daniel Groodge, in Mankind, and his Man-monkey, in For Ever, were memorable achievements. The present Mr GEORGE CONQUEST, the worthy son of a worthy father, whose great popularity has been testified to this week by the number of artists who have appeared at his benefit, may well be proud of his parent's career, and of his long and honourable connection with the "good old Surrey."

BEN GREET ACADEMY OF ACTING.

A pupils' performance was given at the Bijou Theatre, Bedford-street, Strand, on Thursday afternoon, and there was a good attendance of those interested in the doings of the budding actors and actresses. A very choice collection of matinée hats permitted those seated behind only occasional glimpses of the performers, so that a good deal had to be taken on trust. However, considering that most of the aspirants to dramatic honours were quite young, and that many of them have been attending the Ben Greet Academy only during the present term, the acting was, generally speaking, excellent, and several of the pupils displayed real ability and aptitude for the stage. The entertainment opened with Mr Herbert Swears' comedietta Such is Fame, a little piece of a somewhat old-fashioned type. The principal personage is a very new novelist—Miss Jessica Wynbush—who arouses her two wealthy maiden aunts' indignation by endowing one of her characters with their peculiarities. She ingeniously manages to satisfy the two ladies by the assertion that the portrait was not their own but that of a mutual acquaintance. In consequence of the illness of Miss Nita Ashby the part of Jessica Wynbush, the novelist, was played by Miss Sybil Thorndike, who, possessing expressive features and a bright cheery manner, did extremely well. Miss Mary Carnegy was also good as Jane, Jessica's housemaid, cook, and confidential adviser, but would have done better with a slightly more pronounced manner. The maiden aunts, who through meeting at Jessica's flat are reconciled after many years' estrangement, were played in humorous fashion by Miss Allardyce and Miss Alice Goodman. Then followed Mr Pinero's comedy, in four acts, entitled The Times, originally produced at Terry's Theatre on Oct 24, 1891, with Mr Edward Terry in the part of Percy Egerton-Bompas, M.P. Miss Fanny Brough was the Mrs Bompas, and Mr Henry V. Esmond appeared as the miserable drunken lout, Howard. Mr E. Sharp gave a forcible and not ineffective portrayal of Percy Egerton-Bompas, the draper, who has risen from the ranks and becomes an egregious tuft-hunter. Mr Duncan Yarrow gave a quiet rendering of the Hon. Montague Trimble. Mr William Wilson was a gentlemanly Viscount Lurgashall and Mr A. E. E. Edwards was fairly successful in depicting the foolish young man Howard Bompas. Miss Margaret Brodie was pleasing and unaffected as Beryl, the only really sympathetic character in the play. Miss Inglis deserves praise for her embodiment of the gushing, mischief-making Miss Cazalet. Miss Rita Ward was a dignified Countess of Ripstow, and Miss Alice Maud scored as Mrs Egerton-Bompas. Miss Sybil Thorndike was cleverly amusing as the widow Hooley. This young lady shows much promise. Miss Finzel as the weeping Honoria and Miss Waring as Lucy Tuck deserve mention, as does also the Timothy M'Shane, M.P., of Mr Russell Thorndike. Miss Cartwright appeared as the servant, Jelf. During the intervals Miss Lillian Berriff played a selection of music on the pianoforte.

ARTHUR LLOYD.

A REMINISCENCE.
BY C. DOUGLAS STUART.

Arthur Lloyd, whose death on Wednesday in Edinburgh, under such pathetic circumstances, will be deplored by all who remember him in the zenith of his popularity, was born on May 14, 1839, in Annandale-street, Leith-walk, Edinburgh. His grandfather was a well-known hatter in the Strand, who was patronised by Yates, Liston, and many other actors of that day. His father having, while in the same business, intercourse with the theatrical profession, eventually adopted the same and became a popular comedian, and afterwards the proprietor and manager of several theatres in Scotland. He married Miss Eliza Horncastle, who was a member of the celebrated Pyne and Harrison opera company, and had eleven children, of whom Arthur was the fifth. His full name was Arthur Rice Lloyd, owing to his godfather being Rice, of "Jim Crow" fame, who was a great friend of his father. When children none of the Lloyd family were allowed to visit the theatre often, but Arthur Lloyd had vivid recollections of hearing Jenny Lind, and delighting in the acting of Macready, Charles Kean, Fanny Vining, Mrs Glover, Agnes Robertson, Robson, Mrs Stirling, Sothern, and other celebrities of the day.

At the age of sixteen he was apprenticed to a trade, but he had the family longing to become an actor, and eventually his father arranged an engagement for him with his brother Fred with Mr J. R. Newcombe's company at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, where in 1856 he appeared as general utility at a salary of 12s. a-week. After two seasons in that town he returned to his home, and for several years travelled with his father through Scotland with an entertainment called "Facts and Fancies."

Arthur Lloyd's first music hall engagement was with Mr James Shearer at the old Whitebait Music Hall, Glasgow, when he was engaged at a salary of £4 a-week, and made a big success with a song of Sam Cowell's called "The Railway Porter," which that performer permitted him to make into a Scotch ditty. Years afterwards Lloyd appeared at the same hall and received a salary of £60 a-week, Mr Shearer's manager then being the late George Ware.

For several years he toured the country with increasing popularity, performing at such halls as Grainger's, Newcastle; Holder's, Birmingham; and the Dog Inn, Manchester; and at the last-named place his brother Fred, who was the comedian at the local Theatre Royal, and Henry Irving, who was also in the same company, used to come over to listen to his "turn."

Ultimately, Arthur Lloyd decided to come to the metropolis, and made his first London appearance on Oct. 13, 1862, when he performed at the Philharmonic, the Sun, and the Marylebone, his songs being "Beef, pork, mutton, will you buy?" "Acting Mad," and "The Street Musician." After six weeks] Lloyd quitted the two last-mentioned halls, and entered into an engagement with Messrs Sanders and Lacey, of the Philharmonic, and Mr Charles Morton, of the Canterbury, to sing only at their halls. At the latter of these on the first night he was down to appear at twenty minutes to 12 0, immediately after Unsworth, the stump orator, and nearly all the audience had left the hall before he came on, there being only about 100 present, but so successful was he that Mr Morton, thinking him too good for so late a turn, put him on the following week and for many months after at 10 0 o'clock. At the Canterbury Lloyd became a great favourite, singing five and six songs a-night, amongst them being "Pepper's Ghost," "The Old Clothes Man," "A bundle rolled into an apron," and "The Song of Songs." In the following year he produced a burlesque drama at the Philharmonic entitled The Wicked Squire; or, Muggat's Brook, which ran for six months, and afterwards at the Canterbury and Weston's for a long while. There was no scenery, merely a screen at the back of the stage.

After engagements at the Oxford and other halls Mr Lloyd went to the London Pavilion, then under the proprietorship of Messrs Loibl and Sonhammer, where he remained for upwards of a year; indeed, so enormously successful did this popular comedian become, and such an attraction to the establishment, that he never received his notice, but remained at the Pavilion as long as he was in London. At this time his songs were being sung all over the kingdom and in America and every English-speaking country, as well as being translated into foreign tongues.

After two or three years Arthur Lloyd organised a concert party and travelled the provinces, calling his entertainment "Two Hours' Genuine Fun," and during the summer he visited the different seaside resorts, such as Scarborough, which then only possessed the Spa Saloon and the old Theatre Royal, while Blackpool had but the Assembly Rooms. What a difference now!

Several years later, owing to throat trouble, Arthur Lloyd had to give up singing, and, therefore, secured a three years' lease of the Queen's, Dublin, which he opened as a music hall on May 3, 1874, his first pantomime being Jack and the Beanstalk, by Frank Green, afterwards producing two others, the last of the trio being a financial failure owing to the colossal success of the first production of The Shaughraun at the Gaiety Theatre. During his lesseeship of the Queen's he engaged many well-known actors, including Chas. Sullivan, who often said that Lloyd was the man who was the cause of his popularity, Johnny Dallas, the M'Carthy Family, T. C. King, the talented tragedian, John Billington, Tom Glenny, Joseph Eldred, Mrs Rousby, besides many of the best music hall artistes of the time.

Another speculation of Arthur L'oyd was the proprietorship of the Shakespeare Music Hall, Glasgow, which he opened on Oct. 10, 1881, but after a season of fourteen weeks he was compelled to close owing to lack of support.

"The Great Arthur Lloyd" was the first music hall artiste who ever appeared before royalty. This was about 1868. Jolly John Nash and himself were engaged to appear before the Prince of Wales, now our King, and a select company of noblemen.

Of Mr Lloyd's later engagements it is unnecessary to say more than that he has been appearing for several years with his sons and daughters in popular little sketches written by himself, and altogether of a different class to those of the present time. Concerning sketches, they were, according to our old friend, not at all the same in the old days—the early days of the music hall—as they are now. There was about fifteen or twenty minutes' dialogue, with a musical finale, consisting of a verse and chorus of some popular song parodied to suit the sketch. All that was required as a rule for these little playlets was an interior scene, a table, and two chairs. To have asked for anything more in the shape of furniture would have struck the manager dumb with astonishment. As to salaries, they also were in the heydey of Arthur Lloyd's popularity vastly different to what they are to-day. The highest salary he ever received in town was £15, at the London Pavilion; while his average salary, "star" though he was, was £7, £8, or £10; but, of course, it was not so in the country—there he used to receive £60 and more a-week.

Although Arthur Lloyd will ever be remembered as a comedian of the highest order, yet it should not be forgotten that he was more—he was a clever and versatile author of pantomimes, sketches, trios, duets, and other songs. Upwards of 1,000 of the latter did he write, and it would therefore be impossible to enumerate a tithe of them, but a few of the most popular, some of which have become veritable bywords, must be recorded. "Not for Joe," perhaps, heads the list; but "Take it, Bob," "The Postman," "I fancy I can see her now," "I vowed I never would leave her," "One more polka," "It's the sort of thing we read about," "Immenskoff," "At it again," were all the talk of the town in the days gone by. Referring to these songs, several of those Lloyd used to sing were written by the late G. W. Hunt, who was introduced to him at the Philharmonic soon after his arrival in London. "Who's for the Bank?" "The German Band," "The Organ Grinder," "Somebody's Luggage," and "The Ballet Girl" were all from the pen of Mr Hunt.

In 1863 Arthur Lloyd wrote and composed his celebrated "Song of Songs," the idea being suggested to him by reading on the back of a sheet of music a list of the popular songs. It proved a sensational success, thousands of copies being sold, and the publishers reaped a handsome profit by the sale. In 1867 he wrote and composed another big hit with the public, "Not for Joe." The title of this suggested itself to him in the following manner. "On a very wet night I jumped into a 'bus at Holborn. The conductor was standing on his perch, talking over the top of the 'bus to the driver. Every now and then, in answer to some remark of the latter, I heard the conductor reply, 'Not me, not for Joe.' This caught my fancy, and before I left the 'bus I had the chorus and melody complete." "Going to the Derby" is another of Lloyd's compositions, which, as he did not care for it himself, he gave to Mr J. W. Rowley, whose success with it is, of course, known the world over.

Arthur Lloyd married, in 1871, Katty King, the daughter of the tragedian, T. C. King, and she used to appear with him on his concert tours. After an illness of several months Mrs Lloyd died in 1891. She was a clever actress and a loving wife and mother, and her memory is still revered by her children, Annie, Harry, Katty, Lillie, Arthur, and Dulcie. At the time of his death Mr Lloyd was busy completing a work of reminiscences of the many famous notable persons of all ranks of life whom he had met.

Even if some of the younger generation do not remember Arthur Lloyd, there are thousands throughout the British Isles to whom he is more than a name, who will recall many a merry laugh they had listening to his clever comicalities, and who will utter a passing sigh when they read of the death of one who in his day was at the head of his profession, a popular man, and a straightforward one to boot.

"THE JEW'S REVENGE."

A Sketch, in One Act, by Duse Mahomed,
Produced at the Surrey Theatre, on Thursday, July 21, 1904.

Orestes ..... Mr L. ROBINSON
Josephus ..... DUSE MAHOMED
Roman Centurion ..... Mr H. BROWN
Ruth ..... Miss H. HODGSON

The production of this highly interesting and admirably-constructed one-act drama, at the Surrey Theatre, on Thursday evening, proved a brilliant addition to Mr George Conquest's farewell benefit week; and the piece had a triumphant reception. The scene is laid in the Palace of Orestes, Prefect of Alexandria, in the Fifth Century. Ruth, the only child of the rich Jew, Josephus, declares her love for Orestes. He seduces her, and binds her with a promise not to reveal their secret to her father. As she leaves the palace the Jew enters, and, for his own ambitious ends, persuades Orestes to marry the beautiful Egyptian, Hypatia, for the purpose of acquiring the assistance of the Pagans of Alexandria, in order that a certain rebellion may be successful, and Orestes may be made King. Orestes agrees, and leaves to carry out the Jew's scheme. Ruth returns, and on her father telling her that he has chosen a husband for her, reveals that she is already the mistress of Orestes. The Jew, in his rage, attempts to kill her, and, on Orestes entering, flushed with success, Josephus demands of him that he shall marry Ruth. On Orestes declining, the Jew, in his mad fury, kills Orestes. Ruth, who has witnessed the deed, falls lifeless across the body, while the old Jew is led away by the Roman guard.

The central figure of Josephus, the Jew, was delineated by the author, Duse Mahomed, with artistic intensity and dramatic skill. He depicted the Jew's crafty nature with characteristic force. As the Pagan Prefect, Orestes, Mr L. Robinson imbued his part with dignity and power, and made a strong impression. As the Jew's daughter, Ruth, Miss H. Hodgson acted with delightful sincerity and plaintive grace. Mr H. Brown as the Roman Centurion had little to do, but did that little well. The costumes were rich and elegant, and a special word of praise is due to the author's elaborate and artistic design for the scene.

MISS GRACE HAWTHORNE will produce in Glasgow, in October, a new romantic drama in five acts, dealing with an interesting epoch in ancient Scottish history which has never yet been dealt with on the stage.

ROYAL ACADEMY STUDENTS.

The concert given by Royal Academy students on Thursday afternoon at Queen's Hall opened with two movements from the Octet of Gode in F, Op. 17. It was played by the ensemble class, and conducted by Professor Willy Hess, and was followed by the solo for the harp called "Autumn," composed by Mr John Thomas. The harpist was Miss Violet Garton, who played neatly and well. Miss Gwladys Roberts sang with much taste "La Cloche," by M. Saint-Saëns. She has a most agreeable mezzo-soprano voice, which with a little more cultivation should lead to her becoming a most accomplished vocalist. The introduction and rondo capriccioso, the brilliant violin solo of M. Saint-Saëns displayed most favourably the capacity of Miss Gladys Clark, who mastered all the difficulties of the piece with the greatest ease and certainty and produced a clear and brilliant tone. Mr Marcus Thomson sang with taste and expression Schubert's "Andie Leyer," and Miss Hilda Peppercorn played Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor with considerable technical skill. A shade more command of the Chopin style might add to the interest of this charming scherzo, but there was no serious fault to find with the rendering, which indicated care and earnestness. Miss Coish chose the old song of Linley, "O bid your faithful Ariel fly," and sang it with considerable brilliancy. Two movements from the string quartet, Op. 96, of Dvořák, were carefully rendered by Miss Angove and Messrs Woof, Lockyer, and O'Donnell. There was only one example of composition, and this took the form of a couple of songs by Mr Archibald Tester. The first was called "Three Shadows," set to verses by Rossetti; the second was "To One I Love," the words being by Eric Mackay. The latter was the best music. The duet for violin and viola, by the old composer, Leclair, now rarely played, was creditably executed by Miss Nora Gray and Mr Lockyer. Miss Burgess accompanying efficiently. A duet from Carmen was given by Miss Hodgson and Mr Lindsey Squire, the last item being Weber's "Invitation à la Valse," arranged for two pianofortes by Mr Corder, and played by Miss Scharrer and Miss Hess. The entire concert sufficiently proved the high quality of the instruction given by the professors of the Royal Academy, and amply justified our recent declaration that the student who quits the country for foreign training will go further only to fare worse, for the system adopted at the Academy is founded on the best of art traditions, and its results are seen in the gradual but positive advance of English music and musicians to the front rank. In fact, we know of foreign students at the present moment who are seeking at the Royal Academy the training they cannot elsewhere obtain.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

CAPE TOWN, JUNE 23.—GOOD HOPE THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs B. and F. Wheeler; Associate Manager, Mr G. H. Smith; Manager, Mr A. Wyburd.—After a most successful tour throughout South Africa, the Wheeler-Edwardes London Gaiety Company reopened here on Monday, June 20th, when they produced before a crowded house the popular musical comedy The Toreador. The play went with a dash and swing, entitling all engaged in the production to the warmest praise; several of the leading performers were greeted with hearty cheers on their first entry, Messrs Gouriet and Clifton and Miss Gertie Lester coming in for particularly striking receptions. The acting was exceptionally good. Mr Victor Gouriet made a smart and amusing Sammy Gigg, provoking roars of laughter by his clever dancing and quaint antics. Mr Myles Clifton was intensely amusing in his clever mannerisms of an actual type of the dude, Sir Miles Slackitt, of the Guards. His song, entitled "Everybody's awfully good to me," was repeatedly encored. Miss Gertie Lester exhibited a remarkable histronic ability as the passionate, jealous Spanish girl Dona Theresa. There was a distinct finish about her acting. Mr E. W. Coleman introduced some new business in the part of Pettifer and scored with his exceptionally clever dancing. Miss Nora Brocklebank was seen to advantage as Nancy Staunton, and was exceptionally good in her male impersonation. Mr Arthur Grover made the most of Augustus Traill, Miss Lillian Pollard was a bright, dashing, and vivacious Dora Selby, whilst Miss Haydon was prominent as the widow, Mrs Malton Hoppings. Mr Arthur Percival was good as Carajole, whilst Mr Alfred Lloyd as the Governor was admirable. Miss Nellie Palmer as La Belle Otero danced some graceful measures, and a word of praise is due to Mr H. Lane Bayliff for his remarkable make-up as the famous Don Q in the character of Rinaldo. All the remaining parts were ably sustained, whilst the chorus and augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr A. M'Cunn added much to the success achieved.

THE members of the Playgoers' Club held their annual fête at the Botanical Gardens on Tuesday evening. Nearly two thousand invitations had been issued for the occasion, and the grounds were brilliantly illuminated. The company was received by Mr A. B. Walkley, the president of the club, Mrs Walkley, and members of the committee. As the members and guests reached Regent's-park the ladies of their number were invited to step into a tent and make their choice of a floral hat. There was a wide range of selection, the flowers including roses, poppies, cornflowers, dahlias, and many others. The band of the Horse Guards (Blue) played a popular selection of melodies, and an open-air entertainment was given, under the able direction of Mr Guy Waller. In the conservatory a concert was arranged by Mr Charles Copland, and the inclusion in the programme of artistes like Madame Belle Cole, Mr Iver M'Kay, Mrs Helen Trust, and Mdlle. Marian M'Kenzie was a sufficient guarantee of its excellence.

AT the Theatre Royal, West Bromwich, The Dandy Detective, with Mr Finch Hatton in five characters and Mr Dan Agar's songs, is a good entertainment. Miss Annie Martin helps greatly with her songs and dances. Among the rest may be specially noticed Messrs R. Finch Hatton and C. H. Matthews, and Mesdames Bardsley, Forrester, and Glendower, who all do excellent work.

AT the Empire Music Hall, Wrexham, the following artists appeared on Monday:—Kavados, smart juggler; Messrs Newcombe and Sullivan, comedians and dancers; Miss Flo Melville, a popular soubrette; Miss Kitty Gower, characteristic danseuse; the Brothers Jean, in a burlesque boxing act; and Mr J. W. Hastings, character vocalist.

A COMMITTEE meeting of the Touring Managers' Association will be held at 23, Bedford-street, on Friday, at half-past twelve o'clock.

MR CHARLES COVERDALE is leaving town for a provincial tour on Monday until Oct. 24, when he returns to open at Collins's, London, and Gatti's (Road).—Mr Arthur Albert has met with an accident, and an injured foot compels him to rest for a week or so.

MR ALBERT LE FRE, who should have gone with Mr Saunders to Covent-garden for pantomime, has been engaged by Mr James M. Chute for the Christmas production at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. Mr Le Fre's engagement at the London Pavilion commences on August Bank Holiday.

MR LESLIE NORMAN, who has been touring A Trip to Chinatown on an exceptionally elaborate style, will reopen on August Bank Holiday at the Shakespeare, Clapham-junction.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

DEATH has been busy in the ranks of music hall comedians during the past week. Herbert Campbell passed away on Tuesday, after an apoplectic stroke; and Arthur Lloyd on Wednesday succumbed to an illness that had prevented his appearance on the stage for the last month or so. For the last twenty years of his busy life Herbert Campbell, the hearty, genial representative of the John Bull Englishman, occupied a distinguished position in the entertainment world. Not so with Arthur Lloyd. His great popularity with the million was but a memory, and his appearances in London were but few and far between. Yet in the seventies his name was one to conjure with. That fortune had not been too kind to him may be gathered from the project that was on foot to organise a benefit for him. Mr H. E. Moss and others prominent in the variety world placed themselves as members of a strong committee, and Mr Edward Ledger had consented to act as treasurer.

ARTHUR LLOYD never had the blatant assertiveness of the comic singer who delights in the distempered effrontery of howling effects. He was essentially a comedian of the theatres, taught—and well-taught too—in the good old school of legitimate low comedy. He was not too liberally endowed with voice, and of late years it showed signs of wear. Mr Charles Morton, who had a great regard for Arthur, gave him one of his first engagements in London at the Canterbury; but his stronghold was the London Pavilion, where he returned time after time when in the zenith of his prosperity. He enjoyed the privilege of being the first comic singer who appeared before the King when he was Prince of Wales.

ONE of Mr Herbert Campbell's last music hall engagements was at the Palace Theatre, and on its concluding night he gave a handsome cheque to the treasurer of the Orchestra Provident Fund, with the remark, "This may be the last time I shall sing here, and I want to show my appreciation of the admirable manner in which this band plays." The deceased comedian will be much missed by his friends at the Canonbury Constitutional Club, established at the old Canonbury Tower. Whenever he went there his favourite salutation was, "Good evening, sons of the Phœnix and brothers all, let's have a cup of tea," and the invitation became quite proverbial among Herbert's numerous cronies.

IN an appreciation of the late Herbert Campbell in Thursday's Morning Leader, Mr Max Beerbohm falls into error by stating that Mr James Fawn is no longer with us. A correspondent in the Daily Mail of the same date is also wrong in saying that Mr Campbell's last song was "—— And his day's work was done." The song belongs to Mr George Brooks. Herbert only held a pantomime right.

AT a special committee meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund, held at the York Hotel on Wednesday, Mr Frank Heath presiding, the following resolution, moved by Mr W. J. Walnratta and seconded by Mr Pat Carey, was carried unanimously: "That the members of the Music Hall Sick Fund hereby express their deep regret and sorrow at the death of the esteemed President of the Fund, Mr Herbert Campbell, whose services to the society for many years have been constant and most valuable; also that the secretary be instructed to write a letter to Mrs Campbell expressing the deep sympathy of the members with her in the irreparable loss she has sustained." It was also resolved to send a floral token of regard and esteem. At the funeral, on Friday, the society was represented by the secretary (Mr R. T. Baines), Mr Pat Carey, Mr F. Heath, and other members. The election of a President in the place of Mr Herbert Campbell (who was an active member of the society for over thirty years) will take place at the usual monthly meeting, to be held on Tuesday, Aug. 2.

MR GEORGE ROBEY, like other handsome comedians, occasionally receives letters from lady admirers, and has preserved some curious specimens. One of them, at least, is hardly complimentary. It runs thus—"I am ill, so ill, I am afraid to die. I should love to hear you sing once more before I die. The doctor says nothing can hurt me now." Another lady offers marriage, and gilds the offer with an income of £3,000 a-year. "I must have my money tied up, though," she naively adds, "as I know what you actors are!"

SHOULD the shareholders agree, it is intended to amalgamate the Euston, the Chelsea, the Walthamstow, and the South London Palaces into one concern, with a capital of £250,000, in £1 shares, under the title of the Variety Theatres Consolidated, Limited. The scheme is to take effect on and after Sept. 30 next.

THE introduction of such a clever comedian as Mr Louis Bradfield to Empire audiences this week has been attended with instantaneous success. Mr Bradfield's style is light, airy, and as exhilarating as champagne. His first song "Sally" is a parody of the now familiar "Sammy," which is nightly given by Miss Louie Pounds in The Earl and the Girl at the Adelphi, and has been also very popular on the halls. The words and music of "Sally" are from the pen of Mr Paul Rubens, and the inspiriting effect of both is much enhanced by the chorus of twenty-four pretty girls, who posture and pirouette in dainty style, and who also give welcome assistance in the chorus. Mr Bradfield, who it will be remembered played Harry Gordon in The Girl from Kay's, is also allowed to sing the celebrated number, "Mr Mosenstein," from that famous musical play, and this ditty renews its great popularity most unmistakably. Mr Bradfield's turn is a great hit, and it is just what one can enjoy these hot nights.

THE directors of the Alhambra are pursuing their commendably progressive policy of fireproofing their fine theatre, and are now having the ceilings and partitions of the boxes reconstructed of fire-resisting compo board, made of non-flammable wood which has so often been proved to have extraordinary fire-resisting qualities.

MR HORACE MARRIOTT, the secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, has received (per Mr Henri Gros) the sum of ten guineas, being a donation from the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Rates Association, also the sum of £8 as a donation from Herbert Haytor, being the major part of the proceeds of a concert held on the homeward journey of a liner from South Africa. The president and committee beg to thank the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted on the occasion.

HUNDREDS of people are daily watching the progress of the alterations at the Lyceum, with which steady progress is being made, and much interest was evinced by a big crowd on Wednesday when a large girder was placed in position. The Lyceum will have a larger stage than any existing music hall—that is to say, it will be 4ft. wider than the stage at Drury-lane. The old Lyceum was remarkably well constructed, and portions of its walls will be retained for the new music hall. Mr Thomas Barrasford hopes to open early in December. A general meeting of the company will be held at Winchester House, E.C., on the 29th inst., when an account will be laid before the members showing the way in which the winding-up has been conducted and the assets of the company realised. The meeting will also be asked to decide upon the manner in which the books and documents of the company are to be disposed of.

THE Palace, Manchester, the management of which was beset with difficulties even before the licence was granted in 1891, has had a record year, and is able to declare a dividend of 6 per cent., free of income tax. Wisely the directors are placing £3,000 to a reserve fund, and carry forward nearly £4,000 to next year's accounts. The Palace evidently has found a happy issue out of its afflictions.

THOSE who had the privilege of a private view of the new Ardwick-green Empire, Manchester, on Saturday last could not help being struck with the up-to-date and magnificent appearance of the whole building. It was difficult to realise that the comfort of a carpeted seat, with back rest, could be obtained by the patrons of the gallery for twopence, and that sixpence only is needed to secure the luxury of a tip-up chair in the circle. Another striking fact is that an uninterrupted view of the stage can be had from practically every seat in the spacious building, capable of holding 3,000 people. During their perambulations the visitors were charmed by a continuous programme of popular selections by the famous Besses o' th' Barn Brass Band and the enjoyable glee-singing of the Roll Brothers' Quartet Party. Refreshments also were served on the stage, arranged effectively in a beautiful country "set" scene, and Mr Oswald Stoll and Mr William Collins, his acting manager, are to be congratulated on the complete success of this interesting preliminary function.

MR HARDING, solicitor, appeared at the Leicester Borough Police-court again on Monday for the third time in reference to the adjourned application for a music licence for the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Wharf-street, Leicester. It will be remembered that the applicant for the licence is Mr Restall, late licensee of the Theatre Royal, Windsor. Sir Thomas Wright, the Chairman of the Bench, addressing Mr Harding, said there had been a strong feeling on the part of many of the members of the magisterial bench that the subject ought not to decided till the whole bench had had an opportunity of meeting and conferring with reference to it. Therefore, although they had promised that that morning they would deal with the application, they would prefer that that course should be adopted. They would, therefore, formally adjourn the application for a week, and it was suggested that the meeting should be held in ten or eleven days' time. They had not yet had an opportunity of conferring with the Mayor, but it was possible that arrangements might be made to hold the meeting during the present week.

THE Coventry Hippodrome, Limited, with a share capital of £10,000, has been formed to acquire the Hippodrome, at present belonging to Captain Fitzgerald, at Pool Meadow, Coventry, and to erect a new and permanent Hippodrome on a site at Hales-street, situate in the centre of Coventry, and to carry on in the present temporary building in Pool Meadow the existing Hippodrome until the erection of the new building. The Hippodrome, originally erected by Captain Fitzgerald in 1903, has received a considerable amount of support in Coventry and the neighbourhood, and appears to have supplied what was desired in Coventry, namely, a first-class entertainment at popular prices. The plan adopted of two performances each evening secures good attendances, and appears to have become very popular in the city and neighbourhood.

PLANS have been prepared by Mr Tlfomas Francis Tickner for the erection of a spacious and convenient building capable of seating 1,500 persons, with the best modern appliances and conveniences, and his estimate of the cost is £13,000. It is proposed, when the building is erected, to borrow a sum of £4,000 either on mortgage or debentures at interest not exceeding £5 per cent., which with the £9,000 present issue of shares will provide the £13,000.

THE vendor, Mr Sylvester, has entered into an agreement with the company to hand over to them the benefit of the options acquired by him for the purchase of the existing Hippodrome, and of the sites for the new Hippodrome. The company will pay to Mr Sylvester the sum of £500, out of which he will pay the preliminary expenses of and incident to the formation and floating of the company down to the time when it becomes entitled to commence business. The estimated amount of the preliminary expenses is £400.

THE Hippodrome, Hastings, after a closure of eight months, was reopened on Monday by Mr J. L. Graydon. A large audience thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment provided by Fred Karno's troupe of speechless comedians in Hilarity and Early Birds; Mr Tom Edwards, ventriloquist, with his now famous newsboy figure; Miss Ethel Walker, the clever and refined society entertainer; and several others.

A PERFORMANCE was given at the Empire Theatre, Johannesburg, on Friday, June 24, by the company then playing there in honour of the visit of His Excellency Lord Milner, Dr. Jameson, Dr. Smart, and the Government House party. The interior was handsomely decorated with flags and flowers, and Mr Aubrey Hyman, Mr Herbert Hyman, and Mr J. Rosenthal received the party at the Royal entrance. The company met with an enthusiastic reception, and the applause was heartily led by the Government House party.

MESSRS LEE AND ARDEN, with Mr Harry Marvello as active managing partner, are at present doing splendid business on the West Coast of Scotland. The firm has first-class al fresco entertainments running at the present time at Ayr, Troon, Ardrossan, Dunoon, Prestwick, &c., and have in their employ over sixty music hall artistes. The undertaking is a very great one, and at the present time is giving delight to thousands of Glasgow citizens who are at the coast towns during the fair week.

A YOUNG carman named Tyler, in the employ of the London and North-Western Railway Company, was injured by lions at Euston Station on Sunday afternoon. Six performing lions belonging to Madame Ella were being conveyed in three double cages from Liverpool to the Continent, and, when the hinged doors of the railway truck had been removed to admit air to the cages, Tyler went between one of the double cages to ascertain how they were to be shifted. As he approached the bars the two lions sprang at him and knocked him down, severely lacerating his face and arm. Fortunately the keeper, who was close at hand, beat the animals off with an iron bar. Tyler was taken to University College Hospital. He was at fault in going near the bars, as there were printed notices on the trucks prohibiting approach to the cages.

MR BILLY BINT, the irrepressible, who used to tell them in the earlier days of the halls that his father was a marquis, has this week again resumed business with gratifying success at the Hippodrome, Manchester. Mr W. B. Broadhead has secured him for his six halls. Mr Bint belongs to the Leybourne school, and a good voice and a clear utterance are among his chief recommendations to the favour of the public.

THE liquidators of the Royal Aquarium Society announce that the claims of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for income-tax having now been adjusted and paid, and the costs of the order made by the Hon. Mr Justice Walton on April 5 last having also been taxed and paid, warrants for 9*s.* 10½d. per share, in final distribution of the assets of the Society, will be sent by post on Aug. 20 to the registered addresses of the shareholders whose certificates are in the possession of the liquidators, and a final meeting called, of which one month's notice will be given.

MR JACK DE FRECE has tendered his resignation as manager of the London, Shoreditch, and Collins's, Islington. He parts on friendly terms with the directors. He will devote his energies in the near future to the organising and establishing as variety houses of several suburban theatres which at the present moment are not answering the purpose of their promoters as temples of the legitimate.

MISS VESTA TILLEY has acquired Edgar Bateman's song, "A Hystery of England; or, Chronological Crammers." In this song the artist is supposed to be working to win a scholarship in history, and is being "assisted" by school chums to that end, who "cram" their companion with historical facts and episodes not to be found in the archives at the Record Office. It will be news to many that the cake walk first happened in Alfred's time through that monarch burning himself with a bun in one of Messrs Lockhart's establishments, and that Julius Cæsar, whilst secretly training for a wrestling contest with the Hackenschmidt of the period, got frozen hard in a lonely corner of Hyde-park, and stands there to this day as the statue of Achilles!

THE public will in this song be enlightened for the first time as to the full details of King Canute's bet on Southend beach; King John's adventure whilst bathing in Highgate Ponds; Richard III.'s doings in Shoreditch while selling pirate music; the eighth Henry's mishap while en route to Alexandra-park, which gave the Great Northern terminus its name, because the King was "cross;" Queen Elizabeth's strange encounter at a bargain sale at Peter Robinson's; Cromwell's proposed visit to Exeter Hall, and how he fared at Kempton-park, and subsequently at Attenborough's.

FURTHER verses deal with Charles I.'s experiences one Early Closing Day; with George I.'s ride on the Twopenny Tube with the maids of honour he he had met at the historic Bunshop; and with an hitherto unrecorded passage in the life of Robin Hood.

MISS MARIE LLOYD, who has been disporting sur la plage at Ostend, is now off to Switzerland, which she regards as the land of real enchantment. Of course, Marie will mountaineer and also acquire the jödel of the "merry Swiss boy."

MR WALTER GIBBONS is about to carry out a most important alteration at the Islington Empire, and will lower the stage several inches, thereby much improving the sight line from the auditorium. It will be impossible to carry on the ordinary variety entertainment during the progress of the work, and pictures will therefore form the attraction next week. New tableau curtains will also adorn the stage when the alterations are completed.

MR FRANK MACNAGHTEN, and his manager, Mr Frederic Baugh, in the best of health, arrived at Liverpool on Thursday in the s.s. Baltic from America. They have had an excellent time in the States, and have happily combined business with pleasure.

MR FRED HATTON M'CULLAH has resigned his position as acting-manager at the London, and is now enjoying a holiday. He was popular with the patrons of the successful Shoreditch establishment, and his resignation, which was not due to any disagreement with the directors, has caused keen regret among the frequenters.

THE enthusiasm for cricket is great among the different staffs of the halls, and Mr W. Dexter is determined that the men of the Holloway Empire shall not be behindhand in showing their appreciation of the national game. He has, therefore, formed a club which now contains a membership of twenty-five, and has thrown down the gauntlet to the doughty men of the London Pavilion. The two teams were to have played a match at Tufnell-park on Thursday, but as the ground was occupied by athletic sports the event has had to be postponed. Mr Dexter will be glad to receive open dates from music hall teams, in order that arrangements may be made for matches.

THE South London, Middlesex, and Cambridge staffs will have their respective outings to-morrow. Herne Bay will be the venue of Mr Frank Weeks' men and their friends, and Dover has been selected by Mr J. L. Graydon's employees. Marlow and the delights of an up-river journey will be the enjoyable features of the Cambridge crowd's outing.

THE action taken by Mr George Gray (the "Fighting Parson" of the music halls) against the Empire and Mr George Edwardes, for producing a stage play by presenting the ballet High Jinks to the public, was again before the Marlborough-street magistrates on Friday, July 15. Mr Macmorran, who supported the summons, said that as legislation on the subject was pending a consultation had been held, and a decision to ask for a further adjournment had been arrived at. Mr Kennedy—Very well. The summons is adjourned without date.

BEAUTY competitions are a sign of the summer season at the halls. Two were held last night at the Britannia, Hoxton, and the Palace, Camberwell, and the Bedford held one a fortnight since. At the Camden-town establishment some of the ladies appeared in evening dress, and this was held to be unfair to the more simply attired competitors. These shows might have a more æsthetic value if consolation prizes were given for the neatest coiffure, for it is in this particular that our London workgirls have so much to learn from their Continental sisters.

MR HERBERT SHELLEY, who has lately signed contracts with Mr Moss running into July, 1907, returns to the London Pavilion for the third time on August Bank Holiday, with new costume songs from his own versatile pen. Other attractions in Mr Frank Glenister's well-arranged scheme of amusement will be Lionel, the English athlete, in novel feats of strength and jumping with weights; Albert Le Fre, in his mélange, "What is seen on the Halls;" Horace White, ventriloquist; T. E. Dunville, Phil Ray, Drew and Alders, and the Emlyn Jones Quartet. The walking competitions on the revolving track by Miss Minni Letta and her sporting girls will be continued.

A contingent of the Mohawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels is entertaining most appreciative audiences at the Euston this week. Besides Little Thomas and the comedians, the sweet glee singing and Paul Gaulois' fine rendering of the ballad "Just for to-night" prove quite to the taste of the delighted listeners.

THE report of the directors of the New Tivoli, Limited, to be submitted at the thirteenth annual meeting on Wednesday next, indicates a decline in the company's earnings. After providing £5,700 for interest on the mortgage and debentures, the net profit for the twelve months ended June 30 was £7,061. Including £3,093 brought forward, there was a disposable balance of £10,154, out of which the directors declare dividends amounting to 10 per cent. for the year, add £1,000 to the general reserve, and carry forward £2,154. Much of the reduction in the net profit of the past year is accounted for by the non-success of the late tenant of the Tivoli Restaurant, and a large sum due from him to the company in respect of rent, dilapidations, &c., has been lost. Mr Henry Tozer is the retiring director, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election. The auditor of the company, Mr Robert Lindsey, also retires, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

MR WALTER DE FRECE introduced on Thursday, at the Horns, Kennington, what is known as "The Towow," which is the latest American amusement device. The novelty is really a tug-of-war on wheels. It consists of two cars each accommodating six people, operated on horizontal tracks. The team in car No. 1 holds the rope, which is fastened to the backs of both cars after going round two wheels, each of which is placed in a spring buffer at each end of the track. The stronger team pulls the opponent's car back against the buffer, where it touches an electric gong, which proclaims the result. "The Towow" has gained a great success on the other side, and should be a great attraction for shows. It is to be seen at Douglas, Isle of Man, and will be placed shortly at the Tower, Blackpool, the Palace, New Brighton, and the Palace, Manchester. Mr Walter De Frece, who represents the proprietors of the novelty, the Universal Amusement Company, New York, will form a syndicate in this country.

MR WILL OLIVER, who has made such a marvellous recovery from a very serious illness, is just now enjoying the ozone and the breezes of the North Sea at Great Yarmouth, where variety business is booming extremely well. Mr Oliver's partner, Mr Tom Holmes, at one time a famous minstrel, has just returned from the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, and remains in town just at present to look after things.

THE Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, submitted to auction yesterday at the Mart by Messrs Herring, Son, and Daw, was not sold. It was bought in at £8,000.

MR PAT DOHERTY, the Irish M.P., seems to have caught on at the Grand Theatre, Islington. He has just received his third engagement in two months. "Patrick O'Shea from Killarney" is his newest song, and its heartiness and jollity should take the town by storm.

MR ARTHUR J. BARCLAY, acting-manager at the Walthamstow Palace, is taking a short holiday at Herne Bay, and will be at Folkestone next week. He returns to his duties in time for the August Bank Holiday.

THE staff of the Queen's, Poplar, holds its annual dinner at the Hotel Victoria, the Broadway, Southend-on-Sea, on Sunday. The party leaves Fenchurch-street by the 9·15 a.m. fast train in reserved carriages. A first-class menu will be provided at the hotel, and the chair will be occupied by the popular manager, Mr Joe Haynes.

MISS EDITH MANLEY, who will be remembered as a topical and descriptive vocalist, is now the hostess of the Berkeley Castle, Rahere-street, Goswell-road, where she has made a reputation as a lady billiard player. Recently she played against Mr Richard Whitehead, at his house, the White Horse, Liverpool-road, Islington, a match of 200 up. Miss Manley led off with a 20 break, following this up with a 15, 18, and 26. When the 100 was reached she was leading by 12. The game was most interesting from start to finish, Miss Manley winning an extremely exciting game by 9 points. Mr William Lloyd, of the Brothers Lloyd, also well known in the music hall profession, marked the game.

AT the London Hippodrome on Monday Mr H. E. Moss presented an animated picture depicting every phase of the Salvation Army congress at the Crystal Palace. The veteran General Booth is seen addressing his followers, and the great march past is shown as being one of the liveliest occurrences that could ever have happened. It is also the longest animated picture on a single film that has ever been taken either in England or any other country.

MR H. E. MOSS has adopted the very sensible plan of putting all the male attendants at the Hippodrome in white suits, and very smart and cool they look. Indeed, there is a refreshing air about them that is even quite grateful to the onlooker. The example set might be extensively copied.

THE large audiences at the New-cross Empire this week are thoroughly mystified with the remarkable phenomena exhibited in Fred Harcourt's latest illusion "Leveta." Performed in the full glare of light, only a few feet away from the footlights, makes it all the more baffling and incomprehensible. "Leveta" bids fair to rank as one of the most remarkable illusions of the century.

THE Three Fishers, organised by Chas. Fisher, of miniature opera fame, for the purpose of giving to our variety theatres some clean and legitimate funny vocal playlets, or incident sketches, will appear at the Paragon next week in The Broker's Man, written by E. T. De Banzie on comic lines. Mr Fisher has purchased the world's rights.

MRS IDA NAUGHTON (of the Sisters M'Nulty, the famous dancers), recently presented her husband, Mr J. J. Naughton, with a son. The sisters have lately suffered a painful bereavement by the death of their brother, Mr Charles Lathar.

MR HARRY CHAMPION'S forthcoming song, "It's as old as Adam," by Fred Murray and George Everard, is spoken of as likely to be as successful as their "Oo'er!" ditty for the same artist.

MISS ALMA BIGNELL, Mr Charles Bignell's daughter, was causing great amusement at the Metropolitan on Wednesday by her rendering of "The A B C of Marriage," a laughable song by Carter and Weston, which was rendered with great point and distinctness of enunciation by the young lady.

THE 364th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Charles Coborn, V.P., presiding. On the proposition of Mr Fred Millis, seconded by Mr Joe Lavender, a sincere vote of condolence was unanimously passed to Mrs Herbert Campbell on the deeply regrettable death of her husband. Mr Joey May, of the Ellison Arms, Gateshead-on-Tyne, and Mr J. Maughan, of the Cavendish Hotel, Keighley, were appointed as agents of the Association. The secretary reported that twenty new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,372.

THE tragic story of the terrible misfortunes which dogged the juggler Anglo's steps after his arrival in Australia is best made known by extracts from his letter dated His Majesty's Gaol, Adelaide, May 11, 1904, and sent to Messrs Hamley, London:—"Dear Messrs Hamley,—I thought that I would just drop you a line to tell you of my misfortune. Since I left London I have had varied luck. The first thing on landing in Adelaide I was greeted with the news of my wife's death, which had taken place two days before. A few months after I married again, and then my troubles commenced afresh. My second marriage was in every way a complete failure. I had no idea what sort of a woman I was taking for my wife. Everything that I could do to try and live with her in happiness was futile. She so worried me that I hardly knew what I was doing very often. After we had been married three and a-half months she left me and went home to her people. Had she been contented with leaving me all would have been well, but unfortunately for me such was not the case. She used to carry on with other men, and one Saturday night I met her in the street, and, getting wild, shot her dead. I, of course, was put on my trial, and the jury brought in a verdict against me, so to-morrow I die. Wishing you all success and a long farewell, I am, yours sincerely (signed), T. HORTON."

PRESENTATION TO GEORGE FOSTER.

At a representative gathering, on Wednesday, at the Trocadero, Mr George Foster, who represented St. George's-in-the-East and Wapping on the London County Council, was presented with an illuminated address and a service of silver in recognition of his public and private work. The presentation was made by Sir THOS. R. DEWAR, M.P., J.P., who said:—It is not always that people in public life receive the appreciation of those they work for, but it must be exceedingly gratifying to the guest of the evening to find that those around him are thankful for the many services he has rendered them and the music hall profession, and to know that they appreciated his indefatigable energies on their behalf when a member of the London County Council. For a busy man such as our friend the L.L.C. is no mere child's play, for the attendance of Committees and the meetings of the Council take up a considerable part of one's time. This souvenir, which I have the pleasure to hand to Mr Foster, is not subscribed from the profession alone, but I am glad to say that many in that division in the East-end of London which I have the honour of representing, and which Mr Foster also represented on the L.C.C., have come forward and in all sincerity assisted in this pleasant work. Our friend will be very much missed in this part of the world, where he is well known and esteemed for his philanthropy and work in the cause of charity. Many of the concerts he organised there realised substantial sums of money, which were well distributed by the clergy and others in the district. I am sure that his memorable feat in organising that marvellous entertainment in Victoria-park at Coronation time will last as a monument to his memory for at least a generation. Its success will live in the memory of all whose privilege it was to take part in it throughout their lives, and without a doubt those 10,000 children who were entertained will bless the name of Foster while they live. I may say I have had the opportunity of seeing the Japanese enjoy themselves in their cherry orchards, celebrating old traditions and engaging in all manner of outdoor amusements; South Sea Islanders enjoying to the full their ancient game of clubbing each other; Norwegians and Swedes indulging in their outdoor pastimes—in fact, in many lands I have seen such things, but I must say that no scene, to my mind, has equalled that of those 10,000 children in Victoria-park thoroughly revelling in the entertainment set before them by our friend. Then again, knowing as I do the many instances in the East-end where Mr Foster's kindly services have been the means of not only relieving many, but, indeed, saving their homes, it is a pleasure to me to act as your spokesman, gentlemen, and ask him to accept this souvenir from us with our heartiest and most sincere good wishes.

After a musical interval, Mr GEORGE FOSTER, who was much affected, said:—Sir Thomas Dewar and Gentlemen,—There comes a time when one finds it extremely difficult to express in words the feeling that is in one's heart. I feel in that position to-night. There is one feeling that is, however, uppermost, and that is of heartfelt gratitude to my many friends, both in and out of the profession, who have gone out of their way, and done more than is called for, to recognise any little service I have attempted to do. I think however, all of us are proud to be members of the music hall profession. We have just cause to be so. We are not only engaged in a business whose mission it is to amuse and elevate mankind, but we cherish in our own ranks among our fellows the true spirit of generosity, charity, and good feeling. What care we for the slanders of our traducers, when we know—and those who know us know—that the men comprising the music hall profession are as conscientious and as good citizens as any other section of the community. You, sir, whose flattering remarks I feel conscious I cannot deserve, you, Sir Thomas, alluded to the unanimity in which all sections of the profession have joined in this particular function to-night. May I say, sir, that if there is one characteristic more than another of the music hall profession it is that spirit of comradeship which is always present in their intercourse with each other. It is a feeling which—I say it with all deference—might be followed by the members of even so august a body as the London County Council. But we rally round each other not only in times of prosperity and good fortune, but when misfortune attends a comrade the hand and the pocket of every member is always held open to soften down such misfortune. I do not want to-night to say too much about the London County Council. I think I tried my little best, during the time I was a member, to see that the same justice was meted out to us as to any other section of the community. I don't think any of us want, nor do we expect, favours. What we do, however, expect is that our municipal representatives should exercise the same amount of reasonable common sense as they would be expected to apply to their own business arrangements. That is all we want. I have not hesitated during the past years to speak forcibly and to write equally strongly. It was because I felt that the management of the halls was being made the plaything of a section, and a very small section, of faddists. The result of this County Council faddist rule is that the proprietors of music halls in the metropolis are harassed to an inconceivable extent, to an extent, if the public only knew, they would not tolerate for a moment. The most ridiculous requisitions are served one day, and chopped about the next, until the unfortunate proprietor feels like our friend Gus Elen, and "'e don't know where 'e are." All we ask, as a profession, is fair play, and, in conclusion, I must not only repeat my heartfelt thanks for your kindness and appreciation, but hope that this present gathering may be the prelude to a brighter and more tolerant day for our noble profession. I must express my great indebtedness to my friend Mr Jesse Sparrow for the indefatigable exertions he has made in promoting this testimonial. We have known each other for the past twenty-five years, and I feel proud to think that an old friend like Mr Sparrow should have initiated and brought to a successful issue this very handsome testimonial. I must also thank Sir Thos. Dewar, M.P., for his kindness in presiding here to-night. We have been associated in the political world for several years past, and the name of Sir Thos. Dewar is so widely known for his charitable acts, his geniality, and his ability, that I need say no more, except that to one and all who have subscribed towards this presentation—many thanks.

In response to a vote of thanks for his services in organising the Testimonial Fund, Mr JESSE SPARROW (who acted as hon. secretary) said how delighted he was to have helped to show his appreciation to his old friend, Mr George Foster, whom he had known for nearly a quarter of a century, and all the time as a jolly good fellow.

The presentation consisted of an elaborate illuminated address bearing the following inscription:—

This address and a service of plate were presented to George Foster, Esq., by his friends and constituents and by members of the theatrical and music hall profession, in appreciation of his public work during the three years—1901-1904—he was a member of the London County Council, and as a mark of esteem and respect for his untiring exertions in every good cause.

Signed on behalf of the subscribers,
THOMAS R. DEWAR, OSWALD STOLL,
H. E. MOSS, G. ADNEY PAYNE,
HENRI GROS, HARRY LAUDER.
JESSE SPARROW, Hon. Secretary.

Presentation made by Sir Thomas R. Dewar, M.P., J.P., July 20, 1904.

In addition was given a service of silver suitably inscribed, and weighing 350oz, and Mrs Foster was also the recipient of a gold manicure set and scent bottles.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE TIVOLI.

The newest feature of the entertainment at the popular Strand establishment is the appearance there of the redoubtable Hackenschmidt, who since his last engagement there has become the wrestling champion of the world. The engagement is to last a fortnight, and every evening a challenge is launched against all British wrestlers, to any of whom the young Russian offers £25 if he fails to throw him in fifteen minutes. He also engages to give £100 to any competitor who can throw him (Hackenschmidt) in the same time. Acceptors of this challenge have to give twenty-four hours' notice of acceptance, and on Monday evening two intrepid athletes appeared on the stage to try conclusions with the herculean Slav. They were Jack Reddy, of Liverpool, and Fred Byers, of the London Central Meat Market. Within a quarter of an hour Hackenschmidt had "pinned" both his opponents, though not without a severe struggle. The more legitimate variety attractions of the bill include some excellent songs and impersonations by Miss Vesta Tilley, to whom some years since was given the title "The London Idol." Miss Tilley has conquered many other cities since then, but she has a very warm corner in her heart for her legion of Cockney admirers. Her satire of "The Seaside Sultan" is aimed at the young pretender from behind a counter in the West-end whose inhalation of ozone on the yellow sands makes him depart from the truth. "The Wise Old Owl" is another most effective contribution, and there is a sense of enjoyment about Miss Tilley's delivery of "Following in Father's Footsteps" that is positively exhilarating to the listener. Mr Albert Le Fre, one of the few comedians who is able to appear with success on either the greater or lesser stage, gives an exhibition of his versatility in his song, "What is to be seen at the halls," and manages a clever bit of spoof at the finish of his turn, which is a pronounced success. The Harvey Boys present the nucleus of a good entertainment in their boxing sketch, The Fighting Dummy, but there is too much repetition in the dialogue, which wants writing up. There is a smart youngster, the youngest of the trio, who sings "My Sunday Girl," and dances particularly well. Mr George Mozart is decidedly happy in his quips and jests concerning a day at the races, and the genuineness of his humour wins the hearty approval of his admirers in all parts of the house. A speciality turn of real excellence is the juggler Valazzi, who manipulates a large number of tennis balls, and astonishes everyone by his wonderful dexterity and accuracy. He finishes up his entertainment with a jump on to a small cannon ball placed on a table and runs this down an inclined plane to the stage without losing his footing for an instant. Lieut. Travis retains the popularity that he won years ago by his clever exhibition of the polyphonic art. He is quite equal to voicing his figures and smoking a cigarette at the same time. The generous measure of applause accorded to Mr Travis by the Tivolians is strong evidence that the public are not in the habit of forgetting their old favourites. Mr Charles Baron has a humorous burlesque act, in which a number of dogs play the part of lions—a distinctly funny show that causes roars of laughter. Mr George H. Elliott's singing of "I'se a waiting for yer, Josie," breathes the romance of the cotton plantations. Of Mr Joe O'Gorman's anecdotes concerning Flanagan one does not easily tire; Signor and Madame Borelli, in their refined turn, make a great hit in the celebrated "cats' duet;" Miss Edie King is a pretty dancer; and the terpsichorean exhibition of Sandford and Lyons is very much enjoyed. The Sisters Dacre have a very effective number in their duet concerning the girls of all nations, to whom a taut little sailor makes love; Clark and Hamilton, who are immense favourites, have lost none of their energy, vim, or sparkle since their visit to Australia; and Mr J. A. Wilson is well termed the black oracle. Very much to the advantage of the public who frequent this hall, Mr James Howell retains the post of acting-manager. Mr Maurice Jacobi directs capably an excellent orchestra.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

On Monday, July 18, was produced here a new and original musical extravaganza in three episodes, written by Clifford Harris, George Arthur, and J. B. Peterman, music composed by Paul Knox and J. W. Tate, entitled

"THE BELLE OF THE ORIENT."

This lively musical production has been very well received at the Islington Empire this week. It is also being played with equal success at the Royal, Holborn. There are some pretty melodies, and the comic business is sufficiently amusing without being over-accentuated. The first scene represents the interior of the Grand Hotel, and there is an opening chorus of gaily dressed servants. Several visitors arrive and are received by the manager of the establishment, a gentleman bearing the suggestive name of Alfonso Have-Em-All. Amongst these is Ike Novinski, a Jew money-lender. He obtains an introduction to Lady Clare, a fashionably dressed young lady, whom he invites to take luncheon with him. She inspects the menu-card and selects about a dozen expensive dishes, to the horror of the Hebrew, who declines to be responsible for payment of the feast, and thereby incurs the young lady's disgust. Then enters Ruth Verney, the heroine of the story, and she attracts the admiring attention of Lord Exmoor, a manly young fellow, who speedily contrives to get an introduction. That he falls in love with Ruth may be taken as a foregone conclusion. The plot then takes quite a serious turn. Amongst the guests at the hotel is an emissary from no less a personage than the Sultan of Yoo-Poh-Poh, and it appears that he is in search of the English girl whose eyes have bewitched the Eastern potentate. He recognises her in Ruth Verney, and in one of the waiters he discovers an ex-convict. He obtains this man's help, and, chloroforming the girl, he boldly carries her off. When it is found that she has disappeared, there is considerable consternation, and Lord Exmoor offers a reward of £60,000 for her recovery. The Jew, Alfonso, and others enter into competition to win this big prize, and they take their departure for the Far East. The second scene is a railway station en route, and here some fun is introduced by a couple of railway porters. The final scene gives a view of the Sultan's harem at Yoo-Poh-Poh. The fascinating inmates indulge in a seductive dance, and then the Sultan despatches two attendants to bring before him the English girl whom he wishes to add to the beauties of his harem. But Ruth has been brought up in strictly orthodox fashion, and she has strong objections to becoming the bride of a man who already has ten wives. Ruth, having set herself in opposition to the Sultan's wishes, is banished his presence. Ike and Alfonso gain admission, the former amusing the Eastern potentate with a Yiddish cake-walk. Eventually Lord Exmoor comes to the rescue. He induces the Sultan to partake of a glass of very bad whisky, which has disastrous effects. The piece concludes with the reunion of the lovers and general happiness. Mr Joe Peterman, without attempting to force the fun, supplies a highly humorous embodiment of the Jew Ike Novinski whose ways are mean and shifty. Mr Foster Courtney is alert, and renders valuable service as Alfonso Have-Em-All. Mr J. Braithwaite presents a comical figure as Maisie Littlebird, and Mr J. Brull is well placed as the Sultan. Mr Vernon Cowper ably impersonates Lord Exmoor, and makes a decided hit with his song "The Poster Girl." Miss Madeline Reece is an attractive Ruth Verney, and sings "The good old days of yore" and "My pretty little Eastern Belle" very charmingly. Miss K. Lord is a handsome Lady Clare. Other parts are ably introduced by Messrs Bert D'Arcy, Anthony Vincent, Harry Boyle, A. D. Dando, and Miss M. Dainton. Miss N. Day is the premiere danseuse. The staging and costumes are admirable. Appearing at the Empire this week are also G. French, comedian; Maud Mortimer, comedienne, whose song "Robin Gray" is well received; Chas. Russell, comedian; Ryan and Ryan, comedians; the Borellis, in their musical comedy act; and Ryder Slone, comedian. Manager Will Spearman announces that certain improvements, including the lowering of the stage, will be carried out at this popular place of amusement next week, when the entertainment will of necessity be restricted to a show of animated pictures.

THE BRITANNIA.

"Who is the prettiest girl in Hoxton?" This is the all-important question which this week has furnished a subject for animated discussion in that busy district; and at least a praiseworthy attempt to solve this exceedingly difficult and delicate problem was made at the Britannia Theatre on Friday evening. On that night the three prettiest young ladies in the building were presented with prizes to the value of £6. The first consisted of a lady's costume, the second took the form of a pretty blouse, and the third was a silver-mounted umbrella. The committee of gentlemen whose duty it was to give a decision when the fair claimants came forward had no easy or enviable task, as there was always a possibility of their judgment being adversely criticised. One of the conditions was that all the competitors must be over sixteen years of age, though apparently there was no age limit in the other direction. The competition caused considerable interest in the neighbourhood, and the claims of the rival candidates were eagerly discussed. Amongst the company engaged at the Britannia this week are the Brothers Landolf, who appear in their act entitled The Eton Boys at Play. One of the two gives a display, à la Sandow, of his remarkable muscular development, assuming various poses which bring into play the muscles of the arms and back, &c. The brothers next perform various feats of strength, doing wonders with a barbell weighing 150 lbs. They then seat themselves in chairs and across a table clasp hands. One of them, taking a firm grip, lifts the other out of the chair and holds him aloft, to the admiration of the audience. The Pinaros are successful in a comedy act. The gentleman appears in the character of an eccentric tramp who contrives to get hold of a lady's bag and then disappear inside a large egg-box. The owner rushes off in search of the police and the thief proceeds to investigate the contents of the bag. In it are articles of ladies' wearing apparel, a hand mirror, and a bottle of spirits, to which the tramp helps himself freely. The lady returns, catches the thief, and then there are further amusing developments. Another couple who win favour are Adrien and Oram, ragtime eccentrics, whose comedy acrobatic act meets with much acceptance. The male performer specially distinguishes himself as a jumper. He jumps over the lady as she stands upon a table, and brings the act to a sensational conclusion by jumping over six men in uniform who face one another and present guns with fixed bayonets. Curtis and Vanity American comedy duo, prove themselves to be experts in the art of cake-walking, and they are liberally applauded. Mr Fred Dunston, comedian, scores with his two songs "Everybody backs a winner sometimes" and "The pilgrims of the night." Mr Charles Rose is a very neat step dancer and his performance is received with applause. Miss Jennie Reeves sings in animated style "The girl in the panama hat," and Miss Nellie Randall makes a hit with "Just what you fancy." Mr Arthur St. John's sketch combination is appearing in the miniature comedy-drama in three scenes entitled Between Two Men. Mr St. John gives a capital embodiment of Lyonate St. Claire, and Mr Edwin Fergusson does well as Philippi D'Arville. Mr James Dunlop is good as Artois, an outcast; and Mr Archie Grant is amusing as Joginnot, a fop. Miss Ida St. John as Madame D'Arville and Miss Kitty Bennett as Madame St. Claire complete a satisfactory cast. A feature of the animated pictures is the depiction of the raiding by the police of a coiners' den and the exciting pursuit of the criminals.

THE ARDWICK EMPIRE OPENING

Monday evening saw the opening of Manchester's latest acquisition in the way of high-class music halls, when the new Ardwick-green Empire presented an attractive initial programme to a huge audience. The theatre occupies a commanding position at a junction of roads, which at this point were almost impassable at an early hour on Monday evening, so large were the crowds who were anxious to get in for either the first or second performance, irrespective of the great numbers who were attracted also by the spectacle and the event. It had been clearly evident that no expense was to be spared in making the Empire worthy of the most fastidious patronage, and the brilliant lighting and decorations, combined with rich appointments and the most comfortable seating, certainly answered all expectations. A capital orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr Dick Hardwick, opened the programme at ten minutes to seven with a selection from Suppé, ample applause for which revealed at once the humour of the house, its eagerness to be pleased and to express its pleasure emphatically. Of the artistes, Messrs Hart and Leo were the first to appear, and they gave their "mix-up" sketch, The American Professor, with a gusto worthy of the occasion, retiring amid a tumult of applause. Miss Nora Emerald, a dainty song and dance artiste, next appeared, and was likewise well received, this enjoyable turn being followed by the uproariously comic business of the Donaldson Brothers and Ardel and Company, in their zoological comedy. Seeley and West then added materially to the entertainment by a droll musical act, this being played in a really beautiful "set" scene of a forest glade, itself a pleasure to look upon. More fun was forthcoming from Payne's Vagabonds, a trio of youths well up in the accomplishments of whistling, talking, singing, and dancing. Some animated pictures were then shown; the Brothers Phillipi gave a wonderful exhibition of equilibristic acrobatics, a performance much to the taste of the audience; and loud approval followed the clever and novel business of Bella Davis and her quartet of real piccaninnies. Then came the big turn of the evening, namely Fred Karno's comedians, in Saturday to Monday, the company including Fred Kitchen and Cossie Noel, in their parts of the Bridegroom and the Bride. Roars of laughter accompanied the development of this comic episode, which brought a notable programme to a close.

There can be no doubt that the proprietors of the Ardwich Empire have embarked upon a profitable speculation, which supplies a long-felt want in the neighbourhood. About 6,000 persons witnessed the performance on Monday night. The proprietors are the Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire, Limited; the managing-director is Mr Oswald Stoll, and the acting-manager, Mr Will Collins.

MR W. F. FRAME, the Glesca laddie, with his vaudeville company opens a three months' tour of Scotland on Monday, Aug. 1, at Saltcoats, and is due in London in December.

DEATH OF ARTHUR LLOYD.

The news of the death of Mr Herbert Campbell had scarcely been published in the dailies before we heard of the passing away of Arthur Lloyd at Edinburgh, the city in which he was born. Last week we had to record the death of his daughter-in-law, Mrs Harry King-Lloyd, and it was while the relatives were assisting at the sad rites of the burial of this lady that they learnt the sad tidings. We regret to know that the deceased gentleman, who was highly esteemed and beloved by all with whom he came in contact, was a stranger to prosperity in his latter days. In November, 1900, he had a complimentary matinée at the Royal, but it was not the success it ought to have been, and a movement was on foot to tender him a testimonial benefit that would have been a worthier recognition of his services to the public. Mr H. E. Moss and other gentlemen prominent in the variety world had placed themselves on the committee, and Mr Edward Ledger readily assented to hold the office of hon. treasurer. Arthur Lloyd served the public for half a century, and he always endeavoured to be artistic. He may be said to have died in harness, and it is a pitiful thing that the last days of such an entertainer should have been chilled by poverty.

The death of the popular comedian reminds us that he once said, in answer to an interviewer, "My father and I have entertained the British public for 110 years." For the last fifty years he had been one of the most famous of character comedians, and his father, Horatio Lloyd, was on the stage as a comedian for sixty years. The son commenced before the father finished, but the total record of the two remains at ten years over the century. Mr Arthur Lloyd was born in Edinburgh in 1839, and though he had travelled and cultivated English as it is supposed to be current, one could detect a little more than a suspicion of the Scotch accent in his speech.

His father was comedian of the Edinburgh and Glasgow theatres in the old "circuit" days. Arthur wished to follow in his footsteps, and was put out, as it were, when he was only sixteen years of age, with a celebrated manager of his time, Mr J. R. Newcombe, and was sent to his theatre at Plymouth. He remained two seasons with him, playing, of course, only very small parts, being, in fact, "general utility." After two seasons at Plymouth the young comedian went back to Glasgow. Here it was that Mr Lloyd's genius found its true bent. In those old days of stock companies and circuits, the closing season of the theatres used to be called "the recess." Now some theatres do not close at all. When they do they call it "the vacation,"

THE LATE MR. ARTHUR LLOYD.

Which is the most classic name is hard to determine. However, "the recess" did it. It found Arthur Lloyd out. His father was in the habit of filling in "the recess" by travelling about giving entertainments, and Arthur went with him to assist him. That showed him what he was made for—a comic singer impersonating various characters, mostly eccentric or pronounced enough to provide a keen observer of human nature with opportunities of artistic caricatures.

It was in 1861 that the deceased comedian commenced his music hall career. It came about in this way. Two pounds a week was the salary fixed by tradition and practice as the reward of a low comedian; and young Lloyd, although certain of occupation with his father's concert party during the off season, was not by any means so sure of an engagement as a second low comedian when the theatres were at work again. He got many odd engagements to sing at concerts and such like for half a guinea and even a guinea a time, and this at length led to the offer of an engagement at four pounds a week at the Whitebait Music Hall, Glasgow, which he determined to accept. He started at the old Whitebait Music Hall in Glasgow. It was a room that would hold about two hundred people seated at tables. There was a chairman and a pianist. The proprietor was Mr James Shearer. There was only one other "hall" in Glasgow, namely David Brown's, and there didn't seem to be enough business to keep the two of them going.

Before Mr Lloyd commenced at the Whitebait David Brown's place had had a long run of luck with the Vokes family, the talented members of which were all children then, and consequently Shearer's had been doing bad business. Shearer told the young singer that he had saved him from bankruptcy, turned the tide in his favour. He never looked back again, and soon had to build a big hall. For this new place he got £34,000 from the Glasgow and South-Western Railway to help to make room for their St. Enoch Station.

When his father heard the news of his determination to go on the halls he was horror-stricken. He had all the old-fashioned hatred of a music hall. "My lad," said he, "you'll die a drunkard." The fact was that in those days music hall singers were greatly tempted to drink. There was no charge for admission to the hall, but every kind of refreshment was sold at the then high rate of sixpence, while adjacent to the stage door was a room called the green-room, but actually a semi-private bar, through which the professionals had to pass, and wherein they usually spent the interval between their "turns," which were two or more in a night. A popular singer often had to oblige with a dozen songs in the evening. Arthur Lloyd remembered his father's unpleasant prophecy, and was never a patron of the green-room.

One of Mr Lloyd's songs was a Scotch edition, by permission, of Sam Cowell's "Railway Porter." Arthur Lloyd was fortunate in securing an invitation to London very soon after his provincial début. He never forgot the journey. One of his travelling companions was W. G. Ross, the historic singer in the Coal Hole of "Sam Hall." Ross had a bottle of whisky with him, to which he devoted himself with so much assiduity that he must needs remove the wig he wore, to the especial horror of an old lady in the carriage. Ross used to be a popular singer of the long descriptive songs of that day—songs that took well nigh half-an-hour to execute, and detailed the entire plot of a novel or a drama. Ross was so devoted to these lugubrious compositions that he persistently sang them long after the public taste had rejected them, and he declined in public esteem to the point of becoming a chorus singer. Mr Lloyd came to London in 1862 to fulfil engagements at the Sun, Knightsbridge, Marylebone Music Hall, and the Philharmonic, Islington, where Sam Adams subsequently lost a fortune, and which is now replaced by the Grand Theatre, Islington. Lloyd was met at the station when he arrived by his friend Harry Clifton, who advised him to take lodgings at Islington, where his last turn was. So at Islington he sought lodgings, and found them, by the strangest of coincidences, with the old lady whom Ross's bald head had scandalised in the train.

After about two months at the three London halls above mentioned, Mr Lloyd gave up the Sun and the Marylebone engagements, appearing only at the Philharmonic and the Canterbury, then the property and under the management of Mr Charles Morton. Miss Russell, Miss Emily Soldene (then known as Miss Fitzhenry), Mr E. St. Aubyn, Mr R. Green, and Mr E. Jongmanns were then notable members of Mr Morton's company—for those were the days when the operatic selections at the Canterbury used to last forty-five minutes. Eventually, Mr Morton established the Oxford, and the company was transported from one hall to the other in capacious omnibuses. Unsworth, the stump orator, was a great popular favourite at this time. Among the music halls at which Mr Lloyd appeared in his earlier days in London were Weston's, the Cambridge, the Regent at Westminister, and the Strand, now the Gaiety Theatre.

Mr Lloyd recalled in connection with his engagement at the Philharmonic a story that George Leybourne often told him in later years. Leybourne was among the audience one night, and was so delighted with Lloyd's singing that he drew out an old silver watch from his pocket and bumpted it on the table in the ardour of his applause. He returned to his home in the north, and astonished his old father with the announcement, "Father, I am going to be a comic singer." "Thou a comic singer," said the old man, "and pray where dost thou get thy comicality? It does not coom from thy mother, and I'm dommed if it cooms from me!"

His reminiscences of the London Pavilion were especially interesting. "It was," he once informed us, "originally a public house with a large stable yard. Messrs Loibl and Sonnhammer, two foreigners, acquired the property, roofed the yard over, erected a gallery at the back, but at one side only—for the other was occupied by Dr. Kahn's delectable museum of anatomy—and opened the place as a music hall. Here I was an enormous favourite; and I am sure Mr Loibl would be the first to acknowledge that my popularity contributed very largely to the prosperity of the place, though I got nothing like the salary that a star of equal magnitude can command to day. Then the best seats in the place could be had for sixpence. I constantly tried to persuade Loibl to increase the price, and he did so tentatively, till at length the whole floor, with the exception of a promenade, consisted of half-crown seats. The climax was reached when at a great outlay Mr Loibl bought Kahn's museum, and was able to utilise its site for the structural improvement of the Pavilion." From the time the Board of Works acquired the hall there is no need to trace its history.

Meantime Mr Arthur Lloyd had found it convenient to write his own songs, having a happy knack that way. During the past thirty years he had written more than a thousand songs. Almost his earliest efforts was a medley called "The Song of Songs," that started from the base of "I dreamt that I dwelt in marble halls with the dark girl dressed in blue." It had a most extraordinary career of popularity, but did not bring its author and composer the large fortune that one sometimes hears of as the guerdon of a comic song, for he sold the rights of publication for a mere trifle. Among the more popular successors of "The Song of Songs" were "Not for Joseph," "Constantinople," "Cruel Mary Holder," "The Roman Fall," "Take it, Bob," "Going to the Derby"—now inseparable from "Over Rowley"—"One More Polka," and "I Couldn't." Probably of this selection the most successful of all was "Not for Joseph."

MISS DOROTHY L. CLARKE has added fresh laurels to her already great reputation by her artistic rendering of the latest song craze, "Blue Bell," notably at the Metropolitan. Miss Millie Hylton is also winning golden opinions with this song, which, by the way, has proved to be the most instantaneous song-hit of modern times. Miss Mabel La Blanche, who first heard it in America, has caused quite a furore in the provinces by her elaboration of the ditty as a scena, and the Alhambra management are likewise exploiting "Blue-Bell" with full chorus. Messrs Francis, Day and Hunter are the publishers.

"THE BEWILDERED BARRISTER" has been causing, if possible, more laughter than it did in its earliest days at the Standard, Pimlico. Fred Newham is as funny as ever; Cecil Merrie is quite as flippant; and Nelly Laybourn, who looks younger, is acting with all her wonted vivacity.

MISS ELSA DE LILA, who some time ago married Mr O'Brien, editor of the Manila (Philippine Islands), a morning paper, and died next day, was buried at Waverley Cemetery, Sydney, on the 9th inst., her body having been embalmed. The deceased was a vaudeville artiste.

MISS LELIA ROZE is now resting at her beautiful home in the county Down. This is the first vacation that this popular lady has had for five years, and therefore she well deserves a rest.

MR SAM MAYO will shortly produce a new song entitled "Experiences." The words and music are from the pen of William Hargreaves, who is also responsible for Clark and Hamilton's new ditty 'On the Shore."

THE Northumberland Miners' Association's annual demonstration was held at Blyth on the 16th inst., and was attended by some 30,000 visitors, who were favoured with glorious weather. Amongst the amusement caterers we found on the fine Links ground Mr John Manders' Royal waxworks and electric cinématograph, which was largely patronised. John Manders, jun., had also a fine show of views; Manders' South African ostriches met with liberal patronage; and Colena's leopard lady, Allen's marionettes, J. Handcock's shooters, J. Smith's rifle range; Smith, jun.'s, exhibition of skill; Roshea's long shooting ranges, and Little's juvenile swings were well patronised. On the Market-square we had Professor Burnett's large exhibition and battery, and F. Preston and W. Lilburn, jun., with shooters, Emmas, and various other attractions.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Darwen Fair marks the beginning of the great holiday in the cotton district of Lancashire. Some twenty or thirty trains of holiday folk left the town for Showland-by-the-Sea at Blackpool. Yet the fair-ground at Darwen was crowded all day long by eager sightseers, and excellent business was done. Col. Clark and Sons' Cinématograph exhibition, always a big draw here, fully maintained its deservedly high reputation, the animated pictures and the variety turns being of the best. Dennis's circus and star varieties, a good all-round show, did first-rate business. William Chaplain exhibited his capital set of miniature horses. Starkie had a miniature horse set and a set of overboats, and Marsden's highfliers finished the machine list. The Winchester range and rifle saloon of Mr George Cornwell and Mr C. Wright with bottle battery and Emma sheet, the excellent toy and fairings bazaars of Messrs Jameson and Bunkall, Gunthorpe's photo. saloon, Bowser's pea-saloon and pannum stall by Butterworth, Blinko with machine novelties, the striker and the weigher, Lorenzo with Emma and cokers and other varieties, roll-up boards and varieties by Morton, Cotton, Grant, Chaplain, Wright, Freer, Crick, and Sam Harrington, the leading star, with the novel watch and clock emporium, constituted the fun and enterprise of the fair.

On the Worcester Round we have news of Bishampton Fair. Herbert's steam horses were the chief centre of attraction. Herbert's other novelties were highfliers, the bottle battery, cokers, Emma, and variety stalls. Scarrott exhibited swings, coker and Emma sheets, and roll-up boards. Sorrell had toy stalls and roll-up boards. The other caterers were Messrs Smith, Phipps, and Kemp.

From the Durham and Northumberland Round the story of the fairs is as follows:—At Hetton-le-Hole, Mr George Paine's Cinématograph exhibition and Prof. W. Moore's boxers and athletes; Mr Arthur Payne's galloping horses, shooting gallery and swings; Robson's shooting gallery and coker sheets, Newsome's swings and juvenile horses, H. Shaw's coker and Emma sheets, Doubtfire's horses, Testo's shooting gallery, football boards by Messrs Cain and G. W. At Crag Head Pinninger's steam horses were the chief attraction, and minor amusements were provided by Messrs Sedgemore, Fisher, and T. Hartshorn.

The novelties at West Cornforth included Richardson's galloping horses, Mrs Testo's Cinématograph exhibition, and a host of minor fair-ground attractions.

Blyth Fair was maintained by James Manders's flying ostriches, Hancock's shooting gallery, and minor variety stalls, Rosher's shooters and varieties, Smith, with coker and Emma sheets, J. Smith, jun.'s, shooting saloon, and varieties by Messrs Gray, Dunn, Libiburn, and others.

At Johnstone, N.B, we had Mr Geo. Biddali's electric ghost show, Henry Chapman's British hares, Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, Cyclops and May, athletic wonders, and Paulo's circus. The roundabouts were represented by Mr James Wilmot's Canadian switchback, M'Indoe's gondolas, Billy Newey's juvenile horses, Walton's photographic saloon, Mr and Mrs Lovell, phrenologists; the first-class shooting concerns of Messrs Dawson, Steen, Blackie, Sheeran, Wright, and Smith. The minor fun of the fair in the form of strikers, roll-ups, and marvel wheels were contributed by Messrs Stevenson, Smith, Blackie, Newey, Graham, Wilson, Cook, Fox, Johnson, Towers, and Carroll.

Glasgow Fair was well sustained by Codona's ghost illusion, Sedgwick's Yankee menagerie, Green's Cinématograph, Capt. Texas and Eagle Davis, sharpshooters; M Indoe's (Mr Arthur Henderson) living pictures, Mr and Mrs Hutin, swanckologists; Messrs Walton and Caddick's photographic saloons. The machine list included the six concerns of Mr Geo. Green (lessee and proprietor) and Codona's three-abreast gallopers. Bogies and coker shies were supplied by Messrs Lawrence, Irvin, Kelly, Macintosh, and a host of others.

We draw the attention of members of the Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union to the important meeting of the Union at Stockport, Wales, next week. See our advertisement columns for particulars.

At the World's Fair and Music Hall, Dublin, the proprietor, Mr C. A. James, is presenting Chester and Clifford, speciality artistes; James Keith, comedian and dancer; Madame Alice Smyth, ballad vocalist; and E. Delmore, comedienne and dancer.

Mr Irving Bosco, of the Belfast Hippodrome, taking advantage of the fine weather, is visiting the principal towns of Ireland with his mammoth tent. A feature is the brilliant lighting by Roscoe's patent acetylene gas, and the sensation of the bill is Diavolo's daring cycling feat of "flying the flume."

At Bishop Auckland were Messrs W. and B. Murphy's No. 2 gondolas. Messrs W. and B. Murphy gave their annual benefit night towards the poor children's treat, and a good sum was realised.

At Newburn "Hoppings" were Walter Murphy's magnificent set of gondolas, Chapman's horses, the bottle shooters of Messrs Buckley, O'Brian, Chapman, and Potts; the fair ground concerns of Walker, Rowley, Newsome, and O'Brian; Manders' No. 1 show, Cooper's Bioscope, and Gess with his athletes.

At the great Coronation Fairs, granted in the Five Parks, Liverpool, by the Corporation to Mr Tom Collins there was a great gathering of showmen, from Bostock and Wombwell's gigantic menagerie downwards. The names of Collins and Farrell are world-famed in the catering line.

At Stanley-park were Baker's Continental circus, Madame Ollivier's Japanese lady wrestlers and novelty show, Madame Ollivier's great illusions, the flying ladies, and Cerese, the beautiful Parisienne lady, floating in mid-air; Blower's strong men and athletes, including Nicholas, the strongest man in the world, from St. Petersburg; Day's world-famed living picture show and combination of novelties; Farrell's section, representing his costly steam gallopers, switchbacks, and three sets of swings; the great picture show, Japan and Russian war; shooting galleries, and novelties of all descriptions.

The whole of the fairs were under the management of Mr A. Brandon, Mr J. Collins, jun.'s, able representative.

DEATH OF HERBERT CAMPBELL.

Both in the music hall and theatrical worlds the news of the death of Mr Herbert Campbell has brought forth a universal tribute of sorrow, and that sorrow is largely shared by the British public, by whom the deceased comedian was ever regarded as the truest stage type of cockney geniality. His illness began on Friday, July 2, when he met with an accident to his leg, which developed into erysipelas, and obliged him to take to his bed. He was seized with apoplexy on Tuesday, July 12, and, though at first it was hoped that his fine constitution would pull him through, a second seizure on Sunday morning forewarned his friends of a fatal ending. On that day an eminent specialist was called in to assist Dr. Robinson, the family physician, and pronounced the patient beyond all hope. He was sinking gradually but surely, and only his strong constitution enabled him to battle with death for two more days. He rallied slightly on Monday, and asked for water, but the faint hope this gave was negatived by the increasing weakness of the heart. His end was peace. One of the last inquirers at his house was his old neighbour and friend, Mr Weedon Grossmith, who was able to bear the news of his death to the anxious members of the Canonbury Constitutional Club, of which Mr Campbell was a member. Mr Campbell was born in 1844, and was therefore in the sixtieth year of his age.

We are indebted for the particulars of the deceased comedian's early career to one of his most intimate friends, Mr Charles Townley, known in the theatrical world as Geoffrey Thorn, who tells us in the Islington Gazette that Herbert Campbell was "born in London, and at one time working in the humble capacity of a messenger for the old Sun newspaper. By his father he was intended for an engineer, and when quite young he was at work in Armstrong's gun factory at Woolwich. He early had an ambition to be a singer, and it was in a small teetotal hall in Rosoman-street, Clerkenwell, then run by the late Mr John Ross, a notable Clerkenwell vestryman, that he made his first appearance in his own name as Herbert Edward Storey. He, to use his own words, used to sing for a reward of 'gingerbeer and buns,' a salary which he would laughingly compare with the income of a Cabinet Minister which his later efforts commanded. This was about the middle of the sixties, and he did not jump into favour at once.

"His earliest efforts professionally were as a negro minstrel. In this capacity he joined an unfortunate troupe that came to such grief at Oxford that the whole of the members had to walk home to London without a penny to purchase bread with. I remember with what emotion he once told me at Henley that in that memorable journey he walked through that town on Christmas day and heard in the sounds of feasting and merriment that came from the revellers a sort of mockery to his hunger and thirst. He later joined a negro quartette in the music halls, the party being known as Harman, Elston, Holmes, and Campbell. His companions told him he was no good, and he then abandoned burnt cork, and took to the ways of the more blatant comic singer. His purely cockney style caught on with the public, and a certain genius in the way of dressing soon marked him out for the higher walk of theatrical comedians." In 1871 he made his theatrical début in pantomime at the old Theatre Royal, Liverpool, as King Autumn in the pantomime of King Winter and Princess Summer. In the following season he played in Lucee Land in the same theatre, and in consequence of his success became a member of the stock company. He made a hit in the pantomime at the Alexandra Palace, where he played at the afternoon performances the part of King Marmalade, in The Yellow Dwarf, and in 1873 appeared at that home of bustling pantomime, the old Grecian Theatre, in City-road as King Funky, in a pantomime known as Harlequin the Wood Demon, with Arthur Williams and Miss M. A. Victor in other humorous parts. His last effort there was in King Frolic, a Christmas piece that had the longest run of any pantomime there or elsewhere. It was, however, at Covent-garden, in 1878, that he made his most striking appearance as Widow Simpson, in Jack and the Beanstalk, in which he sang one of his most famous topical songs "What the girl said to the soldier." With the late Mr G. H. Macdermott, Arthur Williams, and others of his old Grecian associates, he made "music hall" pantomime so successful that in the following year, when Sindbad the Sailor was produced at Covent-garden, Drury-lane closed with disaster, unable to stand the competition. In 1877 he played in the comic opera of Venice, at the Alhambra, and in 1885 at the Crystal Palace, in H. J. Byron's burlesque of Somnambula. In 1880 he returned to the Grecian to play in Henry Pettitt's only pantomime King Frolic, and in the next season at that theatre, the last it ever saw, he was allotted the title-part in Happy-Go-Lucky. In the following year, 1882, he made his first appearance in pantomime at Drury-lane, from which he was never afterwards absent.

Herbert Campbell started as a comedian on the music hall stage at the old Raglan Music Hall, Union-street, Borough, and he came in November, 1868, to Collins's—then known as the "little hall on the green." Amongst his early successes were "The Married Man," "The Cabman," and "Keep it Dark," the last-mentioned being from the pen of Mr E. V. Page. Among his most celebrated songs were "All very fine and large," "Little Tommy Topweight," "Three girls in a boat," "The Pew-opener," "The Jossers' Cricket Club," "It's the seasoning wot does it," "Seaside Holiday at Home," "Up I came with my little lot" all from the pen of Fred Bowyer, author of The Little Stowaway; "At my time of life," "A lot of wet," "A pity to waste it," "Now We're busy," "Now you come to think of it," "Now we shan't be long," "The seats of the mighty," "Coming thro' the dye," and many more. He was a hater of cant and shams, and it will be remembered with what force and effect he denounced at Drury-lane the celebrated attack of a Puritan section of the County Council on public entertainment. "The Great Mac Noodle Came to Town" set the audience of the National Theatre rocking with laughter, and it had the desired effect that ridicule always has upon fanatical persecution. On the eve of his death he was busy working for the passage of the Bill to legalise sketches at music halls, and he always had at heart the Music Hall Sick Fund, of which he was president, and for which he worked unceasingly. As a director of the Croydon Palace, the Granville, Walham-green; and the Grand Music Hall, at Clapham, he had much to do with providing wholesome entertainments for the people, and he held to a high standard of quality when selecting his companies. He was always to the fore in local or political elections, voting regularly, and he took a deep interest in the borough in which he lived for some years and worked for many more.

In some further reminiscences Mr Geoffrey Thorn goes on to say: "When Augustus Harris took the reins at the National Theatre it was not long before he secured Herbert Campbell, who, with his old colleague of City-road, Harry Nicholls, restored the prestige of Drury-lane. Does anybody remember the pair as the Babes in the Wood? The funny scene in which these infantile giants sat in a perambulater in the park and silently watched their nursemaid's flirtation with a soldier was the most laughable bit of stage business I ever saw. When Harry Nicholls retired and Dan Leno came to the front Campbell was again an admirable foil to his partner. I wrote some of his Drury-lane topical songs as well as many of his music hall lyrics, and it was in this connection that I was able to say that I never met such a man so easy to deal with and so honourable and liberal in his business transactions. He was more than that—he was a perfect god-send to the poorer members of his profession. No one will ever know how abundant was his charity to all conditions of the poor. If a colleague came to grief by misfortune Campbell was the first to help and ask others to help. He would stand at no inconvenience to serve a good cause. He was also a good citizen, and in later years he showed a capacity for business which brought him into the worries of music hall management, and, I fear, did not add much to his physical strength. All over the country he had hosts of friends, and wherever he went, from the aristocrat in the park to the urchin in the gutter, everyone had a merry salutation for 'good old Herbert.' His powerful voice was a factor in his success, and his imperturbable good humour compensated for anything rugged in his style. He had a wonderful ear for music. His death will cause widespread sorrow, and none will more deeply lament his passing away than the old companion-in-arms and friend who knew him so well and loved him so much. Truly he was one of nature's gentlemen. Genial, witty, playful, hilarious, and yet with almost a woman's touch of sentiment and a child's ingenuousness of disposition."

It was very rarely that Herbert Campbell would submit to be interviewed, but a contributor to the London Magazine caught him in his most genial mood during the run of the last Drury-lane pantomime, Humpty Dumpty. "Regarded solely from the point of view of pantomime, the effectiveness of physical contrast has, in some measure, increased the value of Herbert Campbell's services. The possession of a singularly placid temperament and a rigidly methodical mode of living have, it is probable, been contributory causes of the comedian's present ample proportions. In short, Herbert Campbell, being a large, genial gentleman of physical as well as artistic breadth, makes an admirable foil to one of comparatively diminutive statute and widely different methods. Hence the long and brilliantly-successful association with Dan Leno. Surely no broader contrast either in the physical or artistic sense was ever furnished by any other pair of jesters—the one plump, unctuous, and deliberate, the other lean, perky, and spasmodic.

"That an ingenious management should, in view of Herbert Campbell's outside measurements, have early determined to cast him for the part of an infant is but natural, and so it came about that in the 1888-9 pantomime of Babes in the Wood he set the town roaring with laughter at his delightfully funny performance as the boy babe, with Harry Nicholls as the baby-girl.

"Was it not also during that same season (Dan Leno's first pantomime at Drury-lane, by-the-way) that Herbert Campbell, leaning far out of his perambulator to watch his nurse flirting with a soldier, imposed so severe a strain upon a portion of his costume that with a distinctly audible "rip" the garment gave up the struggle, while the all-unconscious comedian maintained his position in the presence of an audience literally convulsed with laughter? Quite apart, however, from such unrehearsed effects or the trick played by Arthur Roberts during the run of Sinbad in the Drury-lane season of 1882-3—a trick, by-the-way, the bare mention of which still raises shouts of laughter among the old hands of 'the Lane' staff—Herbert Campbell has, both on the stage and behind the scenes, been associated with much of the merriment for which the historic temple is famed at Yuletide.

"And yet it is not quite easy to say just how the comedian makes the public laugh. If you were to ask Herbert Campbell the question he would probably assume an expression of gloomy abstraction and say, 'Oh, I'm blowed if I know.' This reply you might regard as evidence of that modesty which is characteristic of many successful men, but it is very probably true that he could not analyse the exact process by which he gets his effects. Assuming always that in pantomime he is a grotesque figure in a costume invariably designed to make a man of his build look absurd, and a strong appeal to the public eye is already made. To this the comedian adds qualities that place his success beyond doubt. To many the very sound of Herbert Campbell's voice is the signal for explosive laughter. It is a voice of which his nearest and dearest friends could not truthfully say that it was melodious or soothing; for its purpose it is an organ of far more useful quality; it is powerful, resonant, and far-reaching, and for those to whom a clear understanding of the words of a song is necessary, it is as good a voice as any comedian or his audience could desire.

"But setting aside the voice, the physical attributes, and capacity for humorous 'wheeze' and gesture, it is probable that Herbert Campbell makes his appeal principally by means of a facial expression that is really remarkable. Extraordinary mobility of feature and an equally extraordinary capacity for thinking out new moves for the nose, the lips, and the eyes, enable the lucky possessor of a unique face to portray all the human emotions without uttering a word.

"In short, Herbert Campbell's face is one of his principal assets, and when at length he brings his labours to a close he will be remembered by a grateful public as one whose sunshiny countenance was ever cheering to look upon. To these advantages Herbert Campbell adds a humour that is rich, broad, and pleasantly devoid of subtlety or of any quality that demands of his audience severe mental pressure."

His long connection with the theatre furnished him with a rich store of personal memories and anecdotes. Of his association with the Grecian Theatre—"The Bird" of bygone days—he had many interesting things to say, and to select one from his collection of stories of the once famous City-road house the following may be taken as typical of the period:—"In 1873, in company with my old friend Arthur Williams, I was present at a well-known actor's first appearance as Lemuel, the gipsy boy, in The Flowers of the Forest. The character was that of a lad of nineteen, but our actor, a man with a four days' beard, looked more like a blue dwarf. He is supposed to go poaching, and to shoot a hare in the wood at night.

"'Here's half-a-crown,' he said to a stage hand. 'Go down Nile-street (at the back of the Grecian) and buy me a good hare. I want it for my poaching scene, but afterwards you can take it home for supper.'

"The man went down Nile-street, but, economy asserting itself, and thinking only of his supper, bought a fifteen-penny Ostend rabbit, ready skinned and skewered. The consequence may be imagined.

"Lemuel stole on the dark stage, gun in hand.

"'Ha,' he cried, speaking his lines with tragic emphasis, 'there is a fine fat puss. I will bring her down.'

"He took steady aim and fired, and, as the report of the shot rang through the house, the stage hand gracefully pitched on to the stage not a a fine, fat hare, but a skinned Ostend rabbit.

"Of course, the house was in convulsions, and poor Lemuel had to pick up the 'game,' and exit singing—

> I'll sell you for a crown, my boy,
> And that won't be too dear;
> For it's my delight on a starry night,
> This season of the year."

THE LATE MR. HERBERT CAMPBELL.

THE INQUEST.

Owing to death having been accelerated, if not directly caused by a fall, Dr. Danford Thomas thought it necessary to hold an inquest, which was conducted at Islington early on Friday morning. Mrs Campbell was unable to attend.

Dr. Robinson was called, and stated that Mr Campbell was sixty-one years of age. Generally speaking, he enjoyed good health. On Thursday, June 30, he met with an accident. On the following morning witness was sent for, and found him suffering from a large bruise and an abrasion on the left leg. Mr Campbell told him that while alighting from his brougham on the previous night the horse moved, and he knocked his leg against the step of the carriage. He remained in bed and was not able again to leave the room. On the Saturday erysipelas set in. Blood poisoning followed, and on the 12th inst. he became unconscious as the result of an apoplectic seizure, due to the rupture of a blood-vessel on the brain. He regained consciousness for short period, but had lost the use of the whole of his left side, and he expired on Tuesday last. The wound on the leg had not healed at all, and a deep ulcer developed. He was satisfied that had the accident not occurred, Mr Campbell would not have had the apoplectic seizure, although he was likely to die of apoplexy at some time.

William Collins, who had been in the service of Mr Campbell for nearly twenty-three years as coachman, stated that just as Mr Campbell was alighting on returning home he turned and spoke to him. At the sound of his voice the horse made some movement, and Mr Campbell appeared to stumble on to his knees. Upon being raised he complained that he had hurt his leg, and he was then assisted to his room.

The jury returned a verdict of "Death from compression on the brain, following upon the rupture of a blood vessel whilst suffering from septicæmia, caused by an injury accidentally received."

THE FUNERAL.

Immediately after the inquest the remains were taken back to the residence of the deceased comedian in Quadrant-road, Canonbury, where the funeral procession presented a striking picture by reason of the richness and beauty of the large number of floral tributes. The open hearse on which the coffin was borne was hung at every point with wreaths of the choicest flowers, and following the hearse came three open landaus bearing wreaths. By Thursday night over a hundred wreaths and other floral tokens of regard had arrived at the house, and on Friday morning there was a large addition. Amongst the more conspicuous were those received from Drury-lane Theatre and the music halls with which the deceased was associated. A harp of beautiful flowers from the committee and members of the Music Hall Sick Fund Provident Society was inscribed "To the memory of our President. With the deepest regret." A similar shaped tribute of esteem was from the members of the Canonbury Constitutional Club, to which the deceased had belonged for many years. Other wreaths, &c., were from Mrs Campbell and Miss Campbell, Arthur Collins, Mr and Mrs Arthur Magnus, Eugene Stratton, John Parker, Mr and Mrs Harry Randall, and the Misses Randall, Marie Lloyd, the Directors of the Granville, the Directors of the Camberwell Palace, Mr and Mrs Frank Heath, Edward Swanborough, Mr and Mrs Fred Russell, Mr and Mrs Henri Clark, Neil Forsyth, Oswald Stoll, Sir George Hussey, De Frece's Minstrels (Great Yarmouth), George and Weedon Grossmith, Francis, Day, and Hunter, Mr and Mrs Wiltshire, Fred Bowyer, Mr and Mrs Joyner, Mr and Mrs Arthur Williams, Pat Doherty, T. S. Dickie and the staff of the Royal Standard Music Hall, Pimlico; Nellie L'Estrange, Mr and Mrs Joe Elvin, the Courts of Justice Sick Fund, Mr and Mrs John Templey, Maud Hobson, Mr and Mrs John Lawson, Mr and Mrs Leon Victor, H. and L. C. Sprake (sons of the late Herbert Sprake), Mrs and Mrs Fred Griffiths, Mr and Mrs Dan Leno, Mr and Mrs G. H. Chirgwin, the Empire company, Portsmouth, Granville, Walham-green, employees; drivers and conductors of the Favourite omnibuses, Mrs Douglas Cox, staff of the Palace, Croydon, Geo. Davey and staff, of the Grand Theatre, Islington; Jack De Frece and staff of the London, Mr and Mrs Hugh Ward, Vesta Victoria, Kate Carney, Burney and Richards (of Collins's), Mr and Mrs Chandler and family, Mr and Mrs Fred Williams, Mr and Mrs Harry Hunter, Mr and Mr Haless (of Canonbury), the Children of Drury-lane, Richard Warner, Mr and Mrs Arthur Roberts, members of the Eccentric Club, Directors of Drury-lane, Official Staff of Drury-lane, Ada Blanche, members of the London Entertainments Protection Association (J. L. Graydon, secretary), Fred Emney, Henri Gros, and many others.

The principal mourners included Messrs Roberts (nephew), Wiltshire, Harry Nicholls, Arthur Williams, Fred Williams, Harry Randall, Charles Coborn, Wm. Clarkson, J. Harrison (secretary of the Eccentric Club), Harry Hunter (late of the Mokawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels), Councillor Davis (representing the Canonbury Constitutional Club), Geoffrey Thorn, Lovett King, J. Bernard Dickson, George Scott J. Potter, and George Davey (Grand Theatre).

The Music Hall Sick Fund, in the prospects and development of which Mr Campbell took such a warm interest from the year he paid his first subscription (1873), was represented by Messrs H. Jennings (trustee), Frank Heath (treasurer), R. T. Baines (secretary), and P. Carey. The Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, of which Mr Campbell was a vice-president, was represented by Messrs Charles Coborn, Fred W. Mills, Pat Carey, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). It will be remembered that the deceased comedian was chairman of the most successful gathering this association has ever held. Amongst the many telegrams was a touching message from Mr J. L. Toole. Mr Dan Leno, the comrade and friend of many years, was unfortunately unable to be present.

The road to Abney-park Cemetery was lined by thousands of interested spectators. It was, indeed, a remarkable demonstration of public sympathy. In Essex-road and at the entrance to the burial ground the people were from eight to twelve deep. The first portion of the burial service was solemnised in the chapel, and the coffin was then conveyed to the grave, where, in the presence of a huge crowd, the committal sentences were read.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Perhaps a few extra items connected with the professional career of Herbert Campbell may be of some use to you. Most of your morning and evening contemporaries labour under mistaken notions in their biography of the above-named. He never was a member of the original Christy Minstrels, but for a long period he performed at various small places in Liverpool with other partners before he joined Harman and Elston, in their really clever entertainment, he being the joke-feeder for Harman, and Elston pleasing all with his light tenor voice and guitar playing.

In the early days of the seventies, Campbell, after some dispute with his partners, walked up to London from the far north and arrived almost penniless, and soon afterwards he begged Mr Vincent Davies—then conductor of the Old Raglan band—to ask me if I would, free of charge, write him a few songs, as he fancied he could make a start in white business. Vincent Davies had before promised to compose the melodies on the same terms. I then wrote for Campbell six productions, among which can be named "The Cattle Show," "Mary Hall," "Going out fishing," and "Let us be jolly," and, after he was ready, I asked, and procured from, Mr Henry Hart, the then proprietor of the Old Raglan Music Hall, Herbert Campbell's first engagement in white business, and not as named—at Sam Collins's. After that time E. V. Page, Fred Bowyer, and others wrote him many songs, and by such aid he slowly went ahead.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN BEETHOLME LAWREEN.

HERBERT CAMPBELL.
(In Memoriam.)
July 19, 1904.

The part is played! The motley cast aside!
The curtain rings down on the final scene:
The Great Stage-Manager has stepped between!
No more "Old Drury's" auditorium wide
Shall rock with merry mirth, at Christmastide,
Through "Herbert's" merry quips and satire keen!
Alas! In tears, we mourn the unforeseen,
And Thalia wept when Herbert Campbell died.

Death! You have robbed the youngsters of their fun;
Death! You have stol'n from us a trusty friend,
One who was kindly—generous to the end.
The part is played! The verdict is "Well done!"
"Resting" for evermore, tired spirit, dwell
Respected, loved, by all who knew you well.
JOHN P. HARRINGTON.

THE PARAGON.

The proportions of the programme at the Paragon are well in keeping with the size of the house, and, while quantity is always provided, quality is assured under the supervision of Mr G. Adney Payne, whose earliest managerial triumphs were associated with the hall. A potent attraction of the present bill is Mr Leo Dryden, whose place on the pinnacle of fame has been attained by his melodious singing of songs, healthy in tone and sentiment, that have touched the heart-strings of the public. His répertoire of bygone celebrities is varied and extensive, one of his latest being Robert Burns, in which the romantic love story of the poet is told in brief, but pithy verse, with a tuneful refrain which is speedily taken up in the auditorium. The Japanese National Anthem forms the introduction to Mr Dryden's second selection, "For Freedom and Japan." A well-painted cloth represents a street in Tokio, in front of which the vocalist, in native dress, delivers a stirring song in praise of the little nation so valiantly contesting with a formidable foe. The words are well suited to the spirit of the theme, and so powerfully do they affect the audience that Mr Dryden is again and again recalled to repeat the refrain, to which his resonant voice gives every effect. A sensation is caused by the abnormal muscular development of Mr John Grun Marx, whose feats of weight-lifting amply bear out his appearance. With a blow of his hand he snaps a stout iron chain, and he bends and breaks a large horseshoe, at which half-a-dozen men have vainly tugged with a rope. He offers £10 to anyone who can perform one out of four feats, the crisp bank notes being temptingly held up to view; but although three of Mile-end's stalwarts together essayed to raise a 320lb. barbell above their heads, they were unable to accomplish the trick, which had been easily performed by Marx. His tour-de-force comes at the end, when he supports on his chest a roundabout carrying eight men, the entire weight being over 25cwt. The show is an exciting one, and elicits great applause. An exhilarating turn is that of the Abdullah Arabs, their human pyramid building being as greatly appreciated as their wild whirling and somersaulting, which they go through with bewildering rapidity, constant laughter and applause attending the latter portion of their display. The Borellis supplement their clever piano solos with imitations of various Continental vocalists, concluding with a cat duet, in which the drollery of the well-matched couple has full play. Miss Lily Burnand exercises her talent for mimicry in a satire of "Modern Society," in which the London coster plays an important part, while her song in which she extols the "good old English girl" is received with abundant favour. A neat acrobatic dance is done by the pretty petite young lady of Forest and King, who give a brief but interesting display. The comic man has a marvellous facility for doing heavy falls of the most eccentric kind, and a real anxiety is displayed by the audience for a continuance of a performance that is all too short. Miss Gwennie Hasto brings out to perfection the sweet pathos of a ballad of a robin, and is no less able to charm with a graceful skirt dance, in which her acrobatic evolutions are well performed. Similar excellent work is done by Miss Florrie St. Roy, who makes a personable white coon, and who adds to her song of the "Dances in Gay Paree" a specimen thereof which is greatly enjoyed. Mr Will English, a genuine coon, sings to his "baby," illustrating the song with a wealth of facial expression, also putting his walking-stick to novel uses. He is recalled, and gives among other imitations a well-considered travesty of "Russians going to the front." The Paxton Trio gives a skilful head and hand balancing show, in which strength and agility are cleverly combined. Miss Amy Elcock tells amusingly of "The copper in the copper," and sets off her song of "Lulu" with a smart dance; Valoni is assisted in his juggling by a number of trained pigeons; and others on the programme are Cruickshank, the musical clown; the Four Herberts, "jolly Californian farmers;" and Clark and Hamilton, who on Monday telegraphed that they were on account of indisposition unable to appear.

THE ROYAL ALBERT.

To cater for a community largely composed of working folk, with the fare good and at prices well within the limits of their resources, is a task of no little difficulty. That Mr Charles Relf successfully accomplishes this at his comfortable and extensive hall in the neighbourhood of Victoria Docks is shown by the patronage always extended him, and by the satisfaction everywhere expressed. An item of especial interest in the current week's programme is the boxing exhibition given by Joe Bowker, of Manchester, bantam weight 8st. 4lbs. champion of the world, who has met and defeated many boxers of note, and Alf. Wicks, of Canning-town, light-weight champion of Essex. In introducing the men, the M.C., Mr Alderman Hayday, referred to the many battles Bowker had fought and won, and also spoke in praise of the local man, Wicks, whom he held up as an example for the Canning-townites to copy. He also remarked, especially for the edification of the ladies present, that it was quite possible for a boxer to be a gentleman, and observed that a knowledge of the "noble art" was useful in many ways. In the four rounds indulged in on Monday there was much admiration for the smartness and agility shown by Bowker, and his opponent, Wicks, who also displayed undoubted skill as a boxer, naturally came in for a large share of approbation, the exhibition throughout being apparently much enjoyed. For those amongst the audience whose tastes do not incline towards boxing there was the "great mystical sketch," entitled The Sorrows of Satan, an impressive and well-acted fragment of Marie Corelli's notable novel. Miss Ethel King's company, including Mr Maurice H. Hoffmann, the adaptor of the sketch, was responsible for the interpretation of this interesting trifle; and the three principals who enacted Prince Lucio Rimanez, Geoffrey Tempest, and Lady Sybil, all gave well-studied and convincing portrayals, especially praiseworthy being the actor who played the sorrowing Rimanez. The series of varied and interesting animated pictures thrown on the sheet by Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope are always an attractive item, and the views and other slides shown during the turn given by Fox and Melville, the popular transatlantic song illustrators, largely add to the interest of their entertainment. The programme is opened by George Mayes, comedian, who, garbed in clerical attire, managed to arouse laughter for his song "Then I sang a hymn," his other two comical effusions also pleasing; and Miss Nellie Cotter was listened to with evident enjoyment for her coon song, "Make up your mind, Loo," her low comedy selection and her impersonation of a poor match vendor being both meritorious and loudly applauded items. Mr George Collins's chief success was secured by a funny female impersonation, but his parody on "Coming through the rye," and another humorous ditty evoked considerable laughter. Miss Alma Curzon, comedienne and burlesque actress, has a decidedly acceptable number in "If the man in the moon could speak;" and her patriotic song, "Britons never shall be slaves" was a particularly telling selection, her comedy ditty "Excuse me being so familiar" affording her auditors much satisfaction. In the programme are also the Five Bon-Bons, clever pantomimists; the Sisters Adelaide, duettists and dancers; and the Edgar Forrest Comedy Company, in an amusing sketch. The capable little band is under the control of Mr R. A. Howell; and Mr Walter Leaver is the genial and able chairman.

Mr Charles Freiman and Miss Florence Tench will appear at the Euston on Monday in their sparkling duologue The Broken Honeymoon.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—Franco Piper, who makes his first appearance here, is an excellent banjoist, and receives well-merited applause; Herman Saxon gives a capital exhibition in his feats of strength; the Three Clarions, vocalists and dancers, are an entertaining trio. The performances of Miss Victoria Dagmar on the horizontal bar are both graceful and clever. Several new jockey acts by Mr John Yelding are also much admired. The funniosities of Little Bishop fairly convulse everybody, and Miss Marie Winsome, male impersonator; Miss Winnie Scott, vocalist and dancer, together with the usual display of animated pictures, complete a well-arranged bill.

SOUTHAMPTON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs J. W. Gordon; Acting-Manager, Mr Dudley Colwyn.—Mr John Hare's company is this week appearing here in the comedy-drama The Golden Chance, which is well received. Mr Herbert M. King is admirable as Zac, and Miss Irene Clifford (Viva) and Miss Agatha Halford (Lydia) acquit themselves splendidly. The comedy element is safe in the hands of Mr John A. Stimson and Miss Jenny Hallworth, who work hard and do well. The other parts are all capably played.

PALACE.—The bill is headed by George Chirgwin, who scores his usual great success. Vasco, the mad musician, and Marguerite Broadfoote, comedienne, also prosper well. Alexandra and Bertie, Avon and Crest, Fraser and Mac, Torbay, and Ted Cowan all add their quota to a capital evening's entertainment.

PIER PAVILION.—Mr Sidney Leighton's Royal Bohemian Players are delighting large audiences at this fashionable resort. Mr Leighton is a clever ventriloquist, and, in addition, gives some capital child imitations. Mr Chas. E. Browne, an expert mandolinist and banjoist; Mr Sterling Mackinlay, bass; and Miss Helena Cecile, elocutionist, all excel in their respective lines.

SHEFFIELD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—On the evening of the 14th inst. the Lyceum presented a brilliant appearance, when the world-famous Madame Sarah Bernhardt reappeared, after an interval of six years, in La Dame Aux Camélias.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—The pleasing and emotional story of child life, entitled Judy; or, The Fatal Hand, was acted to a large audience on Monday, when the various Dickens-like scenes of domestic life and laughter-provoking episodes with which the drama abounds proved quite to the taste of the Alexandra clientèle. The talented little actress Miss Florrie Groves kept the sympathetic attention of the audience all through the four acts as Judy, and she received frequent and hearty applause. Miss Mary Neil revealed much dramatic talent and great versatility in the dual-part of Alice and Pollie, and Mr George Kirk was very successful in the effectively-drawn character of Grip. Other parts were well played by Mr George Kirk and Miss Neil's company, and the scenery, dresses, and effects were all that could be desired.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The Boissets continue their successful engagement this week in The Dock Strike. Other good acts are submitted by the Northern Troupe of dancers, Albert Christian, the popular baritone; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford, the talented burlesque artists; Georgina Leonard, speciality artiste and vocalist; Nellie Vanderbilt, comedienne; Lawrence Barclay, vocal comedian; Katie Cohen, ballad vocalist; the Pueblo Brothers, American entertainers; and Robert Baker, in his new racing speciality act "Speedy."

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—Engaged at this comfortable hall are Francis, a talented juggler; Ryde and Beeman, comic acrobats; Miss Lillian May, the winner of Mr Burns's ladies' vocal competition; Master George, Benson and Geoffrey, in a duologue entertainment; Loudoun Cameron, master magician; and the Sisters Hula, pretty and chic artistes.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—On Monday night before a crowded house Mr C. St. John Denton's company commenced a week's engagement with Kitty Grey. From start to finish the comedy went wonderfully well, and so many of the favourite numbers were re-demanded that the piece was not finished until a late hour. Miss Hilda Guiver undertook the title-rôle with distinguished success. She played the part of the actress and a noble-hearted woman with a reality rarely seen. Scarcely less successful was the Lady Binfield of Miss Eily Helene. Apart from a pleasing expression there was no lack of refinement in the embodiment. Mr Leslie Harris as Lord Plantagenet found plenty to do, and he filled his part with praiseworthy zeal and energy, whilst the undercurrent of rich humour was refreshing in the extreme. A distinctly opposite character was Sir John Binfield, so ably represented by Mr Robert Selby. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., was responsible for the King of Illyria, a difficult part that was not overdrawn. Praise is also due to Miss Emily Stevens for her representation of Mrs Bright, and to Miss Nancy Wood for her portrayal of Sadie De Poulson. The minor parts were in good hands. The choruses, it might be added, evinced the excellent training bestowed upon the singers, who were freely applauded.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—This week Mr J. W. Cragg's Congress of Comedians in their musical pantomimical absurdity, entitled Laughter Land, are meeting with well-earned success. The piece is prettily mounted, the singing and dancing both being good. Professor Sylvanus Ward finds a most capable exponent in Mr Henry B. Lewis, who is ably supported by Mr Harry Rousby as Dick Marlow; Mr Victor T. Raymond is well suited as Archie, while Mr Arthur E. Behan embodies Squire Topsam creditably; Mr Cremorne Cragg's Billie is a very clever and humorous character; and the Misses Amy Hastings and Agatha Rose as Clarice and Clothilda respectively are noteworthy exponents. The clever performance of the Marvellous Craggs, the premier gentlemen acrobats of the world, meets with applause throughout.

KURSAAL.—General-Manager, Colonel Blair Staple.—Appearing in the theatre this week are the Sisters Cora, who always receive a hearty welcome; the Great Vincent, pyramid table jumper; Alvante, the wire king; Fodder, continental grotesque, who gives selections on a most varied assortment of instruments; Miss Emmie Ames, the London comedienne; and the Marvellous Odells. The dining hall has been converted into a café chantant, in which appear the Kursaal Pierrots. In the Grand Unique Cirque Permane's four bears and the Great Caban are amongst the chief attractions.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey present for the first time here A Traitor Prince, an Oriental drama. Songs and dances help considerably in brightening the piece. The title-rôle, Prince Rao, is forcibly handled by Mr G. M. Montanini, and Lieut. Frank Derrick has a cheerful and manly exponent in Mr J. Carter. Mr Tom Roydan is an impressive Cara. The Colonel Vane of Mr Austin H. Longford is an excellent portrayal. Mr E. Carter Livesey as Billy Bright, Mr T. G. Vane as Hon. Bobby, and Miss Maudie Grayson as Pansy are all responsible for amusement. Lolo Vane is suitably sustained by Miss Lilian Rosebery. Miss Beatrice Western powerfully delineates Vashti.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The M'Naughtons are comedians of the first water; their diverting songs and patter evoke much applause. Alice Lloyd is a delightful comedienne; J. W. Rickaby is a popular comedian, and always receives a welcome here; Frank Sylvo contributes a funny juggling act; and a flattering reception is meted out to Marie Reeve, a charming comedienne and dancer. George Reeves, comedian, scores; and Hector, wire and hoop act; May Milburn, a neat dancer; and Vi Holmes, comedienne, all have their admirers.

ST. HELENS.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, F. Willmot, and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—The company here is headed by Mr Wilkie Bard, and it is needless to add that his popularity and abilities find favour with the audiences. Miss Nellie Stratton, comedienne, is well received; Mr Walter Purvis is a good descriptive vocalist; the Askarno Trio are exceedingly good acrobats, &c.; Petite and Juno, coloured comedians, give an amusing turn; the Penstones create a sensation with their mysteries; the Two Eltons maintain their popularity as knockabout comedians; and the Marblesque Trio give a very entertaining statuary act.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr J. Edward Whitty's company is paying a return visit here in The World's Desire. Mr J. Edward Whitty displays manliness and power in the dual-part of Robert and Henry Selkirk, and Mr Fitz-Hammond as the Hon. Ellis Tridley is excellent in every way. Mr Harry Belford's impersonation of Nathaniel Mutley is undoubtedly clever, and Mr Thomas Blakemore as Washington Dobbs fills his part with ability. Miss Ethel Van Praagh acts with sympathetic charm as Dora Mutley, and Miss Connie Meadows is highly pleasing as Helen Berkshaw.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Opera House and Winter Gardens Company, Limited; General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—After a vacation of three weeks the Opera House was opened this week with Polini and Melford's company, in The Silver King. Mr Lauderdale Maitland's conception of the part of Wilfred Denver is an exceedingly fine one, his acting being powerful and convincing. Miss Lilian Bethell as Nellie Denver captures the full sympathy of the audience; Edward J. George in his original character of Jaikes enjoys a very hearty reception; "the Spider," by W. V. Garrod, is a most realistic portraiture of that unscrupulous character; Mr Arthur Wright makes an excellent Father Christmas; and Mr Philip Renouf is smart as Harry Corkett. The business arrangements are under the guidance of Mr Alfred Martin.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Mr Frank Egerton continues to present programmes of a capital standard. This week Julie Mackay holds the premier position, and scores a gigantic success, being recalled time after time. The Three Donals contribute a marvellous athletic turn on the rings; Harry Carsdale, the mimic, is exceedingly smart; and Madame Roza, with her dog circus, gives a most enjoyable entertainment. Clyo and Rochelle are a smart pair, their acrobatic business being excellent; the Two Waffatangs are piccaninnies, who sing and dance well; Tom Carney is a comedian of merit, his dancing being good; and Cora Grey is a singer of good songs.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—For the week of the Royal visit the management here has secured the services of Messrs Pawle and Barker's company, which is giving some excellent performances of Liberty Hall. The company is a most efficient one, and the revival of Mr Carton's clever play has been much appreciated by the patrons of this house. Each character was capably filled, chief among them being Mr Lennox Pawle's clever portrayal of William Todman. Mr Loring Fernie played remarkably well as Mr Owen, the part fitting him like a glove. The same also may be said of Miss Janet Alexander as Blanche Chilworth, and the sister Amy was very nicely played by Miss Violet Thunder. Mr Frank Boyce is now the lessee of this theatre.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—Here we have Mr Edward Neville and his company, in the fourth week of his occupancy. He is drawing good houses with the well-known drama, Drink. Mr Neville took his benefit on Friday night, when he produced Trilby, appearing himself in the character of Svengali.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The programme here this week includes Larks on the Lake, an exceedingly novel production, which creates much amusement; the Haywards, in their original act, A Dress Rehearsal; the Phydoras, in their clever eccentric musical act; George Formby, comedian; Marguerite and Hanley, in their hand and wire display; Charles Morritt, illusionist; Three Sisters Sprightly, comediennes; George Newburn, mimic; the Hulines, in their curious musical comicalities; and Frank and Jen Latona, in their speciality, The Musical Slavey.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Harry Counsell.—Mr Oswald Cray and company are in occupation of the boards here with a sparkling comedy-drama, My Native Land. The piece was well received on Monday. Very popular were Mr Joe English as Solomon Moses and Mr J. W. Carlin as Mike Murphy. The eccentricities of these gentlemen were exceedingly mirth-provoking.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs F. Mouillot and Weldon Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Edgar Manaton.—After the cricket week theatricals, in which Mr Alan Mackinnon and a distinguished band of amateurs, including the Countess of Lathom, appeared in A Marriage of Convenience, the summer season proper at the theatre commenced on Monday with a week of grand opera, in which Mr F. S. Gilbert's company has had a very cordial reception. On Monday night Il Trovatore was given; Daughter of the Regiment on Tuesday; Maritana on Wednesday; and Faust on Thursday as a special programme night on the occasion of the Agricultural Show. Mr F. S. Gilbert has sung the leading rôles, and has been well supported by a strong company.

WALSALL.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr William H. Melrose's company, in the psychological drama, The Red Barn, is paying a visit here this week. Mr George Steel as Clement Carlton and Harvey Slingsby is exceedingly clever, Mr Ernest Regent does well as Augustus Chatterwell, Uriah Cuthbert is capably portrayed by Mr J. Lindsay, the part of Jerry Updike is well sustained by Mr Wm. H. Melrose, in the dual-rôle of Willie Merton and Sarah Jane Miss Lily Winter is excellent, and Miss Lizzie Moorley is comical as Betty.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—Notwithstanding the allurements of adjacent forest glades in this sultry weather, good houses continue to reward the directorate of the Palace in their spirited catering for the amusement-seeking public. Although not boasting any name of superlative attraction, a capital company appears this week. Proceedings are started by a good rendering of Benedict's overture to The Octoroon, to which the forces under the control of Mr H. Petersen do ample justice. Mr Will Musgrave is an excellent comedian. Miss Mignon Tremaine, no stranger to Walthamstow boards, dances as prettily as ever and sings acceptably. Dale and O'Malley are clever and amusing patterers. A much-applauded turn is supplied by Miss Belle Braham, whose singing, illustrated by pictorial representations of many favourite artistes, is keenly enjoyed. One of the most successful appearances of the evening is that of Mr Rex Fox, whose performance on the wire is as daring as it is graceful. His playing on the mandolin while balancing a lighted lamp on his right foot is extremely clever. Miss Dot Hardy is a sprightly little comedienne, whose picture of "slavey" is most amusing; the Miniature Hercules contributes a wonderful exhibition of finely developed muscle, besides doing wonders with heavy weights; Mr Alf Aubyn is a very good black dandy; the Driscoll and Beattie company play with much spirit an amusing sketch, Major M'Phee, M.P.; while a biographical reproduction of the recent great wrestling match between Hackenschmidt and Jenkins at the Albert Hall arouses enthusiasm.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Mr Kendal Chalmers' company, in Tom, Dick, and Harry, are here this week. Mr C. Wordley Hulse as General Rufus Stanhope scores a big success, and shows a clever study of the "victim to dyspepsia." Mr Phil Harper as Tom Harper also wins approval, and as the twins, Dick Winters and Harry Winters, Mr Ivan Gore and Mr Guy P. Ellis are both well placed. Mr Hewetson is seen to advantage as Ned Morland, a remark which also applies to Mr Theodore Jones as Dr. Wagner. Miss Nina Blake Adams acts charmingly as Daisy Armitage, and Miss Ada Mansfield makes a big hit as Mrs Winters. Isabel Howard has a faithful representative in Miss Madeline Grande, and Miss Mabel Verne as Molly Somers completes an excellent cast.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Martin Conway, one of the most popular comedians seen here for some time, is again drawing good houses this week, and scores well with a capital round of songs and original patter. Billy Richardson, the king of stump orators, is also well received, and Denby and Dent make a palpable hit in their sketch, The Singing Barber. Other capital turns include Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; Harlun Brothers, rifle manipulators; Lily Harrison, vocalist; and the Royal Bioscope.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux.—Kate Clinton (Mrs Edmund Tearle) and a well-balanced company are presenting Ingomar, Leah, and Jeanie Deans. In the name rôle of the last-mentioned play, Miss Clinton thoroughly enters into the realisation of the character, and carries with her the sympathies of the audience throughout the play. Miss Marie Campbell as Effie Deans is also deserving of unstinted praise for her delineation. Madge Wildfire has a capital representative in Miss Marion Esher. Good character acting is submitted by Mr H. W. Monti as the sorely tried David Deans, and by Mr T. W. Benson as the amorous Laird o' Dumbeldykes.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—The Brescian concert party and ladies' orchestra commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, and met with a good reception. Miss Domenica Martinengo sang with much expression "Alas! those chimes;" Miss Clare Buchanan was heard to advantage in "Molly, the Marchioness;" Miss Adelina Martinengo's violin solo, La Traviata, was well received, as was Miss Antonia Martinengo's singing of "Looking for a needle in a haystack;" Mr Fred Mills's songs and sketches were humorously given; and Mr Rudall Hayward sang exceptionally well "I fear no foe."

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—This week the Smart Set are proving exceptionally popular, and well do they deserve the applause bestowed upon them. Miss Georgie Martin's singing of "Sammy" is decidedly chic; Miss Margaret Long's rich voice finds plenty of scope in Malin's "Dear Heart;" Miss Ethel Wilford gains an encore for her recital "What is a gentleman?" Mr Frank Swinford's singing of "The Yeoman's Wedding" is excellent, as is also Mr Arthur Court's rendering of "Glad is the life of a sailor;" extremely droll is Mr Walter George in his humorous songs; and Mr Claude Russell's pianoforte solo, "Air de Ballet," deserves commendation.

WIGAN.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—Crowded houses have assembled to listen to the spicy song and dialogue of Maggie Duggan, the London star comedienne. Maggie's stage business and eccentricities generally carry the house by storm, and she is highly popular. The Clayton Twins and Harriet and Annie Wallace, in their original comedy sketches, are also accorded a great reception. Daisy Roy, coon artiste and sand dancer; the Two Neros, acrobats; Allen and Hart, duettists and dancers; and Thelma, lady clay modeller, are very entertaining. Gilbert Girard, animal and ventriloquial mimic; D. W. Watson, cornet soloist; Miss Fallowfield, serio and dancer; and Master Percy Hannan, boy baritone, are likewise capable artistes. The music, under the able direction of the new conductor of the orchestra, Mr S. Dawson, is a very acceptable feature of the programme.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Douglas C. Phelps; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—A novelty has been presented here this week in The London Fireman, produced by the Garside, Knowles, and Ludlow company. Mr Hodgson-Taylor, who appears as a cavalry officer in the prologue, and later in the title-rôle, has a fine presence and a manly style that admirably fit him for the two parts. As the fireman's wife Miss Mona Gray plays with grace and sympathy; Miss Violet Temple as the Countess Fleming proves herself an actress of distinction; Mr E. L. Garside gives a very realistic impersonation of a mad miser; and low comedy parts are cleverly taken by Miss Nellie Garside, Mr J. F. Knowles, and Mr Charles Mont.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Fred Storey and company are here this week in Rip Van Winkle. Mr Fred Storey in the title-role again presents an excellent impersonation. The Gretches of Miss L. Holmes is a graceful performance. Special praise is due to Master Reggie Thompson and Miss Dora Frazer for their respective parts. The remaining characters are capably placed. On Thursday Mr Frank Wilson's company appeared in The Marriage of Kitty.

YORK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—On Saturday night last one of the most brilliant audiences ever seen within the walls of this theatre assembled to give a hearty welcome to that accomplished actress, Madame Sarah Bernhardt. La Dame aux Camélias was the play produced, and criticism is unnecessary, as Madame Bernhardt's creation is so well known. It need only be recorded that her success amounted almost to a triumph. Mr Kennedy Miller's company opened on Monday to a well-filled house in The Shaughraun, a drama always popular here. Mr J. O'Brien in the title-part gave another of his inimitable impersonations, brimful of humour. Mr Frank Breen as Harvey Duff was also well to the fore. He is an actor of sterling merit. Mr D. Clark was in every way a success as Father Dolan. Miss Monica Kelly was lively and vivacious as Moya, and the remaining parts were in able hands.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—A company of more than average excellence is here this week, headed by Tom Davies's "Whirling the Whirl." His performance and that of Miss R. Davies and S. B. Nield are particularly clever. Bert Byrne is a clever comic, and Bennett and Martell, in their comedy act, are without doubt the top of the tree in their particular line. Musical Silvo gives an entertainment of the highest class, and is well received. Austin Boyd and Trixie Gilfain sing in first-rate style, and are an undoubted attraction. Miss Gordon, the Sisters Terry, and Fred Curran complete the bill.

ADVERTISERS and SUBSCRIBERS who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "THE ERA" sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

7,358. FEEDING SEAGULLS FROM A REFUSE HOPPER, WHITEHAVEN, CUMBERLAND.

A beautiful marine picture taken from a tug in a heavy sea towing a refuse hopper out into deep water to discharge her cargo, followed by myriads of seagulls, who are hovering over the boat and making dives at the refuse.

Apart from the interest attached to the birds, a very fine sea picture is shown of the hopper diving heavily into the waves as she is towed along.

50ft. Price, £1 1s.

7,359. THE KIDDIES AND THE BLACK DIAMONDS.

A most amusing study of two children amusing themselves with the contents of a coal-scuttle. The expressions of the little children's faces is most interesting, and their condition at the finish, hen they have carefully inspected the coal, is most ludicrous.

125ft. Price, £2 12s. 6d.

7,360. FERRYING A COACH-AND-FOUR ACROSS LAKE WINDERMERE.

A very pretty scene of excellent photographic quality, taking in the most picturesque country in England.

185. A RAID ON A COINER'S DEN.

DESCRIPTION.—Scene one:—Interior of the Den—The Counterfeiters at Work—Swell of the gang arrives after a trip, bringing back the real goblins. Scene two:—Exterior—Another member of the gang arrives, gives the sign, three claps of the hand, and the door is opened by an old hag. A detective who has been in hiding approaches; he has discovered the secret sign. Hearing footsteps approaching he again retires, and the various members of the gang file out of the house. The door is then closed by the hag. When the coiners are out of sight the detective returns, gives the sign, and is admitted by the old woman. He searches her when he arrives in the den, and, as a part of his plan, he disguises himself in her shawl and bonnet, and awaits the return of the gang. They soon arrive and are admitted. The "bully" of the gang is very much perturbed when he discovers that they have been tricked, and makes promises of "King's Evidence" and "all that sort of thing;" while the swell, who is covered by the detective's revolver, in a moment of hesitation on the latter's part seizes the revolver from his hand, and the others then fall on the unfortunate detective, who is bound and gagged, and after the spurious notes have been burned, and the coin stowed away, the gang make their escape. A chase ensues, in which the whole of the gang are caught, being run to earth in a thicket whilst making a desperate bid for freedom. Meanwhile the detective has been released, and the picture closes with the coiners being LED INTO PRISON. Full of thrilling incidents. Length 460ft. Price, £11 10s.

1,650. GARROTTING OF A MOTOR CAR.

SCENE 1: A COUNTRY LANE.—Two tramps are seen making their nefarious preparations for an attack on a motor, by means of the "garrotting" method. The rope being fixed across the road at a height which they think will "hold" the occupants of the car to the best advantage, the tramps sit down to a frugal meal. A motor-horn is soon heard, and the tramps, after placing the rope in position, conceal themselves. The car, which has three occupants, rapidly approaches. On reaching the rope the occupants of the front seat, a lady and the chauffeur, steer clear, but the lady's husband, on the back seat, is "caught," and hurled violently into the roadway. The car is stopped, and the lady and chauffeur come to the rescue of the injured man. They are assailed violently by the ruffians, but, owing in no small measure to the pluck of the lady, they get the worst of it—one being felled to the ground and the other bound to a tree with the rope which was intended for his victims. The chauffeur rides off for the police. When they arrive on the scene the ruffians are handcuffed after a desperate struggle, and when the injured man has been tenderly handed into the car the party drive off, the handcuffed ruffians being obliged to make the best of the journey on foot, being held by the policeman and literally dragged after the car when they get up speed. Length 290ft. Price £7 5s.

Haymaking is one of the country industries which has always appealed to artists on account of the many picturesque and beautiful scenes which it presents. In this photograph all the various phases are beautifully shown, from the cutting of the grass until the hay is piled high on the stack. Length, 200ft. Price, £4 3s. 4d.

635. THE PRESS (Illustrated).
This is a film of an altogether new description, presenting, as it does, an illustration or a parody of the titles of a number of well-known periodicals. It opens with a photograph of the title-page of the magazine called "Our Dogs," which dissolves into three beautiful tableaux of some fine pedigree animals. These life-size animated portraits of prize dogs are very beautiful examples of Cinématography, and are received with great enthusiasm. Next we see the cover of "The Lady" newspaper, which folds back, and on the title-page is a portrait of a typical lady of fashion. This dissolves into a very dirty servant girl, who makes grimaces at the camera in a very unladylike manner. "The People" is the next newspaper to be treated, and its front page gives way, by a change quite new to animated photography, to a marvellous photograph of a swaying, surging crowd. Next comes "Pick-Me-Up," whose title is punningly illustrated by a rascally policeman "picking up" a drunken swell who has fallen to the ground after mistaking a lamp post for a friendly acquaintance. The policeman also picks up the gentleman's watch and forgets to return it to him. In the following tableau "Home Chat" is wittily parodied by an old married couple, whose married life would appear to be not one of unalloyed bliss. The title-page of "The Rapid Review" is folded back to show a march past of soldiers, whose review is rapid with a vengeance, for, by a trick of Cinématography, the quick march of the men is quicker than any regiment has ever attempted before or since. The front page of "Answers" dissolves away to reveal a mistress reprimanding a maid. The latter answers back in a way which is evidently extremely tantalising to the former, who loses her temper and falls upon the erring servant, and a lively hair-pulling contest brings that scene to a close. The "Sunday Companion" is read in a sense which its proprietors did not intend. On the Sunday in question, the companion is a young man, his companion a lady, and the companionship is evidently pleasing to both. But a third companion, in the shape of a small boy, lurks beneath the sofa. The discovery leads to upheavals in the companionship. Lastly, the front page of "The King" newspaper folds back to reveal a beautiful and hitherto unpublished portrait of his most gracious Majesty. Length, 200ft. Price, £4 3s. 4d.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.

"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?"

"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."

"Do you know him?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."

"Ah! and how old shou'd you take me to be?"

"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."

Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.

"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR THE ERA.)

THE BEDFORD.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a plan, submitted by Mr B. Crewe, with regard to the Bedford Music Hall, Camden-town, showing the proposed separation from the auditorium by means of a mahogany partition of the large bar on the o.p. side of the auditorium, and the provision of a new lounge and an additional exit from the stalls. They recommended "That Mr B. Crewe be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, dated July 14, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the proposed alterations at the Bedford Music Hall, provided the following conditions be complied with—(1) That all recesses be defended to the satisfaction of the Council. (2) That the proposed door in the partition and that from the new lounge be made to close with the stream of traffic." The recommendation was adopted.

THE HAYMARKET.

The Council on May 17, 1904, approved drawings showing the proposed method of giving effect to certain of the Council's suggestions for the improvement of the Haymarket Theatre. Amended drawings have been submitted by Mr C. S. Peach, showing certain modifications which it was desired to make in the arrangements approved. The committee recommended "That Mr C. S. Peach be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the five plans, dated July 16, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the proposed alterations at the Haymarket Theatre, provided the following conditions be complied with: —(1) That revolving iron shutters be not provided to the front exits. (2) That the new woodwork shown in the ceiling of the auditorium in connection with the decorations be made of non-inflammable wood, and that the old woodwork be removed wherever possible. (3) That all the suggestions made for the improvement of the theatre on April 29, 1903, which are not shown to be dealt with on the plans above submitted, be complied with in every respect, or, if they have been subsequently modified by the Council, as so modified. (4) That handrails be provided to the steps outside the exit doors to the Haymarket. (5) That no wood other than oak be used in the construction of the new floor and risers of the gallery tier. (6) That guard rails be provided to the resters to the satisfaction of the Council. (7) That all doors leading from tiers or exit-ways to parts of the theatre other than exit-ways be made to match in colour and decoration with the walls in which they occur. (8) That fire appliances be provided to the satisfaction of the Council. (9) That provision be made for recessing all check boxes. (10) That the words 'safety curtain' be displayed on the fire-resisting curtain in sufficiently large letters to enable them to be read from all parts of the auditorium. (11) That all scenery, wings, sky-borders, cloths, draperies, gauze-cloths, floral decorations, properties, hangings, curtains, &c., whether on the stage, in the auditorium, or in other parts of the premises, be rendered and maintained non-inflammable." Agreed to.

THE PARAGON.

The committee had considered plans submitted by Mr A. Parnacott, showing how it is proposed to give effect to certain of the Council's suggestions for the improvement of the Paragon Music Hall, Mile-end-road. They recommended "That Mr Parnacott be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the three plans, dated July 13, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the proposed alterations at the Paragon Music Hall, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the projections between the new staircases from the balcony (both internal and external) and Eagle-place be suitably defended; that the projecting pier be removed; and that suitable doors, made to open outwards and fitted with automatic fastenings, be provided leading into Eagle-place. (2) That an exit be provided from the boxes on the o.p. side of the balcony to the gangway. (3) That the enclosure to the conservatory be removed, so as to make all the openings to the crush-room available, and that the corner of the crush-room now occupied by the conservatory be filled in with a splayed enclosure. (4) That the openings in the wall between the corridor to the stalls and the passages adjoining the offices be fitted with fire-resisting doors." Approved.

THE COURT.

The committee had considered plans submitted by Mr C. E. L. Parkinson, showing certain additions proposed to be made to the Royal Court Theatre, Sloane-square. They recommended "That Mr C. E. L. Parkinson be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the five plans, dated July 15, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the proposed additions to the Royal Court Theatre, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That an alternative means of escape be provided from the dressing-rooms. (2) That a fire-resisting scene be provided to the opening to the scene store. (3) That the roof of the rehearsal room, &c., and the floors and the roof of the new dressing-rooms be constructed in fire-resisting materials to the satisfaction of the Council. (4) That the arrangements of the rehearsal room, &c., as shown upon the plans dated May 26, 1904, be adhered to." Carried.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.

The committee recommended "That the application of Mr Frederick William Salisbury-Jones, for the transfer to himself of the licence for music and dancing with regard to the St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, be granted; that the transfer be endorsed on the licence, and that the seal of the Council be affixed to such endorsement." The committee also recommended "That the application of Mr Archibald Alfred Beale, for the transfer to himself of the licence for music and dancing in respect of the Athenæum, Islington, be granted." Both recommendations were agreed to.

DRURY-LANE THEATRE.

Mr Greenwood, the vice-chairman of the committee, in reply to Mr Granville Smith as to the arbitration on the requirements of the Council in relation to the condition of Drury-lane Theatre, said he was in a position to state that, out of the 143 requirements contained in the notice, ninety-two were agreed to by the theatre proprietors without discussion, and they had since agreed to comply with the important requirements as to the reconstruction of the upper tiers, the reconstruction of the stage in fire-resisting materials, the provision of two new staircases from the gallery, and two from the dressing-rooms, and the reconstruction of the flies in fire-resisting materials. He had reason to believe that the whole of the requirements of the Council would be carried out in time for the preparation of the usual Christmas pantomime.

The Council, after sitting for nearly six hours, adjourned for the summer recess until Oct. 4.

AT the conclusion of the midsummer term at the Royal College of Music, on Wednesday, the following awards were made by the director and board of professors:—Council exhibitions.—Piano—Grace De Rozario, £10; William B. Haslam, £5: Joan L. Powell, £15. Singing—Dorothy Court, £8. Violin—Florence M. Jennings, £10: Oonah R. Summer, £12. Organ—Joseph H. Bannister, £5. The London Musical Society's prize for singing was awarded to B. Merlin Davies (scholar); Messrs W. E. Hill and Son's violin prize to Frederick C. Grey (scholar); and the Savage Club exhibition to Ivy M. Hemsley for singing.

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—The stirring drama entitled The Hue and Cry is presented this week by the Arthurian company. Mr Royston plays most effectively as Eustace Lee, Mr Poole is successful as the hero, and Mr J. T. Macmillan's broad humour meets with the usual enthusiastic approval. Another excellent presentation is given by Mr Alick Macmillan, and the work of Messrs Powell and Percy also stands out favourably, while Mr Wheatman causes much amusement by his portraiture of an acrimonious dame. Miss Tremayne as the virtuous and Miss Holmes as the dubious representative of her sex act admirably, and a graceful and clever account of her part is given by Miss Kitty Ross. A boy's part is very ably played by Miss Amy Dalby, and some clever work is put into a minor rôle by Miss Adelaide Ross.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Ernest Sheldon.—Dr. Walford Bodie's wonderful performance attracts as big crowds as last week, and his various turns are followed with the keenest interest. Miss Marie Walford plays the piano accompaniments during his clever ventriloquial interlude. Among the accomplished artists by whom the Doctor is supported are Little Dolly Robson, vocalist; La Petite Bella, comedienne; Mr Hyram Long, comedian; Miss Helen Henri, ballad vocalist; Mr Norman Mills, actor-vocalist; Garden Troupe of Dancers; the De Roys, comic duettists; and the Sisters Lyle, vocalists and dancers.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—A powerful drama of a sensational description is The Executioner's Daughter, which is being finely staged and mounted, and excellently acted here by Messrs Fred Little and Fred Darcy's company. The members of this capable company, as follows, deserve praise for their successful efforts:—Messrs E. M. Hamilton, Geo. Beverley, Wilson Howard, W. H. Sharpe, E. W. Avery, Sinclair Holden, James Young, Arthur Lloyd, Misses Dorothy Riddell, May Rosine, Carlotta Anson, and Beattie Moore. The Execution scene is particularly effective amongst the many fine sets.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Local playgoers have had a previous acquaintance with the stirring drama, The World's Desire, which is being reproduced here this week. Like most of the pieces of Barry Williams, it is full of dramatic surprises and tragic incidents. The scoundrelism of Tridley as portrayed by Mr Hartwell J. Kirby is of a very pronounced and callous type. Mr Harry Belford as Mutley imparts both dramatic intensity and humour to his impersonation, and his frequent "refreshers" create much amusement.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot. —The juggler, Troba, is here as one of the star artists for the week, along with the Three Dagmars, acrobats and equilibrists. Both performances are really marvellous. Other artists who appear are Walter Purvis, descriptive vocalist; Ottawa Trio, musical cowboys, in their unique and novel musical scene, After the Hunt; the Warlocks, burlesque boxers; and Billy Richardson, Negro stump orator. The series of moving pictures projected by the Hippodrome Bioscope brings the programme to a close.

BARNSLEY.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr G. E. Hoey.—The programme here is attractive this week. Mr Jasper Redfern shows some clever pictures; Craig, Rose, and Craig keep up their reputation as dental athletes; Harland and Rollinson submit a smart musical show; Ray and Miles are curious but entertaining; Cissie Astbury is an up-to-date comedienne; Zelda is excellent as an instrumentalist; and Wal Owen and Charlton Howarth make up a good bill.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Mr Henry Mayhew and Mr Charles Herrick's company in The Triumph of Truth is here. Mr Edward E. Louis is capital as Capt. Jack Eversleigh, as is also Mr R. Arlington as Sir Charles Eversleigh. Mr Charles Herrick presents a finely acted Vitto Mascagni, and Tommy Woodenhead is humorously played by Mr John Clegg. Miss Rosabel Dodd is clever as Blanche De Croix, Miss Lily Rogers is a good Katie Bright, and Miss Marie Auckland a great success in the dual rôle of Violet and Lillian Austruther.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—Texas Hattie tops the bill here this week, and gives a really remarkable performance on the tight wire. Gintaro, the Japanese juggler, is a capital turn, and his top-spinning exceptionally good. Ryan and Hall are smart acrobats, and their turn is exceedingly humorous. Ewly and Egar are quite at home on the tight wire, their tricks being very clean and clever. Percy Hannan, the boy baritone, quite pleases the audience with his exceptional power and tone, and Harry Martell is a particularly smart dancer and comedian.

BELFAST.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden.—The leading attraction here is the humorous sketch, A Matrimonial Substitute, presented with great success by Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes, the clever Americans. Messrs Hill, Barry, and Lang are responsible for a capital entertainment entitled A Hot Reception, which has created much merriment. Senorita Eleonora is a charming gymnast, her feats being decidedly smart and gracefully executed. The Jetneys, coloured comedians, command success with their songs and dances, and Miss Alma Obrey, a dashing comedienne, has been accorded a good reception. Messrs Selby and Myers are a smart duo, and the beautiful Vanda appears in her sensational act on the rolling globe. Also here are Bob Baxter, comedian; the Cavgassi Duo, who play a number of musical instruments very skilfully; and the Palace Pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—Mark Melford and company head the bill and present with much success their exceedingly funny sketch, Non-Suited, which is responsible for uncontrollable merriment. Messrs Foreman and Fannan, very droll comedians, made a tremendous hit on Monday, their patter having the merit of being not only funny but up to date. Miss Dolly Harmer upholds her reputation as a first-class comedienne, and with good songs wins success. Mr and Mrs Finden appear in their attractive duologue, A Desperate Remedy; Miss Lilian Doreen sings with much taste and expression; Mr Edwin Barwick quickly makes himself a favourite; and also appearing here are Dion Wade, a quaint comedian, and Mr Tom L. May, musical grotesque.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—Morcaschani heads the bill, and has been accorded ovations nightly for her rendering of coon songs. Mr Cyrus Dare's mimicry is most realistic; Stanley and Greenop play the banjo to perfection; Miss Cora Magda is a gymnast of rare ability; Mr Jack M'Cormick is a funny comedian; and a hit has been made by Burley and Burley with their mirth-provoking comedy. Miss Lilian Morgan is an accomplished comedienne, and others on the bill are Wilfrid, the flexible marvel, and Weisker Brothers' Bioscope, the views exhibited being remarkably realistic.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Messrs Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is appearing here in The Two Hussars, a play favourably known in this town. Mr Webb as Paul Villiers and Mr Benge as Harry Alford both acquit themselves with distinction, and Mr James Smart is a good Colonel Manners. Miss Sadie Smith is an unexceptionable Ellen Maythorne, and Miss Lallah Price renders good service as Molly Cutts.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—The popular Arthur Saxon Trio of strong men form a leading feature here. Walter Bellonini, in his clever juggling entertainment, is well received, and other prominent turns are those of the Four Burgatiles, musical pantomimists; Lily Lever, balladist; Happy Attwood, eccentric comedian; the Waldrons, duettists and dancers; the Three Gregsons, in an amusing sketch; Johnson and Bert, in A Queer Customer; and the Alskarno Trio of Risley performers. An interesting display by the Bioscope is also popular.

BIRMINGHAM.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—A Woman Adrift has received the utmost support and sympathy during the past week, while the marvellous incidents portrayed therein by Mr Sanderson Moffat's company have held the audience spellbound. Every character is a study, and Miss Phyllis Hamilton as Cora Leigh, Miss Phyllis Graham as Rupert Ingleby, Mr William Clayton as Sir John, Mr Charles Wilson as Jibbs, and Miss Violet Keand as Stella have acquitted themselves well. Mr Sanderson Moffat essays the double rôle of Ferdinand and Don Leo Castro with eminent success, and Messrs Robb Harvey and Watson Hume, assisted by Miss Maud Merrick, do well in comedy parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—A Tempter of Women is reported in another column.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—Tom Costello is appearing here in a new descriptive song scena "Mad Willie; or, Ding-Dong Bell," which is well received. In expert trick cycling the Kaufmann lady cyclists excel. Hooked by Crook is a smart sketch well played by Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler; the Northern Troupe of International Dancers are good; Georgina Leonard has a powerful voice, which she uses with effect; and among other entertainers are the Sisters Lunelle, the New Macs, comedians; Hamilton Hill, baritone; the Hoopers, eccentric jugglers; and the Dorrells, duettists and dancers.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—The programme submitted this week is attracting large audiences. Alexandre and Hughes are repeatedly encored; Harry Pleon, never fails to attract; Starr and Leslie present a clever display of club manipulation; and George French's acrobatic cyclists are exceedingly smart. Les Laurens' statuary act; Mill May, comedienne; Dolly Moore, male impersonator; Payne's Little Vagabonds; the Sisters Desmond, duettists and dancers; and the Snow Family, grotesque skaters, add to the success of the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—At the head of affairs here we have Joe Elvin with his amusing sketch The Bookie. His funny antics cause roars of laughter. J. H. Hawtrey renders his songs with effect, as also does Mdlle. De Rose, who has an excellent voice. The Creo Bros, in their acrobatic comedy sketch, are amusing; Harry Allister, the well-known character impersonator, is loudly applauded; Charles Hera does some smart juggling; and Paulton and Dooley, trick cyclists; Lilly Flexmore, comedienne; and Mudge and Morton, in their musical speciality, are entertaining.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Geo. Foster.—A feature of the programme this week is a series of animated pictures of the Royal Visit to Rhayader. The quaint humour and eccentricities of R. G. Knowles are accorded a hearty reception; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, in their sketch, Fun in a Railway Station, are entertaining; Jumas' Octoroons are a troupe of miniature minstrels with good voices; and the New York Quartet are well encored. Maud Kendall, comedienne; Fred Dunstone, Alf Holt, Professor Earle, and the Petras, in a comedy juggling act, also appear.

BLACKPOOL.

HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Mrs Patrick Campbell is paying another visit here this week, and there is nothing new to be said concerning her admirable interpretation of the title-rôle in The Second Mrs Tanqueray. Mr Dawson Milward repeats his clever portrayal of Aubrey Tanqueray, and Mr Granville Barker is seen to advantage as Cayley Drummle. Mr George Bealby creditably sustains the part of Sir George Orreyed, and Mr Quinton M'Pherson distinguishes himself as Frank Misquith. Mr Charles Bryant as Captain Ardale and Mr George Ingleton as Gordon Jane, M.D., also give every satisfaction. Miss Ada Webster plays Ellean with considerable cleverness, and Miss Leila Repton is good as Mrs Cortelyon.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Amorelle, played by Mr C. P. Levilly's company, is proving immensely popular here this week. Mr Eric Thorne's assumption of Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow, the colossal humbug, is extremely clever, and evokes the wildest merriment at every performance. Miss Stella Gastelle deserves all praise for her rendering of Amorelle, whilst Miss Kitty Cavendish as Lesbia and Miss Madge Avery as Marina merit commendation. Messrs Robert Fairbanks, George Paulton, and Phil Carlton are also of material assistance.

THE Hippodrome, Palace, Winter Gardens, and Tower still continue to attract large crowds of holiday-makers.

BOLTON.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—Messrs G. and R. Finch-Hatton and company are this week presenting the detective comedy drama From Scotland Yard. It is very well staged, and a capable company is engaged. In addition to the drama, there appears George Lurich, wrestler, who goes through a remarkable performance of weight-lifting, wrestling, &c.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Charley's Aunt again occupies the boards this week. Mr Edwin H. Fitzgerald and Miss Marie Grogan; Miss Mary Morison ably fills the part of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and Miss Mary Mallalieu is graceful as Ela Delahay. A Barmecide Feast precedes.

BRIDLINGTON.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The 'cello solos of Herr La Grilliere are a great feature at Herr Winternitz's promenade concerts. This week's vocalist is Mr Barry Lindon.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr Henry Hague.—Mr Surrie Lindon and his London pierrot team are giving capital entertainments twice daily. The largely augmented orchestra renders popular programmes, Mr. Frederic Hall's charming harp solos still being a great feature. Miss Margaret Cooper, soprano, who is such a great favourite at the Spa, is the vocalist for the week.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—Mr Arthur Roberts is paying a short visit to this theatre, appearing in the laughable travesty The Darling of the Guards, an original duologue Packing Up, and an amusing pot-pourri entitled Where's the Count?

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr William Morgan.—The Princess Orchestra and concert party commenced a season's engagement here on Monday, under the direction of Miss Kate Kildare, and give concerts twice daily. The variety turns include Charles Ulrick, in a wonderful and unique barrel manipulation, and he well deserves his title of "the barrel king." Zenora and Foden are smart head and hand balancers and acrobats; and the singing of Miss Nellie Royd, a double-voiced vocalist, is well done. Copeland and Son, champion double-dancers, give a clever turn, and the comic performance of the Venola Brothers on the flying rings keeps the house in roars of laughter.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton.—These popular entertainers, the Waterloos, continue to give three shows a day to large audiences, who enjoy the many good items.

BRADFORD.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Mr Edward Marris presented, for the first time here on Monday evening, his new drama, At Midnight Chimes. There is striking originality in the very dramatic situations with which the piece abounds, and the staging is excellent. The representation was keenly appreciated by the large audience assembled, and Mr Witty Wattie Walton, an old favourite here, met with a hearty reception at their hands in his impersonation of Tat Spavvin, a railway porter, who is always turning up at the right time to help the oppressed, and with the assistance of Miss Annie Megson, who plays Suzette, a French maid, very brightly, he brings out the comic relief in the drama very strongly. Mr Melville Bickford handles the repulsive character of Luke Dezzard, a villain of the blackest dye, very cleverly, and Mr Henry Beaufort is awarded the compassionate sympathy of the audience as his dupe Ezra Gamble. Another tool in his hands, viz, Zamora, a Hindu girl, is dramatically represented by Miss Ethel M. Ward. Mr F. E. Petley is earnest in his acting as the persecuted Dave Stannard, and Miss Gertrude Price wins sympathy as Dave's wife Mary. As the child Little Davey Miss Minnie Ethel displays much intelligence, and the other characters in the stirring drama are in the hands of able exponents.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr P. A. Lennon.—The striking and dramatic sketch in five well-acted scenes, The Fighting Parson, is the strong attraction here this week, and Mr George Gray and company, assisted by a crowd of "supers," give a realistic performance, in which the "muscular Christian" is applauded to the echo. Another feature of the excellent programme is the clever musical sketch, The Itinerant, given by the talented Norman Leonard Trio, and for the second week Victoria Monks is delighting audiences with her coon ditties, sung in convincing style. Humour is plentifully supplied by the very funny C. F. Best and by Frank Sylvo, the quaint juggler. Gus Garrick's caricatures and imitations elicit hearty laughter, and Edith Courtney, ballad vocalist, and Jessie Burnett, comedienne, contribute turns which add interest to the evening's entertainment.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—An eccentric burlesque and Protean artistes the Adonis Trio have scored a genuine success here this week, and Celina Bobe, a clever violinist, is also winning great and well-deserved appreciation. Cameron affords great enjoyment with a spectacular magic act cleverly executed. The Brewsters as sword and lance experts, vocalists, and dancers have made a successful first appearance, and another debutant here is the clever juggler and musical equilibrist Ernesto. The dancing and vocalism by the Sisters Hula form welcome additions to the capital programme, to which Gus Barra contributes an amusing parody on "Motoring," and Cordite adds interest with her Australian illustrations of wonderful lasso manipulating and rope-spinning.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—This popular house, renovated and redecorated, was reopened on Monday, when Mr C. St. John Denton's company appeared in the musical comedy Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver made a charming and winsome Kitty Grey; Miss Elly Helene gave a graceful impersonation of Lady Binfield; Miss Emily Stevens was admirably suited as Mrs Bright; Mr Robert Whyte, jun., afforded much amusement as the King of Illyria; Mr Robert Selby was highly effective as Sir John Binfield; and unstinted praise must be given to Mr Leslie Harris for his clever portrayal of Lord Plantagenet. Excellent support was given by Mr Edmund Russell, Mr L. Lisle, Mr Clarence Lindon, Mr A. Bishope, Mr Leslie Stuart, and Mr G. Martinengo. The choruses were well sung.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—Miss Florence Donovan, a charming vocalist, and Mr C. Lebert, Continental conjuror, chapeaugraphist, and hand shadow entertainer, are specially engaged here this week. The Aquarium orchestra, under the direction of Mr J. W. Slatter, performs popular selections.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Mr Charles Frohman's company opened here on Monday with Sherlock Holmes. Mr H. A. Saintsbury gave a masterly portrayal of the title character, and evoked enthusiasm by his finished acting. Mr Laurence Leyton submitted a sterling impersonation of Dr. Watson; Mr W. F. Sterling presented a very clever character study as Professor Moriarty; Mr Leslie Carter was effective as James Larrabee; Miss Maude Linden made an excellent Madge Larrabee; and Miss Vera Longden imparted great charm to her impersonation of Alice Faulkner. NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby.—Messrs Addison, Bright, and Walter Maxwell's company in Quality Street has been playing to good houses for the first three nights of this week. The visit has been popular and deservedly so, for the company is one of all-round excellence. Mr George A. Brandram appears with marked success in the part of Captain Valentine Brown. He is a sound elocutionist, and has a fine stage presence. In the part of Ensign Blades, Mr A. C. F. Lysons did capitally, and Mr Herbert Chown did what little was required of him as Lieutenant Spicer with evident ability. Mr Dan Dyer thoroughly entered into the small character of the Recruiting Sergeant. A decidedly clever and consistent piece of acting was Miss Grace Edwin's Miss Susan Throssell, and the characters of Miss Willoughby, Miss Fanny Willoughby, Miss Henrietta Turnbull, and Miss Charlotte Parratt were most capably played by Misses Isabel Merson, Marie Dennett, Frances Leslie, and Lilian Rogers. We cannot praise too highly Miss Florence Jackson's delightful acting in the leading part, Miss Phœbe Throssel. Every changing mood of this old world character was so very naturally done. MR FREDERICK BUXTON'S PIERROTS AND VILLAGE continue their successful career.

MR GEORGE BURTON'S PIERROTS, on the band-stand morning and afternoon, have occasioned large crowds to assemble. The entertainment is most popular with Douglas visitors, possibly because Mr George Burton, a graceful composer, a poetic lyric writer, and an enterprising entrepreneur, is always planning and inventing fresh surprises for his patrons.

MR CHARLES DARE'S MINSTRELS, like unto good wine, need no bush. They are with their clever show part and parcel of Douglas Head, and if thousands climb that steep ascent twice daily the beauties of nature are not the only attraction.

Barrasford and Will Sley, of the Grand. Besides Nelson's Newsboys Quintet, Horace Wheatley, comedian; the Eight English Roses, vocalists and dancers; the Daunton Shaw Troupe of cyclists; Mdlle. All concerned gave their services free, and the public attended in large numbers to mark their interest in the cause.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Fred Moule's entertaining drama, Bigamy, is seen once more in Manchester this week, the patrons of the Osborne being well pleased by the interest and excitement furnished by the story and its exposition by Mr Morton Powell's capable company. Mr Chas. Burdon and Miss Elsie Capell are in the heroic parts, Miss Mabel Wynn supplying the evil element with extraordinary ability and effect. Much good fun is interwoven, the bulk of it being contributed by Mr Francis Searle and Miss Lydia Mannington.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A strong attraction heads the bill here this week in the shape of Fred Karno's comedians, in Jail Birds and Early Birds, played alternately each evening. Also well to the fore are Hurman, juggler and manipulator; the Brothers Hayes, Australian comedians and dancers; York, Mac, and York, in a comedy act; the Lynchs, in a shooting speciality; and Wetherby and Ellis, refined vocalists. Other good turns are Len Lever, coon vocalist; Mike Johnson and company, in a comic sketch; Baroux and Bion, in a speciality act; and R. C. Note, swell comedian. The animated pictures complete the bill.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE. — Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Something of a novelty is seen here this week in the shape of a musical comedy entitled A Chinese Idyl, written by Fred Danvers, and produced and directed by Mr J. Gar Kiddie. Music specially composed accompanies the piece, which is dressed and staged in pleasing and effective style. The company also carries its own scenery, and is further strengthened by a full chorus and augmented orchestra. Altogether, it is well equipped for success, and pleased a good audience on the opening night. Mr Fred Danvers and Mr Dawson Dewick are seen to great advantage in comedy parts, and other important rôles are well filled by Mr F. H. Dundas, Miss Mabel Mainwaring, Miss Marie Rainbird, and Miss Emmie Milstead. The Henriques, "Chinese" acrobats, appear by way of speciality.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Fred Karno's comedians, in His Majesty's Guests, are paying a return visit here, and full houses are the rule. Mr Harry Roxbury is as funny as ever as Sergeant Lightning, and other principal parts are sustained by Miss Jessamine Newcombe, Miss Edith Ager, and Messrs Frank Morton, E. De Vere, and L. Sterling. Praise should also be accorded the Empire Quintet of part-singers. Other items are contributed by Lanton and Lane, comedians and speciality artists, who have some good patter; Kitty Gower, a pleasing lightning change character dancer; and G. W. Hastings, comedy vocalist. A series of animated pictures complete the bill.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Prominent turns here this week are Hicks's Clerks, exceptionally good vocalists and dancers, and the Steens, American mystifiers, who give a remarkably clever exhibition of thought-reading. Good turns also are the Gladenbecks, whose acrobatic performance is received with great favour, and the tableaux presented by Alice Lorette and her well-trained statue dog Ben. Much interest is also being taken in a grand cake-walk for the championship of Lancashire, instituted by the management, and prizes to the value of £20 are being offered.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—The star turns here this week are Miss May Yohe, the well-known comic opera comedienne, who sings several pretty sentimental coon songs in an effective manner, and Harry Ford, the popular eccentric comedian, who scores all along the line, and meets with a hearty welcome. Successful also are Frank Lynne, comedian, and Horace Wheatley, Irish comedian, with a capital dance. Viviana is a charming and graceful dancer; Howard and Collinson create considerable amusement in their absurdity The Porter and the Parcel, a turn much above the average; and Harrigan and Holt are good dancers and patter comedians. The Brothers Onda give a clever and laughable bar act; the Westwoods are expert trick cyclists; Howard and St. Clair are first-rate American comedy artistes; and Will Onda and company in A Quiet Night are decidedly funny. An excellent selection by the orchestra and a series of up-to-date pictures complete a most enjoyable programme.

ARDWICK GREEN EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Remaining from last week is the highly diverting Saturday to Monday sketch, so effectively played by Fred Karno's comedians. Besides this big turn, Manning's Entertainers appear in a lively sketch, entitled A Hotel Boots, and roars of laughter follow each well-conceived point. The Andos Happy Little Japs go through a highly finished acrobatic, juggling, and rope walking performance. The Glenroy Troupe of characteristic dancers are deservedly well applauded for their excellent dancing. Billy Farrell, a capital Creole comedian, has some funny business, Madge May sings and dances nicely, and very amusing are the Densmores in a comic juggling pantomime. Little Ganty, a concentrated chip of comedy, is full of fun, and makes a big hit. Chris Richards, the grotesque Canadian, is a first-rate comedian, and a most amusing contortionist, and Harry Bedford, comedian, adds to his songs an eccentric dance.

BRIGHTON THEATRE ROYAL.

The Brighton Theatre Royal, after being closed for five weeks, was reopened on Monday. During the recess the popular house has been completely renovated and redecorated under the direction of the architects, Messrs Clayton and Black. The new painted ceiling and frieze, with Shakespearian scenes and figures by Conrad, present a beautiful and striking appearance. The ceiling illustrates the four seasons in allegorical figures, and is a superb specimen of the artist's skill. The frieze is admirably painted, and depicts scenes from A Midsummer Night's Dream and As You Like It; the front of the dress-circle depicts scenes from Timon of Athens, Love's Labour Lost, and The Merry Wives of Windsor; the fronts of the upper boxes are painted with subjects from Winkelmann and other famous sculptors; and the fronts of the private boxes with Cupids. The handsome new drop-scene, presenting a charming and picturesque view of Warwick Castle, is the admirable work of Mr Tom Pilbeam, the resident scenic artist. The new decorations of the auditorium are by Messrs Dean and Son, of London and Birmingham, who have also reupholstered the house with Rose Du Barri plush, and have recovered the floors with new Wilton carpets of harmonious shades. The general repainting and other decorations have been in the local hands of Mr Burtenshaw and Messrs Brown and Sons, and the heating appliances were entrusted to Messrs Phillips and Sons. The entire work has cost between £1,500 and £2,000; every portion of the house, exterior and interior, has received attention, and the theatre now bears favourable comparison, as regards beauty and comfort, with any place of entertainment in the country. The popular lessee and manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl, may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon the thoroughly artistic transformation effected during the recess.

ARTHURIAN COMPANY OF PLAYERS.

This evening at Aberdeen will terminate the third stock season organised for Her Majesty's Theatres at Dundee and Aberdeen by Mr Robert Arthur, and actively supervised by Mr Eade Montefiore, Mr Arthur's general manager for those theatres. Over forty players have been engaged to appear in The Derby Winner, Cheer, Boys, Cheer, Youth, A Million of Money, The World, Freedom, and The Boom of Big Ben. The two companies have done remarkably well. The heavy strain of producing a Drury-lane drama, with its elaborate mise-en-scène, has been well borne by the various departments. Over two hundred costumes and uniforms were hired for the twelve weeks' season; and all the scenery for each production was specially painted. Mr Robert Arthur has the gratitude of local playgoers for the all-round excellence of these summer seasons; and the fourth season of "The Arthurians" next summer will be looked forward to as a welcome annual event. The advantage of seeing drama played by a class of company rarely found in provincial cities in one dramatic combination during the season proper is fully appreciated.

MRS KENNERLEY RUMFORD, better known as Madame Clara Butt, the well-known vocalist, gave birth to a son on Saturday last.

THE Star Theatre, Liverpool, has been completely re-upholstered in very quick time. After the departure of the audience last Saturday evening, a number of workmen engaged by Messrs A. R. Dean, Limited, Birmingham, immediately commenced operations, and when the public were admitted on Monday evening, they were agreeably surprised. The boxes, circle, and stalls were newly carpeted, newly seated, and along with the forepart of the auditorium, covered in Royal plush. The theatre now wears a cosy and inviting appearance.

MR CLARENCE HAGUE, who was engaged to create the part of Charles Devereux in Frederick Melville's play, Her Forbidden Marriage, when it was produced last Easter at the Terriss Theatre, has been re-engaged for the forthcoming autumn tour of the same piece, commencing on Monday at the Elephant and Castle.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your report last week of A Trip to Rum Fum, at the Theatre Royal, North Shields, you stated that I played Angeline Toft. I left the company some weeks ago. Yours faithfully, NELLIE LAURAINE. Woman and Wine company, Theatre Royal, Nottingham.

HULL PANTOMIME CASE.

In the Civil Court at York Assizes on the 22nd inst., Mr Justice Channell and a jury heard an action arising out of the presentation of the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood at the Grand Theatre, Hull, in December, 1901.

Mr C. Mellor appeared for the plaintiffs, Messrs Tiller and Sheldon, the former of whom is a theatrical manager and teacher of dancing, residing at Lime-grove House, Manchester, who sought to recover the sum of £152 for providing sixteen young girls for the pantomime which was produced by Mr Sidney Cooper, of the Lyceum Theatre, Newport, the defendant in the present action.

The defendant paid £31 into court as sufficient to cover the claim. Defendant further claimed £282 for loss sustained by the pantomime between Dec. 26, 1901, and Feb. 3, 1902. At this time defendant was engaged in the production of a pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, at the Grand Theatre, Hull.

Mr Bainton defended.

Mr Mellor, in opening the case, said the pantomime did not go well, and the defendant sought to attribute the cause of the failure to the girls whom the plaintiff supplied. When the complaint was made Mr Tiller went over and found the play was badly dressed, and that girls who were to act as post-boys were dressed as girls. He found also that the principal boy had to be changed, and the comedian was, as that gentleman himself put it, a frost.

Mr Tiller, in evidence, said he gave the girls three months' training before he sent them to Hull. The failure of the pantomime was not due to the dancers. It was badly dressed.

Cross-examined by Mr Bainton, plaintiff said he had an interview with Cooper in the early part of 1901, when the defendant told him he wanted a high-class pantomime, a poetic one. He gave defendant an idea of the book which he was preparing, and Cooper rather liked the idea, but when he got the book he did not like it. Cooper complained that the pantomime was not high-class or poetic, and was not adapted for the principals he had engaged.

Mr Bainton called the defendant, who said the dancers were very crude, and he attributed the bad reception of the pantomime to them. They were received with derision instead of applause. He had sustained a loss of about £400 on the pantomime at Hull. He knew nothing about the girls being intended for post-boys until too late to get them ready. Witness added that when the pantomime got to Oldham it was a success. It had then been greatly improved.

William Morton, proprietor of the Alexandra and Theatre Royal, Hull, said he saw the first performance of the pantomime, and the dancing was most unsatisfactory. This would have a very injurious effect, as it would give the public a bad impression. Dancing was a most important feature, especially in Hull.

The Judge—Do I understand that the playbill announced to the public that there were to be special dances?—Yes.

Cross-examined—Did you notice a young lady about whom you could say there was no fault to find?—No. Some of them were dancing very badly.

Harry Esdon, manager of the Grand Opera House, Hull, and E. E. Cohen each spoke of the poor performance of the dancers and the bad impression they created.

The jury found for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, and on the counter-claim for the defendant for the amount of £30. Judgment was entered for plaintiff for £152, less £31 paid into court, and for the defendant for £30.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held last Tuesday, Kathleen Coleman, Maud Milton, Millicent K. M'Laughlin, Marie E. Ellis, Ernest R. Hollway, and Ernest Shiel-Porter were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Actors' Association. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. Alfred J. Grant, Esq., M.D., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., 6, Queen's Club-terrace, Queen's Club gardens, West Kensington, and Wilson Tyson, Esq., M.A., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., The Beeches, Lowestoft, Suffolk, were elected hon. medical officers to the Association.

PRESENTATION.—Mdlle. Melita, who has just concluded a month's engagement with Mr Chappell, was presented at Chappell's Ring on Saturday with a gold and ivory brooch, also a lady's companion and a beautiful bouquet.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

CAPE TOWN, JUNE 23.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Frank De Jong; Sub-Lessee, Mr Leonard Rayne; Business Manager, Mr Grant Fallowes.—On Monday, June 13th, Mr Leonard Rayne's company produced for the first time in South Africa the new play entitled Sunday, written by three gentlemen who hide their identity under the name of "Thomas Raceward." The reception accorded the piece was excellent and the various participants were recalled again and again. Mr Leonard Rayne and his indefatigable manager, Mr Grant Fallowes, deserve every credit for their untiring energy in affording South Africa an opportunity of seeing a play so soon after its first presentation in England. Miss Lilian Hallowes, who filled the rôle of Sunday, was admirable, her portrayal of the character bringing every phase of her art into prominence. Miss Hallowes's fresh and girlish appearance contributed in a marked degree to her undoubted success in an exacting rôle. Mr Charles Vane was in every way satisfactory as Col. Brinthorpe, whilst Mr H. Percy Vernon as Tom Oxley was excellent. Miss Leah Marlborough successfully portrayed the difficult part of the Nun. The four guardians were admirably contrasted, each being an exceptionally clever character study. Mr S. Major Jones as Towser, and Mr Harry C. Paine as Davy were eminently successful and could not well be bettered, whilst Mr Fred Sargeant as Jacky was excellent. The part of Lively was ably portrayed by Mr Herbert Maule and proved highly amusing. Miss Annie Leaf was good as the kindly Mrs Naresby, whilst Mr Harold West, Arthur Brinthorpe, and Mr Frank Tennant, Abbott, a man-servant, were capable. The piece was admirably mounted, and a full house testified its appreciation by following the story with keen interest.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Tivoli Company, Limited; Business Manager, Mr E. A. Pickering.—This popular theatre of varieties was packed with a large and appreciative audience on Wednesday, June 22d, when several new items were introduced into the bill. Chief amongst them was a turn given by a little girl, aged ten, styled "Historicus," who is described as the child wonder. She appeared on the stage accompanied by a gentleman who proceeded to put question after question to her from a list previously distributed amongst the audience by the management in which they were requested to make selections. There were about 1,000 questions in the list, and although they were repeatedly called out from various parts of the house the little girl seldom failed to answer them. She speaks with a pronounced American accent, and some of her quick retorts to nonsensical questions were exceedingly witty. Her reply to a question asked "When was Sunday closing instituted in Glasgow?" was "Oh, in 1865, but with a little ingenuity you can easily get a drink on a Sunday now," which elicited rounds of applause. At the conclusion of her turn she was repeatedly recalled before the curtain by the audience, who vociferously applauded her. The next turn in prominence is that of Mr George Bastow, dialect comedian, who gave several amusing songs in an wholly original manner. His rendering of "Let us pause" and "Farmer Giles" was deservedly encored. Miss Madge Mayfield, speciality dancer and comedienne, proved herself a thorough exponent of the Terpsichorean art; she executed several clever and difficult steps which elicited rounds of applause. The Salambos, electric wonders, gave an exceedingly novel and clever turn with the aid of an arc lamp and several electric wires, whilst they fairly mystified the audience with their wireless telegraphy act. Miss Ruth Lytton, comedienne, gave a couple of patriotic songs in excellent style. She is possessed of a handsome and striking stage presence, and met with a hearty reception. Prince Kokin, Japanese juggler, introduced quite a novelty in the art of juggling by the aid of a few ordinary champagne glasses and some sticks. His tricks evoked unbounded applause. The Staley transformation company continue to score with their quick-change sketch. Miss Elaine Ravensberg sang several new songs which were well received, whilst Miss Alice Digby, serio and dancer, and the Tivoliscope, with a new series of pictures, concluded an exceptionally strong and varied programme.

AT the Central Criminal Court, on Tuesday, George Stanley Crawley pleaded guilty to bigamy, and also to obtaining sums of £25 each from a number of persons. The prisoner, by means of advertisements in the newspapers, got into communication with a number of persons, to whom he represented that he desired a secretary to assist him in running a theatrical company to play The Harbour Lights and other pieces, which he pretended that he had written. The persons he engaged were required by him to deposit sums of £25 each, and he succeeded in securing thirty-nine victims. Accused contracted a bigamous marriage with a young woman named Shapley, and, having spent the whole of her fortune, £800, he had left her destitute, and she had been compelled to go into the workhouse. Prisoner had been previously convicted of fraud. The Recorder sentenced Crawley to eight years' penal servitude.

MR W. CLARKSON furnished all the military uniforms, accoutrements, and wigs for the grand fête held at Government House, Farnborough, on Tuesday and Wednesday last week in aid of the Union Jack Club. The order was a very large one, and Mr Clarkson executed it with his usual artistic thoroughness.

MR W. T. GLIDDON, the musical director at the Grand Theatre, Islington, presented for the first time on Monday another of his own compositions, this time a cake walk entitled "Lucky Lucas." It is very bright and cleverly scored.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, by John Denton, entitled "A MODERN JUDAS."

Islington is favoured by a visit from Mr Denton's company in his drama, originally entitled The Serpent's Tooth, but which has now been changed for the above title. This is the only alteration that has been made, the play being in other respects the same as when produced at the Kingston-on-Thames Theatre on April 25 this year. Mr Denton, if not seeking fresh ground for the development of his plot, displays, at any rate, considerable skill in his handling of familiar material, which every devotee of the drama expects to have placed before him. As a result we get a play which should have no difficulty in commending itself to the habitué of the cheaper portions of the house, and Mr Denton can certainly anticipate a successful tour. The company engaged for the production is in all respects excellent, and a pleasing performance is given. Mr Percy Rhodes, of whom we have pleasant memories, appears in the part he created—Captain Melbourne; and gave on Monday quite the best performance of the evening, his quiet method and effective enunciation making an excellent impression. Mr Frank Beresford as Jack Vavasour invested the part with all the necessary heroic element, and speedily had the sympathies of the audience. James Rivers, a very small part, was well performed by Mr Harry Browne. Mr Willie Scott as Tom Hopkins soon ingratiated himself into the good graces of the audience, his business with Miss Dollie Harcourt being productive of much laughter. Mr John Denton himself played Elkannah Pearce, his original part, giving a good character study and materially helping the success of the comedy scenes. Mr Harry M'Clellan as Bennett submitted a reading of sound merit, his portrayal of the craven-hearted burglar being distinctly good. Mr Joe Richards's Silas Grumble was a humorous character study worthy of praise; and Mr Courtney as Inspector Goodheart deserved commendation for an intelligent performance. Miss V. King was responsible for a good delineation of Claire; Miss Dolly Harcourt as Polly Hopkins was very alert and bright; Miss Ada Palmer, in her original character—Miss Agatha Pearce, the elderly would-be bride—was very good indeed; and Miss Kate Walbran as Elise played an intense part with just the right amount of power, making a decidedly favourable impression. The remaining rôles were safe in the hands of the rest of the company. The dresses and mounting of the drama leave nothing to be desired, everything being on a very complete scale. There was a good house present on Monday, and the drama was received with every sign of popular approval. Mr Davey's early-door attraction this week includes the Bioscope and the Jalvans, Nubian top-spinners and jugglers.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "A MOTHER'S LOVE."

A Mother's Love, containing, as it does, all the points which go far to ensure the success of a drama of this description, is the attraction at the Standard this week. The play is full of exciting incidents, with plenty of the comedy element as a happy relief, and holds the close attention of the audience from beginning to end. Mr Arthur Rose acts with much earnestness and power as Paul Wingate, the vicar of Elmhurst, and supplies a highly commendable interpretation of the rôle. Mr Hugh Mewburn gives a strong portrayal of the villainous Geoffrey Mannering, and plays with all the hard-heartedness and brutality that are necessary. Mr Fred L. Connynghame, an excellent Matt Ruddock, makes the most of every opportunity that is offered, and his performance is very acceptable. The lighter portions of the drama are in the safe keeping of Mr Fred Haming and Miss Annie Rogers as Joe Jackson and Mary Smart respectively, and with Mr George Earle as Augustine Winkle, the ball of fun is kept rolling, and many a hearty laugh is the result. Miss Violet Macaree gives an artistic and effective reading of Winnie Wingate, her exceptionally fine acting finding great favour. As Eilaline Mervin Miss Madge Wills plays with a charm that is greatly appreciated and is deserving of praise for her capital impersonation. The part of the child Marjorie is sweetly portrayed by Little Miss Bertha Hanbury. Mr S. Clifton is in every way suited to the rôle of Ralph Mervin, M.D., and Mr E. Vicars-Rees as Martin Yeast and Mr Charles Stewart as John Corbett capably represent the parts falling to their share. The mounting and staging of the piece are everything that could be desired.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, by F. Brooke Warren, entitled "THE FACE AT THE WINDOW."

Messrs Hoggan-Armadale and Warren's company in the remarkable play The Face at the Window is the attraction at Mr William Bailey's house this week, and though the torrid atmosphere has not exactly conduced to good attendances, the theatre has been fairly well filled. The drama contains inherent evidence of its French origin, and is a story of a determined criminal known in society as the Chevalier Lucio Delgado, and to his shady associates and the police as "Le Loup." The advent of this gruesome person is heralded by sounds like the cries of some wild animal, and a wolf-like face appears at a window. In the first act Le Loup murders a wealthy banker, Henri de Brisson. Naturally, the crime is fixed upon an innocent clerk who has been dismissed from the murdered man's service, and who is in love with his daughter Marie. But the interest of the piece does not centre round either hero or heroine; but is concentrated in a French detective named Gouffet. This criminal investigator is not quite so up-to-date as his celebrated descendant Sherlock Holmes, and reminds the hardened playgoer more of Cartouche, a favourite sleuth-hound of the law at the minor theatres. But Gouffet is a personality, and his work throughout the piece keeps the excitement and expectation up to boiling point. We see him in the Luxembourg Gardens—an effective scene—as an old woman selling matches, and he provides an impressive curtain when, throwing off his disguise, he faces the forces at the disposal of villainy, and protects the wrongly accused Cortier from Le Loup and his companions. With intrepid courage Gouffet in the third act enters the Rogues' Retreat, a den of cut-throats, as a condemned coiner who has escaped from prison; but the ruse is discovered, and Gouffet, after rescuing the heroine, has to fight for his life on the roofs. This is a most thrilling spectacle, and the West Londoners have gone wild with excitement over a sensational episode well planned and well worked out. Gouffet eventually succumbs to the knife of Le Loup, who stabs him while he is asleep. We need go no farther in our narration of a story that has run upwards of four years in the suburbs and provinces; but we may hint at the extraordinary scene in the last act, in which a galvanic battery plays a conspicuous part, and quote the headline "Accused by a Corpse" which sufficiently describes it. Mr Hoggan-Armadale, who plays the Italian bravo Le Loup, has a record of no less than 1,500 performances as that personage. He gives to the part the stealthiness and the plausibility that add so much to the dangerous character of such criminals, and the tigerlike ferocity of the assassin's vengeance is thrilling in the extreme. No less convincing or forcible is the Paul Gouffet of Mr T. W. Dunscombe, whose assumption of the various disguises of the detective is very deceptive, especially when he appears as the match-selling crone. Here Mr Dunscombe at first completely deceives his audience. His death scene is also particularly well acted, and the expiring struggle of the mortally wounded detective to complete his report is an excellent piece of acting and worthy of the best traditions of the theatre. Mr George Phythian gives effective aid in the first act as the banker De Brisson; and Mr Alfred Richards, with but few opportunities, manages to score as Cortier. Mr Bob Anderson as Peter Pottlebury, an English tourist in Paris, is genuinely funny in his business and gags, and is well assisted in the comic scenes by Miss Lizzie Chambers—a fascinating Babette. Mr C. Alan Hineson performs his grateful task as Le Blanc with becoming professional dignity; Mr F. C. Raphael makes a truculent and surly cut-throat of Jean Barbelon; and Miss Lizzie Chambers is quite satisfactory as La Pinau, the queen of the rogues' retreat. Miss Marie Florence depicts the tribulations of the heroine with marked intensity and feeling; and the cast is completed by Messrs Marriott, Hillier, Fox, Lockwood, Hamilton, and Ward.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

Ivan Dronski	Mr ERNEST E. NORRIS
Paul De Beaupre	Mr ALFRED H. MAJILTON
Prince Mazaroff	Mr ALLAN WILKIE
Sir John Hawthorne, Bart.	Mr HORACE POLLOCK
Harry Dunn	Mr FRANK AYRTON
Dr. Petrovitch	Mr FRANK COLSON
Colonel Ispanoff	Mr EDWARD VAN BIENE
Karovitch	Mr W. ALDRED
Petroff	Mr CHARLES HUBBARD
Boris	Mr ROBERT DRYDEN
Baroness Augusta Valinski	Miss M. A. ALEXANDER
Princess Sonia De Mazaroff	Miss KATE HALLAM
Leonie Devigne	Miss KATHERINE ROMSEY
Lisette	Miss MADGE SEYMOUR
Zara Dronski	Miss AGNES IMLAY

Mr Robert Castleton's drama, it should be explained, is only new in the sense that it is a considerably altered and revised version of a play produced in the provinces some eight and a half years ago. It was then called The Cross of Olga, and two years later the piece, having undergone revision and some new characters introduced, was staged at the Queen's Theatre, Longton. In its present form the drama can be recommended as a well written and constructed piece of stage work, commendably free from the blemishes which militate so strongly against the success of many productions of the same class. There are some telling scenes, but the sensational element is not unduly obtrusive and probability is not remorselessly sacrificed for the sake of bringing the curtain down upon a thrilling situation. The comedy business, too, is kept within proper bounds, and what there is of it admirably serves its allotted purpose of lightening the piece. A leading personage in the story is Ivan Dronski, by profession a sculptor, but, unfortunately for his own happiness and peace of mind, he is induced to join a Nihilist society. His wife, Zara, upbraids him for his neglect of her and their child, Paul, who is lying dangerously ill. It has fallen to Ivan's lot to remove Prince Mazaroff, Chief of the Russian Secret Police, and, as the sculptor carelessly leaves the letter commissioning him to do the deed upon his writing-desk, it is found and read by his horrified wife, and afterwards by the Prince himself. In the meantime, Leonie Devigne, a French adventuress, incensed because Ivan has scornfully rejected her amorous advances, turns traitress, and gives information to the Chief of Police of a meeting of the Brotherhood to which Dronski belongs, with the result that he is arrested, but not before he has surprised the Prince making a declaration of his love for Zara, who, however, passionately declares her own innocence in the matter. Mazaroff informs Zara that her husband has committed suicide, and she in due course marries the Count De Beaupre, who, however, soon dies. After a supposed interval of ten years we find that Paul Ivan's son, now grown up, has fallen in love with Mazaroff's daughter, the Princess Sonia. The Prince offers to make Zara his wife, but she rejects his offer with contempt, and tells him that, though she tolerates his presence in her house, she hates him. He then reveals that the story of Dronski's suicide was untrue, and that he is dragging out a miserable existence in the Siberian mines. Paul when he hears this determines to seek his father, and effect a rescue if possible. The scene changes to a posting station on the road to Siberia. Dronski, known as No. 59, is being transferred to another district, and he and his guards are resting on the way. Paul is informed of his father's whereabouts by Sir John Hawthorne, who is attached to the English Embassy, and has had permission to visit the Siberian prisons. With his assistance Paul rescues his father, whom we next meet disguised as a manservant in the employ of Prince Mazaroff. Dronski is an unseen listener at an interview between the Prince and Zara, and at a critical moment makes his presence known. He compels his enemy to fight a duel with swords. Dronski is wounded and disarmed, and Zara, picking up the rapier, continues the encounter, eventually getting the better of her antagonist. A struggle between the two men results in the Prince being thrown over the balcony into the river by Dronski. The play ends in the conventional fashion, a pardon received from the Czar restoring Ivan to freedom and his devoted wife. Mr Ernest E. Norris, the general manager at the Elephant and Castle, plays the part of Ivan Dronski, and his sound acting is of the utmost value in conducing towards the success of the production. Mr Norris is always safe, and a good voice, excellent delivery, and manly bearing are prominent features in his embodiment of the sculptor who turns Nihilist. Mr Alfred H. Majilton represents Paul De Beaupre with considerable intensity of feeling, and he meets with deserved success. Mr Allan Wilkie is a sufficiently stern and commanding Prince Mazaroff, and Mr Frank Colson is good as Dr. Petrovitch, who attends the Dronkis' child. Mr Edward Van Biene is a soldierly Colonel Ispanoff. Mr Horace Pollock draws a clever and extremely amusing portrait of Sir John Hawthorne, who is hotly pursued, with matrimonial intentions, by the Baroness Augusta Valinski—a part very brightly and naturally played by Miss Molly Alison Alexander. Mr Frank Ayrton is a brisk representative of Harry Dunn, with a catchphrase, "Oh! where have I landed?" He and Miss Madge Seymour—very smart as Lisette, Zara's maid—introduce, in the second act, a Japanese song and dance, which are received with much applause. Miss Agnes Imlay plays with earnestness and sincerity the part of Zara, making her mark more particularly in the stronger passages of the play. Miss Katherine Romsey makes excellent use of her few opportunities as Leonie Devigne, the French adventuress. Minor parts receive careful treatment at the hands of Mr W. Aldred, Mr Chas. Hubbard, and Mr Robert Dryden. The drama is carefully staged; and its reception at the Elephant and Castle has been of the most flattering description.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, July 25, "EAST LYNNE."

Mr H. Armitage has been "presenting," at the Marlborough Theatre this week, the original Heath-Wilson Barrett version of Mrs Henry Wood's famous novel. Melancholy interest attaches to the piece from the fact that it was lately revised and rewritten by Mr Barrett. A prominent character in the adaptation is the policeman, Bullock, an epitome of constabulary humour. Bullock is a man of many words, an evasive and neglectful officer, a shirker of his duty, and so mean that he does not shrink from taking from a poor tramp his last twopence, subsequently, with hypocritical pretence, foisting upon the wayfarer a bad shilling as a gift. Yet Bullock wins his way to the hearts of the audience. Perhaps it is his burly figure and imposing attitudes; perhaps it is the venerable age of some of the jokes which he introduces; at any rate he is much liked, and his exits are triumphant and applauded. In such a pathetic play as East Lynne, comic relief is absolutely indispensable; and the gay freedoms of Bullock supply the requisite contrast. The popularity of the drama is permanent, because it is exactly in tune with English views of marital infidelity. In French plays of this sort the heroine "goes wrong" from passion, and sympathy with her is sought on the grounds of her amatory weakness. "C'était plus fort que moi!" is her actual or implied self-defence. In East Lynne, Lady Isabel is "led astray" by jealousy of her husband, whom she really loves. She is merely the dupe of Levison; and her ardent affection for her children completes her conquest of the public. The peaceable solution by divorce—the husband getting decidedly the best of it—and the entire absence of any adulterous glamour makes East Lynne a typically British drama. It is played by Mr Armitage's company in the true British spirit, with uncompromising resolution, emphasis, and energy. Mr A. Gambier Melford as Justice Hare gives full value to the provincial magnate's tyrannical bumptiousness, and to the power of Mr Hare's lungs, caused no doubt by the extremely healthy air of East Lynne. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy is artistically moderate and benevolently dignified as Archibald Carlyle, and acts throughout with well-sustained firmness and gentleness. Mr Benson North is quite commendable as Lord Mountsevern; and Mr Cecil Elgar graphically impersonates the crafty Levison. Mr Stanley Harrison supplies a pathetic and picturesque impersonation of Richard Hare; and Mr Benson North is polished and effective as Lawyer Dill. Mr George M'Kenzie positively revels in the rôle of Bullock; and Miss Jessie Winter makes a delightful Barbara Hare, Miss Julie Kennard being quite characteristic as Miss Cornelia. Miss Lilian Mason is a sympathetic Joyce; and Miss Haidee Wright plays Lady Isabel Carlyle with all the necessary ability, making full use of all the opportunities of the part, and infusing into her reading the charm of a very pleasing personality. The production, under the superintendence of Mr Edward Rochelle, is excellent; and Mr Dan Roche's incidental music greatly assists the effect of the situations. The scenery for the four acts is well painted; and the well-known, but always affecting, incidents have had their full weight as interpreted by Mr Armitage's good all-round combination.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, by Joseph Jefferson, entitled "THE SHADOWS OF A GREAT CITY."

A special production by Mr John M. East of Mr Joseph Jefferson's stirring drama, The Shadows of a Great City, is the attraction here this week. Mr J. C. Aubrey is a fine manly hero, and plays the part of Tom Cooper for all it is worth. Mr J. J. Bartlett is a vindictive George Benson, and Mr Harry J. Crane a characteristic Hebrew pawnbroker, Abe Nathan. The part of the "sneak thief," Jim Farren, is well rendered by Mr Henry Wright, and as Arkwright Mr Tom Taylor is a robust example of what a detective should be. Miss Marie Wright is most amusing as Biddy Roonan, and speaks the Irish brogue like a native. The dual rôle of Annie Standish and Nellie Standish is very capably acted by Miss Marie Housley, a gifted member of a well-known theatrical family. The minor characters are all in safe hands, and the play throughout goes without a hitch.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "A SAILOR'S SWEETHEART."

Melodrama again holds the boards here this week in the shape of A Sailor's Sweetheart, a very strong play of its kind, written by Messrs F. A. Stanley and A. F. Henderson, and played by a capable company under the direction of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow. There is no lack of excitement throughout, for the villain has endless schemes to exploit, and when one fails he invents another. The scenic effects are particularly good, that of the deck of a steamer being especially notable, and the change to the open sea being extremely well managed. Mr Alfred Goddard undertakes the rôle of Lieutenant Charles Clive, and scores heavily as the hero. Grace Mayland is charmingly portrayed by Miss Adah Barton, who commands sympathy for the character by her pathetic rendering. The scheming Philip Pemberton is capitally embodied by Mr Robert Faulkner, and it is safe to say that no better exponent could be wished for. Mr C. Douglas Carlisle puts in much good work as Stephen Lucas, the solicitor. The comic element is chiefly supplied by Mrs J. W. Braithwaite, a screamingly funny Mrs Pembury, and Mr Edward Millins as Tim Kelly, his breezy style of playing being much appreciated. Mr Pinkson is another diverting character capitally handled by Mr A. C. Blunt. Mr Charles Stafford appears as Admiral Sefton, and Mr William Stoneham is good as Captain Mayland. Mr P. A. Johnston plays the part of the Rev. Walter Clive extremely well, Miss Evelyn Shaw does capable work as Phœbe Pembury, and the smaller parts are all represented in a satisfactory manner. A brass band that appears in several scenes adds greatly to the success of the piece. The play had a tremendous reception on Monday, the curtain having to be raised several times after each act.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Wm. P. Sheen, entitled "THE TEMPTRESS."

A full measure of sensation is supplied in the drama which is this week doing duty at the elegant theatre on Lavender-hill, and as unlimited fun is added to the excitements of the play, it is little wonder that large audiences have been found to express the verdict of entire satisfaction with the piece and with Messrs Gordon and Gelling's company, who are responsible for its interpretation. The drama was first produced at the Pavilion Theatre last February, and traverses in its action a wide range of dramatic situations including a wedding ceremony in a parish church and the varied schemes of the lady whose vicious temperament supplies the motive of the play. She is known as Stella Gonzales, and as embodied by Miss Grace E. Leslie combines feminine grace with the expression of fiendish malignancy. She is especially resentful to her sisters of the piece, and Miss Leslie is perhaps at her best when she shows the fair plotter gloating over the ruin she has wrought for the pure and virtuous Marion Fordyce, who has had the temerity to win the love of Philip Welford, on whom the adventuress herself has set her heart. Marion has a pleasing and graceful representative in Miss Vashti Wynne, who indicates exactly the innocence and virtue of the young girl, and delivers her lines without affectation, but with no less dramatic significance. Mr George Daiper imbues Philip Welford with all the requisite gallantry, making love with tenderness and putting fire and energy into his heroic speeches. An impersonation glowing with colour is given by Mr Henry W. Hatchman as Pedro Gonzales, the wronged husband of Stella, who is implacable in the pursuit of revenge. Mr Hatchman skilfully preserves the foreign accent of the character, never allowing the broken English to disturb the intensity of a part which as presented by him becomes an artistic assumption. Mr Frederick D. Daviss is in manner and appearance the real embodiment of Lucas Denbeigh, a mesmerist who turns his art to fell purposes, and Mr Daviss acquits himself admirably of all the demands of the part. As his demented wife, Madge Denbeigh, Miss Ada Ryder exerts herself to the utmost in the emotional phases of the part, and wins admiration on all sides for her sympathetic exposition of a trying rôle. The sustaining force of fun is supplied in the character of Bob Tanner, a broken-down circus clown, played by Mr Herbert William, who is especially funny in the guise of a railway porter. Great assistance is rendered in this department by Mr Will G. Gelling as Francis Fitz-Fluke, a "gentlemanly dodger," and by Mr Johnny Chippendale as a butler, while Miss Mattie Everett is invaluable in the comedy scenes as Rhoda Brown, the flirtatious maid-servant. Mr Wilfred Grahame presents a chivalrous young clergyman in a popular light; Mr Arthur Sheldon distinguishes himself as the ill-fated banker, Sir Oswald Fordyce; and Mr Will Chanter makes a typical detective, all the other characters in a long cast being adequately sustained. The scenery for the piece is realistic and elaborate, a pretty set being that of the Abbey Ruins, while St. James's Park is also well represented.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, July 25, the Musical Play, by James T. Tanner, Lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, Music by Lionel Monckton, with addditional Dialogue Lyrics and Numbers by Paul Rubens, entitled "THE CINGALEE."

The latest musical production from Daly's Theatre, The Cingalee, made its initial bow to a suburban audience on Monday night at the Stratford Borough Theatre, to a house packed from floor to ceiling. Its reception was most enthusiastic, the light and melodious music and sparkling dialogue and the superb mounting and dressing of the piece appealing with eloquent force to those present. Mr George Edwardes' well-chosen company is quite up to the high standard usually associated with productions travelling under the régime of this experienced entrepreneur, and the present tour has the great advantage of being under the personal direction of Mr C. J. Abud. Very prominent is the rôle of Chambhuddy Ram, and in the safe hands of Mr Frank Danby it loses nothing of its importance. He keeps the house in convulsions with his quips and sallies and nonsensical English mixture and works indefatigably in the cause of mirth. "The Wonderful English Pot" is a song in high favour, and Mr Danby also scores with "What's the matter with Cham?" Mr Harold Thorley makes a very pleasing and manly Harry Vereker and sings capitally. "Pearl of Sweet Ceylon" is received with enthusiasm, and "My dear little Cingalee" evokes unstinted applause. Mr Leedham Bantock is eminently suited as Boobhamba, and he is (metaphorically speaking) a huge success in the part. The subtle facetiousness with which he portrays the pompous potentate is highly acceptable, and his rendering of the topical song, "A Happy New Year," is one of the smartest things in the piece. Mr W. J. Manning's delineation of the peppery Sir Peter Loftus is a very fine characterisation; Mr Willie Warde, jun., does exceedingly well as Myamgah; and Mr Jack Cannot avails himself to the utmost of the opportunities offered him as Bobby Warren. As Nanoya Miss Florence Smithson looks sweetly pretty and sings delightfully, her rendering of "My Cinnamon Tree" evoking vociferous demands for encore verses. Miss Lydia Nervil makes a very handsome Lady Patricia Vane, and her artistic vocal efforts afford keen pleasure. "You and I, and I and you," is a delightful contribution, and Miss Nervil gains terrific applause with "My heart's at your feet." Very vivacious and engaging is the Peggy Sabine of Miss Eva Sandford, whose success in the rôle is most pronounced. The "Monkeys" duet, sung in conjunction with Mr Danby, is one of the hits of the evening. Miss Claire Marsden makes a captivating Naitooma, and her rendering of "Tea, tea, tea," is a favourite item. Sattambi is charmingly played by Miss Claire Pridelle, and Mychellah and Cooroowe have dainty representatives in Miss Kathleen Severn and Miss Doris Lester respectively. As Mademoiselle Chic Miss Florence Oppitz gives some graceful, supple dances, which are admired and applauded, and others who do well are Miss Evelyn Fortescue as Fraulein Welner, Miss Mabel Allen as Miss Pinkerton, Miss May Gould as Signorina Tasso, Mr Edgar Ward as Willie Wilson, Mr F. Pope Stamper as Freddie Lowther, Mr Robert Hyett as Dick Bosanquet, Mr Charles Hampden as Jack Clinton, Mr E. W. Martin as Captain of the Guard, and Mr E. Furneaux as an attendant. An important element in the attractions of the production is the consistent energy of the well-chosen chorus, the concerted numbers being particularly enjoyable. The orchestra is this week augmented, and under the bâton of Mr Harold Vicars, who throughout does excellent work in this important phase of musical exertion. The stage-management reflects the utmost credit on Mr Albert James.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, entitled "THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

Messrs Scudamore's and Richmond's capable company is presenting this mystic and interesting drama here this week. The scene in which the Professor describes his wonderful discovery of the magician's wand of the Ancients, and his experiments upon the will power of two defrauding money-lenders for the purpose of restitution, proves of absorbing interest. The attempted drowning, too, of the boy victim in the large wine vat in the cellars of Wildflower Lodge is melodramatic in the extreme. The only want in the play not filled seems to be the inability of the wonderful discovery to restore poor Edna's baby to life. Mr James Geldred is easy and natural as the artist, Cyrus Telford; Mr Frank Harding brings fully into play the brutal instincts of the money-lender, Zadok Foxbane; while no less vividly does Mr Algernon Syms present his villainous son, Herman. Real dramatic force is evident in the Baldie Mansfield of Miss Cissie Podmore. Mr William Ames as Peregrine Patch and Miss Nannie Meade as Arabella Binks cause much amusement by their united efforts to attain desired objects by means of blind mind concentration, breathing, and wishing hard. Mr Fred Withers as Jim Jhams, a drunken model, is excellent. Mr Fred Rolls is good as the detective, Weston. Mr C. Wright is careful as the clerk, Alfred Dawson. Miss Mabel Scudamore plays feelingly as Edna Volta. In doubling the parts of Vashti Volta and Victor Stanhope, the scientific explorer, who uses his secret power for punishing his sister's betrayer, Miss Daisy Scudamore assumes no light task, but her excellent delivery and resource overcame all difficulties. Several minor parts are capably filled. Some effective scenery specially painted for the production is employed, while Mr Benjamin Barrow has composed suitable music.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

This amusing and sensational play has been drawing large houses to this pretty theatre during the past week. Mr James Millard has got together a most capable company, with special scenery, dresses, and effects; and nothing could be more realistic than the flooding of the stage. Mr Howard Tracey as Gordon Allington gives an effective and manly rendering of the part; Miss Nellie Sheffield, who is fascinatingly pretty, plays Molly Woodstock in good style; Miss May Richardson does well as Violet Kingston; and Miss Queenie Elliott as Bob submits a pathetic representation. Mr Hamilton Deane as Clifford York makes a most effective villain, being ably supported by Mr Fred Norburn as the bullying Jake Grudgewell. Mr Chisholm Taylor as Tom Nainby is responsible for a brisk portrayal, and Mr Ern Carlton as James Woodstock is a typical farmer. Mr John Brandt is good as Police-constable Hammond, and Joe Jackson is in the capable hands of Mr Archie Selwyn. Mr Geo. Harvey as John Allington is capable, and Mr Harry Forde as Jim Bates must be congratulated on his excellent flow of comicality.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, by Walter Melville, entitled "THE WORST WOMAN IN LONDON."

This week the great Broadway Theatre reopens under the popular management of Mr Fred Stanhope, after its summer vacation, with The Worst Woman in London. In the title-rôle Miss Constance Medwyn scored a great success, her performance being an artistic and powerful one. Aided by physical attractions, she made the character a striking figure—in a double sense—and embodied the charm, wantonness, and unscrupulous cruelty in a spirit of reality. Mr B. Mervyn gives a fine characterisation of Philip Armstrong, the ruined gambler who lives for revenge on the women who caused his ruin, and possesses a resonant voice and no inconsiderable dramatic knowledge. The orthodox greatly wronged hero is efficiently played by Mr E. G. Collins as Jack Felton. Vincent Lyle is well played by Mr P. Barry Lewers. Mr J. H. Asquin, a genuinely humorous Bob Goldfinch, works hard throughout. His efforts are ably seconded by Miss Helen Rigby, who is quite excellent as Matilda Parker, the discerning and good-hearted housekeeper. Mr Joe Bracewell presents a convincing character sketch of Hugh Drayton, the ne'er-do-well father of the worst woman, and other parts in a long cast are appropriately acted, including a drunken woman impersonated by Miss Richardson. The play was very well mounted, and the great sensation, the escape of the heroine (pleasingly acted by Miss Lillian Rose), suspended from a telegraph wire, from a burning house, was very realistic.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, July 25, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

The above drama, interpreted by Mr John Tully's company, has held the boards at the above theatre during the past week. Mr Kora Deanrajah, a "cullud pusson," plays Uncle Tom with remarkable dignity. Mr W. H. Cecil Pierpoint, the adaptor of the present version, revels in the part of Phineas Fletcher, a Kentuckian pedlar. Mr Shelby has a suitable exponent in Mr James Palmer, and George Harris and Liza Harris are cleverly depicted by Mr Edward Aldworth and Miss Edith Blanche, this lady also playing Cassy. Miss Kitty Wood wins much applause as Topsy, Little Marie brings tears to all eyes as Little Eva, Miss Marie Lyndon does well as Aunt Ophelia, and Miss Mabel Rutledge is dramatic as Emmeline. Miss Lilian Danby contributes a sound embodiment of Aunt Chloe, Mr Charles Colwyn plays St. Clair, Mr Fred G. Kay earns the gallery's vociferous condemnation by his impersonation of Simon Legree, and the rest of the parts are ably sustained by Messrs St. Vincent, Beechey, Kellen Taylor, Simpson, Martin, Thomson, Johnson, Taylor, Danby, and Stewart.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "HER SECOND TIME ON EARTH."

This sensational production, which on Monday night opened the autumn season at the Royal County Theatre after being closed for a fortnight for cleaning and redecoration, found a big house waiting to witness it, for, notwithstanding the general depression in theatrical matters, and the fact that there are just now many out-of-door attractions of an evening, good business continues to be done at this charming little suburban playhouse. Mr Melville's play had a very favourable reception, the numerous exciting incidents in the story being followed with evident appreciation. A thoroughly good all-round company is taking part in the show, which is staged with remarkable completeness in every detail. Chief honours are carried off by Miss Hilda Beverley, who appears as the leading lady, Dora Grey, a part which she fills with consummate ability. Mr Charles Franmore also gives a good account of himself in the part of Captain Jasper Norman, of the Albatross. Good work was put in by Mr Cecil A. Melton as Jack Carlton, by Miss Frances Leamington as Laura Norman, by Mr St. John Stuart as Tom Norman, and by Mr Percy Horton as Dr. Ridley; whilst a word of commendation was earned and bestowed upon Mr Wilton J. Selby, who filled the part of the Italian, Beppo, most acceptably. Mr Eugene Santley gave a fine rendering of "the parasite," Guy Brand. The comedy of the production was in the capable hands of Mr Fred Ingram and Miss Nana Flensberg, who appeared as Teddy Butterfly and Kitty Rosebud respectively.

MISS SEYMOUR'S JEWELLERY.

At the London Sessions, on Wednesday, before Mr M'Connell, K.C., Otto Kruger, thirty-three, a tobacconist, of German nationality, was indicted on a charge of having feloniously received three necklets, eight brooches, three bracelets, eight rings, and other jewellery set with precious stones, a portion of £3,000 worth stolen from the flat of Miss Nellie Seymour, an actress, in Charing cross-road. Mr W. H. Leycester prosecuted, and Mr Arthur Hutton defended.

In the early part of this year a German woman, named Marie Marthaler, was in the service of the prosecutrix, and on Whitsun Tuesday she disappeared without notice, taking with her, it was alleged, every article of jewellery she could lay her hands on. Marie Marthaler had at different times lived with a man named Rudolph Kruger, a brother of the accused, and he, it was stated, received the stolen jewellery, part of which he passed on to Otto Kruger, who disposed of it. After the robbery the couple stayed at the accused's shop in High-road, Kilburn. The police in the course of their inquiries encountered Rudolph, and in his possession were found four £5 notes, which, he said, he had received from his brother, Otto. Further inquiries showed that these notes had been given in payment by a pawnbroker for some loose diamonds which had been removed from the settings of some of Miss Seymour's jewellery. When Detective-sergeants Clarke and Brooks visited the prisoner he explained that he had received the notes from different customers. This statement proved to be false, and it was shown that he had received £80 for a string of pearls, between 200 and 300 in number, from a Mr Zink, a miniature painter, who also dealt in jewellery. Mr Zink was a customer at the prisoner's shop, and it was stated that he actually received £117 10s. for the sale of the pearls from a Mr Brewer, of Frith-street, Soho. Their worth, according to the prosecutrix, was £750. Mr Zink also sold for the accused some 200 loose diamonds for £38, £7 of which he kept as commission. The prisoner had also disposed of a pearl brooch for £29 to a stonemason named Westover, of Kilburn. On June 28 Detective Inspector Drew called on the prisoner and told him of these discoveries. The accused commenced to cry and said he would shoot himself. Subsequently he got a case opener and a putty knife and said his brother had buried some boxes in the basement. He took Inspector Drew and dug up the earth in a cellar. Six inches or so down he unearthed several small tin boxes, which, when opened, exposed a glittering mass of jewels, bracelets, brooches, lockets, and quantities of amethysts, corals, and pearls. He seemed surprised at the contents, and when taken into custody again said he would shoot himself. Rudolph Kruger and Marie Marthaler had disappeared, and the remainder of the missing jewellery could not be found.

All the articles referred to were identified by the prosecutrix.

The prisoner urged that he acted innocently on his brother's behalf, but the jury convicted him.

The prisoner was sentenced to nine months imprisonment in the second division, and an order was made for the restitution of the property recovered.

MR FRANCIS H. BULL has completed an entirely new set of scenery for the Islington Empire and another for the Hippodrome, Lowestoft, two sets of Three Little Maids scenery, and the same number of Belle of the Orient mountings.

Margery Gray	Miss ALICE OLIVER
Grace	Miss LOUISA PEACH

The author of this new play, Mr George Daventry, appends to the programme a note stating that while he has no wish to use the well-known aphorism, "Truth is stranger than fiction," as an excuse for dramatic impossibilities, he desires to make public the fact that the most improbable situation in his new drama was suggested by something that happened in real life. He also points out that many of the incidents are no longer possible, as certain laws bearing upon child insurance, the treatment of the insane, &c., have either been amended or given place to better ones. A plot founded in the main upon a remarkable personal resemblance between two brothers, but whose characters are entirely different, cannot be regarded as having any claim to novelty; but Mr Daventry may aptly retort that in a dramatic sense at least there is nothing new under the sun, and that all the stories have long since been told and retold. In the first scene we make the acquaintance of the villainous Frenchman, Paul De Brisionère by name, who is a Nihilist refugee. He has conceived the diabolical design of blowing up a vessel and all her passengers by means of an explosive bomb. His associate in the scheme is Arnold Mainwaring, but the plot is overheard by Margery Gray, the housekeeper at the Frenchman's lodgings, and she reveals it to De Brisionère's unhappy wife Grace. Silas Logan, a boatman, is induced to cast the bag containing the bomb into the sea, and thus the dastardly plan is frustrated. Harold Mainwaring and his half-brother Arnold are singularly alike in face and form, and when the last mentioned escapes from prison he trades upon this resemblance and so escapes being taken by the police. In the meanwhile Grace has saved from drowning Harold's sister, Gladys, but the Frenchman claims the credit of the action, and is regarded as a hero by the villagers. The scene changes to the back of the stage of a provincial theatre. Harold, who has dropped the name of Mainwaring, is a member of the company, and is in love with May, the supposed daughter of the manager, St. John Haughley, otherwise known as Fitz Albert Burleigh. As a matter of fact, she is the child of Harold's uncle, Guy Mainwaring, who is believed to have died abroad of fever. The Frenchman, who is under the belief that his wife is drowned, induces Gladys to marry him out of gratitude for saving her life, but Harold intervenes, and she leaves her husband in name only. Haughley, having been denounced by Harold as a rogue, is pushed down a trap in the stage, and Arnold, having stolen his brother's clothes, marries May. Harold is discovered dressed in convict garb, and is declared to be mad. May, returning with Arnold, identifies him by the ring he is wearing, which, as he has told her, belonged to his mother; and she refuses to have anything more to do with the impostor Arnold. In the third act we make the acquaintance of George Mainwaring, the keeper of the Rock Island lighthouse, in which Grace De Brisionère has lived concealed for some years. Silas Logan comes to the lighthouse with provisions, leaving his little adopted son in charge of the boat. He makes the discovery that Grace is an inmate of the lighthouse; and, after partaking fully of a bottle of whisky, he admits that the boy is the son of Paul De Brisionère, to whose charge he is about to transfer the lad. Grace is overjoyed at meeting with her boy, who she had mourned as dead, and the little fellow elects to stay with his mother. Some thrilling adventures afterwards happen to Grace and her child, she being attacked by the drunken boatman Logan, but rescued by George Mainwaring. The obstacle to their marriage is removed by the death of the despicable Frenchman. Harold recovers from the injuries he has received, and with the defeat of the conspirators the story is brought to a happy ending.

Mr Chas. H. Lester, who doubles the parts of Harold and Arnold Mainwaring, has no light task, as it involves frequent quick changes. He plays the two characters with much energy and force, and his performance as a whole deserves the warmest commendation. Mr Edward Valentine quite succeeds in making the obnoxious character of the Nihilist, Paul De Brisionère as repellent as possible, and the end of this arch-villain is only a fitting punishment for his crimes. Mr J. Fulton Millar gives a really excellent portrayal of the rough, avaricious boatman Silas Logan, and the part of George Mainwaring is carefully played by Mr Sidney Compton. Mr W. Garrett as St. John Haughley furnishes a neat and realistic sketch of an actor of the old school, and praiseworthy work is done by Mr A. V. Dixon as John Arthur, a stage-manager, Mr Mercer as Inspector Grip, and Mr A. Thompson as Jim Peters, a stage carpenter. Miss Louisa Peach, by her admirable acting in the important part of Grace, concentrates the sympathy of the audience upon that ill-used woman, and her performance is at no time lacking in those qualities which made Miss Peach such a great favourite for some years at a neighbouring theatre. Miss Pattie Hastings is good as May Mainwaring, and makes quite a hit in the scene where she denounces Arnold, who has so grossly deceived her. Miss K. Willougby is fresh and pleasing as Gladys, and Miss A. Oliver is well placed as Margery Gray. Miss Maggie English as the boy Harold speaks her lines clearly and intelligently, and the minor parts are ably sustained. Special music has been composed for the new play by Mr Holden and Dr. Bell, and the scenery, by Mr Nicholas Hinckley, gives complete satisfaction.

MR DUDLEY CLINTON, who has just concluded a most successful tour with his own company in Dandy Dick and Betsy, has been re-engaged by Mr Mouillot to resume this autumn the part of Dr. Jüttner in Old Heidelberg. Mr Clinton, however, has been kindly released by Mr Mouillot to enable him to accept an offer from Mr George Musgrove to play the same part in Australia for a period of over twelve months.

AN interesting event took place at Portobello, Edinburgh, on July 19, when Mr Oswald Marshall, stage-manager, The Christian company, was married to Edith, second daughter of Mr J. B. Chalmers and sister to Miss Grace Chalmers (Mrs Wentworth Croke.

G. EGERTON BURNETT has secured a long lease of the Criterion, Worksop, Notts, and after having the house entirely renovated, will open on Aug. 22. He has already arranged a good list of bookings.

MR. GEO. DAVEY AND THE GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

YEAR'S SUCCESSFUL MANAGEMENT.

On Monday Mr George Davey will complete his first year's proprietorship of the Grand Theatre, Islington, and it may, therefore, be of interest to recall what has been done at that house during the last twelve months. One fact which must be of special gratification to Mr Davey and his able manager, Mr Oswald Brand, is that some 480,000 people have visited the theatre since Aug. 1, 1903. Such a result is only the outcome of hard work, original ideas, the sparing of no expense in procuring first-class attractions, and the splendid system of advertising Mr Davey has organised. That gentleman deserves the highest congratulation for the daring and the energy he has displayed from the moment that he took over the house, which had for a long period been regarded as a "white elephant." He very soon saw that it was advisable to lower the prices of admission, and accordingly they were lowered. He also spent thousands of pounds in the work of decoration, reupholstering, and reseating, and in effecting the latest and most up-to-date fire-proofing arrangements throughout his establishment. For the first time in nine years the Grand Theatre has been kept open during the month of July, and that in itself affords sufficient evidence that a new era of prosperity has fallen to the lot of the "good old Grand." Mr Davey has had many years' experience of advertising and bill-posting, and the use to which he has put his knowledge of this particular business has been of incalculable advantage in running the theatre Then we cannot pass over lightly the good services rendered by Mr C. W. O'Connor, the press representative, a young gentleman who has been most assiduous in his efforts and who has shown that he possesses no small amount of ingenuity and ability in the fulfilment of a difficult office. Indeed, we should not be far wrong if we said that many an older press agent would be well advised to take hints from Mr O Connor.

After the theatre had been in his hands some few months Mr Davey came to the conclusion that the public ought to have some entertainment during the time they were awaiting the rise of the curtain. He, therefore, decided to give a biographical demonstration of the latest films every evening and, in addition to that, he engaged variety artists to take the place of the usual orchestral selections introduced before the commencement of the more serious portion of the programme.

In referring to the good work performed by Mr Oswald Brand in respect of his special productions since Aug. 31 last, mention can be made of the following:—The Dead Heart, in which Mr Brand played Robert Landry; The Two Orphans, A City of Pleasure, The Green Bushes, of which he wrote and produced a new version; Mr Brand's own version of Monte Cristo, The Woman from Gaol, It's Never Too Late to Mend, The Convict's Daughter, Little Nell and Bleak House, also from the pen of Mr Brand; East Lynne, The Bridge of Sighs, written and produced by Mr

Brand; After Dark, Arrah-na-Pogue, Mr Arthur Shirley's play The Woman from Nowhere, The Bells of Haslemere, The Bushrangers, The Colleen Bawn, Shadows of a Great City, The Shaughraun, and Proof. During the run of Monte Cristo the 4th V.B. Royal Fusiliers—one of the finest volunteer corps in London—bought up the house for a couple of nights, and used the profits—which were considerable—for the purpose of increasing their prize fund. It is no exaggeration to say that Mr Brand has produced more plays in one year at the Grand Theatre than have been put on at any other playhouse in the United Kingdom. He controls a capable stock company, and the theatre has been aptly described as "the school for rising dramatists."

It is well known that Islington and the neighbouring districts of Finsbury, Canonbury, Clerkenwell, Highbury, Barnsbury, Pentonville, King's-cross, and Holloway—from all of which the Grand Theatre draws its patrons—are pretty strong labour centres, and in this connection it is interesting to note that political appeals to the working classes have been made from the stage of the Islington theatre by certain labour leaders. The speeches in question were made between the acts on each night of one week.

In reviewing Mr Davey's stewardship of the Grand Theatre, we must not forget to mention the pantomime of Blue Beard, produced last Christmas, which had a satisfactory run of seven weeks. Then, on June 28 last, Mr Davey secured Madame Sarah Bernhardt for a matinée performance of La Dame aux Camélias, the receipts on that occasion fully justifying the enterprise.

Mr Davey has settled some first-class fixtures in the way of dramatic fare, opening on August Bank Holiday with Hands Across the Sea. On Dec. 26 he will produce his own pantomime of The Babes in the Wood, the book of which is being written by Mr Geoffrey Thorn, a well-known Islingtonian. The Brothers Conquest will appear in their famous transformation flying ballet and trap business, and others who have been engaged for the festive season are Mr George Mozart, Miss Julia Kent, Mr Tom Craven, Miss Tots Davis, the Collinson Combination, Miss Pauline Rivers, Mr Hal Collier, and Mr Jack Ellerton. Mr Davey anticipates running the pantomime for twelve weeks.

On Monday evening Mr Davey will celebrate in fitting fashion the first anniversary of the date on which he undertook the absolute control of the Grand Theatre. A very pretty and tasteful souvenir is being got up for the event, and a fine programme has been arranged.

MISS MARY COLLETTE'S MARRIAGE.

The marriage between Mr Ernest W. Bryant, Clerk to the Queen, and Miss Mary Collette was solemnised at St. Andrew's, Westminster, on Thursday last, the officiating clergyman being the Hon. the Rev. J. S. Northcote. The bridegroom had the services as best man of Mr J. W. Widdows. The bride, who was given away by her father, Mr Charles Collette, wore a charming dress of rich wavy crepe de chine with chiffon flowers, with a court train of lace arranged in a picturesque fashion falling from the shoulders. She was attended by three bridesmaids, the Misses Olive Bashford (her cousin), Winning Seth-Smith, and Daisy Roche. The bridegroom is a son of Mr Thomas Bryant, of Lowestoft, and the bride is the only daughter of Mr and Mrs Charles Collette.

Mr and Mrs Charles Collette entertained a large number of friends after the ceremony, and the bride and bridegroom left town for a short stay on the Norfolk Broads, whence they proceed to Scotland. Mrs Ernest Bryant wore a travelling costume of hopsack of a pretty shade of silver grey, tastefully trimmed with lace and ivory satin. Both her wedding and travelling dresses were made by Mrs Sanders, 78, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square.

The bride is closely connected with the stage, her father being the well-known and popular comedian, and her mother Blanche Wilton, youngest sister of Lady Bancroft, was an extremely clever soubrette actress, and played with great success all her gifted sister's parts in the Robertsonian plays. But Miss Collette herself has had considerable experience on the stage, making her début when quite a child under the Kendal management. She played under the management of Mr Tom Thorne, both on tour and at the Vaudeville; under Mr Tree in the title-rôle of A Bunch of Violets, on tour; with Mr Oscar Beringer at the Opera Comique; and at various other theatres. For some years she was under Mr George Edwardes's management, being in the original casts and through the London runs of An Artist's Model, The Geisha, San Toy, and The Country Girl. Her last appearances on the stage were at Brighton in November of last year, when she appeared with her father as Cissy, in What Happened to Jones, and Emma Marigold, in My Awful Dad.

She is also closely connected with H.M. forces. Her great-grandfather was the late General Collette, Madras Cavalry and Governor of Jauna. Her great-uncle was Colonel Collette, 67th Regiment. She has for uncles Colonel Elmes, Captain Childs, 7th Hussars, and Captain Bashford, Scots Greys. Her cousins are Lieut.-Colonel Collette, commanding at Shrewsbury; Captain Bancroft, 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers, and Lieutenant Geoffrey Bashford, R.N., and her father, Charles Collette, held a commission for some years in the 3rd Dragoon Guards. The stage loses an extremely clever and bright young actress.

The presents, which were numerous and costly, and numbered over 200, were headed by a very handsome set of table cutlery, with solid silver handles, the gift of H.M. the Queen.

List of presents:—H.M. the Queen, case of silver-mounted table cutlery; Gen. the Hon. Sir Dighton Probyn, silver tea-caddy; the Hon. Charlotte Knollys, silver tea-spoons; Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, cheque; Sir William and Lady Treloar, carpets; Mrs Fletcher-Elmes, trousseau and furniture; Mrs Ayers, diamond ring and diamond hair ornament; Captain and Mrs Bancroft, silver dessert and fish knives and forks; Mr and Mrs George Bancroft, silver sugar sifter; Miss Olive Bashford, silver toilet set; Captain and Mrs Childes, old Sheffield plate and cheque; Mr Lionel Brough, silver egg-stand; Mr and Mrs Sydney Brough, silver pie servers; Mr and Mrs T. Bryant, tea service and tray; Mr and Mrs Arthur Bryant, pictures; Mr and Mrs Francis Morgan Bryant, furniture; Lieutenant-Colonel Collette, table glass; Mr and Mrs George Edwardes, silver mounted coffee service; Mr George Ashton, cigar case; Mr and Mrs James Fernandez, silver-mounted cruet and water jug; Mr and Mrs Margetson, Sheffield pie dish; the Hon. the Rev. and Mrs J. S. Northcote, book; Dr. Oxford, silver dessert horns; Dr. Des Vœux, lamp; Mr Henry Stone, antique silver cake basket; Miss Maud Wynter, silver paper knife; Miss Florence Rooke, silver photograph frame; Mr and Mrs Sydney Valentine, fruit dish and spoon; Mrs J. A. E. Malone, worked afternoon teacloth and doyleys; Mr Lilford Arthur, silver match box; Mr and Mrs J. A. Harrison, fish carvers; Mr J. W. Widdows, pictures; Mr and Mrs Roche, coffee machine; Miss Daisy Roche, silver rose bowl; Miss Helen Vicary, dinner service, cigar and cigarette case; Miss Olive Morell, cushion; Mr Charles Collette, table plate; Mrs Charles Collette, silver-mounted dressing bag, &c.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MILLICENT ROUTLEDGE.

MISS MILLICENT ROUTLEDGE is obliged to admit—like Lord Stanley—that she was brought up in "the pre-scientific period;" but though her dramatic training was completed without the advantages that schools like those formed by Mr Beerbohm Tree and Mr Benson afford, she received much valuable help from Mr Marshall Steele, well-known as a public reciter and elocution professor. She comes of a family who have always been lovers of the theatre. The late Mr Edmund Routledge, her uncle, was "an inveterate first-nighter," and proud to own amongst his best friends many of our leading actors. As far back as she remembers she was always fond of inflicting long-suffering relations and friends with endless recitations, and seizing greedily any chance of getting up amateur theatricals; but not until about three years ago was she able to follow up her choice of work, that of acting. Her first professional appearance was in the humble town of Northfleet in a juvenile part in a farce managed by Mr Beresford Innes. Then she played emotional lead in a new melodrama which did not take, so shall be nameless. Afterwards she played in the Dr. Nikola company as the shamelessly wicked Casino lady. Her next venture was a complete change of part—that of the would-be fascinating widow in The Idler, originally played by Miss Gertrude Kingston. Also during her short stage career she has played in various capacities in a large number of sketches, as she firmly believes in practice, practice, practice, though the kind of practice may not always be quite what she herself would choose. Her ideal part is comedy with a touch of pathos in it, and she considers Rosemary, Quality Street, and Old Heidelberg entirely charming plays, and much admires Miss Winifred Emery's style of acting. Finally, she holds that perseverance and hopefulness are two most useful attributes in the struggle to get "forwarder." She has had several offers from West-end managers, but as the dates offered were rather far ahead, she has contented herself so far with more immediate work by the advice of Mr Charles Henry Houghton, her sole agent. Mr George Roberts, a well-known author, has cast her for the leading parts in several of his forthcoming plays. Miss Millicent Routledge is a very eager worker, and possesses a first-class stage appearance.

MR. SYDNEY FREEBAR.

MR SYDNEY FREEBAR is amongst those who have tried to raise Jewish drama to a higher rank, being a member of that race, and proud of his religion. Unfortunately, in spite of his efforts, he failed to do any good in that direction; and in London only one out of ten Hebrew performances is a success. Mr George R. Sims was present at the production of one of these plays, in which Mr Freebar took the part of a Russian priest. His connection with the English stage begun six years ago. After touring the small towns, and, gaining much experience, he accepted an engagement with Mr J. K. Reynolds, of Conscience fame, playing character parts in dramas and sketches. Mr Freebar made his début as Sparta, in Siberia, at the Empire, Hull; afterwards appearing as Mezintzof, in Conscience. Two years later he entered into an engagement with Mr John Lawson, and toured in Humanity. After a short season he rejoined Mr Reynolds to play heavy lead, sustaining many parts in dramas and episodes, and visiting most of the principal theatres and music halls in the kingdom. Henry Parker, in Conscience, was the most difficult part he acted, owing to the dangerous pot-smashing fight. Coming to town in the spring of last year for a well-deserved rest, Mr Freebar met with an accident whilst getting into a cab, and injured his legs, but he quickly recovered. Mr Freebar has travelled through Germany, Austria, Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. He speaks several languages, and can play the violin—that, in fact, being his favourite pastime.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A Tempter of Women can be said to have scored an instantaneous success, and is likely to hold the road for some considerable time to come. The chief scoundrel has so many villainies to his account that one is prone to forget the one indicated in the title. Not that the play is overweighted with his crimes, for the very prince of comic men, one Horatio Buskin, with an apt quotation from Shakespeare ever at his lips, is always at hand to the overthrow of the villain and his schemes. The play opens at Gunislake Towers, where the death of the Earl of Gunislake is hourly expected. The Earl has only been married a year, and his Countess, Kate, who to save her father from ruin, and for that only, consented to wed the Earl, has recently given birth to a son. This son stands in the way of Reeves Delemere, cousin to the Earl, and chief villain of the play, who has an ally in a Hebrew money-lender, named Isaacs, just arrived on the scene at the news of the approaching death of the Earl. A conference is interrupted by the Countess, whom Reeves Delemere affects to condole with upon the extremity of her lord's illness. She, however, makes no pretence of her feelings either for the Earl or his cousin, having a tender attachment for a former lover, Harold Vaughan, whom she perforce had to discard for the Earl, her husband. A showman and his clown arrive to solicit the Countess's patronage on behalf of "Phillipino's Menagerie," which is staying in the district, but are under the circumstances dismissed with a cheque for five pounds. The clown, who is none other than the aforesaid Buskin, remains in hiding, and thus gains knowledge of a plot to kidnap the sleeping heir. Ere this, however, Harold Vaughan, the former sweetheart of the Countess, has returned from Australia to find the girl of his heart false to her vows. He nevertheless does not reproach her, after learning the reasons which compelled the marriage, but departs again, as he says, for "the Never-Never Land." Just at this time the expected death of the Earl takes place, and an opportunity is then presented to the villains, Delemere and Isaacs, to abduct and destroy the new Earl of Gunislake, an infant in his cot. The abduction is effected by one Bill Sleath, in the pay of the villains. He encounters Harold Vaughan, who, returning for a final interview, essays to intercept him, but is rendered helpless by the guilty pair, and denounced as an accessory to the kidnapping plot. Buskin springs from his place of concealment and exposes the guilty ones.

The child is lost sight of for twelve years, despite the most strenuous search. Sleath, who is with Phillipino's Menagerie, has the missing Earl with him, and the youngster is appearing as "the boy lion-tamer." Reeves Delemere is meanwhile moving the Court of Chancery to decide in his favour regarding the title and estates of the earldom, and failing the discovery of the young Earl in fourteen days, he is to be granted his petition. Sleath's wife, Rhoda, a Romany, who knows the secret of the boy's birth, foretells to the Countess her son's restoration. The villain's purpose, which is to deliver the child to the lion, is perceived by Vaughan and his faithful ally, Buskin, in time to frustrate the deed. The boy at ordinary times exercises a wondrous control over the lion, but for the consummation of the tragedy the animal is kept, by the connivance of Sleath, without food. Consequently, when the boy enters the cage for his performance, he is attacked by the ravenous beast, who is shot dead in time to save the boy, except for a slight mauling. Here Rhoda's feelings are so outraged at the attempt on her "stepson's" life that she, daring the consequences, boldly announces to all his real identity, and he is delivered into the safe keeping of Horatio Buskin, who hands over to Vaughan an incriminating document relating to the three villains. For this timely help Mr Buskin is promised much monetary reward, with which he declares he will buy a theatre. Rhoda is, for revenge, slain by Sleath, who again gets possession of the boy, whom he conveys to Delemere for blood money—his purpose all along. The trio about this time are in for trouble, a warrant for their arrest having been issued at the instigation of Vaughan on the incriminating basis of the document aforesaid, which is really and truly a signed agreement for the murder of the boy Toby, otherwise Lord Gunislake. The villains get wind of the fact of the warrant, and repair to Delemere's house, followed by Vaughan and Buskin. The attempt on Vaughan's life, frustrated by Buskin (and the looking glass device), excites tremendous interest, while the final endeavour to kill the youthful Earl by drowning at the "old waterworks"—a fate that befalls the villain—furnishes a thrilling episode, which is only capped by the rescue itself, which affords a grand climax. Here the Countess is reunited to her first love, Harold Vaughan, the saviour of her boy, and the play thus ends.

There is no doubt that in A Tempter of Women Mr Clifford Rean has written and produced a sound, strong, serviceable play, in which the gloomy or sad side of life is not allowed to predominate, and he has withal compounded a "comedy-drama" of real human interest. The production is exceedingly well staged and equipped with good music, and all the characters are in capable hands. Mr Clifford Rean himself plays the chief comedy part, Horatio Buskin, and his sly and droll grimaces, added to his extremely comical and always appropriate interpolations, keep the audience in a highly diverted and expectant mood. Kate, Countess of Gunislake, is acted with true dignity and pathos by Miss Nesta Sandford, and Miss Nelly Murray realises the character of Rhoda Sleath to the very fullest extent. Miss Lily Lloyd gives the pert characteristics of the showman's daughter, Polly. Miss Mary Whitcomb enacts the servant girl, Dobson, and Miss Violet Carr as the young Lord Gunislake, erstwhile known as Toby, the "boy lion-tamer," excites much sympathy by her clever acting of the rôle. Mr Sidney T. Pease creates the part of Harold Vaughan, his clear accents and manly bearing counting for much with all present; while Mr Forbes Murray as Reeves Delemere is absolutely without a flaw. The Jew, Isaacs, has a most capable representative in Mr David Phillips. Mr Jack Bowskill is properly strenuous as Bill Sleath, which he makes one of the best-acted parts in the drama; and Messrs Fred Ramsdale and Fred Dore as the village landlord and the showman respectively claim attention.

THE attraction at the West London Theatre for August Bank Holiday week will be Mr Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding, which met with such success at the Princess's Theatre some two years since.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

THE last wreath which arrived for the funeral of Mr Wilson Barrett was a very beautiful one. It came from Sir Henry Irving, who was staying in a remote part of Cornwall, and had consequently not heard until some time after its occurrence of the death of Mr Barrett. The wreath bore the inscription, "In remembrance, with deep regret." When Mr Wilson Barrett was appearing about two months ago at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, Sir Henry was at the Court Theatre there. The two eminent actors both stayed at the Adelphi Hotel, and had many a long chat over old times, sometimes sitting up till the small hours conversing.

AMONG the cables of sympathy received after Mr Barrett's death was one from Mr J. C. Williamson, of Sydney, saying:—"Australian managers unite mourning Barrett's death. Kindly represent us at funeral." Messrs B. and F. Wheeler also cabled their deep regrets from Cape Town, and Mr Geo. H. Smith, late business manager to Mr Wilson Barrett, and one of the executors, sent a message from Johannesburg, saying:—"Kind and loving memories of my dear chief and true friend."

THE operation which was undergone by the late Wilson Barrett, and under which he sank, was for intestinal obstruction of a very serious character, and Mr Armour, who performed it, and who is only about thirty years of age, was warmly complimented by the two physicians in attendance upon his skill in carrying it out. Heart failure, through fatty degeneration, set in about thirty-six hours after the commencement of the operation, and Mr Barrett passed away peacefully and without pain.

THE floral offerings to the late Mr Wilson Barrett have been excellently photographed. A copy of the picture 12 inches by 10 inches, nicely mounted, may be had by sending 5s. to the Publisher, The Era. Any profits from the sale of this photograph will be handed to the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

THE inhabitants of Cromer are about to erect a memorial to the late Clement Scott, in the shape of a drinking fountain. Miss Jermy, of Mill House, Sidestrand, and Mr George E. Beckett, of Overstrand, are the hon. secretaries of the fund. It will be remembered that Clement Scott practically "wrote up" Cromer as a seaside resort. His book "Poppyland" wove a web of romance over the Norfolk Coast scenery; and his song "The Garden of Sleep," with its allusions to Cromer Churchyard, completed the charm which Clement Scott cast over the district by his picturesque descriptions and poetical imagery. At a recent meeting, at which Sir Henry Irving, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr Tree, Mr George Alexander, and Mr Arthur Bourchier were present, it was settled that the sum of £1,168 19s. 8d. raised by the recent benefit should be allotted in the proportion of two-thirds to Mrs Clement Scott and one-third to Miss Dora Clement Scott, Mr Scott's youngest daughter.

MR WILSON BARRETT was noted for his ready and warm-hearted sympathy. When he heard of Mr Edward Ledger's recent dangerous illness, he telegraphed immediately as follows:—"Very grieved to hear of your illness, and wish you sincerely a quick recovery. Keep up your spirits." But a few months, and Mr Wilson Barrett was to sink under a very similar operation to that so successfully undergone by his old friend.

THE final Lyceum Theatre meeting was held at Winchester House on Friday to wind up all affairs. Mr Peate, liquidator, was chairman, and read the last report. Mr Munton proposed an adjournment for one month that shareholders might carefully estimate their position. After discussion Mr Munton then withdrew his proposition, though it had been seconded by Mr Hayden Coffin.

THE late Mr Wilson Barrett, some months after the production of The Lights o' London at the Princess's, was the victim of an unscrupulous robbery. He entrusted his broker with £12 000 to invest in English railway debentures. A few days afterwards he went to his solicitor's to make his will, and was advised to obtain the debentures so that the numbers could be inserted in the will. With this object he wrote again and again to the broker, and, receiving no reply, went down to the latter's office, only to find that the rogue had escaped to Spain, taking the £12,000 with him.

MANY of the people who "assist" at the annual prize competitions at the Paris Conservatoire have no business there whatsoever, and form a kind of opposition jury, protesting by shrieks and hisses against the awards if these are not in accordance with their own opinion. On the day of the recent competition of the singing classes, the uproar was so tremendous, that the jury at once left the hall. Half a-dozen stalwart policemen would soon quell these disturbances, but, unfortunately, M. Dubois, the director, is afraid of what he calls "extreme measures." It is inexplicable why the competitions are held in the tiny, stuffy concert hall of the Conservatoire instead of in one of the large Parisian theatres closed during the summer. The Odeon would do well, and the candidates would appear there on a real stage before an unbiased public instead of having to face a handful of prejudiced fanatics.

SIR HENRY IRVING wishes it to be known that there is no foundation whatever for the report that he intends to visit South Africa. He will only play in Great Britain, Ireland, and the United States of America prior to his retirement in 1906.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD will make her first appearance on the stage, since her marriage about four years ago, under Mr Lewis Waller's management in The Master of the King's Company at the Imperial Theatre this autumn. All Miss Millard's many admirers will congratulate themselves that matrimony has not removed her permanently from the stage, where she is such a favourite.

THE late Wilson Barrett, during the run of Hamlet at the Princess's Theatre, on arriving at his house, the Priory, North Bank, St. John's Wood, on a snowy winter's night, found a boy, apparently about twelve years of age, leaning against the wall of the garden. The lad confessed that he had come merely to see Mr Barrett get out of his carriage, and the actor-manager asked him into the house. Eventually, it was agreed that he should be employed as a messenger-boy at the Princess's, and he was submitted to the business-manager of the house, Mr John Cobbe, who immediately discovered that the supposed youth was a girl, who had previously applied to Mr Barrett for an engagement, and had attempted to secure one by an apparent change of sex.

THE members of the Garrick Club have decided, by a large majority, not to move to St. James's-square. A committee was appointed to consider the question, and presented two reports. The minority report was adverse to migration, and at a special meeting of the club this was adopted, mainly on account of the expense. The Garrick Club now pays a rental of less than £300 a-year; but in St. James's-square it would have to pay £60,000 for a freehold.

MISS ADA REEVE, for her company to appear at the Criterion Theatre, in Winnie Brooke, Widow, has secured Mr Henry Vibart, Mr Eric Lewis, Mr Robb Harwood, Mr W. Rigno'd, Mr Douglas Gordon, Miss Dora Barton, Mrs Maltby, and Miss Dolores Drummond. Miss Reeve will, of course, sustain her original rôle of the heroine.

M. PAUL HERVIEU, the well-known Parisian playwright, recently visited London, and went to many of our theatres. The Liars, he thought, showed great observation, and contained interesting characters and touching incidents; but the sympathy which the author obviously tries to create with the husband, and not with the lover, is, he said, contrary to the tendencies of the French stage. At His Majesty's Theatre the predominance of red in the scenery, "prompted by a traditional and national instinct," struck him particularly.

WHEN Mr Israel Zangwill's four-act comedy, Merely Mary Ann, is produced in the second week in September at the Duke of York's Theatre, Miss Eleanor Robson, Miss Ada Dwyer, Mr Henry Ainley, and Mr Gerald Du Maurier will be in the cast. Mary Ann is a poor little lodging-house "slavey," who inherits a fortune, and becomes a London "society lady." The piece has been played with success in America.

MR GEORGE DAVEY, to mark the completion of his first year's proprietorship of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will on Monday present to every member of his audience a handsome souvenir in the form of a little pamphlet containing portraits of himself and Mr Oswald Brand, other pages being devoted to photographic reproductions of the Dickens series of plays dramatised by Mr Brand and presented at the Islington Theatre, the pictures including the Garden Scene in Bleak House, the Burial Ground in Jo; the Thieves' Kitchen, in Oliver Twist; and the Mountain Pass, in No Thoroughfare. The performance on Bank Holiday night will begin with the Bioscope, after which there will be a variety entertainment. Miss Tots Davis, Miss Julia Kent, and Mr Alex. Keith will present a short sketch entitled That's What they See at the Play. Mr Fred W. Millis, the ventriloquist; Mr Pat Doherty, Mr H. E. High, and Mr Alex. M'Nab, the Scottish Santley, are also to appear. The play will be Hands Across the Sea.

THE first of William Greet's touring companies, in The Earl and the Girl, leaves to-day for Douglas. The company numbers between seventy and eighty, and is an exact reproduction of the piece as now playing at the Adelphi, both in scenery and dresses.

MR PADDY DUPRES, whose impersonation of Kenneth Mugg with Mr George Musgrove's Belle of New York company stamps him as a comedian of the first rank, has, his numerous friends will be pleased to hear, been completely restored to health, and rejoined his company for the autumn tour at Scarborough this week. Mr Duprés, who was operated upon three months ago for a grave internal malady by Surgeon Tobin, of Merrion-square, Dublin, to whose skill and unremitting attention he owes his life, startled his two nurses, on recovering consciousness after three days' violent delirium, by hoarsely murmuring, "Hark! Do I hear angels calling?" one of the many effective lines of his part.

"THE EMANCIPATION OF MIDDLETON," a drama in three acts, by C. W. Bell, the well-known Canadian playwright, has just been copyrighted by the International Copyright Bureau at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, and at Washington. The Bureau has also arranged with Herr Oscar Strauss, the famous German composer, to set to music the same author's farce The Prince of Zanzibar, and has placed, amongst others, the German rights of Mr W. S. Maugham's well-known drama A Man of Honour (the German version by Mr Ernst Mayer) and of Mr W. R. H. Trowbridge's one-act tragedy Jezabel, which was originally written in French and dedicated to Madame Sarah Bernhardt. Both plays will be produced in Frankfort early next year.

MR EDWARD MILES, the oldest living actor, who is now in his ninetieth year, and resides at Wisbech, Cambs, has seen five reigns and witnessed four coronations. He has had an adventurous and unique career. Advised by Grimaldi, Miles took to the stage in 1834—seventy years ago—and made his début at Hereford, performing with Braham, the tenor, Sims Reeves, and Templeton, the "falsetto." Among other celebrities he played with Mrs Stirling, Mrs Honey, Nisbett, Waylett, Vanderhoff, Sheridan Knowles, Raymond, Hammond, T. P. Cooke, Macready, Chas. Kean, G. V. Brooke, Miss Glynn, Cushman, Helen Faucit, Ellen Tree, Julia St. George, Madame Celeste, Mrs Fitzwilliam, and Buxton—truly a remarkable record—and was associated with nearly all the stars and celebrities of the profession during the last century. Apart from his professional career Miles has had several remarkable escapes from death—from drowning, fire, the railway, and firearms. He was born in London, March 11, 1815, and in 1855 his daughter, Sophie Miles, performed with Sir Henry Irving at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, under whose protection his sister Emily came to London. She is now the daughter-in-law of Sir Peter O'Brien, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland. Could Miles be persuaded to put his reminiscences on paper they would make an uncommonly interesting record.

MR EDWARD HALL, who has been in the box-office at Covent-garden for fifty-five years, can remember Madame Adelina Patti's début there on May 14, 1861. The opera was La Sonnambula, with a cast including Mdlle. Patti, Madame Tagliafico, Signor Rossi, Signor Tagliafico, and Signor Tiberini. The conductor was "Mr Costa."

MISS NETTIE WARE'S autumn tour with When Woman Hates will commence on Monday at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end. The cast includes Messrs Oscar Adye, John B. Shinton, Willie Scott, William Dempsey, Eric Campbell, Lionel West, William Wallace, Edmund Cuthbert, and Misses Jennie Hughes, Violet Mere, Violet Carlyle, Ida Cunard, and Crook. A long tour has been booked. Miss Ware will produce next autumn a new drama by Wm. Gibbert.

WE greatly regret to have to announce the sudden death, in his fifty-third year, of Mr W. Davenport Adams, a well-known and long-experienced dramatic critic and most industrious littérateur. Mr Adams, who was the son of the well-known author, W. H. Davenport Adams, was educated at Merchant Taylors School and at Edinburgh University. At the age of twenty he entered the ranks of journalism and in the course of his career he acted as dramatic critic for several journals. For years he had been busily compiling a "Dictionary of the Drama," the first volume only of which he leaves completed.

MR FRED MOULE'S latest success, Bigamy, concludes its summer tour to-night at the Osborne, Manchester. Its autumn tour commences at the New Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, Aug. 1, Messrs Carson and Granville having selected it as their opening attraction.

MDLLE ALDA, a French lyric artist, who hails from Australia, entered last November into an engagement with M. Carré, the manager of the Paris Opera Comique. The term was for three years, and the total salary £800. M. Carré reserved the right of breaking the contract before May 31 of each year. In January last Mdlle. Alda filled the rôle of Manon acceptably, and on April 25 M. Carré informed her that her engagement was at an end. The artist then sued him for payment. As M. Carré had offered to keep the artist as a pensioner, the Court took cognisance of this offer, and only condemned him in £80 damages and costs.

THE Supreme Court of New York on Tuesday confirmed the decree granting a divorce to Madame Nordica from Herr Zoltan Doehme, the Hungarian tenor. The latter intends to appeal.

B. Clarence, Mr Arthur Chesney, Mr A. E. Matthews, Mr H. Nye Chart, Mr Webb Darleigh, Mr Walter Pearce, Miss Margery Fane, Miss Ethelwyn Arthur-Jones, and Miss Nancy Price.

MR HUGH FLEMING, advance-director for the seventh year of Mr George Musgrove's Belle of New York company, made his first appearance on the London stage on the occasion of the production of Mr W. S. Gilbert's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern at a matinée in aid of the "Serpent" Relief Fund at the Vaudeville Theatre in the June of 1891.

M. MARCEL NANCEY has decided to open in the month of December a new theatre in Paris, to be called L'Opéra Bouffe. The first play to be produced there will be Pit'chounette, an opera-bouffe, in three acts, by MM. Maxime Boucheron and André Ibels, with music by M. Gustave Machiels. The next on the list will be Les Hussards de Lasalle, words and music by M. Georges Spitzmuller.

THE annual race for Doggett's Coat and Badge was rowed on Wednesday on the Thames between London-bridge and Chelsea. Although there was a head wind in certain reaches of the river the tide flowed longer than usual, and helped the scullers all the way. The winner was Pizzey, of Lambeth.

AFTER being closed for a week the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, reopened on Monday night, and patrons of this charming riverside playhouse were agreeably surprised to find that the management had taken advantage of the opportunity to clean and redecorate the interior, which had been carried out in a most thorough and artistic manner. The walls of the auditorium were covered with new wall-paper of an elegant design, pictures were hung upon the walls, and painters had been busy on the woodwork. Special attention had been paid to the foyer, which was prettily decorated and embellished by the erection of ornamental screens, filled in with stained glass. The redecorations were carried out by a local firm, under the direction of Mr Peter Davey, the enterprising and untiring managing-director, who always seems to be studying the convenience and comfort of patrons.

THE Paris Athenée Theatre has also fallen a victim to the terrific heat and has been compelled to close its doors. The house will reopen at the beginning of September with Le Prince Consort, which, thus far, has run 283 nights.

MESSRS ADDISON BRIGHT AND WALTER MAXWELL will commence their autumn tour with Little Mary on Monday at Chester. The company includes Miss Christine Silver, who has been engaged by these managers for ten years, Mr George Mudie, Mr Arthur Kightley, Mr A. W. Baskcomb, and Mr A. Holmes-Gore.

MR ALBERT WARD will make his reappearance as the Rev. Philip Carton, in Between Two Women, at the Terries Theatre, on Monday.—Mr H. Fuller will this week complete his fourth year of continuous tour.—Mr Ardene Linden has been re-engaged by Mr and Mrs William Maclaren for Chamboran, in Proof.

MR C. W. O'CONNOR, the energetic Press representative of the Grand Theatre, has gone for a week's camping out at Worthing with the 4th London Volunteer Brigade, of which he is a lieutenant. Mr O'Connor, who has been actively associated with the Grand Theatre for only a little more than six months, has proved himself very able and energetic in Mr Davey's interests.

THE public examination was held on Thursday of Arthur H. E. Gibbons, theatrical manager and actor, described as of Adelaide-street, Strand. It appeared from the debtor's statements that since 1897 he had run various theatrical touring companies. His failure was due to the general depression in theatrical business, and to pressure by creditors. The examination was closed, the liabilities being returned at £518 and the assets at nil.

M. CATULLE MENDES has put the finishing touches to Ariane, for which Massenet is writing the music. It will be brought out at the Paris Opera next season. M. Mendes is now devoting his energies to Scarron, the new comedy intended for the Comédie-Française.

MR AND MRS HERBERT BARBS (Miss Dorothy Oswald) have spent a pleasant short vacation in the Isle of Man, and will resume tour with East Lynne at the Theatre Royal, Blyth, on Aug. 1. Mr Barrs will produce two pantomimes at Christmas, Cinderella and Aladdin.

MR ARTHUR LAW RAYNOR has been re-engaged by Mr Berte Coote for general management for The Fatal Wedding South Company. This makes his third re-engagement by Mr Coote.

THE Theatre Royal, Ryde, has been greatly improved under the new management of Mr J. Bannister Howard. The ground floor has been rearranged, the old orchestra and pit-stalls having been removed, and six rows of stalls having been added. The pit's capacity is increased by over a hundred, and a handsomely decorated entrance has been provided to the stalls. The decorations are in white and gold, relieved by tinges of red. The house has been recarpeted, refurnished, and generally reorganised, and, under Mr Howard's able rule, is likely to be well patronised.

AN action recently heard before Mr Justice Ridley was brought by Mr George Vesian Pic against Mr Rollo Balmain for damages for breach of contract. Mr William Whatley, instructed by Messrs Amery-Parkes and Powell, appeared on behalf of Mr Pic, and Mr Colam, instructed by Messrs John H. Mote and Sons, appeared for Mr Balmain. The action was brought in respect of a contract dated Sept. 4, 1903, under which contract Mr Balmain engaged the plaintiff to perform and produce his drama entitled The Foreign Woman at Barrow-in-Furness on Sept. 21, 1903. The contract contained the usual clause for the printing matter to be sent to Mr Balmain fourteen clear days previous to Sept. 21. The contract, although dated Sept. 4 did not reach Mr Pic until the 8th, and on Sept. 11 Mr Pic's agent telegraphed to Mr Balmain that he had ordered the printing, and to this telegram there was no reply. On Sept. 14 the printing had not arrived, and Mr Balmain cancelled the contract without giving any other notice. The printing itself reached Mr Balmain's theatre on Sept. 15, five clear days previous to the opening night. Mr Justice Ridley was of opinion that had the defendant intended to cancel the contract by reason of the printing not being delivered within the fourteen days he should have done so on Sept. 11 when he received the wire from Mr Pic's manager that he had ordered the printing. He further held that contracts of this kind ought to be carried out, as it was very essential in the interests of theatrical proprietors and especially touring companies, that engagements which were previously booked should be fulfilled by theatrical proprietors, and that the fourteen days' clause in the contract should be construed in a very liberal sense. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £25 and costs.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM, at the end of the performance which closed the season at the New Theatre last Wednesday night, said:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—To-night, thanks to you, goes up the twenty-eighth milestone of my journey in London management. I think that was double the period that Jacob had to serve before winning the maiden of his choice. More fortunate than he, during those twenty-eight years of service I have enjoyed your favour. But, en revanche, I have incurred the heavy debt of one who is paid in advance. Every year has enhanced my gratitude to you. It will be a few months before we shall have the honour to appear here again. We go professionally for a short time to the United States—so long my home in early years that, to my appreciation, it is but a short visit to old friends—and it is a source of great gratification to me that I am able to leave behind me tenants in whose hands the status and prosperity of the theatre will be preserved. In a few weeks Messrs Maude and Harrison will take up their abode here, and if they have only half the success that you and I wish them, and their merits and proud position entitle them to, they will not have cause to complain. Following them, Mr Terry and Miss Neilson will take command, and appear in a new play which has already received in the provinces the stamp of approval. To them also I know you will extend the hand of welcome, and for them also I prophesy a successful season; in fact, so promising appear these two ventures that, but for my precaution, I should be finding myself to-night in the awkward position of begging you that, whilst covering them with kindness, you will not keep me too long out of my own theatre. Having, however, protected myself from such possible disaster, Miss Mary Moore, my company, and myself will venture again to court the sunshine of that favour in which you have allowed us to bask so long. Till our return we bid you a grateful au revoir."

MR CHARLES MANNERS, in the short speech with which he brought his third season of English grand opera in London to a close on Saturday night at Drury-lane, said he considered that he had met with success—not, perhaps, all the success that he could have desired, but sufficient to warrant the promise that he would go on with his scheme for a permanent national English opera until he had conducted ten seasons. He concluded—"If nothing is actually achieved by that time I may try for another ten seasons."

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and MR PERCY HUTCHISON have made extensive arrangements for their autumn season. Their company with Mr Henry Neville will commence a long tour on August Bank Holiday at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, in The Two Orphans and The Ticket-of-Leave Man. Miss Annie Hughes will reopen the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, on August Bank Holiday in A Country Mouse, and play for this week only. Other tours of Cousin Kate (with Mr Yorke Stephens), Saturday to Monday, and The Money-makers will start on August Bank Holiday at Douglas, Manchester, and Llandudno. Mr Arthur Roberts has been engaged by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison for August Bank Holiday week at Douglas. Altogether there will be seven companies touring this autumn controlled by this energetic management, the arrangements being in the hands of Mr Percy Hutchison.

M. MAX VITERBO has beaten the record. He has written a one-act piece for the Grand Guignol, Paris—Le Meurtre de la Rue Chaptal. The piece lasts exactly three minutes, during which time three crimes are committed. One crime per minute!

MESSRS G. M. POLINI AND AUSTIN MELFORD will start their North and South companies of The Silver King on August Bank Holiday—the North company at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, and the South company, which will be confined to the London suburban theatres, at the Camden. Mr Austin Melford will resume the rôle of Wilfred Denver once more, a part in which he has gained for himself a wide reputation both in London and the provinces. The tours embrace nearly all the first-class theatres in the kingdom.

MR G. E. WILLIAMS, the well-known and popular resident-manager at the Aldershot Theatre, has become quite a tower of strength in the local cricket team. He has several centuries standing to his credit, and he is a most reliable player, and is always ripe for a substantial score. On Tuesday last he made 143 against Mr Charington's eleven at Hensham. Quite recently Mr Williams added to his fame by playing for Hampshire in the county match against Somerset, which was played at Weston-super-Mare early in the month.

THE Grand Theatre, Croydon, is not to be turned into a music hall, and will shortly be reopened under the management of Mr Lawson Lambert, whose long experience at the Brixton Theatre, and more recently at the King's, Hammersmith, should go far to assist his success.

THE Prince of Wales's Theatre, Clayton-square, Liverpool, which has been closed for some months, was put up for auction on Wednesday, but there being only one bid of £10,000, was withdrawn. It was stated that the offer was made on behalf of a well-known American theatre proprietor.

MR F. W. PURCELL will reopen the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, on Monday with Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company, headed by Mr Henry Neville. The handsome house has been newly decorated throughout, reseated, and reupholstered, and a new installation of electric light has been made.

M. JEAN JULLIEN, the French dramatist, author of La Mer, has finished Les Femmes, a new play of which the scene is laid in a factory where women are chiefly employed. The work is a psychological study.

THE lease of the Theatre Royal, Leamington, which has for many years been in the hands of Mr Henry Dundas, has been taken over by Mr Milton Bode and Mr Edward Compton. Before the house reopens, on Sept. 26, it will be redecorated and altered.

MR GEO. GREEN is making arrangements to replace the present theatre at Whitevale, Glasgow, by a handsome building capable of accommodating 2,000 persons, and replete with all the latest improvements.

THE Queen, Princess Victoria, and the Crown Prince of Greece were present at the performance of Aida at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, on the 22nd inst.—Their Majesties the King and Queen, Her Royal Highness Princess Victoria, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and His Royal Highness the Duke of Sparta were present at the performance of La Bohème at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, on Saturday night.

SOME time ago M. Deval, of the Paris Athénée, accepted a comedy by Madame Clermont called Les Milliardaires. It never saw the footlights, however, and authoress and manager fought the matter out in a court of law. M. Franck has now read the piece and thinks of opening the season at the Paris Gymnase with it.

THAT strong drama The Crimson Club is being played this week at the Empire, Dundee. It abounds in sensational situations and is in the hands of a powerful company, chief amongst whom may be mentioned Mr Percy Shaw and Miss Bertha Cousins, who excel in the lighter scenes. Mr Livesey enacts the part of Richard Fenton, and Mr Herbert Belmore is a capital Herbert Selby.

MR EDWARD TERRY will commence his annual provincial tour on August Bank Holiday at the Devonshire-park Theatre, Eastbourne, appearing in The House of Burnside, The Passport, Sweet Lavender, and other plays in his repertory. The company supporting Mr Terry will include Miss Kate Mills, Misses Daisy Murch, Olive Wilton, Vara Renny, Beatrice Terry, Clara Earle, Olga Kay; Messrs A. Hylton Allen, Arthur Cornell, Fred Knight, George Howard, and Mr Allan Pollock, with Mr Cornell as stage director. The business-management is once more in the hands of Mr Arthur Graeme. Mr Terry's tour will last till Dec. 10, and in the following week he will sail for New York, to open at the Princess's Theatre there on Jan. 9, in The House of Burnside, under the direction of Messrs Sam S. and Lee Shubert. Mr Terry has arranged with Mr Gaston Mayer, who has been associated in London with Madame Sarah Bernhardt and Madame Rejane, to look after his interests in America and represent him in the States during his season there.

THE Rev. Forbes Phillips, vicar of Gorleston, revived his pantomime, Cinderella, at the Gorleston Pavilion, on Monday night, to raise funds for the parish church. The scenery and dresses were all of local manufacture, and 114 Gorleston children, from four to ten years of age, took part in the piece.

THE enterprise of the actresses who sold the autographed programmes and photographs of the cast of Mr Gilbert's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern at the matinée at the Garrick Theatre on the 19th inst. realised enough to pay the entire expenses of the matinée, leaving the whole receipts of the performance for the benefit of the Bushey Heath Cottage Hospital.

MR ARTHUR BOURCHIER will produce for the first time in England, on Monday, Aug. 29, at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, a new play, in four acts, by Gladys Unger, on the subject of Richard Brinsley Sheridan. The cast will include Miss Elfrida Clements, Miss Rose Dupré, Miss Lena Halliday, Miss June Van Buskirk, Mr Junius B. Booth (a nephew of Edwin Booth), Mr Hubert Carter, Mr A. E. Iveson, Mr George Lane, and Mr Jerrold Robertshaw. The last-named gentleman will be responsible for the production.

"AN ACTOR'S ROMANCE" will be played at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday. Since its original production in February last, the story has been greatly strengthened, and the American incidents have been altered. Practically it is a new play, and has been relicensed by the Lord Chamberlain.

IN connection with the proposal before the London County Council for a memorial to Shakespeare, it may be remembered that a similar project was before the metropolitan public in 1846, when Mr J. E. Reid, Kensington, addressed a letter on the subject to Macready, who replied as follows:—"Sir,—I beg to acknowledge with many thanks your obliging note of yesterday. With your feeling in regard to Shakespeare no one can sympathise more ardently than I do, but it constantly occurs in life that we are attached to different means whilst we hold the same end in view. To do honour to him whose genius has been the benefactor and is the glory of his country—I should say of human nature—must be the desire of everyone who has the intellect and sensibility to appreciate and enjoy his works; it has ever been mine. But I do not think the storied urn or monumental bust or such testimonial the proper tribute to his memory. I bow to Milton's judgment when he asks

> What needs my Shakespeare for his honoured bones,
> The labour of an age, in piled stones, &c.

The best national tribute that could be offered to his genius would be a national theatre to represent his works, supported by the nation for its own entertainment and edification. But, as a living poet sings, 'we are selfish men,' and this will not be, at least during my life; and I should act against my judgment in offering any perishable record of stone or marble to his memory, who 'built the great verse that lives, and shall live for ever!'"

MR JOHN F. ASCHE, having acquired the entire rights of The World drama from the executors of the late Sir Augustus Harris, is engaged in booking a tour of the principal theatres of Great Britain. It is ten years since this piece was revived at the Princess's, so that by a large proportion of the playgoing public it will be seen for the first time when it is presented in November next to suburban audiences.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy, on Tuesday, before Mr E. Leadham Hough, senior official receiver, the first meeting of creditors of Wm. Stephen Bexfield, described as of Torrington-square, W.C., was held. The debtor, who is also known as William Villion, states that he has been connected with the theatrical profession as an acrobat, gymnast, and pantomimist practically the whole of his life. He attributes his failure to loss sustained in a theatrical venture, and returns his liabilities at £227, his only asset being cash 8s. 1d. There was no proposal before the meeting, and the matter remained in the hands of the official receiver to be wound up in bankruptcy.

IN the Flemish Theatre at Brussels, on the 24th inst., while a popular play was being performed by the De Yerbroedering Society, one of the actors who was supposed to make an attack on a fellow artist drew from his pocket a real knife and struck the performer in the breast. The latter attempted to defend himself with his left hand, which, however, was cut through.

IN a contest between the George Edwardes Golfing Society and Mr Robert Evett's team, played over the Northwood links, last week, the society suffered defeat in the singles by 2½ points, and in the four-ball foursomes by 2½ points, Mr Evett's side thus winning on the day's play by 4½ points.

AT Ahlbert, Germany, on the 22nd inst., at a concert, the costume of a young lady caught fire by contact with a barber's spirit lamp, and she walked from the cloak-room into the hall, where her appearance produced a panic. The fire was, however, easily extinguished, and the young lady was only slightly burnt on the arm and forehead. The audience, in spite of the fire being extinguished, made a rush for the doors, and six persons were injured in jumping out of the windows.

MADAME MELBA will be the principal artist at the first concert of the season at the Blackpool Winter Gardens on Sunday.—Mr Gordon Starkey will commence his fourth tour with A Message from Mars on Monday.

A NEW farcical comedy, in one act, entitled He, She, and the Major, was produced at the Surrey Theatre on Friday, the 22nd inst. The scene is a room in the Golden Cross Hotel, and the period 1774. There are only three characters in the piece, the Major, the Captain, and Mabel, and they are all staying at the inn. The Major pays a visit to the Captain's apartment to invite him to join a merry party of roysterers downstairs, but finds the room unoccupied. At this moment a young lady enters and accidentally closes the door, which locks automatically. To her dismay, she discovers she has entered the wrong room. The arrival of the Captain and the concealment of the lady behind the screen leads to some funny situations, but a satisfactory solution of the difficulty is found in the fact that the fair intruder is the Captain's wife, who has come to England unknown to her husband. The characters were excellently played by Mr Harry Parker as the Major, Mr Leo Seeley as the Captain, and Miss Evelyn Devonport as the fascinating Mabel.

THE OPERA SEASON.

If the opera season this year has not been prolific in novelties it has deserved well of the public on account of the excellence of the ensemble and the variety of the works performed. The operas of Wagner, given under Dr. Richter, have been extremely interesting, owing to the restoration of passages which less patient and less competent conductors have omitted. Other revivals have proved successful, the most striking being Verdi's Un Ballo in Maschera, an opera of high merit, alike remarkable for its dramatic power and its refined and expressive melodies. With respect to Mozart's operas, as presented by Dr. Richter, it may be questioned whether that famous conductor was not somewhat too rigid in his treatment of that delightful composer, whose graceful melodies have hitherto been given with greater freedom of style than under Dr. Richter, the orchestra being permitted to indulge the vocalists to a greater extent in the matter of tempo. But in all technical requirements the syndicate at Covent-garden has been worthy of the highest commendation, and the singers in Mozart's operas have been creditable to the management. Some adverse criticism has been directed against the syndicate in consequence of the failure to produce Beethoven's Fidelio, but in this case we can fully exonerate them, the simple fact being that Madame Ternina, who was to have played Leonora in that opera, was compelled, owing to ill-health, to resign the part, and also La Tosca The new operas have, it is true, not proved altogether attractive. Hélène, by M. Saint-Saëns, was an attempt to give new life to a classic legend, the interest in which had long faded, while Salomé, by M. Massenet, even with the splendid abilities of Madame Calvé in representing the chief character, failed because the Scriptural subject would not bear the transformation adopted. But no fault could be found with the manner of their presentation. We next proceed to chronicle the absolute achievements at Covent-garden, and the amount of solid work and brilliant talent employed in these representations places the Royal Opera in the foremost rank of lyrical establishments. It may be questioned whether there is an opera house in Europe that could point to such a record as the following:—Carmen, Faust, Pagliacci. Rigoletto, La Bohème have each been performed six times; Lohengrin, Die Meistersinger, Tannhäuser, and Tristan, five times; Aida Un Ballo in Maschera, four times; Cavalleria Rusticana, Don Giovanni, Le Nozze di Figaro, La Traviata, and La Navarraise, three times; and Romeo, Philémon et Baucis, Hélène, and Salomé, twice.

In new vocalists the syndicate has been exceptionally lucky. Fräulein Russ, Fräulein Kurz, and Mdlle. Destinn were the principal ladies. Fräulein Russ made a hit in Un Ballo in Maschera, her acting and singing being equally effective. Fräulein Kurz at once established herself as a brilliant and expressive vocalist in Rigoletto; as the page, in Un Ballo; and as Elizabeth, in Tannhäuser. Mdlle. Destinn won universal favour in Pagliacci, Cavalleria, and Aïda. Mdlle. Plaichinger, Miss Alice Neilsen, and Mdlle. Réog may also be credited with good work. As for Signor Caruso, he may be considered the first of living tenors. M. Dalmorès has greatly improved. The emphatic success of Madame Kirkby Lunn must on no account be overlooked. That a lady, formerly a student at the Royal College, has taken so prominent a position in so short a time speaks volumes for English talent and English training. Finally we must speak in terms of the highest praise of the splendid ability of conductors, orchestra, and chorus, while the efforts of those responsible for the stage-management call for hearty recognition. While behind the curtain the best results were achieved, in front of the house Mr Neil Forsyth has studied the comfort and convenience of the Royal Opera patrons.

The Moody-Manners company have done great things in spite of many difficulties. The revival of The Jewess would have done credit to any opera house, and Wagner's Flying Dutchman was also a notable achievement. The season ended on Saturday last, with Faust, in which Mr Manners played Mephistopheles, and Madame Fanny Moody Marguerite. Although to some extent a pecuniary sufferer, the gallant artist and manager promises to continue his efforts on behalf of English opera for the next ten years. He will be more successful than this year, we feel convinced, if he opens his compaign later in the season, when the rivalry of Covent-garden has ceased and when lovers of music returning from the holidays will welcome opera in English. But whenever he next appeals to the public we heartily wish him the success he deserves.

PRINCESS LOUISE and suite were present at the New Theatre on Wednesday evening, the last night of Sir Charles Wyndham's season in London.

FUNERAL OF MR. WILSON BARRETT.

The Hampstead Cemetery is one of the most pleasantly situated of all the burial grounds of the metropolis. Placed in the beautiful Finchley-road district, the salubrious breezes of Hampstead sway its fine foliage and gently wave the grass in melancholy rhythm over the green graves. On Monday, the elements seemed to sympathise with the sadness of the occasion. Tears of rain stood in the eyes of the flowers which affectionate hands had planted over the last resting places of departed friends and relatives. From the drooping branches came fast-falling drops, as though the trees sobbed in sorrow for the death of the much-loved actor. The song of the birds was hushed; and even the suburban sparrow pruned himself gloomily on the umbrageous boughs. It was a sad and sodden scene, yet one which was quite in tune with the unhappy occasion. Nature and nature's children wept for the farmer's son—for poor Wilson Barrett.

The funeral of Mr Wilson Barrett took place at Hampstead Cemetery on Monday afternoon, and in spite of the heavy rain there was a large assemblage in the pretty burial ground, the principal point of attraction being the flowers which had been sent by sorrowing friends, and which were spread upon an open space of green turf at some distance from the grave itself. The mourners and other friends of the deceased actor assembled shortly before noon at All Saints' Church, Norfolk-square, where the body had been brought over night. The coffin was of polished oak with brass mountings, and a plate bore the inscription:—"Wilson Barrett. Born Feb 18, 1846. Died July 22, 1904." The coffin was placed in a glass-panelled hearse, which was preceded by another hearse containing a large number of wreaths, and was followed by over fifty carriages. The mourners were:—Miss Barrett (daughter), Messrs Frank and Alfred Barrett (sons), Rev. F. Heath and Mrs Heath (brother and sister-in-law), Miss Kathleen Barrett, Miss Carrie Barrett, Mr Leo Barrett, Mr George Barrett (nieces and nephews), Sister Grace, Miss Latimer, Miss E. Latimer, Mr H. Armour, Mr Addison Bright, Mr Malcolm Watson, Mr H. Armitage, Mr H. De Solla, and Mr W. Mitchell.

Among others present, either at the church or by the graveside, were Sir Squire Bancroft, Miss Julia Neilson, Sir Edward Clarke, K.C., Mr Forbes Robertson, Mr Geo. R. Sims, Mr Arthur Bourchier, Mr Richard Butler, Mr Arthur Collins, Mr Martin Harvey, Mr Ben Greet, Mr Austin Melford, Miss Frances Ivor, Mr Frank Motley Wood, Mr Pinero, Mr Frank Lindon, Mr Frank Curzon, Mr Royston Keith, Mr Leonard Calvert, Mr Charles Cathcart, Mr J. Monkhouse, Mr Seymour Hodges, Mr Hayden Coffin, Mr Alfred Rivers, Mr Harry Paulton, Mr Edward Irwin, Mr Walter Joyce, Mr Daniel M'Carthy, Mr W. A. M'Neil, Miss Emily Soldene, Mr and Mrs Charles Lander, Mr J. Graham, Mr David Allen, Mr Wybart Reade, Mr J. F. Mathews, Mr P. Burton, Mr G. A. Highland, Mr H. De Solla, Mr Ambrose Manning, Mr Carter Edwards, Mr T. W. Percyval, Mr Henry Gwyther (representing Mr and Mrs F. R. Benson), Mr J. A. E. Malone (representing the Australian managers and Smith and Wheeler, of South Africa), and about a hundred members of Mr Barrett's company.

Upon the coffin was placed a floral pall, composed of white asters edged with the feathery blooms of heliotrope, and in the midst of the mass of white was written in letters of violet sweet-peas, "From his company." A cross of flowers reaching the whole length of the coffin bore the inscription "In Honour and Love.—The Family." Conspicuous amongst the floral tributes of regard was a massive star of flowers. It was mounted on an easel, and was composed entirely of white asters and lilies-of-the-valley, with a wreath of water-lilies at the foot. The card attached was inscribed "To the memory of Wilson Barrett, from Marie Corelli. The last tribute of a long and faithful friendship. Farewell." Wreaths were also sent by Sir Henry Irving, Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry, Mr and Mrs Horace Hodges, Mr and Mrs Chute (Prince's Theatre, Bristol), Mr Ben Greet, Mr Charles Price, Mr and Mrs Cooper Cliffe, East Lynne North Company, Miss Haldée Wright, Mr and Mrs Addison Bright, Mr G. M. Polini, "Carrie and Kathleen" (nieces) Mr J. C. Williamson and Australian managers, Mr B. F. Wheeler and Mr G. H. Smith, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr F. H. Westmacott, Miss Mary Poole, Mr J. L. Toole, Miss Lilah M'Carthy, Miss Evelyn Weeden, Mr R. Butler and Mr H. Chance Newton, Mr G. R. Sims, Mr and Mrs Charles Gay, Mr and Mrs Arthur Bourchier, Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mr and Mrs. L. Lablache, made in the family vault, in which two daughters of the deceased are buried—Ellen Anna (the eldest), who died May 20, 1892, and Kathleen Margaret, who died Aug. 2, 1894. At the foot of the tombstone are the words:—"And there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor shall there be any more pain.—Rev. XII., 4." The vault, which had been lined with evergreens, is near that of Mr George Barrett, Mr Wilson Barrett's brother, whose remains were interred here in August, 1894, and also close to that of Mr Edwin Long, R.A. Many hundreds of people were present when the committal portion of the service was read, in the midst of a drenching shower of rain. By the death of Wilson Barrett the dramatic world has suffered a severe and greatly regretted loss.

THE complimentary matinée to Mr Leslie Hughes, given at the Camden on the 22nd inst., passed off most successfully. Many well-known artists contributed to the attractive programme. Among those who appeared were Miss Vesta Victoria, whose quaint ditties were, as usual, well received; Miss Marie Dainton, who scored with some of her clever imitations; Miss Millie Hylton, who introduced her latest song, "Navaho;" and Mr George Mozart, who displayed his customary humour. Mr John Le Hay came with his amusing ventriloquial figure, Mrs Cecil Raleigh recited Rudyard Kipling's "Contract," Miss Decima Moore sang, and little Miss Gertie Gitana introduced a new scena, A Schoolgirl's Holiday, which afforded the opportunity for some dainty dancing. Tiny Miss Dolly M'Calla presented a charming appearance as a Japanese, while the Steinway Glee Singers sang pleasingly songs, duets, and quartets of a nautical character, and the Original Caledonian Boys, under Professor Gustave Stephan, played neatly. The list also included the names of Miss Zena Dare, Little Max Darewski, Madame Amina Goodwin, Mr W. E. Whitehouse, Miss Daisy Jerome, Signor Tito Mattei, and Mr Austin Melford, who presented Mr Hughes with a gold watch and chain, on behalf of the committee. The accompaniments were in the hands of Madame E Hastings-Warren and Miss Muriel Smith, while the conductors comprised M. Napoleon Lambelet, Mr Joseph Nurnberger, and Mr Walter Slaughter. Mr Walter Maxwell was the hon. secretary, and the stage was under the direction of Messrs Frank Harrison, F. Llewellyn, and Guy Waller.

MISS CONSTANCE ELGIN has been re-engaged for the third time by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow to play Cigarette, in Under Two Flags, commencing at Brighton on August Bank Holiday.—Miss Florence Smithers, who has been appearing with such success as Jane, in Mr Edward Marris's Dandy Doctor company, since she created the part over four years ago, has been engaged by Mr Oscar Barrett for a comedy part in the pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester.—Mr Eardley Turner will return to England early in August, having concluded a highly successful Australian engagement under Mr Beerbohm Tree's management.

THE CONQUESTS' FAREWELL.

The principal item in the "final" performance on Saturday of Mr George Conquest's farewell week at the Surrey Theatre was two scenes from Mankind, in which Mr Geo. Conquest revived old memories by his powerful delineation of the character of Daniel Groodge. Mr Charles Cruikshanks in his original creation of Peter Sharpley, Mr Ernest Leicester as Edmund and Miss Sophy Shenton as Mrs Bickerton also appeared; Mr Ernest Leicester and company played in The Last Shot; and Mr Arthur Conquest gave his clever impersonation of the man-monkey Zacky, supported by Messrs H. M'Clellan, Ernest E. Norris, W. Stevens, and Misses Cissie Bezant and Rona Merrick Miss Maud Nelson gained an ovation by her delightful rendering of "All pals together." Mr Ernest Ball's fine voice was heard to advantage in "The Warning Bell," and extra delights were provided by the Mascots, Will Tule, Rag and Rag, Harry Hyde, Patty O'Brien, Ernest Norris, and the Sisters M'Kellan.

It was near midnight when the stage-manager, Mr Charles East, rang up the curtain on the final scene. Mr George Conquest was seen surrounded by the whole of his staff, and many actors and actresses who have won their laurels on the Surrey's boards.

MR ERNEST LEICASTER said:—Dear old guv'nor,—

To everything there comes at last an end;
Now has come the moment when, by friend to friend,
However heart and mind and soul rebel,
There must needs be spoken that sad word "Farewell."

These words express all that I and my brother and sister artistes feel at this moment, and our regret is heightened by the fact that this is to be our final appearance on these historic boards.

MR GEORGE CONQUEST, who was received with an ovation, said:—Brother and sister artistes, ladies and gentlemen, friends and patrons,—I've known you all for the past twenty-three years, and a thousand words would not express my sincere regrets at leaving you. Although this is the last time I shall be with you, for which I feel heartily sorry, I can assure you that it is not my fault. It is largely owing to the never-ceasing restrictions and demands of the London County Council that it is impossible to carry on this theatre. The latest London County Council regulations causing so many extra gangways to be made, and not allowing any standing at the back, have reduced the seating capacity and the takings of the house considerably. I have to add to this the large increase in the rental that my landlords feel compelled to make owing to the large outlay they have been put to in structural alterations during the past year or two. Although always on the best terms with them, I find it impossible under these conditions to keep this theatre on. (Voice.—"Try and come back again"). All right, lads, I'll try. Before ringing the curtain down for the last time I have a very important thing to do, that is, to thank the staff and all connected with this theatre. It is to their zeal and devotion that the Conquests have to attribute their continued good fortune and success at the Surrey. Many of them on the stage at the present moment came with my father from the old Grecian Theatre in the City-road. Since we have been established here many famous artistes have trod the boards of this stage, among whom may be mentioned Dan Leno and Herbert Campbell, whose death we all regret. Naturally, we have had many touring companies here, some good, some otherwise. That, of course, I could not help; but one thing I must say, that during the whole twenty-three years of our tenancy the various travelling managers have always found good reason to be satisfied at the end of their stay. I think I can safely assert that during my tenancy here I have never made an enemy and never had to find a serious fault with one of my staff. On behalf of my brothers, sisters, and myself I tender the staff my hearty thanks from the bottom of my heart, I would not like to say that I am entirely severing my connection with those before me this evening, who have supported me so long and well, as, owing to my friend Mr D'Esterre, of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and Mr Ernest Norris having made arrangements for my brothers and myself to appear at that theatre for three weeks in September next, I hope to see you all again. To-night my character in Mankind is the last I shall ever play on these boards, and now has come the time when I have to bid you all "Farewell."

Amidst ringing and enthusiastic cheers, in which the note of deep regret was heard, the curtain was rung down, only to rise again and again. The depth of sincere feeling was reached when, at the final fall of the curtain, the audience rose en masse, and, led by the orchestra, sang "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

Mr J. P. Dryden was surrounded on Wednesday evening by a circle of admiring friends in the concert room at the Goldhawk, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's-bush, where a presentation was made to him on the occasion of his departure on a long tour. Dr. Peake, the chairman, handed to Mr Dryden a massive gold ring and an engraved "Round Robin" expressing heartfelt wishes for his success and speedy return. The following gentlemen were present:—Messrs R. Braithwaite, T. Stebbing, Walter Reynolds, T. Martindill, F. Carlisle, E. Wingate, Tom Taylor, Dr. Reid, Alderman Apsey, Councillor Davis, W. Clements, J. M. Troughton, A. J. Heard, J. Detliv, Henry Gilbert, W. Dyer, T. Evans, Wm. Acton, A. Chandler, H. Tripp Edgar, Nigel Henry, Ernest Payne, Wm. Hartford, H. Rogers, R. H. Rogers, John Gray.

At the Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Wigan, an excellent programme is provided this week. Signor Pepi as a quick-change artiste is clever in his reproductions, and Arthur Lennard, of "Skylark" fame, is a popular vocalist. Georgie May, a pretty singer of acceptable songs; Weston and May, in a musical comedy act entitled Married Life; Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne; and Frank Maura, foot equilibrist, are admirable entertainers. The Bretons in a pantomimic sketch, The Tramp's Picnic; Little Dando, a 3ft. 6in. high comedian; and Herbert Maden, character vocalist, are also very capable artistes.

"The Era" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

Mr Horace Marriott, secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, has received a cheque for £25 from Mr A. W. Matcham, of the Empire, Birmingham, being the amount he was enabled to obtain from the proceeds of the Theatrical Sports for the benefit of the Fund, for which he is a constant and successful worker. Mr Marriott has also received the sum of £9 3s. 3d. from Mr F. Weeks, being the amount he has collected in the pence-box at the South London Palace. Although Mr Weeks has been so seriously ill (now happily recovered), he never relaxed his charitable efforts, and his pence-box was a matter of constant solicitude. The amount he has collected in less than twelve months now approaches the handsome sum of £50. Here is a noble example of what can be done! Mr Marriott has also received £1 10s. pence-box collection from Mr Fred Coles, of the Lyric Theatre of Varieties, Liverpool.

Much interest was evinced in the cricket match which took place on the 22nd inst. at Freeman's Athletic Grounds, Denmark-hill, S.E., between Napoli and Cohen's eleven and Pacey and Reeves's eleven. The former team scored an easy victory, making 102 in their first innings. On reaching the excellent total of 118 for four in their second Napoli's men declared. The losers scored 54 in each innings.

In a paragraph which appeared on this page last week Mr Arthur J. Barclay was referred to as "acting-manager" of the Walthamstow Palace. Of course this was a mere inadvertence, as all the world knows that Mr Barclay is manager of that establishment.

Sanford and Lyons, after a long successful run in town, leave for a seaside run of eight weeks, returning later to the Syndicate halls. They have refused four offers for London pantomimes, having been secured by Mr Carpenter for the New Grand Theatre, Brighton.

A CHAT WITH CHARLES MANNERS.

VIEWS ON NATIONAL OPERA.

Mr Charles Manners is one of the most candid and straightforward of men, and he has something very candid and very straightforward to say concerning his recent efforts in the interests of English national opera and his idea to establish on a firm basis a theatre for the production of such classical pieces as those which were recently staged at Drury-lane. A representative of this paper waited upon him the other morning, and after a busy rehearsal was over Mr Manners, in his usual brisk, decisive manner, entered into conversation and came to the point at once.

"A man who has had forty years' experience of the profession," he began, "told me that the best way to start educating the public in the direction of grand opera would be to send choruses out all over London in order that people might understand what they would hear at a later date when they went to witness the finished performance. Let me give you my own idea of the whole thing. I will undertake to say that there are not more than 100,000 people in London who possess any musical knowledge, musical taste and musical love, but I will further undertake to say that those 100,000 are second to none in the whole world in their enthusiasm for the highest class of music. I will get you 500 fellows outside the profession who will set to work and play Siegfried without the music. Those are the people who support the promenades. There are, I daresay, quite 4,000,000 in London who have never seen a grand opera in their lives. How are we to educate them? The Press and all true Wagnerites recommend the playing of Tristan and Isolda and Siegfried; in other words, such a system would be diametrically opposed to every common-sense principle that one employs in educating a person up to a certain high pitch. That is one thing I have got to fight against. For instance, The Bohemian Girl in the eyes of most of the critics is not high enough. I say it is too high for these four millions, for they have never seen it yet, and the highest notion they have of art is 'Let me like a soldier fall', sung in a music hall. My idea is the opening act of The Bohemian Girl, then Dan Leno; the second act, and then Marie Lloyd; the third act, and a troupe of jugglers. Later on we could ask these variety performers to come fewer and fewer times, and so get the audiences to understand the difference between grand opera and vaudeville. If you do not believe what I say, go and ask the average shop-walker, or the driver of an omnibus, or a cabman for their opinions. There are many hundreds of people who have passed their examinations in different subjects, and yet who have never been to the opera. They tell you that not only have they not been, but that they think it it something far too serious to witness for purposes of recreation. I would like to lure them into seeing a plain little opera, and then raise them by degrees higher and higher. I thought when I first commenced this season at Drury-lane that a true Wagnerite would say, 'The Manners wants me to go to see The Bohemian Girl. I cannot do it, but I will send my cook!' Then, after a while the said cook would go into the gallery to see Siegfried, and we should in time be playing operas for all the world to see.

"They said my prices were too low," continues Mr Manners. "Well, the shilling and the two-shilling seats were the worst filled in the whole house. I was told, too, that my répertoire was not large enough. Well, granted that I ran the full three months, that only meant Tannhauser twelve or thirteen times. If London is so musical and can stand over three years of The Chinese Honeymoon, why is it that it cannot stand a dozen performances of Tannhauser—if it is so musical! Again, the people in my company at one part of the season got to know the members of the audience by face, but subsequently they had almost got to know their names. Those were the people who came in sixteen, eighteen, and twenty times—people who couldn't afford to give the heavy prices of Covent-garden, so they paid their few shillings and came to Drury-lane. If I had had three millions like those to help me I should have been all right."

Mr Manners related that one member of his company had a son employed in one of the largest linen-draper's establishments in London. The youth prevailed on three of his fellow workers to witness Martha, which was being performed one Saturday night. They liked it so much that they got thirty young men to come in on the following Saturday. The opera was Lohengrin. Those thirty have now registered a vow never to go to grand opera again. The other three have also registered a vow that they will not go again unless they find out for certain that the opera is as simple and as pretty as Martha. "The son of the gentleman I employ," says Mr Manners, "came to me and said, 'I thought that it the other fellows liked such a simple thing as Martha they would simply worship such a glorious work as Lohengrin.' I asked the youth how old he was and how often he had seen Lohengrin. He told me his age was twenty-one, and that he had known Lohengrin ever since he could remember. 'Yes,' I replied, 'that is it.'"

Mr Manners complains bitterly that the critics and the Wagnerites will not let him educate the public. He does not wish to be disrespectful, but he wants to make his case perfectly clear. "Look at General Booth," he exclaims. "Where is he at the present moment? Look at the millions of people he has done good for—not by working in cathedrals but by going to the people and saying, 'Let us have a little song,' and by talking to them simply. What is the result? There are thousands and even millions who would never have entered a church at all but who now visit his different modest establishments. So it is with people visiting grand opera. There is no unanimity; there are jealousies, schisms, no one to help. I have said over and over again that if a committee thinks at any moment that I am not a fit person to do this business, and that Mr Jones or Mr Brown will do better, then let him do it and I promise to give him a cheque for £2,000 to help him on his way. Now I spend £100 in circularising the profession, musical publishers, &c., and I thought I might have about twenty people who would each pay £1 and come in and help. I do not know how many of the profession came in, but I should say about five or six. I spent £100 to get them in!

"Now, should the English national opera be a success, who are the first to benefit by it? I have given seven weeks of my season up to now, and between 200 and 300 English people have been making their living during that period who would probably have been doing nothing until the autumn or winter came on. In Milan £100,000 is spent annually upon grand opera, and if they can do that in such a place, why cannot it be done in London, a city ten times as large? The profession cannot see that. In fact, they are the ones who have been writing to me for free passes more than anybody else. If I had been running the theatre as a private speculation of my own, I could have given them as many free tickets as they desired. But this was English national opera, and when I explained the matter to them, and asked them to help me, some of them appeared to be slighted. If every member of the profession had paid two shillings each, and witnessed one of these performances during the past few weeks, I should have been in a position to pay all expenses and put money by for the benefit of English national opera. Well, it only means that I shall give another season in the near future, get some more money, and ultimately we shall be strong enough to show the wealthy people of the country what we are able to do. I say that the English opera has never yet been performed in anything like the way it should be performed. It has not been made pleasant enough for people; it has not been lively enough, pretty enough, well enough sung or staged. You have it perfect in the Italian opera and at popular prices. That's where the rub comes in. The bitterest day that will ever come to national opera in this country will be the day when any subsidy whatever is given; it must work out its own salvation."

The way in which Mr Manners would put his scheme of English national opera into something approaching a permanent form is this. He would get professional people of good standing to amalgamate themselves into a combination something similar to a club. Each person would pay a fixed amount every year, say £5. A committee of three men, who thoroughly understood the profession and who knew the wages that were paid to individual artistes, would be employed regularly, and it would be the duty of these men to spend a couple of hours every day deciding upon the amount of salary to be paid to the artistes according to their position in London. The decision of the trio, or of two of them, would have to be considered final, and the artists would previously enter into an agreement to that effect. Another part of the business of the committee would be the opening of letters and the answering of enquiries regarding concerts, &c.

In reply to the statements of his critics that his prices are too low, Mr Manners informs us that had Drury-lane have been filled every night at his recent moderate charges for admission, he would have been able to make a profit of some £1,400 a week. This would have meant, he computes, that he could have put £200 per week more into his cast, £100 per week into his band, and £100 each per week into the costumes and scenery, leaving a balance of £900 to be disposed of. "With this sum in hand," he says, "I would approach half a dozen celebrated singers and ask each one if he or she would kindly accept from £150 to £200 for appearing on one night in the week. If I could manage that on a six-shilling stall, why should I charge 10s. 6d.?"

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, June 21.—The Mishaps of Mr Dooley is the pièce de résistance at the Palace, the several parts being taken by Mr Tom Nawn, Miss Dorothy Drew, and Mr Martin Hagan. The sketch, against the playing of which there is as yet no protest from theatre managers, was received uproariously, and evidently delighted Mr Rial's many patrons. The Tossing Austins still amuse and astonish. The Musical Johnstons, Miss Katharine Dahl, Mr Pete Baker, and other artistes appeared with Miss Dorothy Drew in Upon a Cocoanut Tree.

"The Rose of the Riviera," increases in popularity and the "second edition" drew an immense audience an Saturday night to the Lyceum. Miss May Beatty, Mr Edward Lauri, Miss Garstang, Miss Mixon, Mr M'Naughton, and the Brothers C. and W. Bovis introduced novelties, all of which proved most acceptable to Mr George Stephenson's audience. The last three sang "Three men they went a-hunting," and were recalled six times.

"The Darling of the Gods" is in its last few nights, and Miss Maud Jeffries will always be remembered in her charming impersonation of Yo-San in this beautiful production. It is difficult to conceive how Mr J. C. Williamson can recoup himself for his lavish outlay on this play. On Saturday Mr Williamson's Royal comic opera company will follow Mr Tree's company in A Country Girl with Mr Haigh Jackson as the new leading singer.

"The Price of Peace" at the Royal is in its second week, and every night Mr W. E. Baker increases his popularity by his fine acting as the Earl of Dermont. The wedding in Westminster Abbey, the House of Commons and skating carnival are realistic, and no change of bill is likely to be necessary for some time to come.

"The Marriage of Kitty" at the Criterion pleases everybody. The excellent acting of Miss Florence Hamer and the distinct success of Miss Rose Musgrove are the chief interests. Mr H. H. Vincent is now rehearsing Mr J. C. Williamson's comedy company in Cousin Kate, to be produced on the 25th. In addition, Miss Rose Musgrove will be seen in the part of Madame Butterfly, in the playlet of that name.

Miss Ada Hatchwell is in hospital, and her old club "The Haslucks" is arranging a benefit entertainment on her behalf.

On Thursday, at the Southwark County Court, before Judge Addison, K.C., Mrs Ellen Williams, professionally known as Nell Raymond, an actress, sued Chas. Henry Houghton, agent, of 29, Waterloo-road, S.E., to recover £2 5s. The defendant was not present, but wrote offering to pay 5s. per month. The plaintiff said the defendant engaged her to take a leading part in a play that he was touring. She went from London to Wolverhampton to open at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, but when she arrived there she found another lady playing the part. This lady, she subsequently learned, had paid the defendant a premium of £25. She refused to stand down, and consequently plaintiff returned and sued for her expenses. His Honour—I am afraid he is a bad lot. The Plaintiff—In all he received £36 as premiums. His Honour—There are evidently ladies who are prepared to pay to play. The Plaintiff—Yes. In this case the lady paid £10 of the agreed £25, and when I told her that I had been engaged she wired to her solicitor not to pay the defendant any more money; but he forestalled the telegram and got the balance of the money. His Honour—Evidently you have been very badly treated. I will give you a forthwith order for £2 5s. and costs, but whether you will get any money is doubtful. Judgment was entered, with immediate execution.

Mr Geo. Bernard has sustained a severe loss in the death of his father, who passed away, after an hour's illness, at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The deceased gentleman was well-known in professional circles.

NORTH SHIELDS.

Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company with The Stolen Birthright has been cordially received here this week. Mr Draycott submits a powerful interpretation of Stephano. Mr H. B. Peppin is a capital representative of Prince Antonio, and Mr Robert Watson acts admirably as Count Mario Toddeo. Mr C. Quinton Fulford is an able exponent of Andrew Celsi, Mr Wilfred E. Brandon is clever as Pedro, Miss Lydia Donovan is a charming Miranda, Miss Celestine Brandon makes the most of Nita, Miss Alma Henson is satisfactory as Fadelia Salvati, and the other characters are well sustained.

New Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr William Mould.—The Three Donals, the modern gladiators, are the principal attraction here, and their clever act is enthusiastically received. Little Zola, eccentric comedian, is as popular as ever; and the Five Silvesters, comedians, cause much laughter; Cyclo, trick cyclist, performs some smart feats; Miss Connie Barry, serio, does well; Messrs Murphy and Blake are clever knockabout comedians, and the Bio-Photoscope is still received with favour.

NOTTINGHAM.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—Will Evans gives a couple of capital sketches, his best effort being shown in The Barmaid's Lament, which causes roars of laughter. Mark Anthony is a man of many parts, and his turn is highly appreciated. Miss Lucy Clarke gains hearty approval for her songs, especially in "Rory O'More." One of the best items is supplied by the Griffiths Brothers, whose comic wrestling bout adds much to the hilarity. A smart entertainment is provided by Bonnie Goodwin and her piccaninnies, the youngsters showing more than average cleverness. Miss Minnie Palmer and Mr Sydney Harcourt are associated in a new sketch, A Husband's Diary, in which their histrionic ability is given full play. Les Voces are well rewarded for some pleasing duets. The vivacity of Peggy Pryde is ably demonstrated in a couple of songs. The acrobatic feats of Damm Brothers are both novel and skilful, and Tiny Arnold is accorded a good reception.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company is engaged in the congenial task of realising the humorous possibilities of that popular farcical comedy, The Private Secretary. The diverting character of the Rev. Robert Spalding is entrusted to Mr Donald Price-Evans, whose droll appearance, manner, and tone of voice as the meek-and-mild clergyman are all conducive to mirth. Equally pleasurable emotions are exercised by Mr W. Hargreaves' entertaining performance as the irascible Mr Cattermole, while Mr Wilfrid Compton helps materially in the fun-making by his impersonation of Mr Sydney Gibson, the tailor with social ambitions. Mr Fred Inwood acts agreeably as Douglas Cattermole, and Mr Raymond is a bluff and hearty Mr Marsland. Mrs Alfred Davis capitally assumes the part of the ardent spiritualist, Miss Ashford. Praise is due to Miss Cissie Wade for her performance as the landlady. Miss Dora Gray makes a pleasing Edith Marsland. Buckstone's one-act comedy, Good For Nothing, serves as a curtain-raiser.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—The attraction here consists of the drama, When Darkness Falls, performed by Mr William Bourne's company. Mr Frank Ellis is successful in depicting the manly, soldierly attributes of Captain Harold Montrevor, whose friend, the Rev. Arthur Graham, is capably presented by Mr Frank Liston. Mr Ellis J. Preston as James Woodruffe, an ex-captain of the British Army, submits a powerful impersonation. Some strong acting is supplied by Miss Amy Vennimore as Mrs Woodruffe; and Miss Maud Buchanan appears with credit as Helen Montrevor. Mr Will Clement affords enjoyment by his embodiment of Mike Kavanagh, and in the comedy scenes he is well assisted by Miss Emmeline Glover as Jenny.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—The ball of entertainment is set a-rolling in pleasing style by Marie Reeve, with song and dance, and then follows a well-rendered tenor song by Harry Sheldon. Dinah Norris and her troupe of Southern State artistes contribute characteristic songs and dances, and they are followed by George Reeves, whose conjuring ditty evokes applause. Mr and Mrs Neil Litchfield prove their worth as comedy entertainers, and May Milburn makes a successful appearance as a comedienne and dancer. A coloured couple, Grant and Grant, sing coon songs and dance to the evident gratification of the audience. Little Tich, of course, comes in for the heartiest of receptions, and his own peculiar drolleries cause plenty of laughter. Lizzie Soutter, character comedienne, is deservedly well received, and B. and T. Kreegers, in their eccentric musical act, remain for a second week. Animated pictures are also exhibited.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—A feature in the programme this week is provided by John Tiller's company of sixty performers in the vocal spectacular ballet, Harvest Home. The chorus and ballet are gaily attired, and songs of a lively and pleasing description follow one another in rapid succession, while Mr John Tiller's name is a sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the dancing. Miss Jessie Templeton makes a handsome Squire Broadlands and sings a hunting song in pleasing style. Freddie French and Barney Dixon are also prominent in the piece. Included in the variety company are Terry and Lambert, who have met with a flattering reception in their enjoyable comedy act. The Dunedin Troupe are particularly smart trick cyclists; and Henri Bekker is a clever and entertaining conjuror. Abd'el Kader Trio distinguish themselves as lightning artistes; and vocalists of merit are to the fore in Daisy Davidson, soprano, and Baker Belphor, baritone; while Larry Lewis is a capable comedian.

NEWPORT.

EMPIRE.—Moss's Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Frank and Jen Latona are the star turn here, and present an amusing item, The Musical Slavey. Charles Morritt, a purveyor of mysteries, is wonderfully clever; Geo. Formby gives two songs that admit opportunities for clever make-up; and the Hulines, in musical comicalities, provide an amusing show. The Sisters Sprightley are acceptable artistes; the Phydoras give a quaint musical turn; and Marguerite and Hanley, A Dress Rehearsal by the Haywards, and Geo. Benburn receive well earned recognition.

NEWQUAY.

VICTORIA HALL.—On Friday, the 22nd, we had a visit from Wishart, the popular double box and bottle trick mystifier, who, unaided by other talent, kept a large and appreciative audience diverted and astounded.

COSY NOOK CONCERTS.—Monday evening saw Mr Frederick Dale and his English opera singers present their 100th performance in Newquay, a full and enthusiastic house assembling to receive them. The bill-of-fare provided was well varied, and did not fail to delight Mr Dale's patrons. Miss Edith Serpell, who was in excellent voice, was the recipient of some pretty bouquets and congratulations. The occasion was also taken of presenting the audience with a tastefully arranged little souvenir, the opening page of which possesses a capital portrait of Mr Frederick Dale.

NORWICH.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Capt. W. Selby.—Among the attractions here this week are the Manhattan Comedy Four, who are quite a musical treat, and deserve the reception accorded them. The Comos are wonderful in their equilibristic feats; Hector and Paul are good as hand balancers; Maud Dewey obtains much appreciation as a bird mimic; Lily Morris is very successful; Dan Thomas is an amusing comedian; Aleccoma is a clever juggler; Miss Alma Curzon pleases all as a vocalist and burlesque actress; and Ada Alexandra, with her six merry Dutch girls as vocalists, singers, and dancers, is a good turn. Their comedy interlude, Auntie's Visit, is attractive. The Hippodrome Bioscope completes an excellent programme.

OXFORD.

His personal contributions were "I took the prize," "Inverary," "Mr John Mackie," and "The saftest o' the family," winding up the programme with "The weddin' of Lochie M'Graw." Mr Charles Tyres gave an admirable rendering of "For the sake of the past," "My Pretty Jane," and "My Dreams." Miss Mary C. Gilmour was heartily applauded for "The Dear Little Shamrock" and "The Auld Hoose." Miss Minnie Fenton was well received in her coon song and dance, "Come along, ma Lady," the character song, "My Irish Colleen," and her American ragtime sand dance; the great Korrie was highly entertaining in his musical movements; and Ko-Ko, the funny little Jap, showed a good deal of skill in his unique entertainment.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Gentleman Joe has been played here this week to appreciative audiences. The company (Milton Bode's), under the direction of Mr Stanley Rogers, is a well-balanced one, and everything goes smoothly. Mr Kennedy Allen in the name-part is capital, and keeps the house in one continuous ripple by his quaint by-play. The Pilkington Jones of Mr Harry A. Griffen is much to the liking of the audience. Lord Donnybrook is ably acted by Mr Robert Vincent; Mrs Ralli Carr is played by Miss Hebe Bliss with grace and distinction; and Miss Lalage Potts and Emma are respectively well acted by Miss Eida Burman and Miss Maud Marriott.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—The romantic military drama Dishonoured has been presented here this week under the capable direction of Miss Winifred Stuart. Mr Percy Ballard has a capital stage appearance, and acts the part of Phillip Cunningham, the dishonoured soldier, with success. Mr William Bradford as Captain Peyntland makes the most of a thankless part; the Sir William Cunningham of Mr Frank Stuart is ably acted; Miss Winifred Stuart gives a successful rendering of the part of Leslie Maynard; and Miss Marion Mayne is deserving of praise for playing such opposite parts as Azeemah and Ann Maria.

Murray, magician and card manipulator, is remarkably quick and clean in his passing; Kittee Rayburn, character comedienne, is capital; and the Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers, have had a good reception. RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—Audiences here this week have been vastly amused and entertained by the Leopolds and company in Frivolity. The famous comedians and acrobats, with their clever knockabout business and statuary tableaux, have been loudly applauded, and the musical numbers with which this merry show abounds, have been admirably contributed and warmly received. The fare provided at the Amphitheatre this week is certainly of the right kind for holiday folk.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, the Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—The New Barmaid, with Mr Joseph B. Montague as Bertie White, has proved the attraction at the Pavilion, which on Monday evening was packed. So well-known is Mr Montague in the part mentioned that it is unnecessary to say much concerning his impersonation; we would merely say it is wonderfully droll. Miss Gladys Elvey is distinctly pleasing in the title-rôle; Miss Bessie Pelessier is a capital Dora Heather; Mr Alexander Loftus makes a palpable hit as William White, Mr R. S. Thomas is excellent as Capt. Lovebury, and Mr A. Weston fulfils in first-rate style the character of M. Bonsor. The New Barmaid is as bright and attractive as its own merits, with the accompaniments of brilliant staging, elaborate dressing, and careful interpretation can make it.

MARINA THEATRE AND PROMENADE PIER.—Proprietors, Marina Pier and Lift Company; Manager, Mr H. Smith; Entertainment-Manager, Mr F. Pollard.—At the Marina and Pier popular programmes are put on each evening. There are daily performances on the Pier, where, in the evening, at 9 0, dancing takes place in the pavilion, with Mr G. Poulton as M.C. The bill, both at the Marina and Pier, is constantly being changed.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—The pleasing performance given by Miss Frederica and her troupe of well-trained dogs has proved a very popular principal turn at the Palace this week. Plenty of laughter is caused by the eccentricities of Bennett and Martell. John Lloyd, the singing collier, is the possessor of a good tenor voice, which is heard to advantage in several songs. Keeth and Meirson give a smart gymnastic act, coupling the execution of difficult feats with some capital fun. Wilton Warton, magician; the Sisters Charnley, duettists; and Hollie Grove, vocalist, all contribute good turns.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr A. R. Sutcliffe.—Griff returns after a short absence, and pleases all with his comic juggling; David Poole gives his humorous and original ventriloquial speciality; Jack Hylton, comedian, is, as usual, highly amusing; Daisy Lake, soprano, meets with general approval; A. R. Sutcliffe is the recipient of loud applause nightly; and Peter Flitcraft, pianist, completes the bill.
